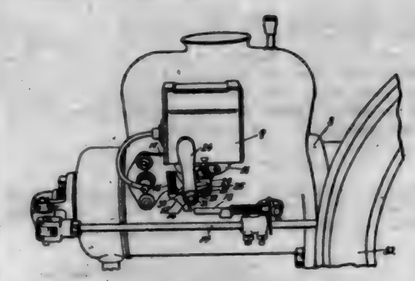
1. The combination in an automobile, of a clutch-operating mechanism, one or more members suitably connected with said clutch-operating mechanism and adapted by the operation of said mechanism when effecting declutching to be moved into contact with the ground and prevent backward movement of the vehicle, and means for returning said members to their inoperative position.



1,543,479. STARTER FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. ARTHUR NUTT, Garden City, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company, Inc., Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 21, 1922. Serial No. 589,585. 16 Claims. (Cl. 123—185.)

14. In a hand starter for internal combustion engines, a two-part casing, a starter shaft enclosed in one of the casing parts and extended into the other, the casing part within which the starter shaft is enclosed being fixed and the casing part into which it is extended being adjustable, said adjustable casing part being provided with openings formed therein at right angles one to the other, a starter crank shiftable in its relation to the adjustable casing part, said starter crank in one position of adjustment being adapted to enter said adjustable casing part through one of said openings and in a different position of adjustment being adapted to enter said casing part through the other of said openings, means for effecting a driving connection between the starter crank and the starter shaft regardless of the position of adjustment of the starter crank, and a kick-back device shiftable with the starter crank, the starter crank and kick-back device being assembled as a unit to prevent a reverse rotation of the starter crank due to back-firing regardless of its position of adjustment.

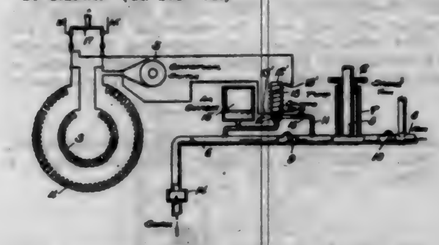
1,543,480. ATTACHMENT FOR MAGNETOS. ARTHUR S. PARKS, Sandwich, Ill., assignor to Sandwich Manufacturing Co., Sandwich, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 21, 1924. Serial No. 700,770. 8 Claims. (Cl. 123—149.)

2. In a magneto provided with a reciprocating armature, a shaft, power actuated mechanism on said shaft for operating said armature, a handle journaled on said shaft for manually operating said armature, and a spring on said shaft for holding said handle in stationary position during the normal operation of said magneto.

1,543,481. SOAP CONTAINER FOR SHAVING SOAP AND THE LIKE. JOHN G. PATTON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Feb. 25, 1922. Serial No. 539,141. 1 Claim. (Cl. 206—56.)



A container of the character stated, consisting of a cylindrical, hollow body open at both ends, an annular bead near each end of said body, the terminals of said body forming smooth necks extending from said beads, a plurality of radially arranged, parallel, longitudinally disposed sharp, pointed ribs extending throughout the length of said body including said necks upon the internal wall thereof, with which ribs the peripheral, ungrooved surfaces of long and short sticks of material in the body are adapted frictionally to engage to form grooves in the said sticks in their forward movements so as to function as a single stick, and a cap for each end of said body, which caps are interchangeable upon either neck thereof.

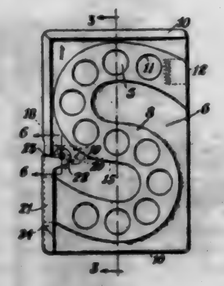
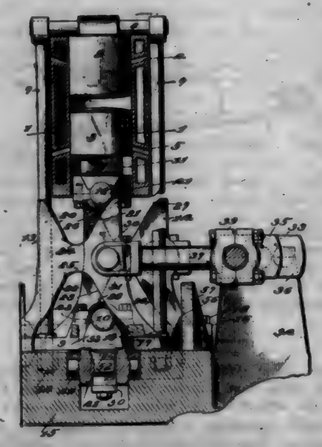
1,543,482. AUTOMATIC CONTROLLING MEANS FOR ELECTRIC PUMPS. ALEXANDER S. L. PEASLEE, Oak Park, Ill. Filed June 23, 1922. Serial No. 570,482. 10 Claims. (Cl. 103—41.)



1. A pumping system comprising an electric motor, a power supply circuit therefor containing a switch to connect and disconnect said motor, a pump operatively connected to said motor, and automatic controlling means for said system, said means including a fluid tight pressure relief passageway for the pump, a valve to open and close said passageway, and means responsive to the speed of said motor to control said valve.

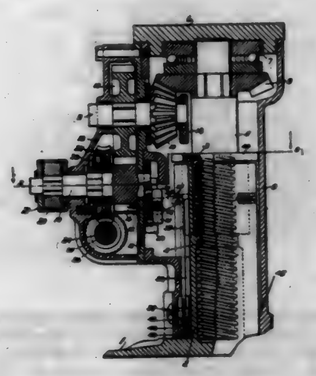
1,543,483. COIN BANK. JOSEPH F. PUNZAK, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to David H. Zell, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 3, 1924. Serial No. 696,450. 3 Claims. (Cl. 232—4.)



1. A coin bank having intermediate and side plates provided with spaced portions forming coin-ways opening at their ends upon opposite side edges and adjacent to opposite ends of the bank, means securing said plates together at their marginal edges, guard means at the entrance ends to said coin-ways through the side edges adjacent to one end of the bank, a pivoted closure for the other ends of said coin-ways through the other side edge adjacent to the other end of the bank, and latch means to hold said closure in effective position preventing the removal of the coins.

1,543,484. COIN BANK. JOSEPH F. PUNZAK, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to David H. Zell, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 3, 1924. Serial No. 696,451. 4 Claims. (Cl. 232—4.)

1. A coin bank comprising intermediate and side plates of sheet material, said side plates having off-set portions forming with said intermediate plate separate coin-ways each opening upon opposite edges of the bank, guard means to prevent the extraction of coins from one end of said coin-ways, a closure member for the other ends of said coin-ways pivotally and slidably mounted on its pivotal connection at one of its ends upon the body plates, and key-actuated means for locking said closure member in its effective position to prevent removal of the coins from said ends of the coin members.



1,543,485. ENGINE. CHARLES REINEKE, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Reineke Motor Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 24, 1921, Serial No. 472,192. Renewed Mar. 12, 1925. 16 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)

1. In an engine, the combination with a cylinder of a relatively high speed piston arranged therein, a slow speed power shaft, and means including oppositely moving power transmitting cam devices interconnecting the piston and power shaft whereby a multiplicity of power strokes of said piston is imparted to the power shaft for every revolution thereof.

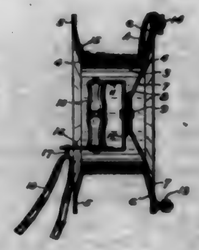
1,543,486. POSITIVE STOP FOR LIFTING JACKS. CHARLES WILLIAM RIPSCH and JAMES C. DAWLEY, Dayton, Ohio, assignors to The Joyce-Cridland Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 25, 1921. Serial No. 480,302. 26 Claims. (Cl. 254—103.)

1. In a lifting jack, a lifting element, actuating means for said lifting element, means to control the downward movement of said lifting element, and means to automatically operate said controlling means when said lifting element has been elevated to a predetermined height and thus permit said lifting element to move downwardly.

1,543,487. COMBINATION VEHICLE SPRING, BUMPER, AND SHOCK ABSORBER. ROBERT H. SIMONDS, Dayton, Ohio. Filed May 19, 1923. Serial No. 640,256. 4 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)

1. A structure of the type described comprising a pair of outwardly projecting superimposed leaf springs, a resilient bracing element secured between said springs, the latter terminating at their front ends in bumper receiving portions, and a bumper rod secured between said portions.



1,543,488. DEEP-WELL PUMPING APARATUS. WILLIAM O. TODD, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 15, 1924. Serial No. 686,413. 11 Claims. (Cl. 103—46.)

1. A well pumping apparatus comprising a body adapted to be suspended within the well, and having a power cylinder and a pump barrel; a piston operable in said cylinder; a plunger, connected with said piston and operable within said barrel; a stationary tubing string communicating with said cylinder for conducting fluid under continuous pressure thereto, and a second stationary tubing string positioned within and spaced from the first tubing string, said second tubing string communicating with said barrel for conducting the pumped well fluid therefrom, one of said tubing strings being connected with said body for suspending the same; and a valve within said body for controlling the admission and discharge of the pressure fluid to said cylinder on each side of its piston to cause the latter to reciprocate.

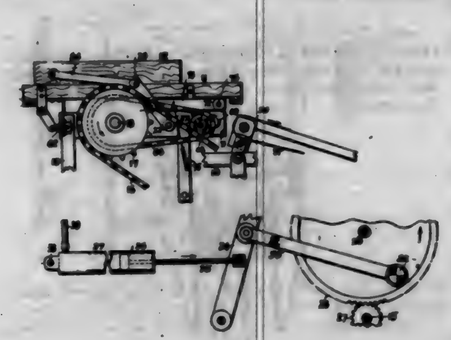
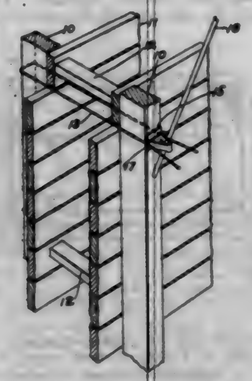
1,543,489. HAND REEL. GEORGE E. WILSON, Omaha, Nebr. Filed Jan. 16, 1925. Serial No. 2,031. 4 Claims. (Cl. 242—96.)



1. In a device of the class described, a spool comprising a tubular center-member and annular end-plates secured to the ends of said center-member, a cross-bar extending diametrically of one of said end-plates and bowed into the adjacent end of the tubular center-member, a handle disposed within the center-member and having a grip transverse to the axis thereof, and a pin secured to said cross-bar and extending coaxially of the spool, said pin being connected rotatably with said handle.

1,543,490. SHEET-SEPARATING MACHINE. JOHN E. WOODBURY, Worcester, Mass. Filed Sept. 4, 1920. Serial No. 408,175. 12 Claims. (Cl. 271—29.)



1. In a sheet separating device, the combinaton of a reciprocatable holder for a pile of sheets, a support for the rear end of said pile, a support for the forward end of the pile spaced from the rear support and having a downwardly projecting separating edge located in position to engage the sheets only after the holder has started to move forward, and pneumatic means for drawing the forward end of the bottom sheet downwardly while passing over said space said pneumatic means being oscillatable in the arcs of independent circles.

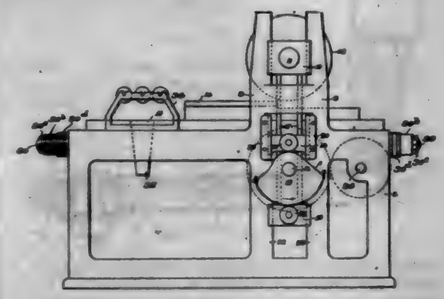
1,543,491. CLAMP AND TIGHTENER FOR TIE WIRES. PETER BEGHETTI, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Sept. 10, 1924. Serial No. 736,952. 3 Claims. (Cl. 25—131.)

1. The combination with a form for concrete walls of the character indicated and a tie-wire for preventing spreading of the walls, of a combined clamping and tightening means to engage the ends of the said tie-wire, said clamping and tightening means including a tapered shank, a ring upon said shank slidable thereon to engage the ends of the wire, and means on the outer end of the shank to receive a tool, whereby the said clamp may be moved outwardly to tighten the wire.



1,543,492. WORKBOX. GEORGE E. BILTON, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed Dec. 18, 1922. Serial No. 607,634. 4 Claims. (Cl. 223—58.)

1. In a work box, the combination with the covers hinged to the sides of the box, of a pair of free pivotal links connected together at their inner ends and connecting said covers, and means fixed to the box end slidably engaging said links and forming pivots to engage said link at variable points above and below to effect the operation of either cover with the movement of the other cover.

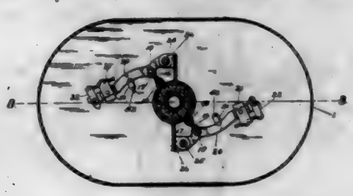
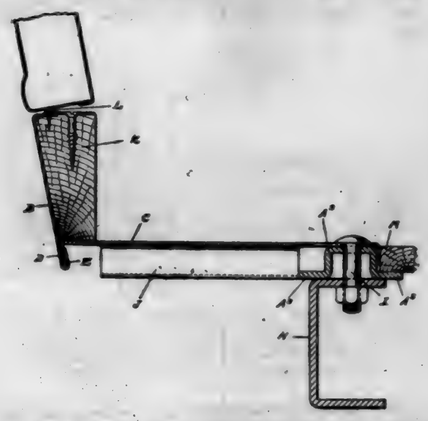
1,543,493. CYLINDER PRESS. JOSEPH CYRILLE EMILE BOURASSA, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed June 4, 1923. Serial No. 643,285. 13 Claims. (Cl. 101—343.)



1. In a press the combination of a reciprocating bed, reciprocating ink distributing rollers, and a cylinder, the said cylinder retracting from said bed to permit the said distributing rollers to pass thereunder while reciprocating over said bed.

1,543,494. OPHTHALMIC MOUNTING. WILLIAM H. BOUTELLE, Sturbridge, Mass., assignor to American Optical Company, Southbridge, Mass., a Voluntary Association of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 29, 1924. Serial No. 746,549. 8 Claims. (Cl. 88—47.)

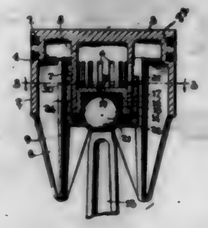


1. An ophthalmic mounting comprising a metallic member provided in one of its surfaces with a recess, a nonmetallic plug secured in the recess, and a nonmetallic covering on a surface of the metallic member and secured to the plug.

1,543,495. OIL CIRCUIT BREAKER. AUGUSTUS JAMES BOWIE, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Dec. 5, 1921. Serial No. 520,095. 14 Claims. (Cl. 200—150.)

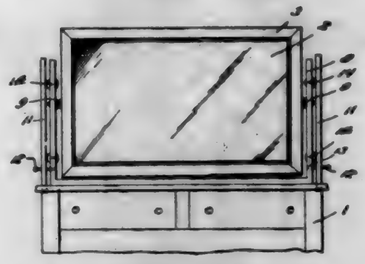
1. In an oil circuit breaker a pair of electrically connected blades hinged on different axes for opening and closing the circuit, adapted to be substantially parallel throughout their travel, said blades operating in opposite directions.

1,543,496. METALLIC VEHICLE BODY. PAUL E. BRENEMAN, Detroit, Mich., assignor to C. R. Wilson Body Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Nov. 10, 1919. Serial No. 336,786. 5 Claims. (Cl. 296—28.)



1. A metallic body for vehicles, comprising sills independent of the chassis frame arranged to be directly superposed thereon, a body shell of a contour differing from that of the sills, and members projecting laterally from said sills for supporting the body shell.

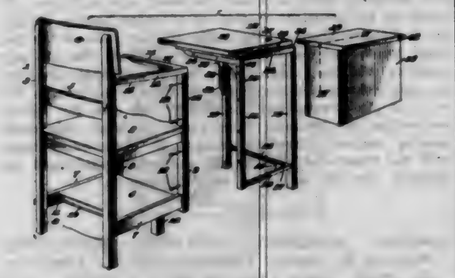
1,543,497. SEAMED METAL ARTICLE. WILLIAM L. R. EMMET, Schenectady, N. Y., and SAMUEL T. THORPE, Bristol, Conn.; said Emmet assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York, and said Thorpe assignor to The Horton Manufacturing Company, Bristol, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Nov. 28, 1921. Serial No. 518,483. 9 Claims. (Cl. 273—80.)



8. A resilient golf club shaft comprising a sheet steel tube formed with its edges in abutting relation, a steel member bridging the joint between the edges of said tube, and a metal binder filling the interstices between and uniting the edges and member throughout their proximate surfaces, said binder having a melting point below that at which recarbonization of the tube and member takes place.

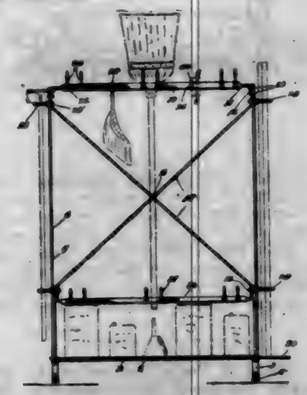
1,543,498. PISTON AND CONNECTING ROD FOR ENGINES. CLAYSON ROSS HAMMOND, Salem, Oreg. Filed Mar. 21, 1924. Serial No. 700,858. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)

1. A piston comprising a body portion formed with a rearwardly extending skirt, said skirt consisting of a plurality of triangular-shaped spaced projections arcuate in cross section, each of said projections having one edge provided with a sharp point for scraping lubricant towards the crank case during the operation of the piston, and its other edge rounded.



1,543,499. MIRROR MOUNTING FOR DRESSERS. MATT HATCHER, Sipsey, Ala.; Alice Hatcher administratrix of said Matt Hatcher, deceased. Filed Feb. 13, 1924. Serial No. 692,564. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—5.)

1. In an article of the class described, a piece of furniture having a pocket formed adjacent the rear wall thereof, a supporting frame, a mirror pivotally mounted in said supporting frame, said mirror and frame being movable as a unit into said pocket and adapted to be completely housed therein, a pair of hinged cover sections for the open upper end of the pocket, said sections being adapted to be moved into substantially vertical position to open the pocket, means for raising the mirror and frame into projected position above the top of the piece of furniture, and locking means carried by the hinged sections for engagement with the frame adapted to lock said frame in projected position, said locking means also serving as operating means for the hinged section.



1,543,500. COMBINED DESK AND CHAIR. OLIVE G. HENDERSON, Ann Arbor, Mich. Filed Nov. 18, 1923. Serial No. 674,564. 7 Claims. (Cl. 155—3.)

1. The combination, with a chair having supporting legs of its own, an arm at one side of said chair formed by one arm of a horizontal angle bracket, the other arm of said bracket extending from said arm across the front of the chair, of a desk having supporting legs of its own, and means for detachably fastening said desk to said bracket arm which extends across the front of the chair, whereby the desk and chair may be secured together for use or knocked down for transportation.

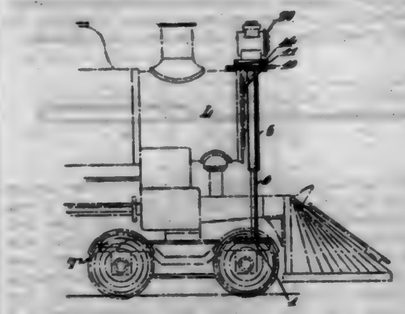
1,543,501. DISPLAY RACK. LEROY V. HIATT, Douglas, Ariz. Filed June 13, 1922. Serial No. 567,992. 3 Claims. (Cl. 211—14.)

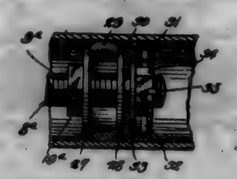


1. In a structure of the class described, a supporting frame structure including a cross bar vertically disposed, and an article supporting member comprising an intermediate bail portion frictionally fitted over the said cross bar and having supporting arms extending laterally and upwardly in opposite directions therefrom.

1,543,502. DYNAMO-ELECTRIC MACHINE. HENRY M. HOBART, Niskayuna, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 25, 1924. Serial No. 701,858. 2 Claims. (Cl. 171—252.)

1. In a dynamo electric machine, the combination of a frame, a stator winding, a rotor, and a metal partition comprising a perforated middle section having insulating material disposed on each side thereof for sealing said perforations and non-perforated end sections, said middle section lying in the air gap between said stator winding and said rotor, said end sections cooperating with said middle section and said frame to form a casing around said stator winding for containing an insulating medium.

1,543,503. LOCOMOTIVE HEADLIGHT. DONALD MCKAY, Montgomery, Ala. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,210. 2 Claims. (Cl. 240—62.)

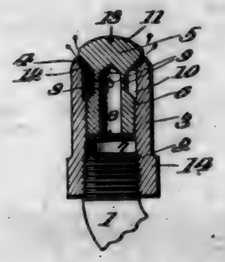


1. In a dirigible headlight for locomotives, a platform to be mounted on a locomotive, a sleeve depending from said platform, a cam block fixed to the upper face of said platform, a cooperating cam mounted on said block and having a stem extended loosely therethrough into said sleeve, means connected with the truck of a locomotive to be rotated thereby, said means having a shank extending into said sleeve, said stem and shank being keyed to the sleeve to permit them to rotate in unison and to reciprocate independently, and a headlight fixed to said movable cam.

1,543,504. PENCIL SHARPENER. GEORGE MEZEI, Clinchco, Va. Filed Mar. 13, 1924. Serial No. 698,942. 2 Claims. (Cl. 120—94.)

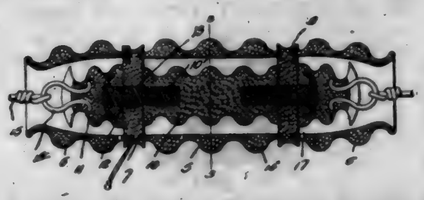
1. A pencil sharpener comprising a plate having at one end a semi-conical depression to receive one pencil end, said plate being provided with hinge eyes at each side of the base of said depression, a U-shaped plate having the legs of the U hinged to said hinge eyes and carrying at its free end a spring clip engageable with the end of the first plate remote from the hinge eyes, a knife supporting plate provided with lugs on each side and at each end, said lugs engaging the side edges of the first plate, a knife carried by said knife supporting plate, and a handle projecting upwardly from the knife supporting plate between the legs of the U-shaped plate for reciprocating the knife supporting plate.

1,543,505. GREASE GUN. CHARLES H. MIDDLETON and HARRY A. SELSER, Camden, N. J. Filed May 23, 1921. Serial No. 471,670. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—109.)



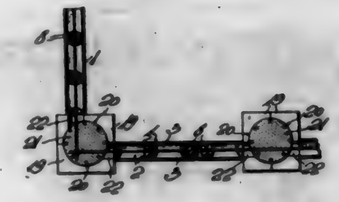
In a piston, a plunger; an abutment on the plunger; disks mounted on the plunger, one disk engaging the abutment; an outwardly bowed packing ring located between the disks; and means for advancing the other disk.

1,543,506. METHOD OF MAKING HOLLOW RUBBER ARTICLES, SUCH AS NIPPLES, FINGER COTS, BULBS, AND THE LIKE. THOMAS W. MILLER, Ashland, Ohio, assignor to The Faultless Rubber Company, Ashland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 31, 1923. Serial No. 671,956. 3 Claims. (Cl. 18—56.)



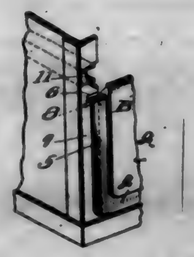
1. The method of manufacturing hollow rubber articles closed at one end, which consists in first forming a tube of vulcanizable material, then dividing said tube into lengths and simultaneously shaping said lengths into hollow closed bodies each double the length of the completed article, then expanding and vulcanizing said bodies to a predetermined shape, and finally separating said bodies each into two sections, each section forming a completed article.

1,543,507. GAS BURNER. CHARLES MUNEMEE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to American Stove Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 2, 1923. Serial No. 655,229. 1 Claim. (Cl. 67—87.)



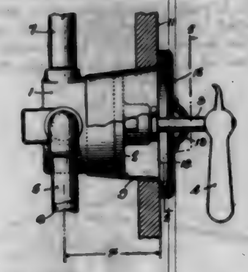
A gas burner comprising a housing having an intermediate internal screw-threaded portion, its upper end beveled outwardly, an interior member having its lower end made hollow and provided with an intermediate reduced portion, its upper solid end flared outwardly to correspond with the bevel of the outer extremity of the housing, laterally extending openings formed through the intermediate reduced portion and the enlarged lower end screw-threaded to fit the intermediate screw-threads of the housing, whereby a chamber is formed between the said intermediate reduced portion and the housing, and the enlarged head is adjustable, for the purpose described.

1,543,508. ELECTRICAL INSULATOR. GEORGE F. NEAL, Oaklyn, N. J. Filed Aug. 15, 1923. Serial No. 657,557. 3 Claims. (Cl. 173—366.)



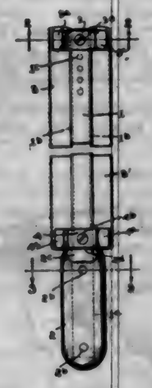
1. In an insulator of the class described, an outer tubular insulating shell, an inner insulator core rigidly connected to said shell and disposed concentrically within and spaced therefrom, means upon the ends of the core for facilitating suspension of the insulator, said shell and core each embodying central and a pair of end sections, disks arranged between said sections, the inner or intermediate section of the core having threaded sockets formed in the ends thereof, screws having their heads embedded in the inner ends of the end sections of said core, said screws passing through openings in said disks and being threaded into the sockets in the ends of the intermediate section of the core for rigidly connecting the sections of the latter together, said disks having annular marginal grooves in their outer faces and the inner end of each end section of said shell extending into the adjacent coacting groove.

1,543,509. CONCRETE BUILDING STRUCTURE. WILLIAM E. NELSON, Washington, D. C. Filed Nov. 15, 1922. Serial No. 601,186. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—30.)



2. A monolithic concrete wall comprising a plurality of concrete units laid upon each other to form a pillar, said units having vertically alined recesses to receive a concrete core, and a plurality of concrete wall units contacting with said pillar forming units, said wall units having recesses in communication with the recesses of said pillar forming units, and a concrete core filling all of said recesses and tying all of said units together.

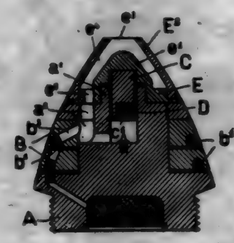
1,543,510. SLIDING DOOR FOR STOVES. FREDERIC G. NICOLAUS, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to American Stove Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 18, 1924. Serial No. 756,755. 6 Claims. (Cl. 126—190.)



1. A sliding door for stoves and the like, comprising a door-frame having openings, a door having its edges overlapping the frame and adapted to pass through the said openings, the top edges of the overlapping portion of the door adapted to engage with the wall of the opening when the door is in a closed position.

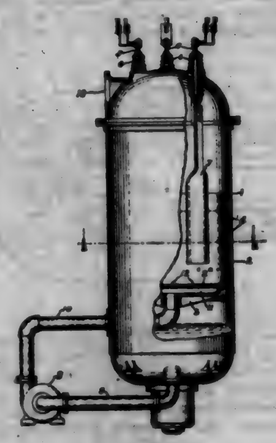
1,543,511. VALVE TEL.. LATE. EDWARD F. NIEDECKEN, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Feb. 12, 1925. Serial No. 8,640. 7 Claims. (Cl. 137—111.)

1. The combination with a valve casing, of a protecting sleeve arranged thereon and projecting forwardly thereof, said sleeve being fixed against outward displacement relatively to said casing and adapted to provide a template for use in fixing the position of the surrounding wall.



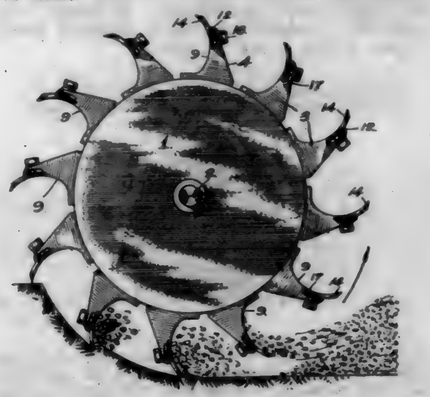
1,543,512. HACK SAW. HENRY O. NOYES, Oakland, Calif. Filed Oct. 28, 1924. Serial No. 746,393. 6 Claims. (Cl. 145—31.)

1. A hack saw, comprising a blade holder of slightly greater width than that of the thickest blade to be used therewith; clamp members disposed transversely of said holder; and means for causing said opposed members to bind the rear edge of the blade against an edge of said holder.



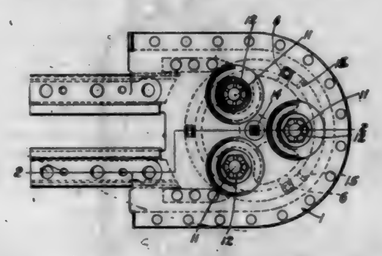
6. A hack saw, comprising a blade holder of slightly greater thickness than that of the thickest blade to be used therewith, and having longitudinal V-shaped grooves in its opposite side edges adapted to receive the back edges of the blades inserted therein; a handle at one end of said holder; a blade clamp at the opposite end of said holder; a second blade clamp at the inner end of said handle; said blade clamps each comprising opposed members slightly less is length than the combined widths of the holder and blades, and having their outer ends offset to form jaws; and a screw engaging said opposed clamp members for drawing same together to bind the blades in said grooves parallel with said holder.

1,543,513. SLOW-COMBUSTION FUSE FOR PROJECTILES. OTTO OESTERLEN, Essen, and KARL WIEBEL, Werden, Germany, assignors to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Dec. 6, 1920. Serial No. 428,740. 7 Claims. (Cl. 102—36.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



3. A slow combustion fuse for projectiles comprising a body, a cylindrical extension formed on said body, fuse rings containing a combustion fuse secured to said body, a firing pin mounted in said extension, a plate provided with a conical shaped cap secured to said extension, said cap covering said firing pin, a frusto-conical shape hollow member secured to said plate, the free end of said member being open and disposed centrally of the fuse, said cap and hollow member forming a hollow conical-shaped annular space, said fuse ring and body having formed therein a passage way providing communication between said annular space and the burning composition of the fuse.

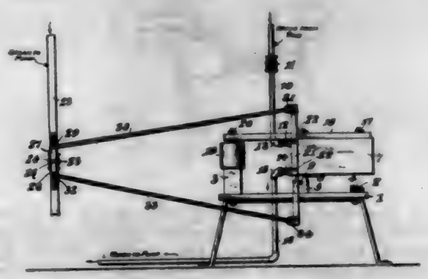
1,543,514. ELECTRIC STEAM BOILER. ALBERT N. ORTS, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 16, 1924. Serial No. 713,861. 4 Claims. (Cl. 219—40.)



2. In a three-phase electric boiler, the combination of a shell which forms a neutral of the system, and electrodes in said shell, said electrodes being triangular in shape and having curved outer faces which conform to the curvature of the shell and flat inner faces which stand parallel to each other, said flat faces being spaced apart a distance equal approximately to 1.73 times the distance between the curved outer faces and the shell.

1,543,515. CULTIVATOR BRACKET AND CUTTER. LYNN W. PICKARD, Sacramento, Calif. Filed Sept. 16, 1924. Serial No. 738,053. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—215.)

1. The combination with a cultivator drum of a plurality of brackets mounted at regular intervals upon the periphery of said drum, each bracket having an arcuate transverse portion terminating in a groove for the reception of a cutter and a beveled portion beyond said grooves; a short arcuate cutter blade mounted within each groove and having a beveled portion engaging the beveled portion of the bracket; and means for firmly seating and retaining the inner end of each blade within its respective groove and the beveled portion of said arcuate blade in contact with the beveled portion of the bracket.



1,543,516. CUTTER HEAD FOR COAL-CUTTING MACHINES. THOMAS E. PRAY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Goodman Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 3, 1921. Serial No. 512,453. 4 Claims. (Cl. 262—28.)

1. A cutter head for mining machines comprising a top plate and bottom plate, a bearing ring adapted to provide direct bearing for a cutter chain and circumferentially adjustable between said plates, and a plurality of bolts extending through said plates within and adjacent said bearing ring to secure said plates together.

1,543,517. BOILER-FEED REGULATOR. FAY A. PYLE and CLAUDE E. MELTON, Scottsbluff, Nebr. Filed Oct. 24, 1924. Serial No. 745,665. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—101.)

A regulator for the purpose set forth comprising a support, a water receiving tank arranged thereover, spaced therefrom and having one end pivotally connected therewith, an arm extended from the top of the pivoted end of the tank and having connected to its outer end a depending counter-balancing weight for maintaining the tank in normal or balanced position with respect to the support, a bar fixed to one side of the tank, means for supplying water to the tank to shift the latter from balanced position, a water discharge pipe for the tank leading to a pump, a pump steam line valve shifting member, means carried by the lower end of the bar and having a lost motion connection with said member for maintaining the valve of the steam line to the pump closed when the tank is in normal position, means carried by the upper end of the bar and having a lost motion connection with said member for opening the valve in said steam line when the tank is shifted from normal position, a stop carried by said support for limiting the movement of said counter-balancing weight when the tank shifts to normal position, and a beveled resilient abutment carried by the support, of less height than the stop, and engageable by the tank when the latter is shifted from normal position.

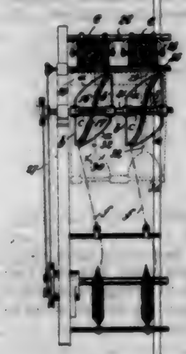
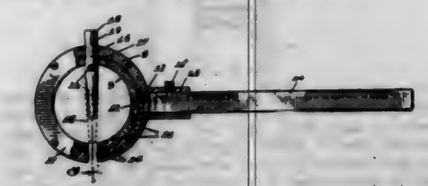
1,543,518. TOOTH-PASTE-SERVING DEVICE. WILLIAM B. RAMSEY, Atlanta, Ga. Filed Mar. 5, 1924. Serial No. 697,007. 2 Claims. (Cl. 221—60.)



1. A tooth paste serving device consisting of a single blank of metal comprising a flat base, a pair of lateral attaching ears disposed intermediate of said base, a pair of lugs disposed vertically with reference to said base at one end thereof and having each a bearing, a shaft mounted in said bearing and having a handle and a slot to receive the flat end of the paste container and a spring plate forming the upper portion of the device and downwardly curved at its outer end to bear upon the container and coact with the shaft to expel the paste from said container.

1,543,519. ROTARY THREAD GUIDE FOR CROSS-WINDING FRAMES. WILHELM REINERS and GUSTAV KAHLBSCH, Munich-Gladbach, Germany. Filed May 28, 1924. Serial No. 716,385. 11 Claims. (Cl. 242—43.)



1. A rotary thread guide for cross winding frames, comprising rotating wings having their peripheral guide elements angularly disposed relative to their axis of rotation, and supporting arms for said guide elements, the supporting arms for the trailing ends of said guide elements being sloped away from the respective transaxial planes of said guide elements, as described.

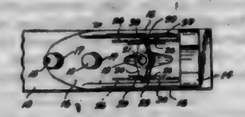
1,543,520. WIRE-TWISTING TOOL. FRED C. REUTTER, Los Banos, Calif., assignor of one-half to Mark M. Finlayson, Los Banos, Calif. Filed Feb. 7, 1924. Serial No. 691,207. 6 Claims. (Cl. 140—119.)



1. A wire twisting tool comprising a ratchet; a wire engaging member slidably and rotatably mounted upon the ratchet and arranged to be moved to engage a pair of wires to be twisted together; means for holding the wire engaging member in operative or releasing position relative to the wires and ratchet; and means for actuating the ratchet and the wire engaging member to twist the wires.

1,543,521. DUAL IGNITION SYSTEM. WILHELM M. RISTAU, Jr., Fredericksburg, Tex. Filed Aug. 5, 1924. Serial No. 730,288. 5 Claims. (Cl. 123—148.)

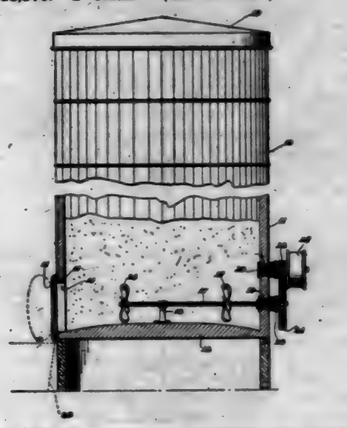
2. In a dual ignition system, means to provide a pair of magneto circuits each including a controlling switch, a set of spark plugs and a magneto, a driving element, means mounted on said element for driving the magnetos of said circuits, means whereby one of the magnetos is driven independently of the other, each of said circuits further including a spark control device, and a controlling element common to said devices.

1,543,522. DETACHABLE EAR FOR TRANSMISSION BANDS. ELMER R. ROSS, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to The Raybestos Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Sept. 4, 1924. Serial No. 735,901. 18 Claims. (Cl. 188—249.)

5. A transmission or brake band comprising a curved strip of resilient material, a stud projecting outwardly therefrom, an ear having an opening to receive said stud and an elongated opening, and a button pivoted to the band and adapted to pass through said elongated opening in one position but of greater length than the width of the opening to secure the ear to the band when turned to a position transversely to the opening, the ear being provided with recesses on opposite sides of the opening to receive said button when in securing position and also having inclined surfaces leading to said recesses, and the band being slit on opposite sides of said pivot to provide a resilient portion movable relative to the rest of the band and on which the button is mounted.

1,543,523. DETACHABLE EAR FOR TRANSMISSION BANDS. ELMER R. ROSS, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to The Raybestos Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Dec. 12, 1924. Serial No. 755,425. 8 Claims. (Cl. 188—249.)

5. A transmission or brake band comprising a curved strip of resilient metal, a plurality of substantially radially extending studs carried by said band, an ear provided with openings into which the studs project and so arranged that the sides of the openings engage the studs to prevent sliding or longitudinal movement of the ear on the band, a securing button having an overhanging portion pivoted to one of the studs, one of the openings in the ear being elongated to allow passage of said button, said button being movable to a position over the ear to prevent movement of the ear radially of the band, and a pair of spaced lugs on the ear to hold the button in securing position.



1,543,524. BATTERY CLIP. HOWARD B. SHERMAN, Battle Creek, Mich. Filed Apr. 24, 1924. Serial No. 708,774. 6 Claims. (Cl. 173—273.)

1. A battery clip formed of a single strip of suitable metal bent at its center to form a plurality of substantially side by side bends and opposite similar side members extending beyond the central bend; and beyond said side members the opposite portions of the strip being bent inwardly at a point beyond the central bend to form opposite legs, said legs crossing each other; the portions of the strip being further bent at the outer ends of the legs to form opposed clamping jaws; said jaws being at the end of the clip opposite the plurality of bends, and the said bends constituting a spring adapted to spread the side members apart and close the jaws; all portions of such clip being formed integral, substantially as and for the purpose specified.

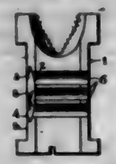
1,543,525. SILAGE-EJECTING DEVICE. DAVID B. SHIRAS, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed June 7, 1924. Serial No. 718,570. 1 Claim. (Cl. 214—17.)

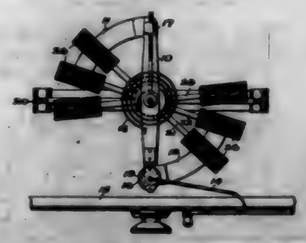
The combination with an air-tight silo having an opening in its side at its bottom and a door normally closing said opening air-tight, of a shaft arranged in substantially axial alinement with the opening in the side of the silo, an air-tight bearing for said shaft in the wall of the silo, propeller blades secured on said shaft within the silo, and means external to the silo for rotating said shaft.

1,543,526. PRINTING PRESS. ROBERT JARVIS SMOTHERS, Holyoke, Mass., assignor of one-half to James T. Robinson, Holyoke, Mass. Filed Apr. 2, 1924. Serial No. 703,775. 12 Claims. (Cl. 101—415.1.)



1. A blanket roll comprising a body portion formed of a fixed, a pivoted and a pair of removable sections, said removable sections adapted to be secured to the inner face at the ends of a flexible plate, said pivoted section when in normal position forming a continuation of the fixed section, the opposed ends of the fixed and pivoted sections being bevelled and seating against each other when the pivoted section is in normal position, and said removable sections when in normal position abutting against each other and one abutting against the pivoted section and the other against the fixed section, the abutting portions of said removable sections being bevelled and forming continuations of the terminal of the plate.

1,543,527. PHOTOTYPOGRAPHIC CHARACTER SLUG. ROBERT JARVIS SMOTHERS, Holyoke, Mass., assignor of one-half to James T. Robinson, Holyoke, Mass. Filed June 4, 1924. Serial No. 717,830. 12 Claims. (Cl. 195—85.)

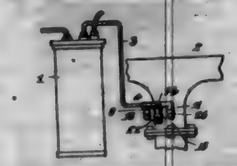


1. A phototypographic character slug comprising a body portion having a front edge, a carrier seated in said front edge and having its outer edge provided with an object to be photographed, and said body portion provided with means for directing light rays to said carrier to provide for the printing of the object on a sensitized surface opposing the object.

1,543,528. PHOTOTYPOGRAPHIC ROTOGRAVURE CHARACTER SLUG. ROBERT JARVIS SMOTHERS, Holyoke, Mass., assignor of one-half to James T. Robinson, Holyoke, Mass. Filed July 2, 1924. Serial No. 723,783. 15 Claims. (Cl. 95—85.)

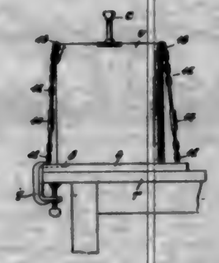
1. A phototypographic rotogravure character slug comprising a body portion having a front edge, a carrier seated in said front edge and having its outer edge provided with a dotted object to be photographed, and said body portion provided with means for directing light rays to said carrier to provide for the printing of the dotted object on a sensitized surface opposing the object.

1,543,529. ELECTROMAGNETIC MEASURING INSTRUMENT. GEORGE WALTER STRONER, Lynn, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 11, 1924. Serial No. 705,957. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—95.)



1. An indicating instrument of the electromagnetic type having an operating plunger magnet the winding of which is made up of a plurality of separate coil sections which are relatively adjustable with respect to each other along the axis of the solenoid.

1,543,530. VAPORIZING ATTACHMENT. LEO G. STRANSKY, Pukwana, S. Dak. Filed Mar. 10, 1923. Serial No. 624,802. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—124.)



1. An attachment for the purpose set forth comprising an air conducting element in the form of a substantially short tubular member having a lateral tubular extension intermediate its ends for connection to a conduit leading to the vacuum tank of an internal combustion engine, said member further provided with an inner and a pair of outer spaced depending tubular extensions one outer and the inner extension having an air inlet, a valve therein for closing the inlet and means in connection with the valve to constitute a by-pass, an angle-shaped coupling element connected to and depending from the other outer extension and formed of a vertical and a horizontal leg and with the horizontal leg threaded for connection directly to the intake manifold of the engine, and a foraminous pipe mounted within said horizontal leg and extending from said vertical leg into the intake manifold.

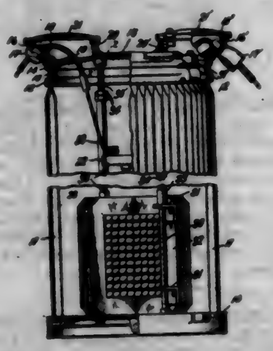
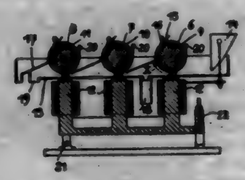
1,543,531. HOLDER FOR BREAD KNEADERS OR THE LIKE. FRED A. STRUSSEL, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Nov. 14, 1924. Serial No. 749,902. 3 Claims. (Cl. 248—41.)



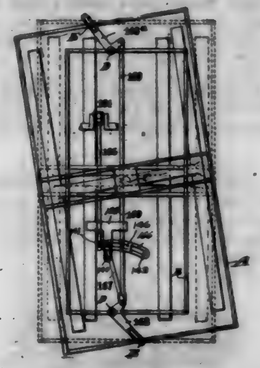
3. A receptacle holder comprising, a flat base member having leg receiving sockets in its upper face, said base member having a channel in its upper face opening through one edge, a U-shaped clamp arranged to interconnect the base member and a support and having one portion disposed in said channel, chains secured at one end to the clamp and base member, turn buckles for varying the length of the chain, and hooks carried by the free ends of said chains.

1,543,532. STAKE-SECURING MEANS. DAVID TIMIDAISKI, Scobeyville, N. J. Filed May 14, 1924. Serial No. 713,271. 2 Claims. (Cl. 296—43.)



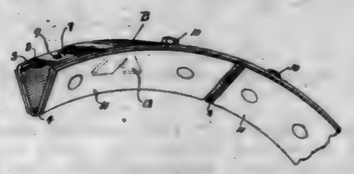
2. In combination with the bottom of a vehicle body having notches arranged in the sides thereof, a band extending around the side edges of the bottom, stakes adapted to be inserted in said notches, each stake having a longitudinal recess provided in the lower end of the outer face thereof, a metallic strip secured at its upper end in said recess, a stop member formed in the intermediate portion of said strip and adapted to normally engage the lower edge of the band for holding the stake against accidental displacement from the notch provided therefor, the lower end of the strip extending below the lower end of the stake and disposed inwardly adjacent the bottom of the stake, a lever pivoted to the free end of said inwardly extending portion for retracting the stop from engagement with the band, and a projection formed on said lever and adapted to be seated in a recess provided in the bottom of the stake for holding the stop member in a retracted position.

1,543,533. INCASED ELECTRICAL APPARATUS. EDWARD D. TREANOR, Pittsfield, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 25, 1920. Serial No. 391,767. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—85.)



In a casing for electrical apparatus, a metal beading secured to the upper edge of the side wall of said casing, said beading having a thin laterally extending fin, and a top band cast onto said upper edge of the side wall and around said fin, whereby said fin forms a tight welded joint between the side wall and the top band.

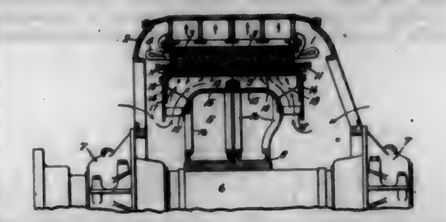
1,543,534. PROCESS OF WET MAGNETIC SEPARATION ON ROLLER SEPARATORS. GEORG ULLRICH, Magdeburg, Germany, assignor to the Firm Fried. Krupp Grusonwerk Aktiengesellschaft, Magdeburg-Buckau, Germany. Filed Oct. 18, 1923. Serial No. 669,412. 5 Claims. (Cl. 88—71.)



1. A wet magnetic process for separating material consisting in supplying a liquid to the descending lateral surface of a magnetic roll whereby a downwardly flowing liquid wall is formed at the base of said roll, delivering the material to said wall in a liquid current traveling in the direction of rotation of said roll, raising the magnetizable particles of said material in said liquid wall, conveying them out of said wall and depositing them.

1,543,535. STEERING STEPPER. RICHARD VENELAFF, Berlin, Germany, assignor of one-third to Arthur von Mumm and one-third to Walter von Mumm, both of Berlin, Germany. Original application filed Feb. 16, 1921, Serial No. 445,552. Divided and this application filed Mar. 23, 1922. Serial No. 546,176. 3 Claims. (Cl. 180—8.)

1. A vehicle comprising in combination, two pairs of runners, a frame rigidly connecting the runners of each pair to form a unit, an angle lever adapted to swing about the frame of one pair and pivotally engaging the frame of the other pair, a double armed segment capable of pivoting on said latter frame, a crank shaft, operative connection between said shaft and said segment for causing permanent rocking motion of said segment and a link pivoted to the free end of said angle lever and to one end of said segment.



1,543,536. BRAKE-BAND STRUCTURE. HERBERT A. WALKER, Fullerton, Calif., assignor to Frederick W. Smith, Whittier, Calif. Filed Nov. 24, 1922. Serial No. 603,008. 8 Claims. (Cl. 188—259.)

5. A brake shoes structure comprising a segment having inwardly convergent side plates, means for connecting said plates in assembled relation, and brake linings fastened to the convergent faces of the plates, each plate having transverse tongues adapted to be overlapped in assembled relation and through which the fastening means pass.

1,543,537. DYNAMO-ELECTRIC MACHINE. JAMES WILKINSON, Lynn, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 2, 1922. Serial No. 557,994. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—252.)

1. In a dynamo electric machine, a rotatable member comprising a spider having longitudinally extending ribs, said ribs being spaced apart, a core consisting of laminations mounted on said ribs and provided with slots, windings in said slots, said laminations being provided with a plurality of radially extending ventilating spaces therebetween, said ventilating spaces being substantially uniformly spaced throughout the length of said core, fan members mounted on said spider at the ends thereof, and means forming substantially enclosed passages leading from said fan members to the inner ends of said ventilating spaces, said passages being wider at the ends adjacent the fan members and narrower at the portions thereof adjacent the said ventilating spaces, said ribs of said spider being located in said passages and extending in the direction of said passages so as to form a plurality of paths for the air from each of said fan members.

1,543,538. SIDE BEARING. WILLIAM B. WINN, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Dec. 8, 1923. Serial No. 679,247. 5 Claims. (Cl. 308—224.)

1. A self-centering side bearing comprising a housing, a guideway formed on one side wall and extending from a corner to the upper center of the housing, a second guideway formed on the opposite side wall and extending from the far corner to the upper center of the housing so that a portion only of the guideways are opposite each other, a self-centering roller within said housing having trunnions moving within said guideways, a separable plate within said housing and said guideways forming means for holding the plate from movement in all but one direction, and means formed in the bottom wall of said housing to hold the plate from movement in this direction.

1,543,539. DANGER-INDICATING DEVICE FOR HIGHWAYS. ELSIE M. WRIGHTSON, Mobile, Ala. Filed Jan. 3, 1925. Serial No. 398. 5 Claims. (Cl. 238—8.)

1. In combination with a vehicle highway having a point of danger thereon, of means arranged on the highway adjacent said point of danger for imparting a series of shocks to a vehicle approaching said point of danger, said means being graduated to cause greater shock as the vehicle approaches nearer the point of danger.

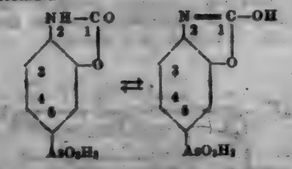
1,543,540. COUCH ROLL. EMMITT S. ANDERSON, Fort Francis, Ontario, Canada. Filed July 8, 1924. Serial No. 724,853. 3 Claims. (Cl. 92—47.)

1. A couch roll comprising a core having a central bore, a shaft located in said bore, spirally disposed ribs provided upon the periphery of the core, said ribs having head portions which are covered transversely, disks threaded upon the core and the ribs, collars applied to the ends of the core and the ribs, gudgeons receiving the ends of the shaft and having disks which receive the ends of the core and the ends of the ribs and nuts screwed upon the shaft and engaging the gudgeons.

1,543,541. SIGNAL. ADOLPH E. ARHLEHAN and THOMAS B. HANBY, Waco, Tex. Filed Apr. 28, 1924. Serial No. 709,562. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—32.)

A signaling device including a hollow bracket member providing a housing, said bracket member having a curved slot formed in one wall thereof, a pivoted arm section connected with the bracket at its outer end, a hand section pivotally connected with the arm section, said hand section having a curved slot formed therein, a link member in the housing and having a pin extending through the curved slot thereof, said pin being connected with the arm section to move the arm section vertically, a bell crank lever connected with the link for moving the link, a link member having a pin extending through the curved slot of the hand section, the opposite end of the last mentioned link member being pivotally connected to the bracket member, and said last mentioned link member adapted to operate to move the hand section when the arm section is moved.

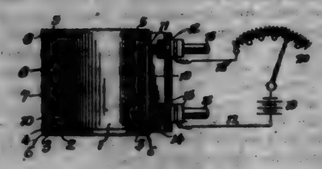
1,543,542. COW-TAIL HOLDER. CLARENCE D. BALDWIN, Deming, Wash. Filed Nov. 2, 1923. Serial No. 672,399. 1 Claim. (Cl. 119—105.)



A cow tail holder comprising opposed spring loop jaws with curved parts adjacent the loops of said jaws and conforming to the shape of the cow's leg at a point above the hock joint thereof, said spring loop jaws comprising correspondingly curved parts, said parts of each jaw being in parallelism, said correspondingly curved parts at points remote from the first curved parts of the jaws intersecting and merging into spring loops having eyes opposite the points of intersection, and a connector between the parts of the jaws and having eyes receiving said parts immediately adjacent their points of intersection, said opposed jaws, the spring loops and their eyes being constructed from a single length of spring wire.

1,543,543. ALBUMEN DYESTUFF COMPOUND AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. OSCAR BALLY, Basel, Switzerland, assignor to the Firm Haco-Gesellschaft A.-G. Bern, Gumligen, Switzerland. Filed Nov. 11, 1924. Serial No. 749,257. 11 Claims. (Cl. 260—9.)

1. Method of making a therapeutically useful albumen dyestuff compound insoluble in water, comprising treating an albuminous body with a thiazine dyestuff so as to form an albumen leuco dyestuff compound and converting same into the albumen dyestuff compound by oxidation.



1,543,544. BENZOXAZOLON-5-ARSONIC ACID. LUDWIG BENDA, Mainkur, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, assignor to Leopold Cassella & Co. Gesellschaft mit beschränkter Haftung, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,304. 1 Claim. (Cl. 260—14.)

As new product benzoxazolon-5-arsonic acid of the probable formula which is a colorless crystalline substance, sparingly soluble in cold, and easily soluble in hot water, very difficultly soluble in alcohol, unsoluble in ether, easily soluble in alkalies at a low temperature.

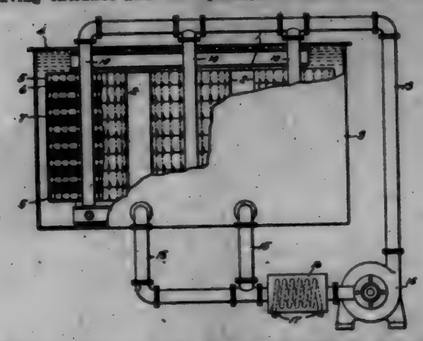
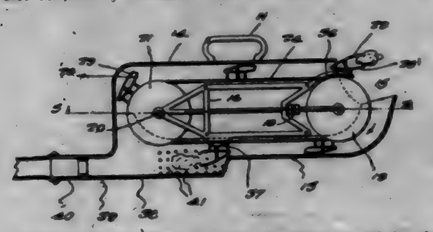
1,543,545. DENTAL APPARATUS. EDWARD M. BOATNER, San Antonio, Tex. Filed Apr. 10, 1924. Serial No. 705,690. 1 Claim. (Cl. 219—36.)



1. An apparatus of the character and for the purpose described, consisting of an enclosing element having an open and closed portion, a ring connected to said open portion of the element to form a coil receiving chamber, coils arranged in said chamber and having their terminals passing out from the ring, binding posts connected with said terminals and having extensions for connection with a plug or switch.

1,543,546. FORCED OIL TRANSFORMER. LOCKE H. BURNHAM, Pittsfield, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 27, 1922. Serial No. 539,650. 2 Claims. (Cl. 175—361.)



1. The combination with a transformer of an enclosing tank containing cooling fluid in which the transformer is immersed, said transformer including a plurality of disc coils, radially arranged spacers between said coils, said spacers being constructed and arranged with openings respectively staggered in adjacent spacers, means enclosing said coils and spacers, said enclosing means having entrance and exit openings to permit the cooling fluid to enter and leave the spaces between the coils, means including a fluid cooling device outside said tank, and means for conducting cooling fluid from said cooling device to said entrance openings and from said tank back to said cooling device.

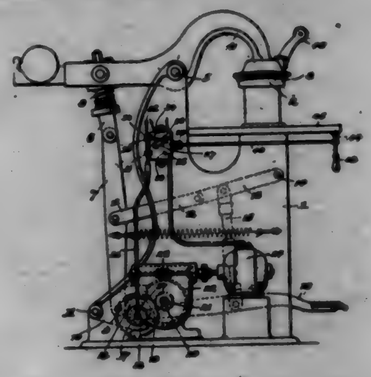
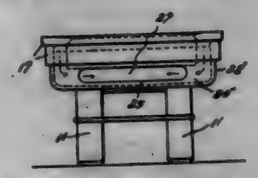
1,543,547. COTTON-PICKING DEVICE. EDWARD B. CARROLL, Memphis, Tenn. Filed Nov. 26, 1923. Serial No. 677,039. 2 Claims. (Cl. 56—32.)



1. In a cotton picker, a head, carriers housed in the head, driving means upon which the said carriers are supported pivoted jaws mounted upon the carriers, one of which has legs which engage the carrier whereby the jaws are held spaced from the carrier, a pin carried by one of the jaws and passing transversely through the other jaw at a point between the supporting legs and having one end disposed toward the carrier, spring sections connected at their outer ends with the pin and bearing at their inner ends against the opposite sides of that jaw through which the pin passes, and relatively stationary cam means with which the said pin is adapted to cooperate for opening said jaws.

1,543,548. OVERHEAD-VALVE COVER. OSCAR PAUL CLOYD, Clinton, Ind. Filed May 31, 1924. Serial No. 717,171. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—90.)



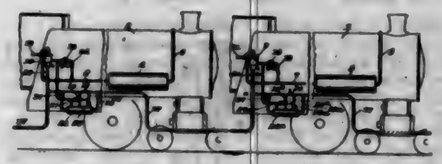
1. In a covering as described for the working mechanism of an overhead valve, a tapered body, having a rocker arm slot cut therein; a hollow cap secured to the tapered body; an oil cup engaging the hollow cap and communicating with the inside thereof; a wick secured in the said hollow cap and communicating with the inside thereof; and a base adapted to engage the bottom of the valve stem spring and having a valve stem aperture pierced therein, secured to the tapered body.

1,543,549. PRESSING MACHINE. HYMAN E. COHEN, New York, N. Y., assignor to United States Hoffman Machinery Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Jan. 2, 1923. Serial No. 610,259. 8 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

8. In a power operated mechanism, the combination of a movable element; power actuated means, including an electric motor for actuating said element; a switch serving to control the flow of current to the motor; means cooperating with the power mechanism for moving the switch; and operator controlled means for arresting the switch and holding it in its open position.

1,543,550. BILLIARD TABLE. ERNEST CORREALE and GIOVANNI CORREALE, West Hoboken, N. J. Filed July 11, 1923. Serial No. 650,884. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—11.)

In a pocket billiard table, side and corner pockets open at the bottom, longitudinally disposed inclined channeled members secured to the bottom of the table upon each side thereof beneath the pockets and a channeled member secured transversely beneath and within the marginal edge of one end of the table and having its opposite ends in communication with the lower ends of the side channeled members and said transversely channeled member having an opening in one side thereof.



1,543,551. SAFETY-BRACKET FOR LADDERS. EDWARD E. COUCHE and FRED E. COOK, Youngstown, Ohio. Filed Nov. 10, 1924. Serial No. 749,052. 1 Claim. (Cl. 228—60.)

A ladder attachment comprising a body strip provided at its ends with angularly disposed extensions and having pointed prongs located between the ends of the said extensions and at the outer edges thereof, the body strip being further provided adjacent the angular extensions with longitudinally disposed slots, hook bolts having their shanks passing through the slots and their bill ends disposed opposite the intermediate portions of the extensions, and means for securing the hook bolts with relation to the body strip.

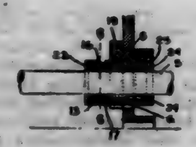
1,543,552. PUMP-CONTROL VALVE FOR LOCOMOTIVE TRAIN LINES. WILLIAM COULSON, Mechanicville, N. Y. Filed Oct. 3, 1924. Serial No. 741,485. 4 Claims. (Cl. 303—14.)

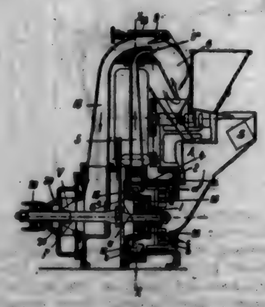
1. A plurality of locomotives each having a compressed air reservoir, a brake valve, and a common train line; the combination of a cylinder on each locomotive, a high pressure pipe connecting the cylinder to the train line, a feed pipe connecting the respective reservoir to the cylinder, a mid-pipe connecting the cylinder to the train pipe, and means operable in each cylinder by air initially supplied to the feed pipes by the leading locomotive reservoir to place the feed and mid-pipes in communication thus causing the respective reservoirs to contribute to the train line air supply.

1,543,553. CAR COUPLING. JOHN C. COX and JOHN C. ALDRIDGE, Centralia, Ill. Filed May 19, 1923. Serial No. 640,178. 1 Claim. (Cl. 213—182.)



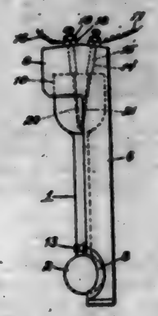
In a car coupling of the character described, a connecting member having one end formed to provide means for connection with a draw bar and having its other end enlarged and provided with a vertical slot to form a bifurcated head having the inner faces of the furcations parallel throughout, said inner faces of the furcations having formed therein grooves of equal width throughout, each describing an arc of approximately one quarter of a circle and extending from the upper surface of the head adjacent the rear of the furcations, downwardly and forwardly in the face thereof, and a broad, flat connecting member having laterally extending pins upon the longitudinal center of each side thereof, said member fitting snugly between said parallel faces to prevent side movement of the member and said pins adapted to be so pocketed in said grooves as to be completely covered by the overlying walls thereof.

1,543,554. PROCESS FOR APPLYING BOTTLE-CAP REMOVERS. CHARLES M. DANNER, Hagerstown, Md., assignor of one-half to Charles E. Rupp, Hagerstown, Md. Original application filed Feb. 21, 1923, Serial No. 620,431. Divided and this application filed May 2, 1925. Serial No. 636,145. 1 Claim. (Cl. 140—93.)



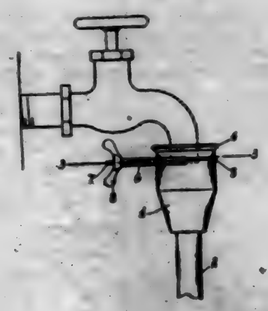
The herein described process of applying a remover having securing ends which are oppositely and angularly disposed to a cap, which consists in pressing said ends through one side of said cap to operatively engage the opposite side thereof.

1,543,555. ROCKER-SHAFT BEARING FOR LOOMS. HARRY A. DAVIS, Hopedale, Mass., assignor to Draper Corporation, Hopedale, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Dec. 27, 1923. Serial No. 682,938. 8 Claims. (Cl. 308—21.)



1. In a loom, a frame member, a lay rocker shaft, a bearing sleeve fitted upon the lay rocker shaft and having a series of radial threaded holes, a set screw fitting said holes and acting to lock the sleeve to the shaft and permit rotary adjustment of the sleeve on the shaft, and an elongated open end housing secured to the frame having a cylindrical bearing recess for the bearing sleeve and a transverse opening through the top into the recess to provide access to the screw and permit rotary adjustment of the sleeve.

1,543,556. COMBINED CRUSHING, PULVERIZING, AND SEPARATING MACHINE. EMILE DENIS, Billancourt, and FREDERICK HIFFERT, Paris, France. Filed Jan. 16, 1924. Serial No. 686,642. 2 Claims. (Cl. 83—11.)



1. A device of the character described, including in combination, a crusher shaft, crusher means associated with said shaft, a hopper adapted to axially feed material to be crushed to said crusher means, a discharge passageway adapted to receive crushed material, a fan concentric with said crusher shaft, an air duct supplying air to said fan, said duct intercepting the discharge passageway for the crushed material.

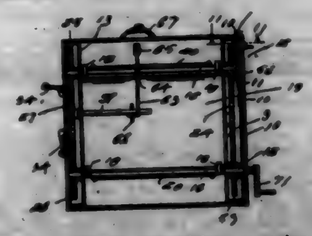
1,543,557. THERMOSTATIC CIRCUIT CLOSER. ARILIO M. DE SILVA GREAVES, Cambridge, Mass. Filed Jan. 17, 1922. Serial No. 529,865. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—141.)

1. A thermostatic circuit closer comprising an expansion chamber normally open at its top, a relatively contracted mercury column tube communicating with the bottom of said chamber, a support for the chamber and tube comprising a body having in its face a seat groove receiving the tube and having a recessed head portion receiving and closing the normally open top of the chamber, said head portion having a part jutting outwardly beyond the expansion chamber and face of the support body, and circuit closing contacts extending downwardly through the head portion of the support and into the expansion chamber.

1,543,558. HOSE CONNECTION FOR FAUCETS. WILLIAM GUSTAV DONALD, Oakland, Calif., assignor to Sanitary Drain Flusher, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 2, 1921. Serial No. 466,176. 3 Claims. (Cl. 285—82.)

1. In a universal faucet connector of the character described, a sleeve including a cylindrical body of soft elastic material provided with a faucet receiving depression of inverted frusto-conical shape extending from its upper end, an outlet member extending from the lower end of the body, the surrounding wall of the body being of comparatively great thickness and increasing in thickness downwardly, a clamping member mounted about the body and adjustable axially thereof, said member being disposed at right angles to the axis of the body, and means for varying the effective length of the clamping member for compressing said body radially thereof.

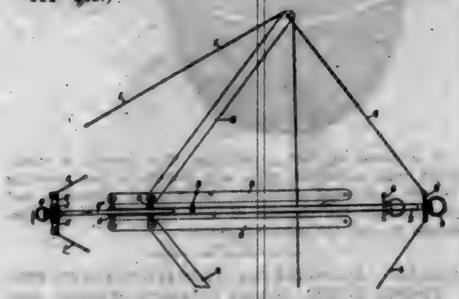
1,543,559. FILLER FOR THE CLAMPED ENDS OF BELTS. WALTER W. DONNELLY, Fort Worth, Tex. Filed Apr. 15, 1925. Serial No. 23,341. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—37.)



1. A filler for the clamped ends of belts, comprising a body member of vulcanized fabric having the inner end enlarged and curved to conform to the curvature of the belt and having the outer surface shaped to conform to the curvature of pulleys and a rubber filler embedded in the inner end of said body approximately triangular in shape.

1,543,560. SPRING-TENSION REGULATOR. WALTER EBERHARDT, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Herschede Hall Clock Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 23, 1920. Serial No. 391,204. 9 Claims. (Cl. 265—19.)

1. In a device for measuring the tension of springs, the combination with a frame adapted to have a spring to be measured mounted thereon, of an indicator device comprising an indicator plate, an indicator arm adapted to register with the plate and to be engaged by said spring mounted on the frame, and means adapted to yieldingly resist pressure upon the indicator arm.



1,543,561. STATION INDICATOR. HARRY B. EHRENFELD, Baltimore, Md. Filed May 27, 1924. Serial No. 716,284. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—93.)

A station indicator comprising a casing having a sight opening, frames secured within the ends of the casing, stub shafts journaled in said frames and having reduced ends, apron shafts having reduced ends engaging the reduced ends of the stub shafts, U-shaped clamps detachably connecting the reduced ends of said shafts, an apron bearing characters carried by said apron shafts and movable from one of said last named shafts to the other in rear of the sight opening, trains of gears connecting the stub shafts and located within the frames, a drive gear in the casing, reversing gears rotatably and slidably mounted in one of the frames and adapted to connect the gears of one of the trains to the drive gear, means for controlling the reversing gears, and a reversible ratchet mechanism associated with one of the stub shafts to prevent reverse operation of the device when operating in either direction.

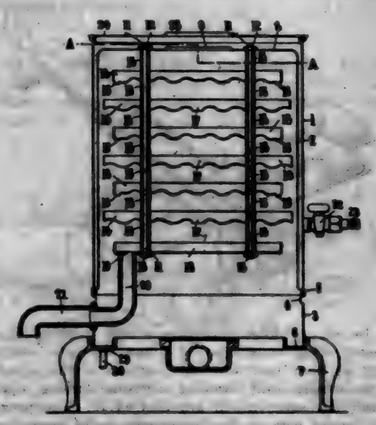
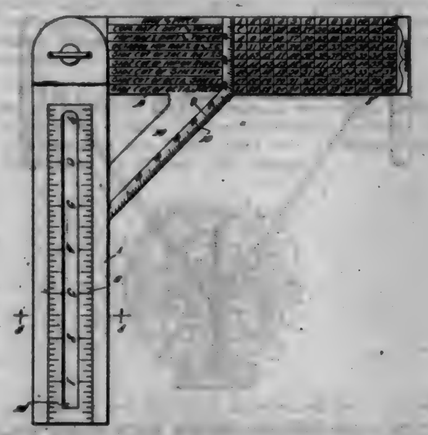
1,543,562. SEA ANCHOR. IVAN RUPERT FLEMING, Ainsdale, England. Filed Jan. 3, 1924. Serial No. 684,238. Renewed Apr. 28, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 114—209.)

1. A sea anchor including a hollow stem, a plurality of arms pivotally connected at one end to the stem, a canvas body having one edge connected to the outer ends of said arms, a rod slidable in the stem and forming a continuation thereof when extended, a disc secured upon the rod and formed with openings, the remaining edge of the body being connected to the peripheral edge of said disc, and guy ropes extending from the free ends of the arms to the forward end of the stem.



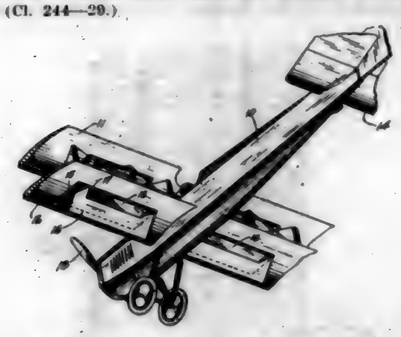
1,543,563. CABINET. MARIAN A. GARRIS, Spokane, Wash. Filed Mar. 11, 1924. Serial No. 698,492. 2 Claims. (Cl. 132—84.)



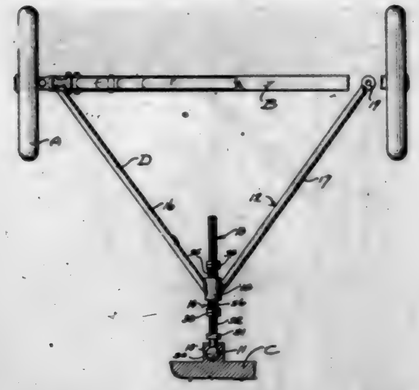
1. In a device of the class described, a rectangular cabinet having a door hinged along one side thereof, the inner wall of the cabinet being provided with sockets, the door of the cabinet being provided upon its inner surface with similar sockets, the lower ends of the sockets of the door being exposed and in alignment with the bottom of the cabinet when the door is closed, each of said sockets having an opening in the bottom thereof.

1,543,564. GEYSER. ALFRED H. GAUSDEN, Croydon, England. Filed Nov. 18, 1924. Serial No. 750,628. 3 Claims. (Cl. 126—355.)

1. A geyser comprising a base supporting a burner, a casing having a double lateral wall removably seated upon said base, said casing having an inner top wall, and a removable cover forming an outer top wall spaced from said inner top wall, rods removably suspended from said inner top wall, said rods being accessible for removal, by removing said cover, a series of superposed water pans carried by said rods, said casing being provided with a water outlet positioned to permit a flow of water from said casing into the uppermost of said pans, the latter being apertured to permit the flow of water from one pan to another.



1,543,565. SQUARE. ROY A. GERMAN and ALBERT C. ERNST, Waco, Tex. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 553,904. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—75.)



In a device of the class described, a slotted stock having straight edges, a blade received in the slot of the stock and pivotally clamped thereto, said blade having an extension substantially in the form of a right angle triangle, the outer portion of which being straight and parallel with the blade, said extension being provided on its outer edges with degree marks and the blade having similar degree marks, and said marks designed to register with the edge of the stock when the blade is swung through the stock, said extension having spaced apertures therethrough, one edge of its outer member provided with substantially V-shaped notches and a scale whose division marks register with the notches.

1,543,566. AEROPLANE BRAKE. JOHN C. HARRIS and CLARENCE N. MAYFIELD, Richland Center, Wis. Filed Nov. 23, 1923. Serial No. 676,592. 7 Claims. (Cl. 244—29.)

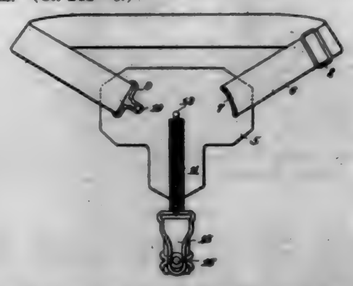
1. In an aeroplane having wings, braking ailerons for each wing consisting of plane surfaces which are hinged at their rear and end portions to the under side of the wings, said braking ailerons having openings through the same, which are located in close proximity to the under side of the wings when said braking ailerons are out of line with the under side of the wings, and secondary ailerons hinged to the braking ailerons to swing in an opposite direction from the same when not overlying the openings between the wings and braking ailerons.

1,543,567. RADIUS ROD FOR AUTOMOTIVE VEHICLES. CHARLES B. HIBBS, Newport, N. C. Filed May 2, 1922. Serial No. 557,823. 2 Claims. (Cl. 267—67.)

1. In combination with an axis and a support, a bolt member pivotally connected at an end thereof to said support and being screw threaded inwardly from its opposite end, a radius rod connected to said axle and having a sleeve at the opposite end thereof provided with a passageway therethrough adapted to slidably and loosely receive the screw threaded portion of said bolt, said sleeve passageway inwardly from the opposite ends of said sleeve being enlarged to provide annular seats facing toward the opposite ends of said sleeve, nuts in threaded engagement with said bolt at opposite ends of said sleeve, and spiral compression springs about said bolt at opposite ends of said sleeve the end portions of said springs seating within the passageway of said sleeve against the seats in said sleeve, said springs being under compression between their seats and said nuts.

1,543,568. HAND DIP NET. THOMAS ANDERSON HOWARD, Murray, Utah. Filed Aug. 26, 1924. Serial No. 734,276. 4 Claim. (Cl. 43—11.)

2. A hand dip net, consisting of a handle, a channeled ring connected with said handle, a net securing member connected with said handle and concealed and protected by the channel of said ring, and a net connected to said net securing member.



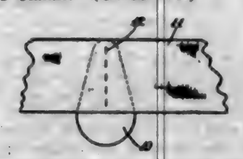
1,543,569. AMINOALKYLAMINONAPHTHALENE SULPHONIC ACIDS. JOHANN HUISMANN, Wiesdorf, near Cologne, WALTER DUISBERG, Leverkusen, near Cologne, and WINFRIED HENTRICH and LUDWIG ZEH, Wiesdorf, near Cologne, Germany, assignors to Grasselli Dyestuff Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 6, 1925. Serial No. 13,610. 6 Claims. (Cl. 260—129.)

5. As new products the ω-aminoalkylaminonaphthalene sulphonic acids which can be obtained by acting with aliphatic diamines in presence of soluble salts of sulfurous acid upon naphthalene sulphonic acids having at least one of the reactive groups amino and hydroxyl, which ω-amino-alkylamino-naphthalene sulphonic acids are whitish powders generally difficultly soluble in water, form alkali metal salts, are soluble in dilute mineral acids and form characteristic, crystalline and colored nitroso compounds.

1,543,570. PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING ARTIFICIAL TURPENTINE. JOSÉ B. ILLAS, Habana, Cuba. Filed Feb. 24, 1923. Serial No. 621,096. 3 Claims. (Cl. 134—56.)

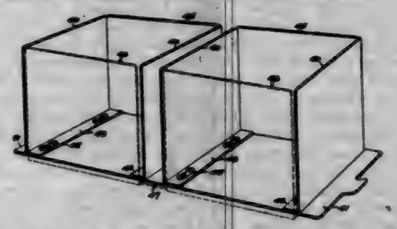
1. An improved process of manufacturing artificial turpentine, which consists in treating refined petroleum with calcium carbide, adding an alkali and water acidulated with muriatic acid, permitting the mixture to rest, drawing off the petroleum and filtering it, repeating these operations twice and adding to the product the second time and before filtering, pine oil.

1,543,571. GARTER. DANIEL B. JACOBS, Swan Valley, Idaho. Filed Mar. 26, 1924. Serial No. 702,091. 1 Claim. (Cl. 241—6.)



A garter comprising a pad provided with a stud, an inelastic leg band having one end permanently secured to the pad and its other end detachably secured thereto, a spring having one end detachably engaged with the stud of the pad, a link having a transverse slot at its upper end to the upper member of which slot the lower end of the spring is secured, and a strap of inelastic material secured to the lower member of the slot of the link and having a stud at its lower end with which the link engages.

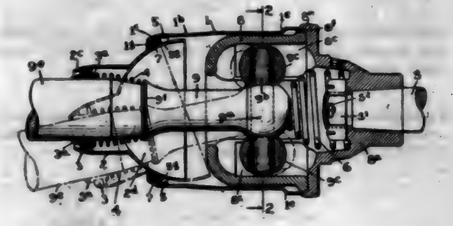
1,543,572. WATER WAVING COMB. EMMA C. JOYCE, Richmond Hill, N. Y. Filed Nov. 1, 1924. Serial No. 747,205. 2 Claims. (Cl. 132—38.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a comb body having teeth projecting therefrom, a resilient clamping bar, said body having upwardly extending, hooked ends adapted to engage the ends of the clamping bar when positioned in the hair.

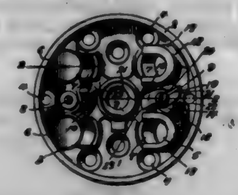
1,543,573. ARCH BRACE. GEORGE H. JUNG, Jr., Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Nov. 13, 1924. Serial No. 749,802. 3 Claims. (Cl. 36—71.)

1. An arch brace of the class described comprising an elastic band and a pad carried by the band and secured thereto along a single line extending transversely of the elastic band and substantially centrally of the pad.



1,543,574. FILLING AND EMPTYING DEVICE. MORRIS KASSER, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Dec. 12, 1923. Serial No. 680,126. 14 Claims. (Cl. 226—18.)

1. In a device of the character described, a container adapted to fit telescopically closely within a space, said container having sides adjustable to fit into non-rectangular spaces, and at least a portion of the walls being removable.

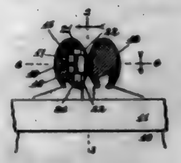


12. The method of transferring articles from a four sided container having substantially flat walls that deviate substantially from rectangular relation, which comprises inserting flexible sheets individually between each of the walls and the articles in the container, so that they extend substantially to the bottom of the container, covering the top of the container, reversing the container, and removing the container.

1,543,575. HOUSING FOR UNIVERSAL JOINTS. FLOYD F. KISHLINE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to John B. Flick, Detroit, Mich. Filed Mar. 30, 1923. Serial No. 628,811. 7 Claims. (Cl. 64—89.)

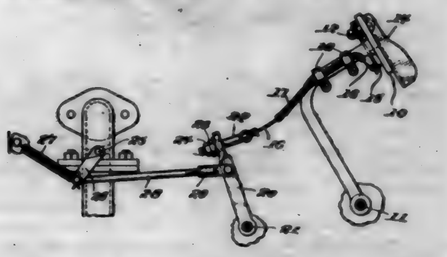
6. In combination with a universal joint having a hollow casing, a shaft entering the hollow casing and a universal connection between the inner end of the shaft and the casing; of a metallic housing or boot comprising a housing member fixedly attached to the hollow casing; and having a contracted outer end; a second housing member loosely surrounding the shaft and having a partially globular inner end entering the outer end of the first housing member, and a washer in the first housing member engaging the exterior of the parti-globular portion of the second housing member; said second member also having its outer end formed to slidably engage an opposed slidable member on the shaft, said slidable member on the shaft being a washer having an exterior partiglobular surface to slidably engage the opposed outer end of the second member of the casing; and a spring for normally forcing the washer outward, substantially as described.

1,543,576. OUTLET BOX. HOMER G. KNODERER, Englewood, N. J., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 2, 1923. Serial No. 636,240. 6 Claims. (Cl. 247—25.)



1. An outlet box having an aperture for the reception of a conductor conduit or cable, a helical cam adjacent said aperture, a locking dog for engaging said conduit or cable, and means upon which said dog is pivoted operating to actuate it rotatably along the helical cam.

1,543,577. LATCH FOR THE FRAME JAWS OF PURSES, HAND BAGS, OR THE LIKE. EDMOND KUHN, New York, N. Y. Filed June 10, 1924. Serial No. 719,182. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—75.)



1. In a latch for the hingedly connected frame jaws of purses, handbags, or the like, of the type which include a pair of knobs rigidly carried by the frame jaws and in which said knobs are disposed in alignment with each other when the jaws are closed, one of said knobs having a keeper recess in its confronting face, the other of said knobs having a socket in its confronting face, a latching roller mounted in said socket, means for normally projecting the roller from the socket for latching engagement within the keeper recess of the other knob, and means for limiting the projection of the roller from said socket.

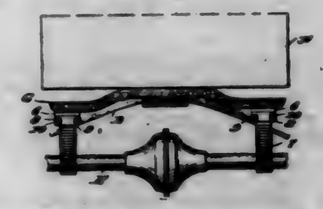
1,543,578. ACCELERATOR. PAUL C. LABARRE, New Orleans, La. Filed Oct. 31, 1923. Serial No. 671,981. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—81.)

1. In a device of the class described, a pedal, an arm connected with the pedal and movable by the foot of an operator, without operating the pedal or removing the foot from the latter, said arm extending above and below the pedal and around an edge thereof, a pivot passing through the upper and lower portion of the arm and through the pedal, a pivoted lever, means connected with the arm for moving the lever in one direction, a rod movable with the lever, a valve and valve lever controlled by the rod, and a spring connected with the valve lever for holding the valve normally closed.

1,543,579. DENTAL HOT-AIR-SYRINGE OUTLET. WILLIAM J. LAUBS, Argyle, Minn. Filed Oct. 3, 1921. Serial No. 505,079. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—257.)

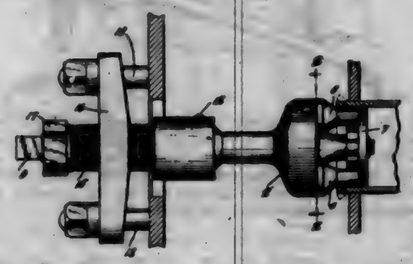


An outlet means for dental hot air syringes comprising a tube a relatively small hot air point mounted on said tube and having a hollow substantially conical portion, the longitudinal axis of said hot air point being perpendicular to the longitudinal axis of the tube, said tube being of substantially non-heat-conducting material and adapted for insertion into the patient's mouth, said tube having a nipple at one end integral with it for connection with a means of hot air supply, said point having an elbow integral therewith and extending from the base of said point and of less diameter than said base and exteriorly and detachably connected to the other end of the tube on a plane intersecting said base, whereby the tube only may contact with the mouth through movement of the patient, the outer surface of said nozzle and said tube being flush at their joints, and the tube being tapered with said joint forming the frustum.

1,543,580. METHOD OF CASTING PRINTING SLUGS. JAMES LEWIS, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. Filed Mar. 11, 1925. Serial No. 14,780. 4 Claims. (Cl. 101—401.2.)

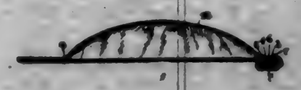
1. The method of casting printing slugs and the like consisting in making a zinc etching, making an intaglio impression in a suitable metal with the etching, and untilizing said impression as a matrix for the casting of printing slugs.

1,543,581. SNUBBING DEVICE. ROYAL S. LEWIS, Yakima, Wash. Filed Apr. 1, 1924. Serial No. 703,498. 3 Claims. (Cl. 267—30.)



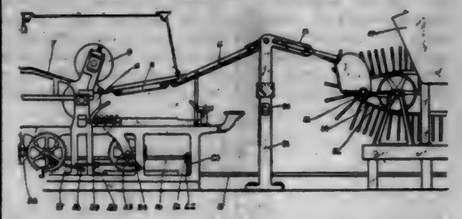
1. A snubbing unit comprising a bracket, means for securing said bracket rigidly to an automobile body over an axle of the automobile chassis, in combination with an open rubber snubbing loop extending under the axle, clamping means for anchoring one end of said loop to said bracket, an independent non-piercing clamping means for anchoring the other end of said loops to said bracket and for permitting the independent freeing and adjustment of said latter end portion through the clamping means to take up slack and adjust the tension of the loop without disturbing the clamping means for the former end portion of said loop.

1,543,582. OUTING SUIT. FRANCES WOODS MACKAY, Norwalk, Conn. Filed Mar. 31, 1922. Serial No. 548,341. 5 Claims. (Cl. 2—228.)



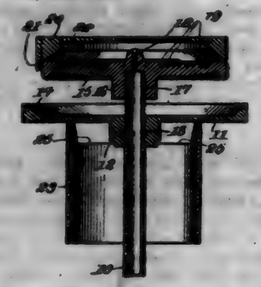
4. Outing trousers having a gusset therein at the bottom of the legs, a series of fastening hooks at opposite sides of each of the gussets, lacing elements adapted to engage said hooks, a flap secured to each leg along a vertical line at one side of said gusset, the upper end of the flap being free, means to fasten the opposite side edge of the flap to the trousers leg at the other side of the gusset, and an arch strap secured to said flaps at about the middle of the lower edge thereof.

1,543,583. TOOL. RALPH L. MASON, Tacoma, Wash. Filed Apr. 26, 1924. Serial No. 709,292. 1 Claim. (Cl. 153—81.)



A tool for belling tubes in boilers and the like comprising a shank, a head, cone-shaped rollers carried by the head for engaging the ends of tubes, a threaded sleeve through which the shank passes, a thrust member rotatably mounted on the shank and engaged by the sleeve, anti-friction means between the thrust member and the shank and a supporting member having a threaded hole therein for receiving the sleeve with means for fastening the member to a part of the boiler.

1,543,584. APRON. JACOB MENGER, Greenville, Ohio, assignor to The Allied Belting Company, Greenville, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 25, 1923. Serial No. 653,680. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—51.)

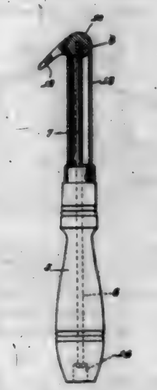


An apron comprising a single length of flexible material bent upon itself at a point between its transverse center and its lower end to provide a body portion and an upturned fold overlapping the outer face of the lower part of said body portion to form a pocket, said fold of a length to project from each side of that part of the body portion which it opposes, said body portion having each side marginal part thereof inturned from end to end, said fold having each side marginal part thereof inturned, the inturned parts of said fold of a length to overlap and completely inclose and further having the edges thereof flush with the edges of the inturned parts of said body portion for a portion of the length thereof, spaced extending lengthwise of said body portion and positioned in close proximity to the bends of said inturned marginal parts for securing the inturned marginal parts of the body portion thereto, for securing the body portion and fold together and further for securing the inturned marginal parts of said body portion and fold together, and a neck band extended from the inturned parts of said body portion at the top thereof.

1,543,585. SYNCHRONIZED PRESS AND OVEN CONVEYER. RUDOLPH A. MILLER, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Heekin Can Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 24, 1923. Serial No. 627,514. 5 Claims. (Cl. 101—416.)

1. The combination of a press, a conveyer, means for driving the conveyer from the press an auxiliary means for actuating the conveyer upon the press being rendered inoperative and means for simultaneously rendering the press inoperative and the auxiliary means operative.

1,543,586. OIL BURNER. BENJAMIN F. MILLS, Sioux City, Iowa. Filed Nov. 14, 1923. Serial No. 674,730. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—58.)

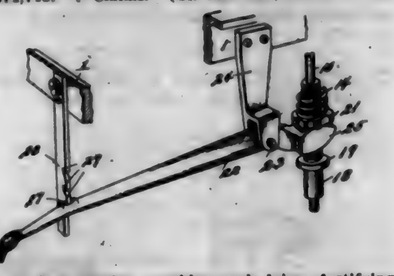


A burner comprising a pipe adapted to have fuel pass therethrough, a priming pan screwed onto the pipe, a disk carried by the pipe above the priming pan and having a central hole communicating with the pipe, the top surface of said disk being formed with concentric grooves for increasing the area and providing oil retaining means, a dished inverted disk mounted above the first named disk, and a sleeve beneath the priming pan having its upper edge formed with openings for the inlet of air.

1,543,587. SAFETY RAZOR. JOHN FRANCIS O'MALLEY, Mamaroneck, N. Y. Filed Mar. 28, 1924. Serial No. 702,635. 4 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)

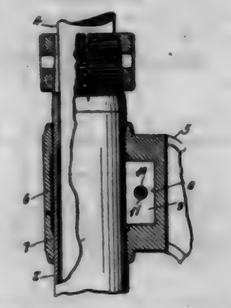
1. A safety razor including a flexible double edged blade and holding and clamping means therefor comprising a handle, a guard member rigidly attached thereto and a head having pivotal and slidable connection with the handle to permit of lateral movement in addition to movement in a line parallel to the axis of the handle whereby to effect clamping and unclamping of the blade to associate and disassociate the same with the holding and clamping means.

1,543,588. COMB. ARDEN C. PAGE, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Oct. 1, 1924. Serial No. 741,010. 1 Claim. (Cl. 132—14.)



A hair dressing and drying comb comprising a solid body formed from heat conducting material, teeth formed on one side thereof and extending at an angle thereto, a tube extending from the body arranged at right angles thereto, a handle and a bolt passing longitudinally through the handle and tube and engaged with the body.

1,543,589. VALVE-GRINDING TOOL. ALEXANDER M. ALEXANDRESCU, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Feb. 26, 1925. Serial No. 11,840. 1 Claim. (Cl. 51—29.)



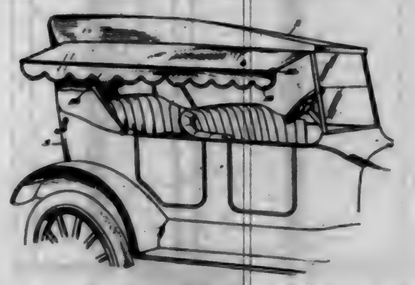
A valve grinding tool comprising a handle, a shank connected thereto, a bit having valve engaging means of various forms extending from its several sides and being pivoted for rotary movement to the shank centrally of said bit, said bit having laterally elongated openings spaced equi-distantly from the axis of rotation of the bit, said bit further having concave side edges at right angles to said slots, said concave edges being spaced equi-distantly to opposite sides of the axis of the bit and corresponding to the distance of the inner walls of said slots from said axis of the bit, and a removable pin fitted through said shank and adapted to engage the walls of either elongated slot in the bit or a concave side thereof.

1,543,590. JUSTIFICATION MEANS FOR LINE-CASTING MACHINES. FRANK E. BARBER, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Intertype Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 14, 1923. Serial No. 674,745. 7 Claims. (Cl. 199—51.)

1. In a line casting machine embodying justifying means for expanding spacers in lines of matrices and spacers, and a spring for actuating such means, of means including a lever extending to, and operable from the front of the machine at the will of the operator, to change the tension of said spring.

1,543,591. WEDGE-BLOCK LOCK FOR SCHOOL DESKS. ROBERT W. BECK, Lewiston, Idaho. Filed Mar. 1, 1924. Serial No. 696,300. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—82.)

1. In furniture of the character specified, a pedestal, a seat arm having the outer seat-receiving portion branched or T shaped and the inner portion consisting of a solid shank having an opening to receive the pedestal and a lateral opening in communication with the pedestal-receiving opening, a wedge block in the lateral opening, and fastening means for drawing the wedge block into the opening to wedgingly engage the pedestal and secure the seat arm in the required adjusted position.



1,543,592. BUTTON CLAMP. WILLIAM BELSKY, New York, N. Y., assignor to Paragon Button Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 12, 1923. Serial No. 674,331. 2 Claims. (Cl. 112—114.)

2. In a button-sewing machine, a button-holding means comprising a foot, and a plurality of spring fingers adapted to overlie the foot and in spaced relation to each other, said spring fingers having depressed portions forming projections adapted to be received within a recess formed in the button between the holes of the button and the periphery thereof to prevent movement of the button relative to the button-holding means during the sewing operation.

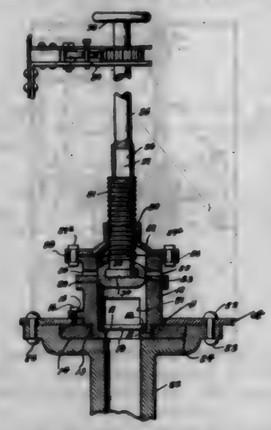
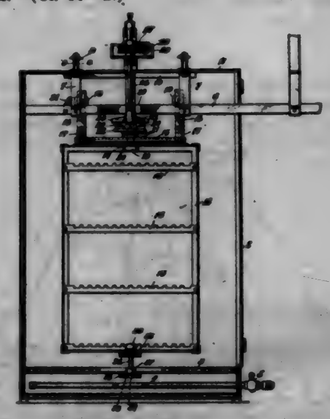
1,543,593. AWNING FOR AUTOMOBILES. RICHARD ELLIS BENTLEY, Sherman, Tex. Filed Dec. 21, 1923. Serial No. 682,019. 2 Claims. (Cl. 296—99.)

1. An awning for automobiles comprising an awning body having transversely extending sleeves at the ends thereof, parallel attaching strips depending from the longitudinal edge portions of the awning body intermediate the ends thereof, said attaching strips having series of openings formed therethrough, corresponding openings of the two strips being alined transversely of the awning body, and three separate bracket members attachable at their inner ends to spaced apart bows of an automobile top and having parallel spaced supporting portions extending laterally of a longitudinal edge of the automobile top, the supporting portions of the end bracket members being received in the sleeve portions of the awning body and the supporting portion of the middle bracket extending through alined openings of said attaching strips for supporting the awning body intermediate its ends.



1,543,594. AMUSEMENT APPARATUS. MURRAY T. BERMAN, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 14, 1923. Serial No. 625,001. 11 Claims. (Cl. 273—86.)

1. An amusement apparatus comprising balls, inclined ball-races over each of which one of said balls rolls, ball-releasing means for starting the downward roll of all of said balls over said ball-races respectively, ball-manipulating means for manipulating each of said balls after being released by said releasing means as it rolls over its ball-race, and ball-discharging means for discharging all of said balls from said ball-races, when one of the balls has reached the limit of its travel over the ball-race.



1,543,595. OUTLET VALVE. PHILIP W. BOLTON and WILLIAM N. MINNIHAN, Coffeyville, Kans. Filed Sept. 1, 1923. Serial No. 660,612. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—21.)

A valve of the class described, in combination with a support, the valve having a casing adapted for snug disposition in an opening of the support, a lug extending integrally from the casing and overlapping the support, a fastening element securing said lug to the support, said casing having a reduced extension integral therewith and provided with exterior screw threads, a nut in engagement with said screw threads and at its upper surface intimately contacting with the shoulder of the casing at the junction of said extension therewith and intimately contacting with and overlapping the opposite face of the support to that engaged by said lug, said extension having an inwardly extending flange integral therewith, a valve seat disposed on said flange, said casing having an outlet opening through said flange, a discharge nozzle in communication with the casing provided with a recess snugly receiving said extension and said nut, said nozzle about said extension and nut intimately contacting with the under face of the support, means to secure the nozzle to the support, a valve head operable in said casing to engage and disengage said seat, said casing having vent openings and an outwardly extending flange at its upper end, a cap secured to the latter flange, said cap having a sleeve provided with interior screw threads, and an operating stem for said valve head extending through said sleeve.

1. A smokehouse including a stationary track in the smokehouse having a laterally offset portion, a wheeled carriage suspended from the track, a cage suspended from the carriage and having rotary mounting, and means projecting into the cage, past the laterally offset portion of the track and adapted to impart rotary motion to the cage.

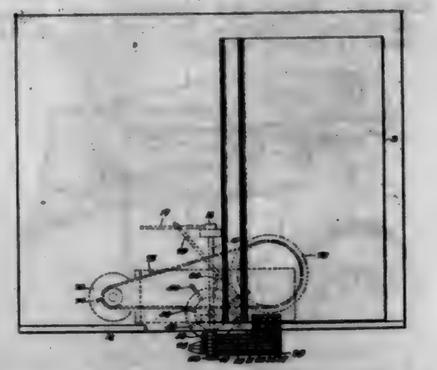
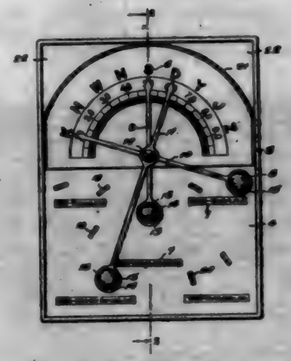
1,543,507. FRAMING DEVICE FOR MOTION-PICTURE MACHINES. JOHN W. BRAUTIGAM, Bronx, N. Y. Filed Aug. 31, 1922. Serial No. 585,457. 5 Claims. (Cl. 88—17.)



1. In a motion picture machine, means for moving a film intermittently across a frame aperture, said means including a Geneva movement, and means for actuating said movement, the actuating means including co-acting devices mounted upon shafts disposed at right angles to each other, one of the devices being slidable on its shaft and means for changing the relative positions of the devices while operating the same to affect the Geneva movement to cause the film to be shifted with respect to the frame aperture.

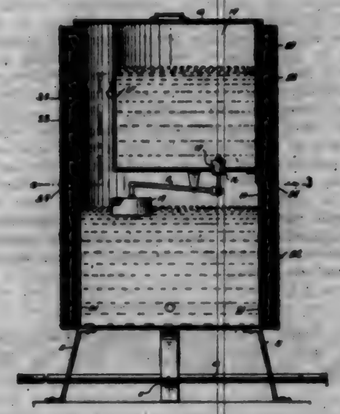
1,543,598. FOLDING CHAIR. CALVIN ALLEN BUFFINGTON, Berkshire, N. Y. Continuation of application Serial No. 485,246, filed July 16, 1921. This application filed Nov. 27, 1922. Serial No. 603,452. 20 Claims. (Cl. 155—142.)



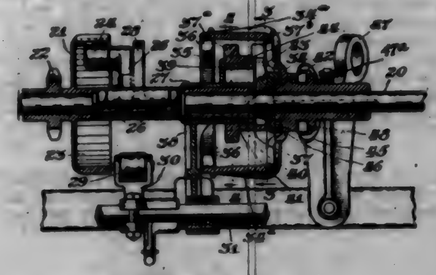
1. The combination in a folding chair, with a main frame having uprights the upper portions of which are reduced to form shoulders and also having an arch connecting the upper reduced portions of the uprights, of an auxiliary arch arranged in parallelism to the upper reduced portions of the uprights and abutting at its ends against the said shoulders and fixedly connected to the uprights.

1,543,599. LEAF TURNER. FRANK R. CHESTER, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 27, 1923. Serial No. 683,662. 7 Claims. (Cl. 40—104.)

1. In a leaf turner, a plurality of leaf-turning arms, means for successively operating said leaf-turning arms in one direction, and means for moving all of said leaf-turning arms simultaneously in the opposite direction, said last-mentioned means being automatic in its operation by continued movement of the first-mentioned operating means.



1,543,600. PUZZLE. DWIGHT THEODORE CLARK, East Orange, N. J. Filed Apr. 4, 1923. Serial No. 629,895. 9 Claims. (Cl. 272—115.)



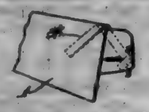
1. In a puzzle, an index including a plurality of characters, a plurality of indicators movable with respect to said index and manipulated by gravity to register each with a predetermined one of said characters, and means to retain each indicator in position after it has been registered with its associated character.

1,543,601. HOG OILER. ELMER R. CLEMENTS, Riverton, Nebr. Filed Apr. 1, 1924. Serial No. 703,435. 4 Claims. (Cl. 119—157.)

1. A hog oiler of the character described comprising a container having perforations, an absorbent layer exterior to the container and with which the perforations communicate, a flexible jacket exterior to the absorbent layer and having apertures, and an outer jacket of reticulated material, the flexible jacket having openings discharging upon this outer jacket.

1,543,602. VARIABLE DRIVE FOR PLANTERS. SAMUEL K. DENNIS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to International Harvester Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,538. 7 Claims. (Cl. 111—38.)

1. A variable drive device comprising a shaft, a driven wheel on said shaft, said wheel having a laterally offset rim provided with a plurality of equally spaced lugs on its inner side, a rotary driving element within said rim and journaled on an axis eccentric to that of the wheel, a plurality of sets of spaced projections on said driving element, and means for putting any set of said projections into engagement with the lugs on the rim.



1,543,603. PLANTER DRIVE MECHANISM. SAMUEL K. DENNIS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to International Harvester Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,539. 5 Claims. (Cl. 192—22.)

1. In a check-row planter having intermittent drive mechanism comprising a constantly rotating driving member, an intermittently rotated driven member, and a periodically actuated trip member controlling the intermittent drive; the combination with the driven member of an auxiliary arm, a second trip member movable jointly with said first trip member and positioned in the plane of rotation of said arm, and means for adjusting said arm to and from a position for engaging said second trip member.

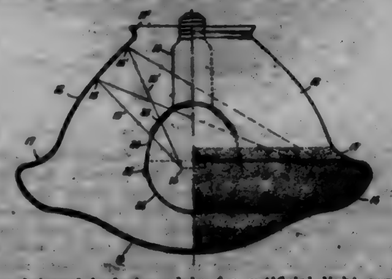
1,543,604. REENFORCED COLLAR. CHARLES A. FISH and HENRY W. FISCH, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 5, 1922. Serial No. 630,003. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—129.)



1. In a plural-ply fabric collar adapted to be folded longitudinally, a lineal reenforcement disposed between the plies and extending across the fold upon a bias.

1,543,605. ADVERTISING DEVICE. GEORGE F. GAVARD, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 7, 1923. Serial No. 637,265. 10 Claims. (Cl. 40—35.)

1. A display and advertising apparatus comprising, in combination, means for swinging a gang of independent display members through an orbit, pneumatic means for temporarily accelerating the orbital movement of the display members, and an instrumentality disposed in the orbital path of the members for momentarily restraining the members as they are brought to an effective displaying position.

1,543,606. LIGHTING FIXTURE. WARD HARRISON, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 24, 1920. Serial No. 360,774. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—100.)

An integral inclosing globe for artificial light sources having its width greater than its depth and comprising a lower portion at least partially reflecting and extending below said light source, and an upper transparent portion having the contour of a portion of a sphere with its center at the light source extending over said light source.

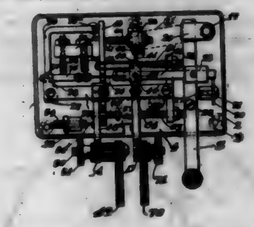
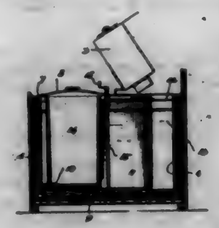
1,543,607. GREASE CUP. ANDREW KOWALSKY, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to International Harvester Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 19, 1922. Serial No. 569,275. 1 Claim. (Cl. 184—48.)



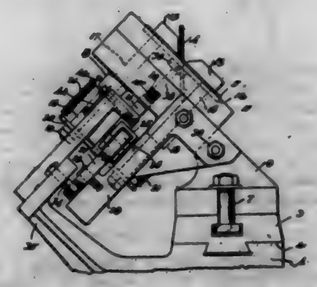
In a grease cup, the combination of a base having an undercut kerf in its edge, a cap threaded on the base, and a length of resilient wire positioned within the edge of the base and extending across said kerf and formed with a bend protruding therethrough and engaging the threads on the cap, the free corners of the kerf being bent inwardly over the wire and the edges of the base being formed with inward indentations at spaced points to retain the wire in position.

1,543,608. METHOD OF MAKING SPIRAL AUGER STEMS, BITS, AND SUBSTITUTES. FOSTER H. LEIDECKER, Marietta, Ohio, assignor to The Leidecker Tool Company, Marietta, Ohio. Filed Aug. 28, 1924. Serial No. 734,713. 1 Claim. (Cl. 76—108.)



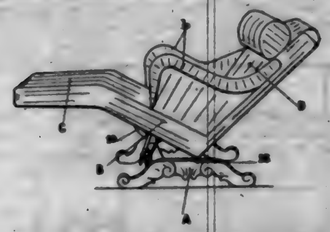
The herein described method of producing spiral auger stems and the like which consist in positioning between relatively movable dies a steel billet having longitudinal wings, intermittently feeding the billet longitudinally between the dies, each longitudinal movement being equal to or less than the length of the die, the billet being held by one of the die members against rotation at the completion of each intermittent movement, and subjecting the wings of the billet to pressure from the dies during pauses between the movements of the billet, thereby to successively twist the wings of the billet progressively from one end to the other thereof.

1,543,609. SEMIAUTOMATIC TELEGRAPH TRANSMITTER. LOUIS C. MCINTOSH, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 31, 1921. Serial No. 473,630. 6 Claims. (Cl. 178—82.)



1. In a telegraph transmitter, a primary base, an upper base plate mounted upon the primary base, three posts extending upwardly from the upper base plate substantially in a longitudinal line near the transverse center, a transversely extending abutment piece adjustably secured to the first or right hand post to serve as a brake, a vibrator carrying an adjustable weight forming block and mounted in a transverse plane and in a line parallel with the three posts and with its free end in position to engage the abutment, a light spring connected to the vibrator at the opposite end from the weight, an arm pivotally mounted near the third post in line with the vibrator and solidly connected to the spring, an L-shaped arm rigid with the first arm and at right angles thereto, a yieldable automatically acting dot transmitting contact secured to the vibrator in transverse line with the vibrator pivot, a terminal adjustably mounted in opposition to the contact, a roller at the free end of the L-shaped arm, a combination autodot key lever mounted transversely and engaging the roller and extending forwardly and carrying a finger paddle, an adjustable stop screw mounted through the terminal binding post at right angles to the terminal and engaging the opposite side of the combination autodot key lever from the roller, and a dash contact adjustably mounted to engage the combination lever in front of its pivot and on the same side as the roller, the combination lever being made in two pieces in front of the pivot, the two pieces being yieldingly connected between the dash contact and the pivot.

1,543,610. SODA FOUNTAIN. ROBERT GEORGE MARSH, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 9, 1924. Serial No. 712,173. 3 Claims. (Cl. 225—29.)

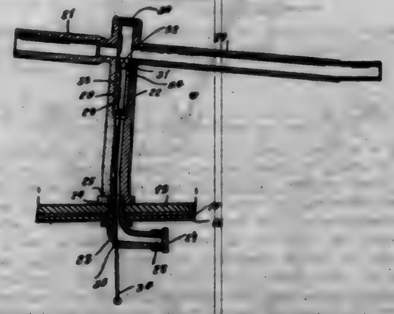


1. The combination of a receptacle for a refrigerant a detachable cover for said receptacle provided with a small opening and a large opening, a rotary holder within the refrigerant receptacle to receive and hold a plurality of ice cream containers, said holder including a rod extending through the small cover opening and adapted to be rotated to bring the containers successively beneath the large opening in the cover.

1,543,611. MILLING-MACHINE ATTACHMENT. GEORGE W. OLSON, Muskegon, Mich. Filed Apr. 14, 1923. Serial No. 632,006. 9 Claims. (Cl. 90—18.)

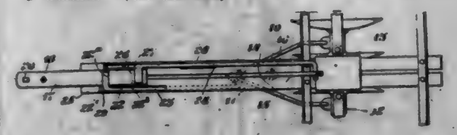
1. A milling machine attachment comprising a reciprocable work holder adapted to support a piece of work, clamping means for the piece of work actuated in timed relation to the reciprocation of said work holder, and ejecting means actuated in timed relation to the movement of said work holder.

1,543,612. CHAIR. JULES LOUIS ADRIEN PASCAUD, Paris, France. Filed Dec. 27, 1921. Serial No. 525,218. 4 Claims. (Cl. 155—29.)



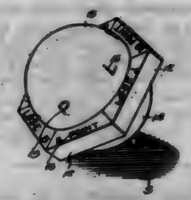
1. A chair of the invalid's chair type for securing maximum repose, comprising, a seat having arms, a back, and a leg rest attached thereto, a supporting pedestal, a pivot rockingly connecting the rear lower edge of the seat to the pedestal, a hand operated screw mechanism for varying the inclination of the seat, an automatic locking device for locking the seat in fixed position, after it has been rotated rearwardly on its axis beyond its point of equilibrium, said screw mechanism including slotted plates attached to the pedestal, a nut having trunnions slidable in the slots of the plates, a threaded shaft having one end received in the nut, and gears connecting the other end of the shaft to the seat.

1,543,613. TRANSMISSION LUBRICATOR. JOHN R. PATTON, Haynesville, La. Filed Dec. 16, 1922. Serial No. 607,434. 5 Claims. (Cl. 184—11.)



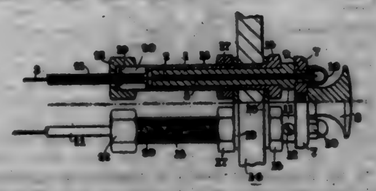
1. A lubricator of the character specified comprising a trough-shaped member having a plurality of delivery openings therein, inclined and depending lips arranged adjacent said openings, another trough-shaped member arranged above the first mentioned member and comprising mating members, and absorbent material secured between the meeting edges of said mating members and arranged to deliver lubricant to the first mentioned member.

1,543,614. OIL-PIPE CLEANER. HOMER O. PENCE, Spring Valley, Wis. Filed May 3, 1924. Serial No. 710,826. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—70.)



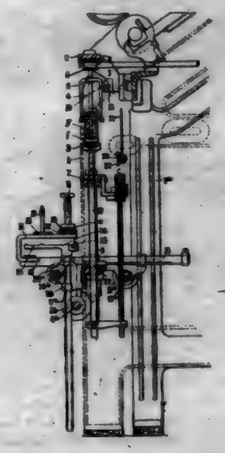
1. An appliance of the class described having a pipe for connection with a conduit, a standard having a bore in communication with said pipe, said standard being adapted for connection to a source of pressure supply, and means operable through movement in the same direction to direct the pressure in a plurality of directions but in a single direction at a time with respect to said pipe, consisting of a tubular member, said member having outlet ports disalined transversely.

1,543,615. DISK-HARROW CONTROL. WALTER R. PETERSON, Park Ridge, Ill., assignor to International Harvester Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 20, 1923. Serial No. 633,372. 5 Claims. (Cl. 55—83.)



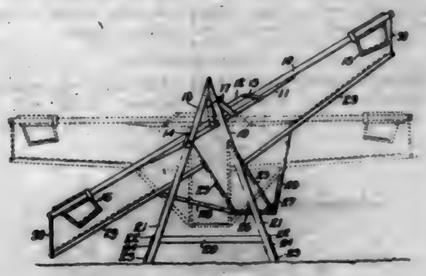
1. An angling device for disk harrows comprising the combination with the frame and disk gangs, of a pair of relatively shiftable draw rods connected at one end to the gangs by means through which a pull on each rod alternately causes the gangs to angle and straighten, and mechanism for shifting said rods comprising a slidable head piece mounted to reciprocate on the frame, and complemental coupling elements on said head piece and the other ends of said rods including means causing automatic engagement of one rod with said head and release of the other, alternately, on successive reciprocations of said head.

1,543,616. GAME APPARATUS. FREDERICK PFEIFFER, Sr., Freeport, N. Y. Filed Oct. 24, 1923. Serial No. 670,589. 5 Claims. (Cl. 273—146.)



1. A game apparatus comprising a rebounding element having indicia thereon indicative of various values, and means formed on said object adapted to coact with a supporting surface upon which the object comes to rest for displaying individually the indicia thereon.

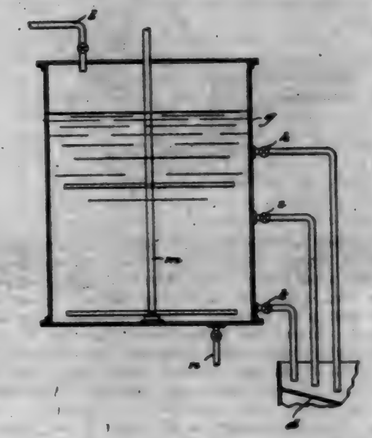
1,543,617. HEADLIGHT AND THE LIKE. FREDERICK GEORGE PIPER, Winchester, England. Filed Apr. 2, 1924. Serial No. 706,806. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—89.)



1. A means for adjusting the lamp holder of an anti-dazzle headlight, comprising a wire, a tubular casing therefor, a tubular guide receiving the end of the tubular casing, means cooperating with the guide to clamp the casing in said guide, a push rod slidably mounted in the guide and having an axial bore extending therethrough in which the wire may be moved without interference, means carried by the push rod to clamp the wire in the axial bore of the latter, and means removably connected to the end of the push rod for operating the latter.

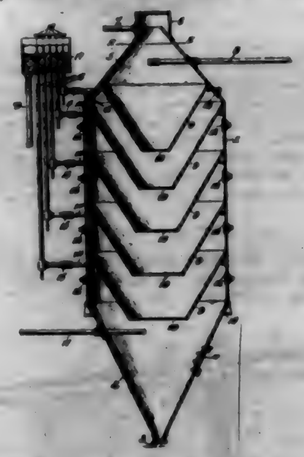
1,543,618. SPINNING, TWISTING, AND ANALOGOUS MACHINE. WILLIAM PRINCE-SMITH and DAVID WATERHOUSE, Keighley, England. Filed Sept. 3, 1924. Serial No. 735,637. 10 Claims. (Cl. 118—18.)

1. In spinning, twisting and analogous machines of the kind specified, spindles, two separate lifter-rails apertured to pass onto and from said spindles, each lifter-rail supporting directly a series of bobbins, traversing devices for receiving one of said lifter-rails, each lifter-rail fitting exchangeably upon said traversing devices, two transfer rails in conjunction with which said lifter-rails are manipulated alternately, said transfer rails having pegs thereon spaced coincidently with said spindles over which pegs said apertured lifter-rails are adapted to be passed, and means for manipulating said lifter-rails and said transfer rails into and out of operative position for the purpose of doffing said bobbins.



1,543,619. SEESAW. REGINALD C. PRYOR, Houghton, Mich. Filed Mar. 20, 1922. Serial No. 545,190. 5 Claims. (Cl. 272—54.)

1. In an amusement device a supporting structure, a seesaw pivoted thereon and ladder structures leading to the ends of the seesaw and swingingly supported at each end to swing with the same, substantially as set forth.



1,543,620. TREATMENT OF HYDROMAGNESITE. WILLIAM STEPNEY RAWSON, London, England. Filed July 24, 1922. Serial No. 575,586. 5 Claims. (Cl. 23—84.)

1. A process of treating hydromagnesite which consists in stirring the crude material with a small proportion of water to form a slurry, then heating the slurry to about the boiling-point, then mixing the hot slurry, while stirring, with cold water at least sufficient to produce a mixture having a temperature below 75° F., and then separating the heavier particles from the suspension and running the suspension through a sieve.

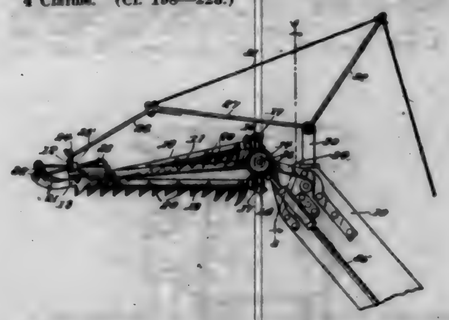
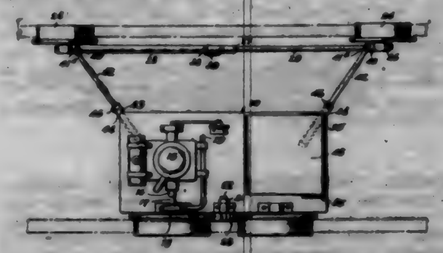
1,543,621. CANE-JUICE-SETTLING TANK. CHARLES W. RUCKSTUHL, New Orleans, La., assignor of one-half to Leonidas B. Gouner, New Orleans, La. Filed May 8, 1923. Serial No. 637,600. 1 Claim. (Cl. 127—13.)



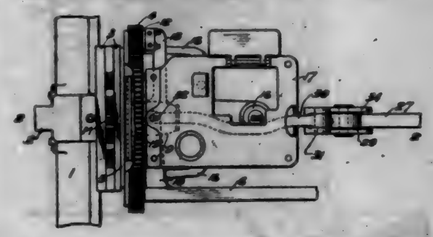
In a settling tank, the combination of a circular casing, a series of funnel-shaped plates arranged one above the other within the casing and connected along their upper edges to the walls of said casing whereby a series of compartments are formed with their bottoms pitched at such an angle as to permit of discharge solely by gravity of solids deposited thereon; said plates being open at their lower ends and having said openings in alinement with each other, the opening of each succeeding plate being slightly larger than that of the preceding plate, vents arranged in each of the compartments, a scum trap mounted on the upper end of the casing and having an overflow pipe therein, a tank arranged adjacent the casing, pipes communicating with the compartment vents and also with the tank, sleeves for vertical adjustment arranged in one end of the pipes for controlling the flow of liquid from the compartments, an inlet pipe mounted above the upper funnel-shaped plate and entering the casing, a mud outlet arranged in the lower end of the casing and a draw-off pipe arranged in the casing adjacent the lower end of the lowermost funnel-shaped plate.

1,543,622. TANDEM DISK HARROW. CHARLES S. SHARP, Auburn, N. Y., assignor to International Harvester Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 22, 1918. Serial No. 263,715. 15 Claims. (Cl. 55—83.)



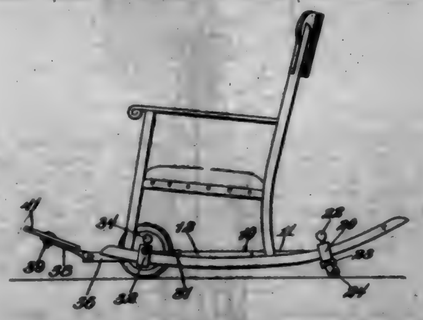
1. In a double harrow, front and rear pairs of angularly adjustable disk gangs, means including a member movable by draft power by which said gangs may be positively straightened when the harrow is backed, and means controllable from a point outside the harrow for positively angling the gangs by a pull on the draft member.

1,543,623. LOAD LEVELER. SUMNER R. SMART, Circle, Mont. Filed Apr. 9, 1924. Serial No. 705,299. 4 Claims. (Cl. 198—223.)



1. The combination with a grain header, of a load leveler comprising a frame, a plurality of pivoted and slidable reciprocatory leveling elements mounted in said frame, means whereby said elements may be reciprocated and means for supporting the leveler in position for use.

1,543,624. RAILWAY HAND CAR. BYRON S. SNOWDEN, Albany, N. Y. Filed Jan. 6, 1925. Serial No. 837. 8 Claims. (Cl. 105—116.)

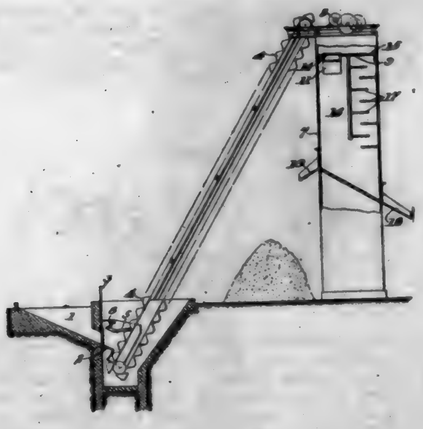


1. A collapsible emergency railway hand car including a platform having rail engaging supporting means at one side thereof for engaging one rail, a pair of flanged wheels for engaging the opposite rail, telescopic means connecting said wheels and telescopic means carried by the platform provided with detachable means of connection with the connecting means between the wheels.

1,543,625. CASTING MECHANISM FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL MACHINES. SAMUEL E. SPERRY, Woodhaven, N. Y., assignor to Intertype Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 22, 1924. Serial No. 715,198. 14 Claims. (Cl. 199—47.)

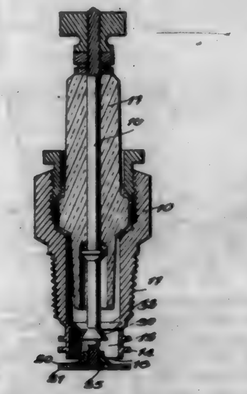
1. In a typographical machine of the class described, the combination with means for holding a line of matrices in casting position, of a mold wheel operative to present the face of a mold thereon to the character-bearing face of the line of matrices and supported on a fixed vertical axis which extends transversely of the mold at a point substantially centrally of its length, whereby the mold wheel is prevented from rocking in a vertical plane but is free to rock in either direction about said axis when the mold comes into contact with said face of the line of matrices, to insure intimate contact between the line of matrices and said face of the mold.

1,543,626. ATTACHMENT FOR ROCKING CHAIRS. GEORGE E. STANSBURY, Danville, Ill. Filed Dec. 11, 1924. Serial No. 755,220. 1 Claim. (Cl. 280—35.)



An attachment for rocking chairs comprising front and rear cross bars adjustable as to length and each provided at the ends thereof with clamps for engaging the rockers of the chair, caster wheels carried by the ends of the rear cross bar, wheels carried by the ends of the front cross bar, and side bars connecting said front and rear cross bars and adjustable as to length, bars slidably engaged with said side bars and projecting forwardly therefrom, arms pivoted to the forward ends of the last named bars and a cross member providing a foot rest carried by said arms, the cross member having longitudinally extending slots, said arm having securing elements engaging through said slots and adjustable therein.

1,543,627. COAL-HANDLING PLANT. RUSSEL W. STEM, Bethlehem, Pa. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 699,561. 5 Claims. (Cl. 214—16.)



1. In a plant for handling material such as coal, a tower providing an elevated bin of limited capacity, a distributing pocket at the top of said tower, means for transferring coal from a source of supply to said distributing pocket, a storage chute extending from said pocket, a passage for delivering coal from said pocket to said bin, means operative to pass coal from said pocket to said bin upon closure of said storage chute, and a chute for delivering coal from said bin to a truck or the like.

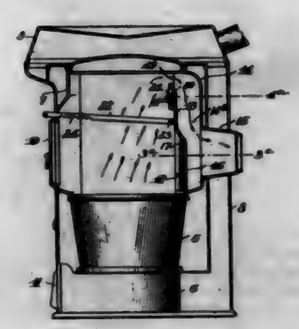
1,543,628. SPARK PLUG. ROY LITTRELL STOVER, Oklahoma City, Okla. Filed July 18, 1923. Serial No. 652,396. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—169.)

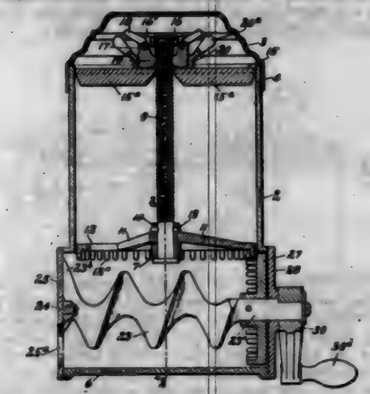


1. A spark plug comprising a shell having a tubular electrode, a stem extending centrally through the shell and having its forward end provided with a combined electrode and concavo-convex baffle, the edge portion of said combined electrode and concavo-convex baffle being provided with a flat annular flange arranged in advance of said tubular electrode and being greater in diameter than the tubular electrode and extending beyond the sides of the tubular electrode to obstruct the free movement of oil into the tubular electrode, the shell being provided at the rear end of said tubular electrode with an internal annular flange having its upper and lower surfaces inclined toward the forward end of the stem.

1,543,629. APPLICATOR. FRANK E. TAYLOR, Broken Bow, Nebr. Filed Aug. 18, 1922. Serial No. 582,709. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—261.)

An applicator of the character described comprising an elongated solid body tapered from its center toward both ends and curved throughout its length, said body being circular in cross section at every point, the body being furthermore provided with a plurality of recesses distributed throughout its area and arranged in rows with the recesses in one longitudinal row staggered with respect to those in adjacent longitudinal rows, one end of the body being formed with an elongated stem adapted to be gripped by the sphincter muscle for retaining the device in operative position within the rectum, and said stem terminating in a flat button preventing insertion of the device to an excessive distance and also serving as a handle for effecting removal.

1,543,630. HEATING APPARATUS. JOHN A. THOMAS, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Sill Stove Works, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 6, 1923. Serial No. 617,351. 4 Claims. (Cl. 126—99.)



1. A heating apparatus comprising a fire pot, a heating dome above the latter, a smoke flue communicating with said dome adjacent the top and bottom of a side thereof, a regulating deflector plate constructed and movably mounted to either admit the products of combustion from the bottom of said dome to said flue or to deflect the same upwardly through said dome to said flue, and a controller for variably adjusting the position of said deflector plate.

1,543,631. SOAP-DISPENSING DEVICE. FREDERICK TODT, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Peerless Soap Company, Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Sept. 1, 1922. Serial No. 585,651. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—40.)

2. A releasable nut comprising a supporting member having a central opening, a hub extending from the supporting member around the opening, segmental screw threaded jaws pivotally mounted in the hub to swing in radial lines and having handles extending upwardly and outwardly, a ring slidingly mounted for axial movement upon the hub and engaging the jaws so that when the ring is pressed downwardly the jaws are forced inwardly and locked and when the ring is raised the jaws are released, and means for operating the ring.

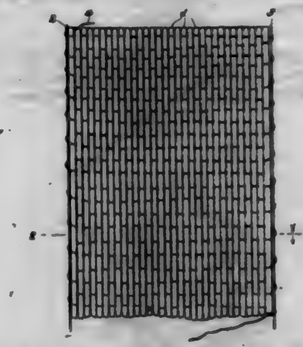
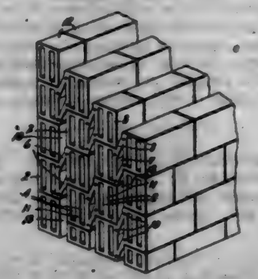
1,543,632. APPLIANCE FOR ASSISTING CHILD-BIRTH. FRANCIS LOUIS TRINCA, Caulfield, Victoria, Australia. Filed Dec. 2, 1924. Serial No. 753,511. 3 Claims. (Cl. 128—31.)



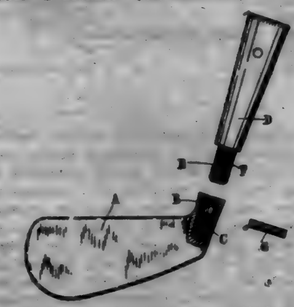
1. An appliance of the character described comprising a vertically mounted bar of spring steel, a bracket adapted to be secured in various positions of vertical adjustment on the bar, a pressure applying member connected to the bracket, and a pulling member connected to the upper end of the vertical bar whereby pressure is applied to the pressure member, substantially as and for the purposes set forth.

1,543,633. NUT LOCK. HENRY J. VAN GELDER and JOHN WARD, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed July 18, 1924. Serial No. 726,814. 1 Claim. (Cl. 151—19.)



A device of the class described, including a longitudinally slotted member, a slotted adjusting member insertable into the first-named member and capable of being mounted upon a rod to vary the effective length of said rod, and a locking member engageable with said adjusting member and mounted upon the first-named member and operable to compress the slotted portion of said adjusting member into engagement with said rod through the intermediary of the slotted portion of said first-named member.

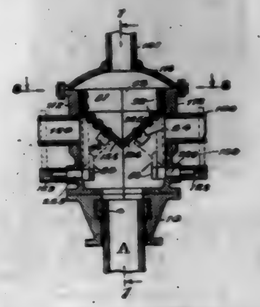
1,543,634. LUSTROUS FABRIC FOR DECORATIVE PURPOSES. SIDNEY B. WERTHEIMER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Oct. 16, 1924. Serial No. 744,064. 5 Claims. (Cl. 139—420.)



1. A lustrous fabric, which comprises a plurality of flat warp threads of lustrous material, and a woof thread loosely woven therewith so as to bind the warp threads together without materially affecting their luster.

1,543,635. BUILDING BLOCK. GLADYS B. WICKSON, Victoria, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Jan. 24, 1923. Serial No. 614,620. 2 Claims. (Cl. 72—41.)

1. A building block, composed of integral hollow portions connected together by parallel walls extending angularly from the inner edge of the bedding face of one hollow portion to the inner edge of the bedding face of the other portion, said walls retaining a space between them and the adjacent walls of the hollow portions, and a bead projecting from the outer side of each connecting wall adjacent each bedding face.



1,543,636. GOLF CLUB. HUGH WILLIAMSON, Bournemouth, England. Filed June 9, 1924. Serial No. 718,951. 2 Claims. (Cl. 273—77.)

1. A golf club head comprising, a blade of forged mild steel, a short neck integral with said blade, said short neck being bored and screw threaded, a shank composed of a suitable alloy of aluminium, said shank being tubular, a spigot formed on said shank, said spigot being screwthreaded and being screwed into said screwthreaded bore of said neck, and means to secure said parts in assembled position.

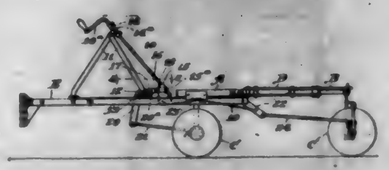
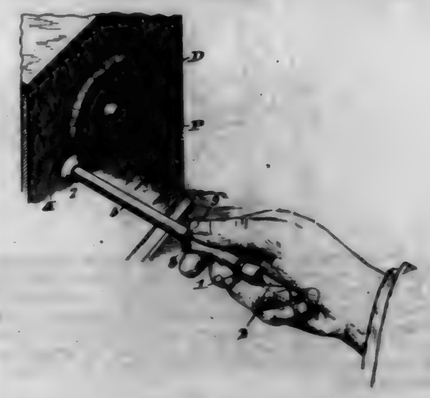
1,543,637. DEVICE FOR CONTROLLING THE FLOW OF WELLS. JOHN M. WOLL, Kittanning, Pa. Filed Apr. 5, 1923. Serial No. 630,126. 5 Claims. (Cl. 166—13.)



4. A means to control the flow of fluid from a well, said means comprising a body adapted to be applied to a well pipe, a vertical discharge pipe on said body at the top, lateral discharge pipes on the body at opposite sides and valves movable to positions individually closing the branch pipes or to convergent positions jointly cutting off the flow to said vertical discharge pipe.

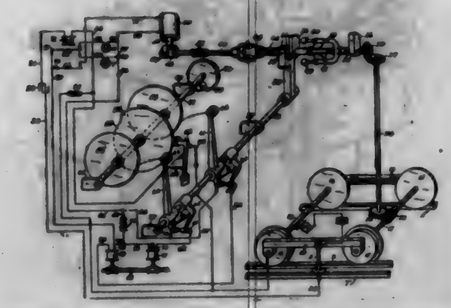
1,543,638. AUTOMATIC FUEL SWITCH. LEOPOLD F. BUNGAN, Riverside, Ill., assignor to International Harvester Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 15, 1920. Serial No. 365,855. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—127.)



2. In an automatic fuel switch for internal combustion engines, the combination of a carburetor having separate reservoirs for fuels of different specific gravities, a fuel passage leading from each reservoir to a common mixing chamber, valves controlling the respective passages, a rocker arm operatively connected at each end to one of the valves, a lever pivoted at one end to the rocker arm between the connections to the valves, resilient means connected to one end of the rocker arm and to the free end of the lever and means dependent upon temperature conditions in the engine for actuating the lever to open one valve and close the other.

1,543,639. TRACTOR HARROW. SHERMAN W. CADY, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, assignor, by mesne assignments, to International Harvester Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 1, 1922. Serial No. 540,191. 9 Claims. (Cl. 55—83.)

1. The combination with a disk harrow having front and rear sections and an agularly adjustable disk gang on each section, of means for adjusting the gangs comprising a lever pivoted on the front section, means for shifting the lever, a connection between the lever and one gang including a second lever having an elbow joint connection with said first lever, and a connection between the lever and the other gang including a flexible element.



1,543,640. VERNIER-ADJUSTMENT DEVICE. CHARLES D. DE VOSS, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-half to Harry L. Stern, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 17, 1924. Serial No. 686,730. 14 Claims. (Cl. 74—7.)

1. In a device of the character described, a frictionally tipped member adapted to grip against a surface contiguous to an element to be actuated, and a member having limited slidable movement upon and rotatable relative to the first mentioned member to actuate the element aforesaid.

1,543,641. AUTOMATIC SPEED-CONTROL SYSTEM FOR RAILWAYS. FRANK L. DODSON, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to General Railway Signal Company, Gates, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 2, 1917. Serial No. 146,242. 30 Claims. (Cl. 246—37.)

7. In a system for automatically controlling railway vehicles, in combination: a track divided into blocks; a source of current and a track relay associated with each block; a power conductor extending along the track; means for dividing said power conductor into sections corresponding to said blocks which are electrically independent as regards a signalling current and are electrically continuous as regards propulsion current the divisions of said power conductor being in the rear of the block division; means controlled by said track relays for controlling the supply of signalling current to the sections of said power conductor; and means responsive to said signalling current for imposing a restriction on the speed of a following vehicle in accordance with its location in the block in the rear of an occupied block and for automatically removing said restriction when the next block in advance becomes unoccupied only if there is no other train ahead in the same block.

1,543,642. MAILING WRAPPER. HERMAN L. GREVE, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to International Mailing Tube and Wrapper Company, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Jan. 9, 1924. Serial No. 685,142. 5 Claims. (Cl. 229—67.5.)

1. A mailing wrapper for plants comprising a sheet of material adapted to be rolled into cylindrical form and adjustable around the plant, and means attached to said sheet adapted to embrace a portion of the plant and hold it from shifting relative to the wrapper.

1,543,643. APPARATUS FOR PACKAGE DYEING. GEORGE C. GUILD, Clinton, Mass. Filed Oct. 6, 1924. Serial No. 741,702. 5 Claims. (Cl. 8—10.)

4. In apparatus of the class described, a series of packages wound upon suitable supporting centers adapted to permit the circulation of fluid into said packages, yieldable spacing means interposed between said packages adapted to permit the same to be longitudinally compressed, and means adapted to keep said packages substantially axially aligned.

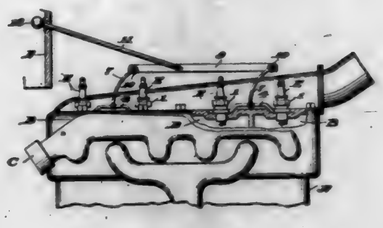
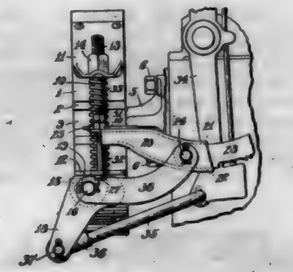
1,543,644. METHOD OF MAKING BUCKLE FRAMES. ART HADLEY, Providence, R. I., assignor to The Hadley Company, Providence, R. I. Filed Oct. 9, 1924. Serial No. 742,534. 8 Claims. (Cl. 29—3.)



1. The herein described method of making buckle frames which consists in taking a piece of wire, tapering the ends thereof, then bending the wire into U-shape, then in squaring the bends of the wire to sharpen the angles of the corners thereof, then in flattening and shaping the wire by subjecting the opposite side faces thereof to pressure and at the same time forming U-shaped ends of reduced and equal thickness so as to provide readily bendable parts which can be bent to form eyes to receive the ends of the tongue carrying cross-bar of the buckle.

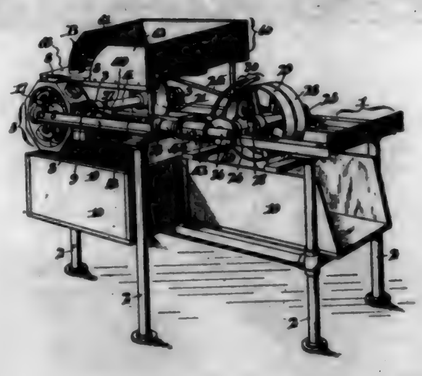
1,543,645. ROAD GRADER. ROBERT C. REDPATH, Olathe, Kans. Filed Sept. 4, 1923. Serial No. 660,739. 2 Claims. (Cl. 37—108.)



1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of a wheeled-frame, a pair of arms pivotally secured to said wheeled-frame, a drag beam pivotally secured to the ends of said arms, one of said arms being adjustable in length, means for elevating said beam from the roadway, and a vertically-adjustable cutting blade carried by said beam.

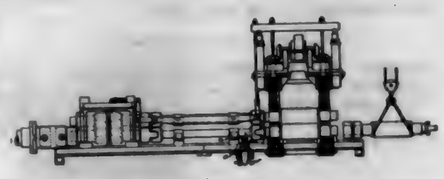
1,543,646. CLEANING AND WARMING SYSTEM FOR THE SPARK-PLUGS OF MULTICYLINDER INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES AND PARTS THEREOF. HARVEY C. SHAMBLIN, Miami, Okla., assignor of two-fifths to himself, two-fifths to Paul E. Bradley, Joplin, Mo.; one-tenth to Richard E. Babcock and one-tenth to William S. Babcock, both of Washington, D. C. Filed Feb. 2, 1925. Serial No. 6,416. 15 Claims. (Cl. 123—169.)

1. In a cleaning and warming system for the spark-plugs of a multi-cylinder internal combustion engine, the combination of spark-plugs respectively mounted in the respective cylinders, each said spark-plug having a perforation through the wall of its shell, with a conduit for forming communication between the interiors of a pair of said spark-plugs to alternately direct blasts of gas under high compression from one of said spark-plugs inwardly through the other spark-plug of such pair.



1,543,647. AUTOMOBILE BRAKE. SAMUEL O. WHITE, Muncie, Ind., assignor to Warner Gear Company, Muncie, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed May 26, 1924. Serial No. 715,939. 9 Claims. (Cl. 188—77.)

1. In an automobile brake, in combination, a brake band, a compression bolt, a cam member operating transversely to the plane of the band co-operating with said bolt to contract the band, and a pivotally mounted arm extending substantially at right angles to the plane of the band connected to said bolt to permit the same to move longitudinally and prevent lateral deflection thereof.



1,543,648. SWAGING MACHINE. WILLIAM R. BARLOW, Trevose, Pa., assignor to Henry A. Dygert, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Oct. 6, 1923. Serial No. 666,930. 15 Claims. (Cl. 113—1.)

1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of a vertically rotatable support provided with bushing cups having radially slidable holders for the articles being swaged, a swaging die, and means for moving the support to successively present the articles to the swaging die.

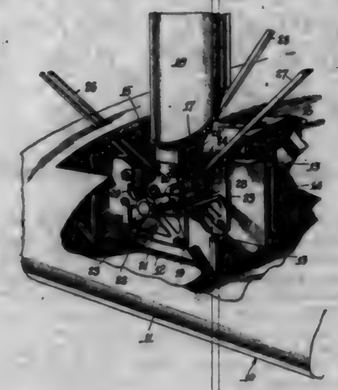
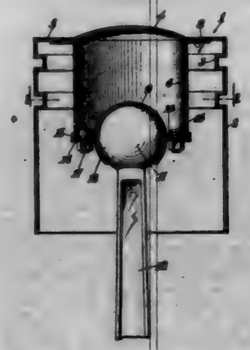
1,543,649. ROLLING-MILL APPLIANCE. JOHN H. BODE, Bellevue, Pa. Filed Jan. 16, 1922. Serial No. 529,479. 6 Claims. (Cl. 80—1.)



6. A rolling mill having spindles having in combination therewith a frame extending under the spindle of said mill, a bed movably mounted on the frame and provided with seats or bearings for the lower spindle, said parts adapted to support the spindle when in operative position, and means for shifting the bed to move a spindle laterally from and to operative position.

1,543,650. FOOD ARTICLE. GEORGE W. LYONS, New Haven, Conn., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, to The Lyons Flynn Company, New Haven, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed May 15, 1923. Serial No. 639,166. 1 Claim. (Cl. 99—11.)

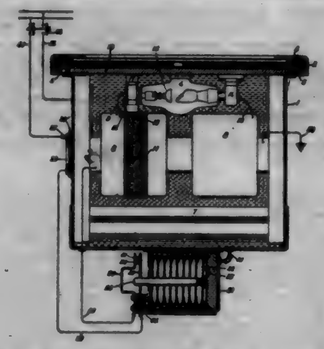


A food article including a baked body of dough having a main opening extending through a wall of the body and having a supplemental opening located between the ends of the body and extending into the main opening, said main opening being formed to receive a filling and the supplemental opening being formed to receive a condiment, the part of the filling in register with the supplemental opening affording a bottom for the latter to support the condiment.

1,543,651. WING-STRUT FASTENING FOR AEROPLANES. HARVEY C. MUMMERT, Hollis, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company Inc., Garden City, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 29, 1922. Serial No. 564,857. 7 Claims. (Cl. 244—31.)

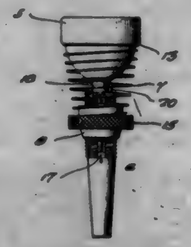
3. In an aeroplane, a wing strut, spaced beam members so related one to the other as to provide in effect a continuous beam, a fitting mounted in the space between the beam members, said fitting being fastened to the wing strut, a pin extended across the space between said beam members to provide a fastening for the strut end, and reenforcing plates provided on the opposite faces of the beam members through which said pin extends.

1,543,652. PISTON CONSTRUCTION. FREDERICK R. SUNDERMAN, Newburgh, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to James D. Lacey, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 16, 1921. Serial No. 522,737. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)



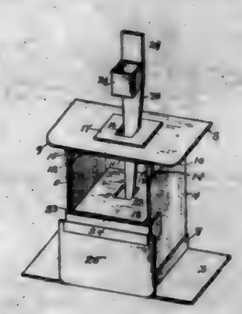
1. A piston construction comprising a shell having a head and skirt, and a flanged housing secured to the under side of said head having an upwardly arched bottom portion to form a thrust bearing for the upper end of the connecting rod, said housing having a cylindrical portion and a flange bearing against and secured to said head, to transmit the thrust.

1,543,653. RESTRAINING BODY BED BRACE. ELIZABETH BAGNOR, Pittsfield, Mass. Filed June 25, 1923. Serial No. 647,529. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—184.)



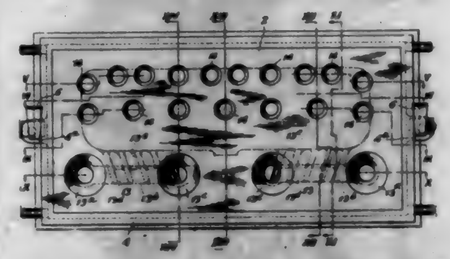
The combination with an elastic body band, side straps adapted to be attached to a bed, and angularly spaced shoulder straps secured to the said elastic body band and to the said side straps.

1,543,654. X-RAY APPARATUS. WILLIAM COOLIDGE, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 18, 1922. Serial No. 530,198. 2 Claims. (Cl. 250—84.)



1. An X-ray apparatus comprising a sealed tank, a transformer contained therein, an X-ray tube in said tank connected to said transformer, an insulating liquid completely filling said tank, make and break contacts in circuit with said transformer, means for compensating the cubical capacity of said tank to volume changes of the contained liquid and means operated thereby to open said contacts when the volume exceeds a predetermined value and to close said contacts when the volume becomes less than said value.

1,543,655. MOUTHPIECE FOR MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. JOSEPH B. NEWMAN, Ravenna, Ky. Filed Jan. 22, 1924. Serial No. 687,804. 2 Claims. (Cl. 84—398.)



1. A mouth piece comprising a hollow stem provided at its end with a valve head, a nut mounted upon the stem, a cup slidably mounted upon the stem and having an interior surface engageable with the valve head and a cone shaped helical spring interposed between the nut and the cup.

1,543,656. FLAG OR FLOWER STAND. CHARLES STREIB, Hoboken, N. J. Filed Sept. 7, 1921. Serial No. 499,005. 3 Claims. (Cl. 248—88.)

1. A device of the character described comprising bottom, top and intermediate members, a socket upon the bottom member, the top and intermediate members being provided with perforations in line with said socket and a removable and movable member received in said perforations, said removable member being tapered toward its lower end and having a box shaped socket thereon.

1,543,657. MOLD. CHARLES B. BOHN and DANIEL FROWN, Detroit, Mich., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Nov. 20, 1922. Serial No. 601,993. 16 Claims. (Cl. 22—134.)

1. A mold for forming chambered castings of low melting point metal, said mold having a cavity with sections forming the bottom walls of the casting (as it lies in the mold), sections forming the top walls of the casting and interconnecting sections extending upward from the bottom wall sections to the top wall sections to form interconnecting parts of the casting, and said mold comprising a drag and a cope which is formed of baked sand and has risers extending upward from the interconnecting sections of the mold cavity.

Interference Notices.

Phoenix Plumbago Mining Company, its assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference having been declared by this Office between the application of Stuart Products Co., Inc., 100 Hudson Street, New York, N. Y., and 93 Sherman Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered August 20, 1906, No. 45,980, to Phoenix Plumbago Mining Company, 1712 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., and a notice of such declaration sent by registered mail to said Phoenix Plumbago Mining Company at the said address having been returned by the post-office authorities as undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Phoenix Plumbago Mining Company, its assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

WM. A. KINNAN, Acting Commissioner.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, June 20, 1925.

The heirs, assigns, or legal representatives of Mark Tempest, take notice:

An interference has been declared by this Office between the application of Lillian J. Thompson, 1247 Washington Avenue, Tyrone, Pa., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered July 20, 1897, No. 20,414, to Mark Tempest, Oineyville, R. I. It prima facie appearing that the registrant is dead, notice is therefore hereby given to the said heirs, assigns, or legal representatives of said Mark Tempest that unless they shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

WM. A. KINNAN, Acting Commissioner.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, June 20, 1925.

Jacob Beck & Son, Ltd., its assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference having been declared by this Office between the application of Reid, Murdoch & Co., 314 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered June 30, 1903, No. 40,687, to Jacob Beck & Son, Ltd., 245–249 Congress Street west, Detroit, Mich., and a notice of such declaration sent by registered mail to said Jacob Beck & Son, Ltd., at the said address having been returned by the post office as undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Jacob Beck & Son, Ltd., its assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

WM. A. KINNAN, Acting Commissioner.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, June 20, 1925.

William Hunt, his assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference having been declared by this Office between the application of Fred B. Neuhoff, of 124 West Fourth Street, Los Angeles, Calif., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered July 23, 1901, No. 36,803, to William Hunt, 2106 Western Avenue, Seattle, Wash., and a notice of such declaration sent by registered mail to said William Hunt at the said address having been returned by the post office as undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said William Hunt, his assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

Frederick C. Adams, his assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference having been declared by this Office between the application of The Selig Company, 250 Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered November 13, 1906, No. 57,554, to Frederick C. Adams, of 53 River Street, Chicago, Ill., and a notice of such declaration sent by registered mail to said Frederick C. Adams at the said address having been returned by the post-office authorities as undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Frederick C. Adams, his assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

DECISIONS IN PATENT AND TRADE-MARK CASES.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

SUNDSTRAND v. GUBELMANN.

No. 1,800. Decided February 2, 1925.

EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL—LACHES—COPYING CLAIMS FROM A PATENT—QUESTION MAY BE RAISED AT ANY TIME.

Unless a showing is made of special circumstances justifying the delay in copying claims from a patent, the two-year limit applies and the patentee may insist upon that issue for the first time before the Court of Appeals, D. C., this jurisdictional question being one which may be raised at any time.

APPEAL from Patent Office. Reversed.

Mr. Geo. T. Tew and Mr. L. B. Smith for Sundstrand.

Mr. C. L. Sturtevant and Mr. Allen E. Dicke for Gubelmann.

Before ROBB and VAN ORSDEL, Justices, and SMITH, Judge U. S. Court of Customs Appeals.

ROBB, J.:

Appeal from a decision of the Acting Commissioner of Patents in an interference proceeding reversing the decision of the Examiners in Chief and awarding priority to the appellee Gubelmann.

Sundstrand's original application was filed March 14, 1914, and a patent containing the claims of the issue was granted September 26, 1916. Gubelmann copied these claims on November 23, 1918, but made no showing that his failure to copy them within two years from the issuance of the patent was due to special circumstances justifying the delay. Chapman v. Wintroath, 272 O. G. 913; 1920 C. D. 465; 252 U. S. 126, 139; Webster Co. v. Splitdorf Co., 327 O. G. 219; 264 U. S. 463, 471. In behalf of Gubelmann it is contended that appellant is estopped to insist upon that issue here, not having raised it below. To this we can not assent. Unless a showing is made of special circumstances justifying the delay in copying claims from an issued patent, the two-year limit applies and there is no basis for the declaration of an interference, so that the award of a patent in such a situation would be an idle ceremony. It is apparent, therefore, that this jurisdictional question may be raised at any time.

Chapman v. Beede, 328 O. G. 230; 54 App. D. C. 209, 296 Fed. 956, is not in point, since it there appeared that the subject matter of the copied claims was disclosed and claimed in a copending application.

The decision is reversed.

Reversed.

DISSENTING OPINION.

SMITH, Acting Associate Justice, dissenting:

I regret exceedingly that I find myself unable to agree with the prevailing opinion in this case.

On September 19, 1916, a patent was issued to Gustaf D. Sundstrand for an adding and listing machine. On the 23d of November, 1918, William S. Gubelmann, filed an amendment in the Patent Office to his application filed September, 1912, in the Patent Office and said amendment copied three of the claims of the Sundstrand patent. That amendment was received by the Patent Office without objection and therefore the Examiner of Interferences declared the existence of an interference between Gubelmann's application and the Sundstrand patent. On the 1st of April, 1920, Sundstrand moved to dissolve the interference on the ground that Gubelmann had no right to make the claims corresponding to the counts of the issue and that there was no interference in fact between the application of Gubelmann and the patent to Sundstrand. The motion was based solely on the proposition that the counts of the issue were not within the disclosure of Gubelmann and was not made on the ground that Gubelmann was guilty of laches.

The Law Examiner denied the motion to dissolve and the Examiner of Interferences awarded priority of invention to Gubelmann. From that decision an appeal was taken to the Examiners in Chief who reversed the decision of the Examiner of Interferences and awarded priority to Sundstrand. From the decision of the Examiners in Chief Gubelmann appealed to the Commissioner of Patents who reversed the decision of the Examiners in Chief and sustained that of the Examiner of Interferences.

Apparently therefore the question of laches was not raised by the Examiner of Interferences and was not presented by the motion to dissolve. More than that, it was not discussed or decided by any of the tribunals of the Patent Office.

If the Examiner had refused to accept Gubelmann's amendment or if he had declined to declare an interference on the ground of laches, Gubelmann might have been allowed to amend his application by setting up satisfactory reasons for his delay in copying the claims of the Sundstrand patent or if he had been denied leave to amend he might have filed a new application setting up facts which would have legally excused his delay. On the other hand, if Sundstrand's motion to dissolve the interference had been based on Gubelmann's laches the latter would have been in a position to submit evidence establishing that the delay in presenting these claims was due to circumstances beyond his control or that he had not slept on his rights without reasonable excuse.

Whether laches exists depends on the facts and circumstances of each case (Webster v. Splitdorf, 264 U. S. 463–471 and it seems to me that we can not dispose of this appeal on that ground inasmuch as no such issue was raised by the motion to dissolve. If the issue had been raised for all that we know or can know the appellee might have fully and satisfactorily accounted for his delay in copying the claims of the patent of the junior party.

We have before us no evidence of laches other than the date of Sundstrand's patent and the date of Gubelmann's amendment containing the copied counts, and while that possibly would have been enough to justify the Patent Office in refusing to accept the copied claims or in granting a motion to dissolve the interference if made on the ground of laches, no satisfactory reason or excuse for the delay being shown, it does not warrant this court, as I see it, in deciding the case on a matter not put in issue and not even suggested until after this appeal was perfected. In short, I am of the opinion that Gubelmann was not bound to anticipate a charge of laches and that he was not bound to meet any such issue until it was raised either by the patent officials or by a motion of the adverse party to dissolve the interference. To hold otherwise would result in deciding that Gubelmann was guilty of laches although that question was not made an issue in any way in the Patent Office thereby leaving Gubelmann without any opportunity to meet it or present his side of the case.

If two years was a statutory bar to the copying of the claims of a subsequent patent, we might probably decide the case on the record, but it is not a statutory bar and whether or not there was unreasonable delay in copying the counts, seems to be a question of fact which can be determined only after laches has been made an issue and an opportunity to be heard on the matter has been given. (See Webster v. Spitzdorf, supra.)

I can not bring myself to believe that the failure of Gubelmann to allege in his application the facts and circumstances which justified his delay in filing it, was jurisdictional. But if it was jurisdictional can it be said that his failure in that particular deprived him of all right to relief and that he could neither amend his application nor file a new one?

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

DOLLFUS-MIEG ET CIE., SOCIETE ANONYME v. RICHARDSON SILK CO.

No. 1497. Decided March 2, 1925.

TRADE-MARKS—COMBINATIONS OF FIGURES OR LETTERS. No one has the right, by adopting a combination of figures or letters, to exclude others from the adoption and use of different combinations of either, provided the second combinaton does not so closely approximate the first in subject matter and accessories as to lead to confusion.

APPEAL from Patent Office. Affirmed.

Mr. J. L. Stewart and Mr. J. H. Griffin for Dollfus-Mieg et Cie., Societe Anonyme.

Mr. John D. Morgan for Richardson Silk Co.

Before MARTIN, Chief Justice, and ROBB, Justice. Van Orsdel, Justice, did not sit in this case, but, by stipulation, participated in the decision.

ROBB, J.:

This is an appeal from a decision of the Commissioner of Patents dismissing appellant's opposition to the registration by appellee of the letters "R. M. C." as a trade-mark for cotton threads and yarns. Appellant based its opposition upon the prior use, on goods of the same descriptive properties, of the mark "D. M. C."

The Commissioner based his ruling upon a decision of the circuit court of appeals, affirming a decision of the district court, in Dollfus-Mieg & Cie. v. Richardson Silk Co., an infringement and unfair competition case involving the same parties and marks now before us. The trial court disposed of the question of infringement in the following words:

> On the question of the trade-mark as such, the defendant has the right, and anybody else in the world has the right, to use any initials or combination of initials that they may deem proper. I do not see any need of spending any time on that point. There is no infringement whatever on the trade-mark DMC by the letters RMC.

The court also found that there had been no unfair competition. This decision was affirmed without opinion by the circuit court of appeals. 285 Fed. 1019.

Whether that decision was binding upon the parties and the Patent Office in this proceeding we need not stop to inquire, since we are in full accord with the conclusion reached, namely, that no one has the right, by adopting a combination of figures or letters, to exclude others from the adoption and use of different combinations of either. Of course, the second combination may not so closely approximate the first in subject matter and accessories as to lead to confusion. Appellee, however, has met this requirement, hence there was no basis for the filing by appellant of the opposition proceeding. See McIlhenny's Son v. New Iberia Extract of Tobasco Pepper Company, Limited, 133 O. G. 995; 1908 C. D. 325; 30 App. D. C. 337.

The decision is affirmed.

Affirmed.

Amendments to the Rules of Practice.

(ORDER No. 2,912.)

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, June 18, 1925.

Acting under the provisions of section 483 of the Revised Statutes and with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, the following rules of the Rules of Practice in the United States Patent Office are amended as indicated:

To rule 11 add the following:

"When a petition for the institution of public use proceedings, supported by affidavits, is found, on reference to the primary examiner, to make a prima facie showing that the invention involved in an interference or disclosed in an application believed to be on file had been in public use or on sale two years before the filing of the application, or before the date alleged by an interfering party in his preliminary statement, a hearing may be had before the Commissioner to determine whether a public use proceeding should be instituted. If instituted, times may be set for taking testimony.

so that the rule as amended will read:

"11. No attention will be paid to unverified ex parte statements or protests of persons concerning pending applications to which they are not parties, unless information of the pendency of these applications shall have been voluntarily communicated by the applicants.

"When a petition for the institution of public use proceedings, supported by affidavits, is found, on reference to the primary examiner, to make a prima facie showing that the invention involved in an interference or disclosed in an application believed to be on file had been in public use or on sale two years before the filing of the application, or before the date alleged by an interfering party in his preliminary statement, a hearing may be had before the Commissioner to determine whether a public use proceeding should be instituted. If instituted, times may be set for taking testimony.

"The papers should be filed in duplicate, or served upon the applicant or his attorney of record, and petitioner should offer to bear any expense to which the office may be put."

Add the following paragraph to rule 22:

"(d) The Commissioner of Patents may appoint a Grievance Committee or Grievance Committees of those admitted to practice before the Patent Office. The Commissioner may refer to such committee such complaints against those admitted to practice before the Patent Office as he deems advisable. The committee, or a subcommittee thereof, may investigate and determine whether the complaint is well founded, and, if so, present charges for suspension or exclusion from practice,"

so that the rule as amended will read:

"22. (a) Applicants and attorneys will be required to conduct their business with the office with decorum and courtesy. Papers presented in violation of this requirement will be submitted to the Commissioner, and returned by his direct order.

"(b) Complaints against examiners and other officers must be made in communications separate from other papers and will be promptly investigated.

"(c) The Commissioner of Patents may, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, suspend or exclude, either generally or in any particular case, from further practice before his office any person, agent, or attorney shown to be incompetent or disreputable, or guilty of gross misconduct, or who refuses to comply with the rules and regulations, or who shall, with intent to defraud in any manner, deceive, mislead, or threaten any applicant or prospective applicant, or other person having immediate or prospective business before the office, by word, circular, letter, or by advertising, or who shall guarantee the successful prosecution of any application for patent or the procurement of any patent, or by word, circular, letter, or advertisement shall make any false promise or misleading representation, or who uses the name of any member of either House of Congress or of any officer of the Government in advertising his business. (Act approved Apr. 27, 1916.) The reasons for any such suspension or exclusion shall be duly recorded. And the action of the Commissioner may be reviewed upon the petition of the person so refused recognition or so suspended or excluded by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia under such conditions and upon such proceedings as the said court may by its rules determine.

THOMAS E. ROBERTSON,
Commissioner.

Disposition of Patent Office Models.

The act of Congress, approved February 18, 1925, provides a commission "to select such of the Patent Office models and exhibition exhibits as may be deemed to be of value and of historical interest * * * and cause the remainder of the said models and exhibits to be disposed of by public auction, gift to Federal, State, or private museums or institutions, or returned without expense to the Government to the original depositors or their representatives, where demanded in writing by them." * * *

The commission hereby gives notice to all Federal, State, or private museums or institutions, and to all other parties entitled to receive any of the models or exhibits under said act of Congress, that claim thereto must be made in writing to the commission on or before July 15, 1925; otherwise the models may be sold or destroyed, as authorized by the act.

Claims should be addressed to the Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

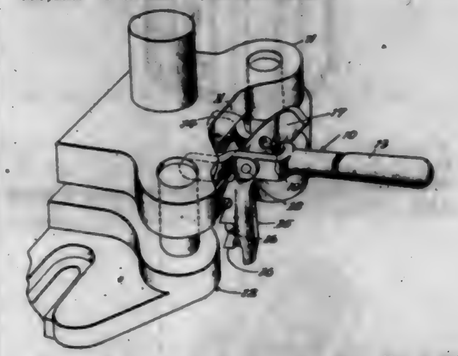
1. The combination with a picture frame; of a hollow base, studs projecting from the top of said base, the bottom rail of said picture frame having a recess for receiving said studs, and yieldable stud retaining means carried within said stud receiving recess and disposed in the path of said studs.

1,543,659. COMBINED SPRING SHACKLE AND SHOCK ABSORBER. STUART G. BAITS, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Hudson Motor Car Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Jan. 8, 1923. Serial No. 611,279. 10 Claims. (Cl. 267—54.)



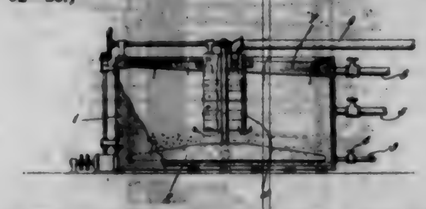
1. The combination with the frame and spring of a motor vehicle, of a shackle connecting the said parts, there being a frictional contact between the shackle and the frame, a spring acting against said shackle to force the latter against the proximate face of said frame to increase the friction between said parts, and means independent of said spring for securing said shackle to said frame.

1,542,660. FLUTED SPINDLE. JOHN BRANDWOOD, THOMAS BRANDWOOD, and JOSEPH BRANDWOOD, Elton, Bury, England. Filed Dec. 22, 1923. Serial No. 682,304. 2 Claims. (Cl. 8—18.)

2. A fluted spindle, comprising a flat plate, and a plurality of bars secured one over another and arranged on opposite sides of the flat plate and secured to it, said bars being all channel-shaped in cross-section and the inner bars having their edges spaced wider apart than the outer bars, the edges of all the bars and of the plate being arranged at equidistant points around a circle having its center substantially at the middle of the width and thickness of the flat plate.

1,543,661. PUNCH-HOLDER JACK. EMIL A. BAUMBACH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 22, 1924. Serial No. 757,456. 4 Claims. (Cl. 254—130.)

1. A punch holder jack for separating the punch holder from the die shoe comprising a lever having a lifting arm insertable under the punch holder between the punch holder and die shoe and a handle portion, and a pendant supporting dog pivotally connected to said lever intermediate the lifting arm and handle and having a series of foot portions, any one of which can engage the die shoe whereby the punch holder can be raised step by step by successively engaging succeeding foot portions with the die shoe, said jack being provided with a stop for limiting the distance to which the lifting arm can be inserted between the punch holder and die shoe.



1,543,662. CALLING DEVICE. WILLIAM T. BOOTH, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 2, 1921. Serial No. 466,036. 3 Claims. (Cl. 179—90.)

1. In a calling dial, the combination with a finger wheel, a stationary disc having characters thereon, a variably operable shaft for said wheel, an impulse wheel fixed to said shaft, springs cooperating with said impulse wheel, a toothed wheel carried by said shaft, said toothed wheel having a number of teeth corresponding to the number of characters on said finger wheel, and means actuated by the movement of said toothed wheel to render said impulse wheel ineffective with respect to said impulse springs during the setting movement of said finger wheel.

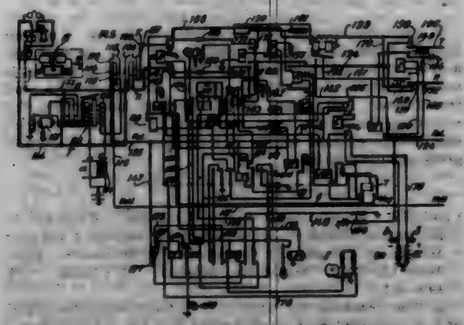
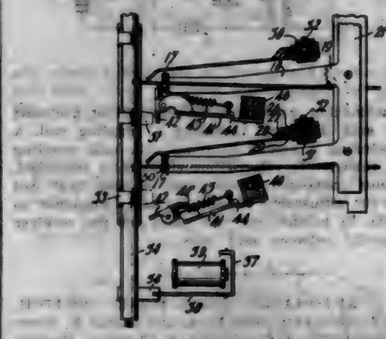
1,543,663. PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING PULP OR PAPER. LEWIS MILLER BOOTH, Plainfield, N. J. Filed Feb. 14, 1923. Serial No. 618,965. 3 Claims. (Cl. 92—28.)



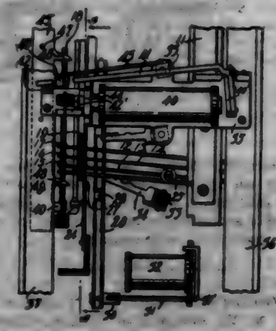
1. The process of manufacturing pulp or paper consisting of reclaiming for reuse the solid particles in the white water by the addition thereto of such reagents as will assist by coagulation in the sedimentation of the solid particles, permitting the solid particles to settle by sedimentation to the bottom of a sedimentation tank, gently agitating the liquid in the sedimentation tank by means of a slowly traveling agitator traveling near the bottom of the sedimentation tank, discharging the thickened pulp from the lower portion of the tank and the surplus liquid from a plurality of higher levels as required.

1,543,664. BRAKE-OPERATING MEANS FOR VEHICLES. DELBERT R. CAPEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 14, 1922. Serial No. 594,451. 1 Claim. (Cl. 188—77.)



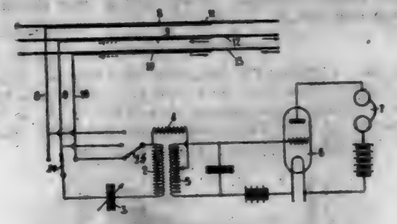
In a brake operating mechanism, a brake band, lever mechanism for contracting said brake band, guide members projecting on opposite sides of said band, and a spring connecting said lever mechanism with one of said guides for normally retaining the same in inoperative position.

1,543,665. ALARM SYSTEM FOR AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE EXCHANGES. ROY D. CONWAY, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 29, 1922. Serial No. 609,571. 14 Claims. (Cl. 179—6.3.)



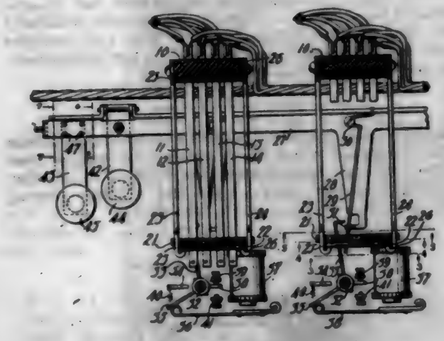
1. In a telephone system, a calling line having a sender and a coin controlled mechanism, an automatic numerical switch, an impulse circuit for setting said switch, means for automatically extending the calling line to said switch, means operated by the deposit of a coin for altering the calling line circuit, a test relay responsive to said alteration for placing said impulse circuit under control of said sender, means for applying current to said line to actuate said mechanism to dispose of the coin, an alarm signal, and means responsive to the normal condition of the calling line circuit to actuate said signal.

1,543,666. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SWITCH. HENRY F. DOBBIN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,416. 3 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)



1. In a switching device, the combination of sets of normally disengaged active and passive contacts arranged in coordinate rows, an upright support for said active contacts, a plurality of pairs of supporting arms arranged on said support, a card arranged on each pair of said arms for supporting said active and passive contacts in adjusted position, a movable bar associated with said active contacts, another bar, and rotatable cams carried by the last mentioned bar for interconnecting said active and passive contacts.

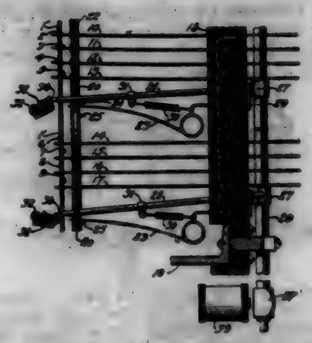
1,543,667. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SWITCH. OSCAR F. FORSBERG, Yonkers, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 1, 1923. Serial No. 635,904. 5 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)



1. In a switching device, the combination of an operating bar, an armature loosely connected therewith, a magnet for actuating said bar through a movement of said armature, a stop plate, and checking members thereon adapted to limit the movement of said bar in two directions.

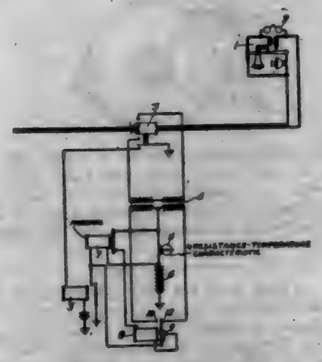
1,543,668. ARRANGEMENT FOR ELIMINATING NOISES IN HIGH-FREQUENCY TELEPHONY THROUGH POWER LINES. HERMANN GROWCKER, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Gesellschaft für Drahtlose Telegraphie m. b. H. Hallesches, Berlin, Germany. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,584. 5 Claims. (Cl. 179—2.)

2. In combination, a power transmission line, a circuit coupled to said line, and including a coupling coil, a receiver including a second coupling coil, said coupling coils being inductively related but electrically insulated, an impedance connected to one side of said first coil and means for adjustably connecting said impedance to said receiver to balance out the effect on the receiver due to capacity between said coils.



1,543,669. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SWITCH. CHARLES L. GOODRUM, New York, and OSCAR F. FORSBERG, Yonkers, N. Y., assignors to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,420. 13 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)

1. In a switching device, the combination of disengaged contacts, an operating bar therefor, electromagnets for operating said bar, a resilient member carried by said bar and movable sequentially in a plurality of coordinate directions for operating said contacts.



1,543,670. COORDINATE SWITCH. FRANK H. GRAHAM, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 7, 1922. Serial No. 586,618. 8 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)

1. In a switching mechanism, sets of disengaged contacts, a selective mechanism therefor including a selective bar, a longitudinally movable member associated with each set of said contacts, an operating bar for said members, and means carried by the first mentioned bar for moving said member in operable relation with the second mentioned bar to effect interengagement between said contacts.

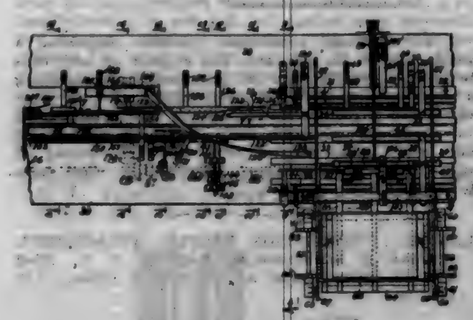
1,543,671. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. EDWARD E. HINRICHSEN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 23, 1920. Serial No. 375,986. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—365.)

2. The combination of a circuit including a transformer, a source of battery supply for said transformer, means for periodically interrupting said battery supply, a normally shunted resistance element associated with said transformer, and means bridged across said source for removing the shunt from said resistance element when the voltage of said source is increased beyond a certain predetermined value.



1,543,672. BUTT-BEND SIDE HOLDER. WILLIAM F. HORSTING, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Standard Leather Machinery Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 13, 1923. Serial No. 645,025. 11 Claims. (Cl. 149—21.)

5. The combination with a butt bend stretcher rack, of a bar on said rack having slots therein, notched plates secured on said bar to close said slots, levers projecting through said plates, pins on said levers adapted to be pierced through the side margins of a butt bend on said rack, and means on said levers adapted to be engaged in the notches of said plates to hold the levers locked in adjusted positions on said plates.

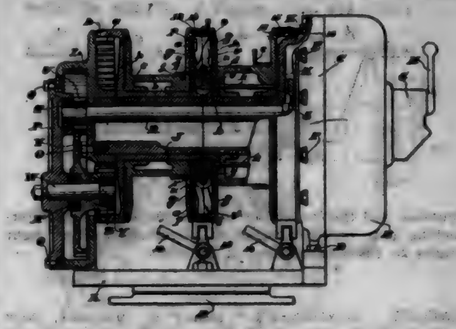
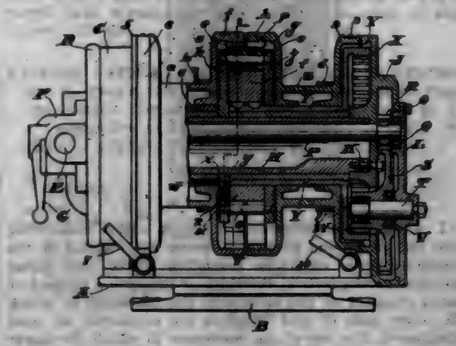
1,543,673. AUTOMATIC WRAPPING MACHINE. BERNARD D. KNOWLES, New York, N. Y. Filed May 14, 1924. Serial No. 713,143. 22 Claims. (Cl. 270—29.)



1. In a device of the character described, means for moving an article and wrapper therefor together longitudinally, means for folding them along a longitudinal line and means for bending one edge of the wrapper around both edges of the folded article.

1,543,674. DOUBLE-DRUM HOIST. EARL B. LEAR, Phillipsburg, N. J., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 699,967. 6 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)



1. In a hoist, the combination of a frame, a driving shaft, two drums rotatable about the driving shaft, a motor connected to operate the driving shaft, opposed drivers carried by said drums respectively, a main driver including a pawl carrier and a ring connected to be rotated by the driving shaft, a pawl pivoted to the main driver for automatically connecting said main driver to one or the other of the said opposed drivers in accordance with the direction of rotation of the driving shaft, and means independent of the opposed drivers for rocking said pawl about its pivot into engagement with one or the other of said opposed drivers.

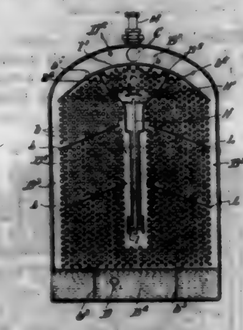
1,543,675. DOUBLE-DRUM HOIST. EARL B. LEAR, Phillipsburg, N. J., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 2, 1924. Serial No. 706,872. 5 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)

1. In a hoist, the combination of a frame, a driving shaft, two drums rotatable about said driving shaft, a motor connected to operate said driving shaft, opposed drivers carried by said drums respectively, a main driver connected to be rotated by the driving shaft, a transversely rocking pawl associated with said main driver for automatically connecting said main driver to one or the other of said opposed drivers in accordance with the direction of rotation of the driving shaft, and positive means including a cam independent of the opposed drivers for rocking said pawl into engagement with one or the other of said opposed drivers.

1,543,676. ROLLED-SHEET-METAL PILING. JOSEPH LINDENLAUF, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor of three-eighths to Herman Stratman and two-eighths to Harvey M. Aronson, both of Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Feb. 12, 1924. Serial No. 692,300. 1 Claim. (Cl. 61—60.)



A wall consisting of a plurality of similar piles comprising integral rolled sections arranged with their neutral axes in alignment and each having its two edges similarly formed and each comprising a tongue and a hook extending in opposite directions from the neutral axis of the pile, a recess being provided on the inner side of the hook in alignment with said tongue and having a shape similar to that of the tongue, the said edges of adjacent sections interlocking, so as to prevent turning about such edges, and the said tongues being of approximately uniform thickness throughout with their ends rounded, and the center lines of the tongues of each interlocking pair of edges being in alignment and at right angles to the neutral axes of the piles.

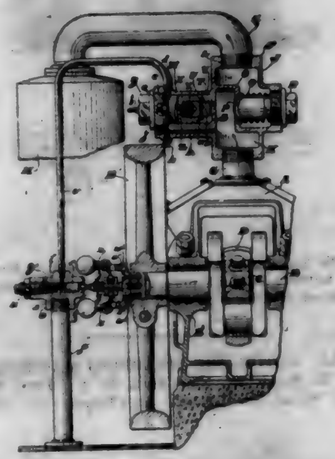
1,543,677. CONDENSER. HARRY C. MALLORY, New York, N. Y.; Sue R. Mallory administratrix of said Harry C. Mallory, deceased. Filed Mar. 29, 1923. Serial No. 628,618. 2 Claims. (Cl. 257—25.)

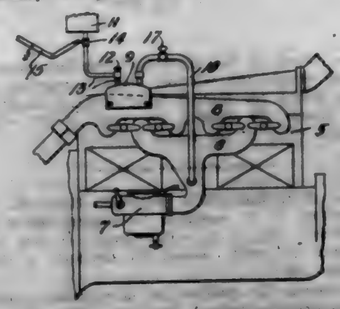
1. A condenser comprising a casing and a condensing core and partitions therein, dividing the interior of the condenser into vertically extending water and steam distribution channels at the sides of the core, a hotwell or outlet chamber at the bottom of the condenser to which the lower ends of said channels are connected, an inlet chamber at the top of the condenser to which the upper ends of said channels open, a central air connecting chamber above the last mentioned chamber and communicating therewith, and means for withdrawing air from the air cooling chamber.

1,543,678. POWER TRANSMISSION FOR VENEER LATHES. LOUIS G. MERRITT, Lockport, N. Y. Filed Apr. 25, 1922, Serial No. 556,511. Renewed Jan. 8, 1925. 35 Claims. (Cl. 144—209.)



1. In a veneer lathe, in combination, log-driving mechanism, chuck-driving mechanism, and a unitary power-transmitting gear-box for driving both of said mechanisms.

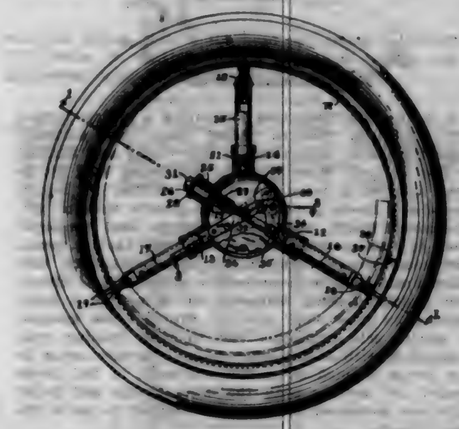
1,543,679. STORAGE MEANS FOR GASES AND THE LIKE. EDOUARD ERNEST PETITJEAN, Paris, France. Filed Sept. 9, 1922. Serial No. 587,220. 2 Claims. (Cl. 23—246.)



1. A storage vessel for dissolved gases and the like having a mass of compressed elastic peat particles contained therein, the said particles forming a substantially uniform mass substantially free from any openings or recesses.

1,543,680. CENTRIFUGAL UNLOADER. SHOWDEN B. REDFIELD, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 2, 1923. Serial No. 636,080. 3 Claims. (Cl. 230—24.)

1. A centrifugal compressor unloader comprising a relief valve in the discharge line exposed on both ends to pressure directly from the compressor and controlling a vent to atmosphere, a centrifugally operable pilot valve, and a conduit connecting one face of the relief valve through the pilot valve with atmosphere, said pilot valve being adapted to control the opening of said conduit to atmosphere whereby the relief valve is arranged to be actuated.



1,543,681. COMBUSTION-ENGINE ATTACHMENT. WILLIAM H. SCHOONMAKER, Montclair, N. J. Filed Nov. 17, 1922. Serial No. 601,516. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—25.)

A humidifying apparatus for an internal combustion engine comprising a water reservoir, a valve controlled water-dripping means fed thereby, an open-bottomed shallow receptacle having inlet and outlet openings in the top thereof adapted to snugly fit the top of the exhaust manifold of an internal combustion engine, said receptacle being served by the dripping means whereby the water supplied from the reservoir is converted into steam and conduits leading from the receptacle inlet and outlet to the explosion chamber of the internal combustion engine and to said dripping means respectively.

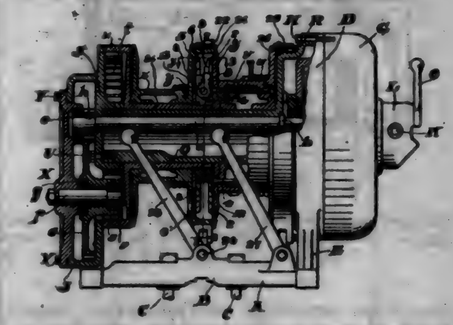
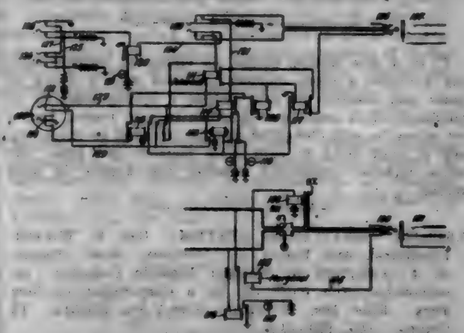
1,543,682. TIRE CARRIER. LEO PAUL SEMELL, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Bert M. Kent, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 22, 1921. Serial No. 494,054. 10 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)



2. In a device of the class described, the combination of a hub having a plurality of radially projecting arms some of which are movable radially, one of said movable arms having a threaded extension within said hub, a rotatable member in said hub held against axial movement and having threads cooperating with said extension whereby the latter and its arm may be moved radially by the rotation of said member, and means independent of said rotatable member operatively connecting said extension with another of said arms so as to actuate the latter thereby.

1,543,683. DIAMOND DIE. AARON SIMONS, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 5, 1924. Serial No. 697,059. 9 Claims. (Cl. 205—29.)

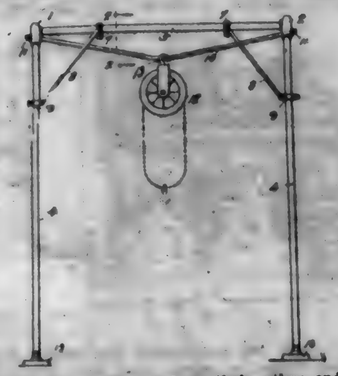


1. A diamond die including a diamond and a shell having a thickness less than the diameter of the diamond, and having a cooling flange formed thereon.

1,543,684. HOIST. FRED M. SLATER, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 5, 1923. Serial No. 622,779. 2 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)

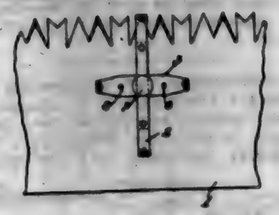
1. In a hoist, the combination of a frame, a driving shaft, two drums rotatable about the driving shaft, a motor connected to operate the driving shaft, opposed drivers carried by said drums respectively, a main driver connected to be rotated by the driving shaft, a pawl pivoted to the main driver for automatically connecting said main driver to one or the other of the said opposed drivers in accordance with the direction of rotation of the driving shaft, and additional means for rocking said pawl about its pivot and insuring that it is moved into engagement with one or the other of said opposed drivers.

1,543,685. SEMIAUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SYSTEM. RAY L. STOKELY, Floral Park, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 1, 1921. Serial No. 481,747. 22 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)



1. In a telephone system, a trunk terminating at one end in a pair of jacks and at the other end in an automatic switch, other automatic switches, a cord circuit and a connecting circuit for connection with said jacks respectively, a dial associated with said cord circuit for setting said switches, means for automatically disconnecting said trunk conductors from the cord circuit and connecting the same to the connecting circuit upon the selection of the called line, and means for maintaining the setting of the switches after said transfer from the cord circuit to the connecting circuit has taken place.

1,543,686. HOIST. FREDERICK W. WENGRAF, New Haven, Conn., assignor to Wilhelmine Wengraf, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 2, 1920, Serial No. 348,929. Renewed Nov. 22, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 189—16.)



1. The combination with a horizontal member, of joint members carried by the ends thereof and having downwardly extending angularly disposed recesses therein, supporting rods adapted to have their free ends seated in said recesses, collars slidably mounted on said horizontal member and said rods, means for locking said collars against movement, and ties pivotally connected at one end to said rod collars and at their other end to the collar on the horizontal member, and means for supporting a hoisting device between said joint members.

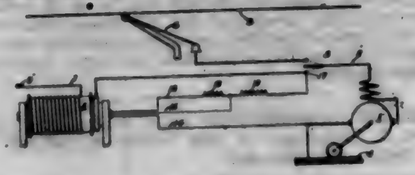
1,543,687. ADJUSTABLE SAW-SETTING GAUGE. LOUIS WIGEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 2, 1923. Serial No. 585,840. 4 Claims. (Cl. 33—202.)

1. In a saw setting gauge, an elongated member having a recess, a cross member provided with a series of holes and slidable in said recess, a spring adapted to yieldingly hold said cross member in said recess, and a set screw in said elongated member adapted to enter any one of said holes in said cross member and press the cross member outwardly against the action of said spring.

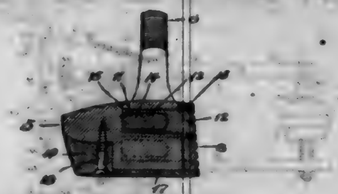
1,543,688. SWITCHING SYSTEM. RAY S. WILBUR, Lyndhurst, and EDGAR D. JOHNSON, East Orange, N. J., assignors to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 17, 1920. Serial No. 431,514. 13 Claims. (Cl. 179—2.)



1. In a signaling system, two sections of transmission lines, a four-wire repeater circuit associated with one section, terminal apparatus between the repeater circuit and the other section, a single conductor extending from the terminal apparatus to the repeater circuit, and means to control over said conductor the connections of the repeater circuit to prevent singing.

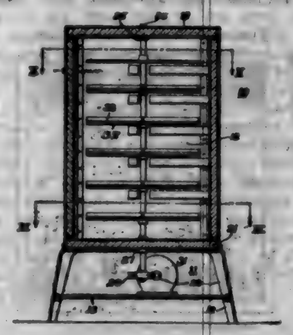
1,543,689. FUSE. SAMUEL WILEY, Metuchen, N. J. Filed Nov. 6, 1923. Serial No. 673,445. 7 Claims. (Cl. 102—38.) (Granted under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L. 625.)

1. A fuse for projectiles embodying a casing formed with oppositely directed dished seats, two normally separated blocks maintained in said casing and adapted to rest at their outer faces in said seats, said blocks being adapted to move toward one another on impact, one of said blocks provided with a powder train of predetermined length adapted to explode said projectile when said blocks are moved toward one another, means interposed between said blocks and maintaining said blocks apart in flight, a projection on one of said blocks, said projection being hollowed out to receive a delay charge, the other block provided with a recess adapted to receive said projection and with an opening communicating with said powder train, a powder pellet in thee recess adapted to prevent movement of the blocks toward one another until the delay charge and pellet have been consumed and a primer adapted to ignite the delay charge.



1,543,690. MOTOR FOR GATHERING REELS. EVERETT ASHWORTH, New York, N. Y., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 13, 1923. Serial No. 651,210. 10 Claims. (Cl. 242—91.)

2. In combination with a direct-current motor associated mechanically with a movable body, of a load turning the motor armature against its torque during one part of the movement and being operated by said armature during another part of the movement, said motor comprising an armature, a field winding and a resistor connected in series relation and a second field winding connected in shunt relation to the portion of the circuit comprising said armature, series field winding and a portion of said resistor, said series field winding being arranged to buck the action of said shunt field winding.



1,543,691. GOLF CLUB. WILLIAM N. BEAT, Cicero, Ill. Filed June 10, 1922. Serial No. 567,254. 4 Claims. (Cl. 273—77.)

4. In a golf club, a golf club head having a threaded bore therein extending transversely thereof and part way therethrough between the driving face and back of the head, an externally threaded weight carrier having a bore therein extending in from one end only, a weight contained in said bore, said threaded weight carrier being threadedly secured in said threaded bore of the head, the bottom face in said head being formed with a recess, and a bottom plate formed of aluminum led into said recess and terminating at the lower edge of the driving face of the head, said bottom plate being flush with the bottom face of the head and acting to protect the bottom of the balanced head without adding any appreciable weight thereto.

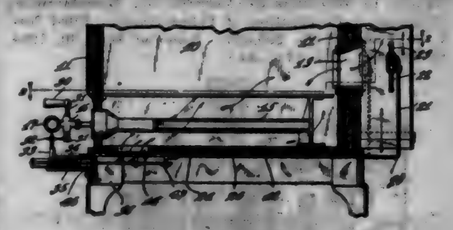
1,543,692. OVEN. HERMAN M. BERGE, Oakmont, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 8, 1923. Serial No. 617,765. 6 Claims. (Cl. 219—35.)

1. In an oven, in combination, a plurality of heat-insulating panels enclosing a substantially rectangular oven chamber, means for moving material in a substantially circular path in said chamber, and a plurality of heating elements, of arcuate form, located in the corners of said chamber.



1,543,693. PUZZLE. ADAM BOLTZ, Glendale, N. Y. Filed Dec. 27, 1922. Serial No. 609,176. 9 Claims. (Cl. 273—115.)

1. A puzzle device of the class described, comprising a casing provided with a plurality of semi-circular channels communicating centrally of the casing, the central portion of the casing being provided with an upstanding member having a recess at the peak thereof, and a member movably mounted in the casing and adapted to be placed in said recess.

1,543,694. COOKING STOVE. JOHN H. CHAMBERS, Shelbyville, Ind. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,259. 12 Claims. (Cl. 126—42.)

1. In combination, an oven having heat-insulating walls and ventilation-control means, heating means for said oven, a control device for said heating means, a movable member having a pivotal connection with said ventilation control means, said member being rotatable about the axis of said pivotal connection to control the operation of said heat-control device.

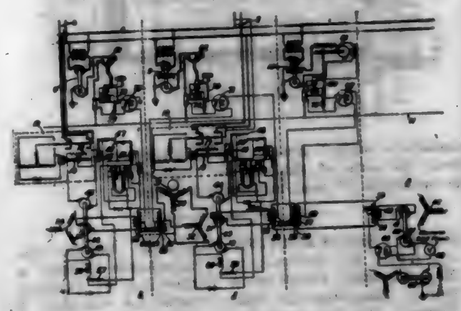
1,543,695. BRASS-MELTING FURNACE. ORA A. COLBY, Irwin, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 12, 1923. Serial No. 612,204. 7 Claims. (Cl. 204—34.)



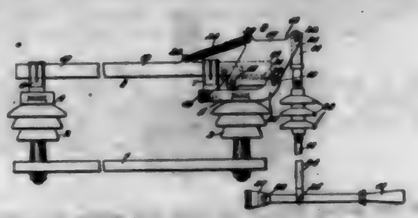
1. An electric resistance furnace comprising a plurality of radially extending, relatively thin, flat, refractory resistor plates, located in a substantially circular path, and a plurality of refractory terminal members, of wedge shape, interposed between certain of said plates and symmetrically spaced circumferentially thereof.

1,543,696. REGULATOR SYSTEM. FRANK CONRAD, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 16, 1918. Serial No. 254,220. 6 Claims. (Cl. 171—229.)

1. In a regulator system connected to a supply circuit, a resistor, a vacuum tube connected to said resistor having a hot cathode and a grid anode, and a relay operated in accordance with the voltage obtaining in the supply circuit for connecting said cathode across the supply circuit to control said resistor.

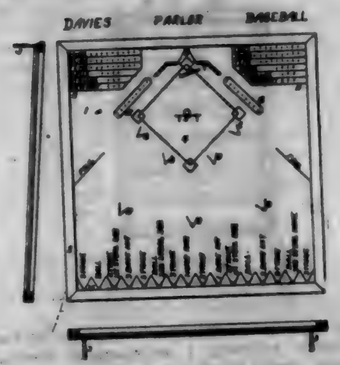
1,543,697. SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION. ALMON W. COPLEY and ROBERT D. EVANS, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignors to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 7, 1917. Serial No. 200,664. Renewed Sept. 30, 1924. 11 Claims. (Cl. 171—84.)

5. In a measuring system, the combination with a plurality of power-measuring devices, of polyphase dynamos actuated to generate electro-motive forces having frequencies varying in accordance with the indications of the respective measuring devices, means comprising a single-phase transmission line for operatively connecting the dynamos in cascade and means actuated in accordance with the resultant of the several frequencies generated in the system.



1,543,698. BUILDING CONSTRUCTION. JOHN CORMIE, Trenton, N. J., assignor to The Agasote Millboard Company, Trenton, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 18, 1924. Serial No. 738,338. 3 Claims. (Cl. 20—4.)

1. In building construction the combination of a supporting structure including a plurality of parallel supports, having surfaces located in substantially the same plane and a plurality of wallboards, said wallboards each having one longitudinal edge secured to one of said surfaces and the other edge overlapping and secured to the contiguous edge of an adjacent wallboard, each wallboard, after it is thus secured, having a double lateral curvature therein.



1,543,699. DISCONNECTING SWITCH. LESLIE N. CRICHTON, Edgewood Park, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 2, 1920. Serial No. 421,350. 5 Claims. (Cl. 200—48.)

2. A knife-blade switch comprising a pair of spaced jaw members, a blade member extending therebetween and having an end portion extending beyond one of the jaw members, a lever having a stationary pivot and direct pivotal connection to the blade member adjacent to said end portion, and cushioning means between the blade member and the lever.

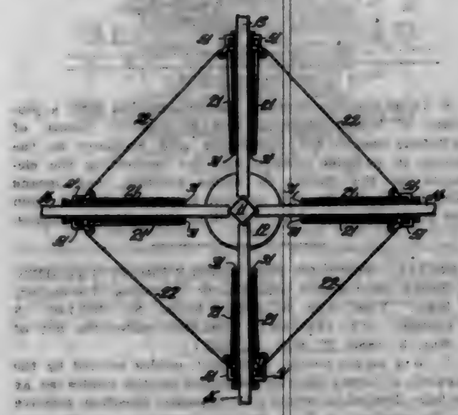
1,543,700. PARLOR BASEBALL GAME. JOSIAH DAVIES, Oshawa, Canada. Filed Jan. 9, 1924. Serial No. 685,277. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—88.)

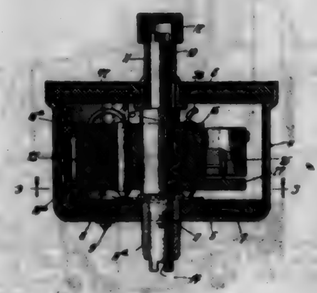
In a device of the character described a game board having the representation of a baseball diamond at one end, raised barriers along the foul lines, a series of pockets in each one of the fielders' positions, and a series of connected resilient pockets at the end of the board remote from the baseball diamond designated to indicate the play made by the batter, a pair of scoreboards to record the progress of the game, a miniature baseball bat, and a rolling element to be used in connection therewith.

1,543,701. MOLD FOR PROPELLERS. DANIEL ADAM DICKEY, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 15, 1919. Serial No. 277,244. 4 Claims. (Cl. 18—34.)



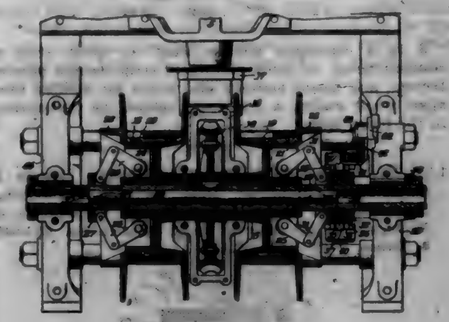
4. A mold for propellers comprising a hub-forming section and blade-forming sections, each comprising co-operating members and all adapted, when properly assembled, to provide a propeller-shaped molding chamber of which portions at the meeting points of the sections are of substantially circular cross section, the blade-forming sections being adapted to be reversely turned about their longitudinal axes, whereby material positioned in the mold, to be formed into a propeller, may be twisted so that its blade portions may be molded at any desired pitch.

1,543,702. CROSS-CHAIN CONNECTER FOR ANTISKID CHAINS. ALEXANDER I. G. DE RUSS, Winnetka, Ill. Filed Dec. 8, 1924. Serial No. 754,518. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—242.)



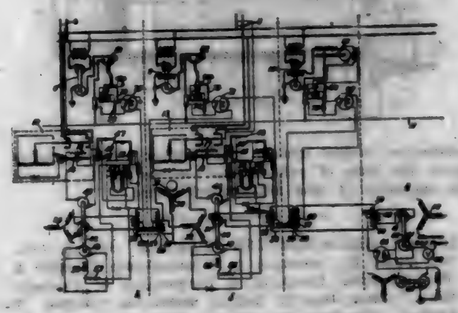
A device of the character described including co-operating flat members pivotally connected together intermediate their ends, and in proximity to one extremity of the members, the entire proximate faces of the members on one side of the pivot being adapted to rest flat against each other, the extremity of each of the members on the other side of the pivot being shaped to form an eye, adapted to receive a link through the said eyes, the other extremity of each of the said members being provided with elongated slots within the confines of the sides of the respective members, said slots having restricted entrance openings extending through the proximate edges of the said members, the said entrance openings being disposed intermediate and spaced from both of the ends of the respective slots, the slotted extremities of said members being adapted to overlap when the other ends of the said members are brought together, whereby the slots will be brought into register, and the entrance openings of the slots will be respectively closed by the body portion of the other of the said members, each of the members being maintained entirely on one side of the other member.

1,543,703. REVOLVING DOOR. HARRY W. DYER, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 14, 1924. Serial No. 685,950. 21 Claims. (Cl. 20—18.)



1. A revolving door of the class described having wings arranged radially about an axial supporting member and an extensible flexible connection extending between adjacent wings and holding said wings in spaced relation and adjustably positioned means on said wings for securing said connection to said wings.

1,543,704. SIGNAL FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. HARRY C. EVELYN, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 16, 1921. Serial No. 469,818. 9 Claims. (Cl. 175—355.)



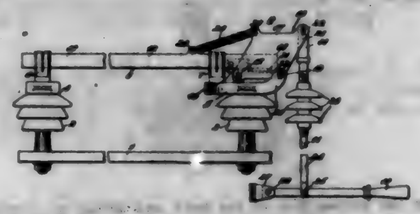
1. In a signal device for vehicles, the combination of a rotative member adapted to be driven at a rate of speed varying proportionately with that of the vehicle, a switch member pivotally mounted on said rotative member and adapted to be shifted relatively thereto by centrifugal force, a plurality of contact members mounted on said rotative member and forming elements of a plurality of parallel circuits, said contact members being adapted for contact adjacent the free end of said switch member and coacting therewith to successively open said circuits as the speed of said rotative member is increased.

1,543,705. HOIST. NELS P. FLODIN, Marquette, Mich., assignor to Lake Shore Engine Works, Marquette, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed June 24, 1921. Serial No. 480,026. 2 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)

1. In a hoist mechanism, a driving shaft, a hollow driven shaft, a pair of hoist drums upon said driven shaft in spaced relation, said drums being rotatable independently of each other and of the shaft, a clutch shaft in said hollow driven shaft, clutches operating upon each of said drums, clutch operating sleeves for each of said clutches fitted slidably upon the hollow shaft and connected through slots in the shaft to the clutch shaft, a lever operatively connected to one of said clutch sleeves, brakes operating upon the drums, and means connecting said brakes to said lever, whereby movement of the lever in either direction from an intermediate position serves to release the brake and throw in the clutch on one of said drums.

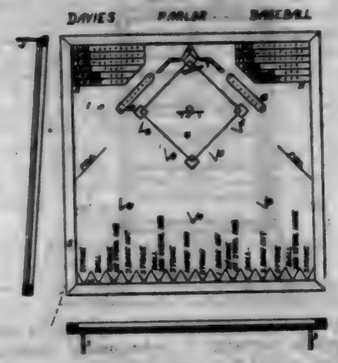
1,543,697. SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION. ALMON W. COPLEY and ROBERT D. EVANS, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignors to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 7, 1917, Serial No. 200,664. Renewed Sept. 30, 1924. 11 Claims. (Cl. 171—84.)

5. In a measuring system, the combination with a plurality of power-measuring devices, of polyphase dynamos actuated to generate electro-motive forces having frequencies varying in accordance with the indications of the respective measuring devices, means comprising a single-phase transmission line for operatively connecting the dynamos in cascade and means actuated in accordance with the resultant of the several frequencies generated in the system.



1,543,698. BUILDING CONSTRUCTION. JOHN CORMIE, Trenton, N. J., assignor to The Agasote Millboard Company, Trenton, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 18, 1924. Serial No. 738,838. 8 Claims. (Cl. 20—4.)

1. In building construction the combination of a supporting structure including a plurality of parallel supports, having surfaces located in substantially the same plane and a plurality of wallboards, said wallboards each having one longitudinal edge secured to one of said surfaces and the other edge overlapping and secured to the contiguous edge of an adjacent wallboard, each wallboard, after it is thus secured, having a double lateral curvature therein.



1,543,699. DISCONNECTING SWITCH. LESLIE N. CRICHTON, Edgewood Park, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 2, 1920. Serial No. 421,250. 5 Claims. (Cl. 200—48.)

2. A knife-blade switch comprising a pair of spaced jaw members, a blade member extending therebetween and having an end portion extending beyond one of the jaw members, a lever having a stationary pivot and direct pivotal connection to the blade member adjacent to said end portion, and cushioning means between the blade member and the lever.

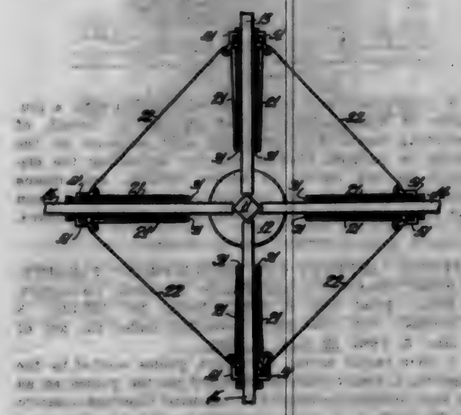
1,543,700. PARLOR BASEBALL GAME. JOSIAH DAVIES, Oshawa, Canada. Filed Jan. 9, 1924. Serial No. 685,277. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—88.)

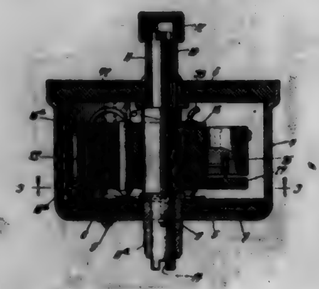
In a device of the character described a game board having the representation of a baseball diamond at one end, raised barriers along the foul lines, a series of pockets in each one of the fielders' positions, and a series of connected resilient pockets at the end of the board remote from the baseball diamond designated to indicate the play made by the batter, a pair of scoreboards to record the progress of the game, a miniature baseball bat, and a rolling element to be used in connection therewith.

1,543,701. MOLD FOR PROPELLERS. DANIEL ADAM DICKEY, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 15, 1919. Serial No. 277,244. 4 Claims. (Cl. 18—34.)



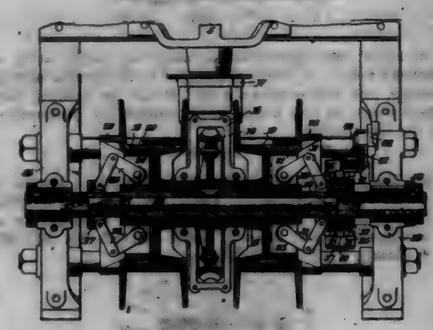
4. A mold for propellers comprising a hub-forming section and blade-forming sections, each comprising cooperating members and all adapted, when properly assembled, to provide a propeller-shaped molding chamber of which portions at the meeting points of the sections are of substantially circular cross section, the blade-forming sections being adapted to be reversely turned about their longitudinal axes, whereby material positioned in the mold, to be formed into a propeller, may be twisted so that its blade portions may be molded at any desired pitch.

1,543,702. CROSS-CHAIN CONNECTER FOR ANTISKID CHAINS. ALEXANDER I. G. DE REMS, Winnetka, Ill. Filed Dec. 8, 1924. Serial No. 754,518. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—242.)



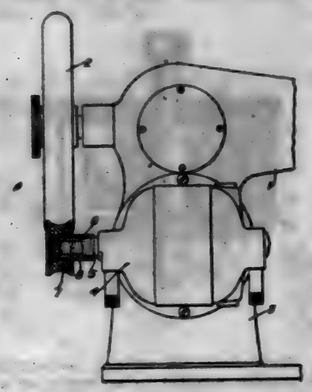
A device of the character described including cooperating flat members pivotally connected together intermediate their ends, and in proximity to one extremity of the members, the entire proximate faces of the members on one side of the pivot being adapted to rest flat against each other, the extremity of each of the members on the other side of the pivot being shaped to form an eye, adapted to receive a link through the said eyes, the other extremity of each of the said members being provided with elongated slots within the confines of the sides of the respective members, said slots having restricted entrance openings extending through the proximate edges of the said members, the said entrance openings being disposed intermediate and spaced from both of the ends of the respective slots, the slotted extremities of said members being adapted to overlap when the other ends of the said members are brought together, whereby the slots will be brought into register, and the entrance openings of the slots will be respectively closed by the body portion of the other of the said members, each of the members being maintained entirely on one side of the other member.

1,543,703. REVOLVING DOOR. HARRY W. DYER, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 14, 1924. Serial No. 685,950. 21 Claims. (Cl. 20—18.)



1. A revolving door of the class described having wings arranged radially about an axial supporting member and an extensible flexible connection extending between adjacent wings and holding said wings in spaced relation and adjustably positioned means on said wings for securing said connection to said wings.

1,543,704. SIGNAL FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. HARRY C. EVELYN, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 16, 1921. Serial No. 469,818. 9 Claims. (Cl. 175—355.)

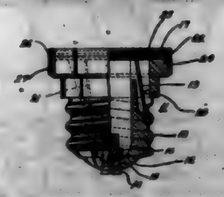


1. In a signal device for vehicles, the combination of a rotative member adapted to be driven at a rate of speed varying proportionately with that of the vehicle, a switch member pivotally mounted on said rotative member and adapted to be shifted relatively thereto by centrifugal force, a plurality of contact members mounted on said rotative member and forming elements of a plurality of parallel circuits, said contact members being adapted for contact adjacent the free end of said switch member and coacting therewith to successively open said circuits as the speed of said rotative member is increased.

1,543,705. HOIST. NELS P. FLODIN, Marquette, Mich., assignor to Lake Shore Engine Works, Marquette, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed June 24, 1921. Serial No. 480,026. 2 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)

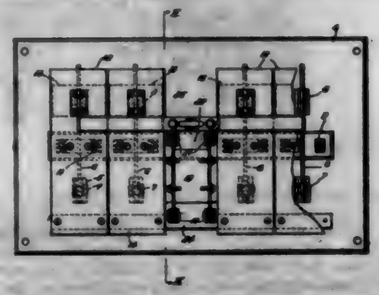
1. In a hoist mechanism, a driving shaft, a hollow driven shaft, a pair of hoist drums upon said driven shaft in spaced relation, said drums being rotatable independently of each other and of the shaft, a clutch shaft in said hollow driven shaft, clutches operating upon each of said drums, clutch operating sleeves for each of said clutches fitted slidably upon the hollow shaft and connected through slots in the shaft to the clutch shaft, a lever operatively connected to one of said clutch sleeves, brakes operating upon the drums, and means connecting said brakes to said lever, whereby movement of the lever in either direction from an intermediate position serves to release the brake and throw in the clutch on one of said drums.

1,543,706. RESILIENT DRIVE WHEEL. GEORGE H. GARCELON, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 8, 1919. Serial No. 270,142. 9 Claims. (Cl. 74—26.)



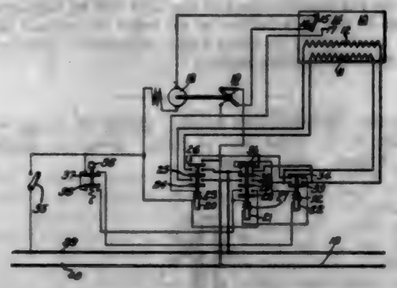
1. A power-transmission device comprising a driving shaft having one end of reduced diameter, a helical spring mounted on the larger portion of said shaft and surrounding, but spaced from, said reduced portion, and a drive wheel mounted upon the opposite end of said spring member.

1,543,707. FRICTION BAND. EDWIN R. GILL, Yonkers, N. Y. Filed May 7, 1923. Serial No. 637,107. 8 Claims. (Cl. 188—259.)



8. In a compound friction band, an outer strip of resilient metal, an inner perforated strip secured parallel thereto, and means between said strips for holding them apart while leaving a free space behind the perforations in the inner strip.

1,543,708. ELECTRIC CIGAR LIGHTER. LEWIS J. GREENAWALT, Mansfield, Ohio, assignor to Westinghouse Electric Products Company, a Corporation of Michigan. Filed May 9, 1923. Serial No. 637,647. 8 Claims. (Cl. 219—32.)

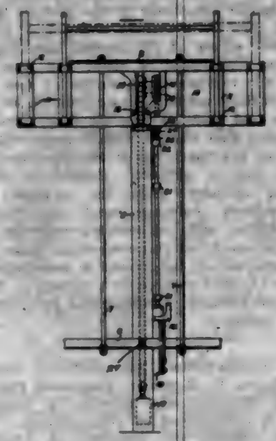


1. A cigar lighter comprising a tubular refractory member having a closed end, a plate of electric-insulating material operatively engaging said tubular member at its open end, a slotted resistor member supported by said plate of electric-insulating material and secured thereto by integral return bent portions and means for securing said plate and said resistor member against said tubular member.

1,543,709. SWITCH MECHANISM. ARTHUR JOHN HALL, Winchcombe, England, and PAUL L. MARSH, Swissvale, Pa., assignors to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 31, 1921. Serial No. 441,412. 7 Claims. (Cl. 200—50.)

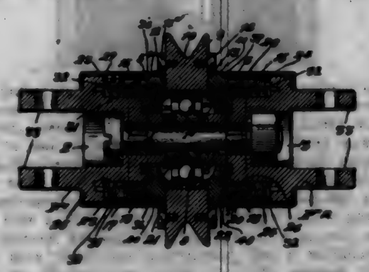
1. Switch mechanism comprising an insulating panel, a switch member mounted on the panel, a pair of contact members, an insulating cover pivoted upon the panel and movable independently of the switch member for protecting the switch member, and a switch member carried by the cover for connecting the pair of contact members.

1,543,710. HEATER-CONTROL SYSTEM. HOWARD A. HANDS, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 555,142. 8 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)



8. In an electric furnace, the combination with a plurality of heater elements and an electric circuit, of switching means for connecting said elements to the circuit in parallel relation and for connecting the elements to the circuit in series relation, and means directly exposed to the thermal energy dissipated from the heater elements for controlling the switching means.

1,543,711. SUPPORT FOR SINGLE-FRONT TARGETS. HARRY HOISINGTON and FRANK HARDING, Davenport, Iowa. Filed Apr. 8, 1924. Serial No. 705,146. 8 Claims. (Cl. 124—15.) (Granted under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L., 625.)



1. In a target mount, a support, guides carried by the support, a target slidably mounted on the guides so as to have limited movement in opposite direction relative to the support, a drum rotatably mounted on the support, flexible means adapted to pass over the drum and having frictional engagement with the same and connected with the target at one end and at the other end to a counterweight, flexible means adapted to be unwound from the drum in one direction to permit an initial movement of the target, said means being of a length equal to substantially half the range of movement of the target so that said means is automatically rewound on the drum in the opposite direction during movement of the target, a rod, a member connected to the last named flexible means slidably mounted on the rod, whereby movement of the rod in one direction causes unwinding of said flexible member, a locking member pivotally mounted on the frame and used to move by gravity to lock the target in one limit of its movement, means on the rod adapted to retain the locking member in locking position, and resilient means interposed between the last named means and the slidable member.

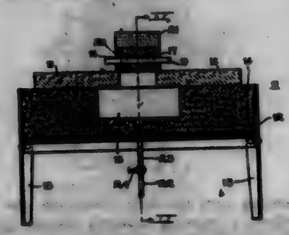
1,543,712. BALL-BEARING TROLLEY WHEEL. WILLIAM JETTER, Collingswood, N. J., and WALTER S. Lemmon, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 21, 1922. Serial No. 530,985. 12 Claims. (Cl. 191—59.)

1. In combination, a wheel frame comprising a pair of separable members, an anti-friction bearing secured in and insulated from said frame, a wheel rim mounted on said bearing, and a fastening element extending laterally outward from each of said members, whereby the frame may be mounted in the harp of a trolley pole.



1,543,713. WAXING DEVICE. JOHN W. LAUX, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 20, 1923. Serial No. 613,866. 2 Claims. (Cl. 91—36.)

1. In a thread waxing device, the combination with a support of a pair of thread guides, a freely rotatable spool having a cylinder, a wax cylinder fitting over the cylinder of the spool and movable vertically and circularly thereon, a platform and spindle for the spool, the spool being mounted rotatably to said spindle and mounted so that the lead in thread guide is in a substantially straight line between the source of supply and the side of the spool cylinder, and the draw-off thread guide is in a substantially straight line between the collecting device and the side of the cylinder, the cylinder being adapted to have the thread pass completely around it.

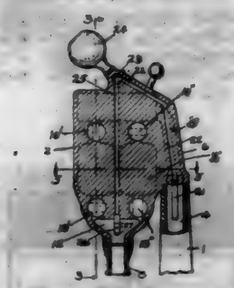
1,543,714. HEAT-TREATING FURNACE. GEORGE M. LITTLE, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 3, 1923. Serial No. 616,758. 3 Claims. (Cl. 263—2.)

1. In a heat-treating furnace, in combination, a plurality of refractory walls defining a furnace chamber having an open side, movable refractory blocks partly closing said open side, a refractory block for completely closing said open side and having a plurality of material-receiving openings therein, and means for heating said furnace chamber and said refractory block.



1,543,715. DRAFT ARM FOR SODA FOUNTAINS. HARRY J. MCCUE, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The H. J. McCue Company, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 25, 1921. Serial No. 456,876. 2 Claims. (Cl. 225—36.)

1. In a dispensing arm for soda fountains, the combination of a hollow standard, a plurality of conduits enclosed within said standard and carrying flavored syrup and carbonated liquid, respectively, an enlarged casing of substantially rectangular shape mounted at the upper end of said standard and projecting forwardly therefrom, four liquid measuring compartments occupying the respective quarters of said casing, a constricted passageway common to said measuring compartments having a discharge orifice located centrally beneath said casing, transverse openings extending from side to side through said housing and communicating with openings in the base of said measuring chambers, tapered valve plugs for each individual measuring chamber inserted within said transverse openings upon opposite sides of said housing, a T-shaped passageway in each of said valve plugs for alternately establishing communication between said measuring compartments and a source of syrup supply or between said measuring compartments and the discharge orifice of said housing, said T-shaped passageways in adjacent valves at each side of the housing being oppositely disposed with respect to each other, and separate means on each side of said housing for simultaneously operating the valves of each laterally disposed pair of chambers.

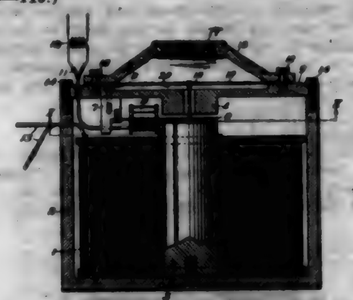
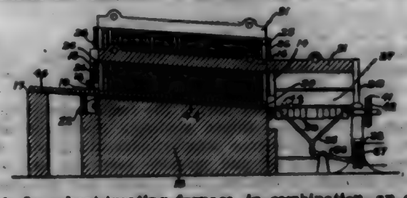
1,543,716. DRAFT ARM FOR SODA FOUNTAINS. HARRY J. MCCUE, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The H. J. McCue Company, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 25, 1921. Serial No. 455,877. 1 Claim. (Cl. 225—25.)



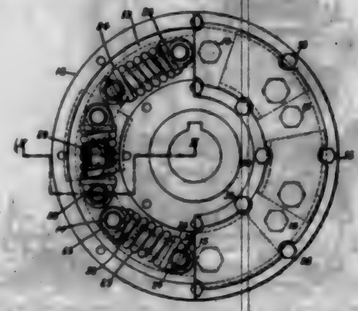
In a dispensing arm for soda fountains, the combination of a support, a housing mounted thereon, four measuring chambers occupying the respective quarters of said housing, a rotatable valve plug projecting inwardly above and below each measuring chamber in axial alignment with similar plugs projecting inwardly from the opposite side of said housing into the adjacent chamber, with the valve ports of said plugs arranged transversely of the body portions thereof and at right angles to each other in the plugs above and below each chamber and also with respect to the adjacent plugs in the laterally and rearwardly adjacent chambers when said valves are in closed position in diagonally opposite chambers, and separate means on each side of said housing for simultaneously operating the valves of each laterally disposed pair of chambers.

1,543,717. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. FRANZ MIDLER, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Maedler Engine Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Feb. 17, 1923. Serial No. 619,772. 9 Claims. (Cl. 123—70.)



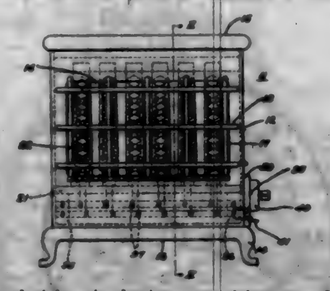
6. In a two-stroke internal combustion engine, a working cylinder provided with a piston and with admission and exhaust ports, controllable means for regulating the volume of air compressed in the working cylinder, an auxiliary cylinder provided with a piston and adapted to be connected with the working cylinder at predetermined intervals, a device for introducing into said auxiliary cylinder a predetermined quantity of fuel and a practically fixed volume of gaseous medium, properly timed means for operating said auxiliary piston to compress the mixture of fuel and gaseous medium in said auxiliary cylinder and to inject said compressed prepared fuel mixture into the less highly compressed air charge enclosed in the working cylinder, means for so controlling the percentage of fuel and air in the working cylinder that the resultant combustible mixture produces a power stroke of the highest practical efficiency under varying conditions of speed and load, means in said device for varying the quantity of fuel introduced into said auxiliary cylinder in accordance with the heat value of the fuel used, so that the heat units (B. t. u.) of the injected fuel charge remain practically constant irrespective of the character of the fuel used, a blower operable to pass a sufficient current of air through the working cylinder when the exhaust ports are open to properly scavenge, cool and recharge the working cylinder, and connections whereby a portion of the kinetic energy of the combustion gases is utilized to relieve the load on the blower in maintaining a sufficient supply of air for properly scavenging, cooling and recharging the working cylinder under varying conditions of load and speed.

1,543,718. LOUD-SPEAKING DEVICE FOR WIRELESS. RALPH E. MARBURY, Edgewood Park, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 30, 1920. Serial No. 400,265. 6 Claims. (Cl. 179—119.)



1. In combination with magnetic means including two pole-pieces with an air gap therebetween, a member disposed within said air-gap and movable bodily toward and away from the respective pole-pieces, one of said pole-pieces having an opening therein terminating in said air gap, a diaphragm spaced from the outer face of said last-mentioned pole-piece, a connecting member extending within said opening and connecting said diaphragm and said movable member, and an electric circuit including a coil operatively associated with said movable member said coil being outside said air gap.

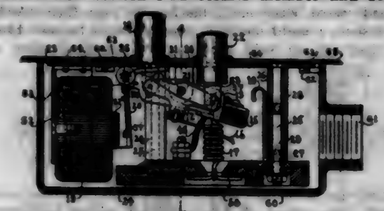
1,543,719. SECTIONAL ELECTRIC FURNACE. WILLIAM J. MERTEN, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 20, 1921. Serial No. 502,044. 5 Claims. (Cl. 263—6.)



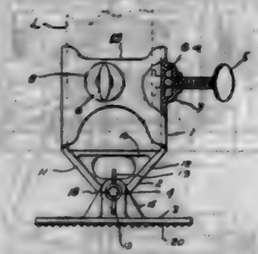
1. In a heat-treating furnace, in combination, an elongated furnace chamber, means for varying the active length of said chamber, electrical heating elements in the floor and walls of said chamber, and a heat-conserving chamber adjacent to said furnace chamber for storing said heated material.

1,543,720. FLEXIBLE COUPLING. WILLIAM H. PHILLIPS, Aspinwall, and WILLIAM G. HUSSEY, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignors to R. D. Nuttall Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 20, 1920. Serial No. 360,040. 11 Claims. (Cl. 64—100.)

1. In a driving connection, the combination with a flanged driven member having a plurality of openings in the flange, a plurality of longitudinally extending pins secured to said flange, and a flanged driving member having plurality of pins secured to said flange and extending longitudinally through said openings in said driven flange, of means connecting said pins on the driving and driven members, said connecting means being pivotally mounted on the driven flange pins and slidably mounted on the driving flange pins.



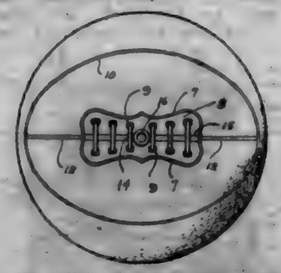
1,543,721. RADIANT HEATING UNIT. JOSEPH H. PROCTER, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 30, 1923. Serial No. 648,709. 5 Claims. (Cl. 219—34.)



1. An electric air heater comprising an elongated skeleton frame of refractory electric-insulating material and a resistor embedded therein, the length of the resistor being greater than the length of the frame.

1,543,722. CIRCUIT CONTROLLER. FREDERICK L. RE QUA, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to The Cutler-Hammer Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed May 27, 1921. Serial No. 473,002. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—5.)

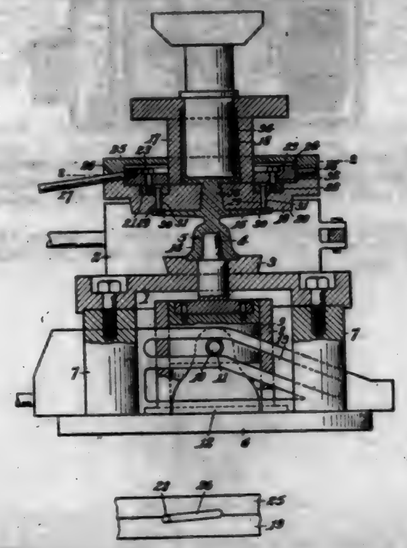
1. In a motor controller, in combination, a plurality of stationary contacts, a plurality of pivoted contact members, one being adapted to co-operate with said stationary contacts to establish running connections and the other being adapted to make contact with said former member and to cooperate therewith to establish starting connections, electro-magnetic means for retaining said former contact member in closed position, a pair of push buttons arranged on opposite sides of the pivots of said contact members one being adapted when depressed to effect sequentially contact between said members and between said former member and stationary contacts and when released to permit separation of said members and means associated with the other of said push buttons for tripping said retaining means.



1,543,723. LADDER SHOE. CHARLES S. RIVERS, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Sept. 2, 1924. Serial No. 735,291. 4 Claims. (Cl. 228—61.)

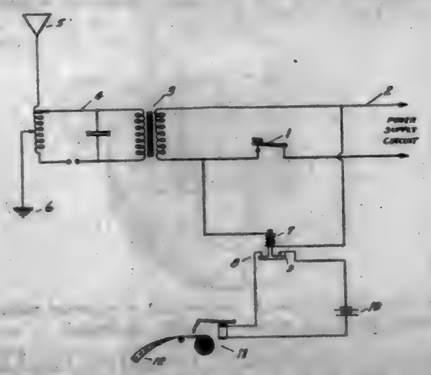
1. A ladder foot comprising in combination a substantially rectangular socket member, a plurality of clamping screws each provided with a swiveled clamping member, the axis of each being offset from the center of the socket, said screws projecting within the socket member from two directions, one set of screws being perpendicularly placed relative to the other set, and a wedge-shaped extension projecting from the lower end of the socket member capable of engaging the ground and of independently supporting the ladder and preventing slippage.

1,543,724. FOOTBALL. FRED THOMAS ROBERTS and WILLIAM E. ROBERTS, Yonkers, N. Y., assignors to Paramount Rubber Consolidated, Inc., Tuckahoe, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Apr. 16, 1923, Serial No. 632,227. Divided and this application filed Sept. 20, 1924. Serial No. 738,837. 9 Claims. (Cl. 273—65.)



1. As a new article of manufacture, a one-piece rubber football having a surface imitative of leather.

1,543,725. GLASS-MOLDING APPARATUS. CALVIN B. ROE, Moundsville, W. Va., assignor to Fostoria Glass Company, Moundsville, W. Va., a Corporation of West Virginia. Continuation of application Serial No. 608,169, filed Dec. 21, 1922. This application filed Dec. 28, 1924. Serial No. 758,050. 7 Claims. (Cl. 49—72.)



1. Glass molding mechanism comprising a sectional hinged mold, a base for said mold, a valve shiftable through said base into and out of cooperative ware-forming relation to said mold, means for elevating and lowering said valve, said mold having its top face provided with a seat, a mold member complemental to said hinged mold disposed on said seat, a ring mounted upon and vertically movable with respect to said complemental mold member, said ring carrying a plurality of depending pins which are vertically movable through said member, means for elevating and lowering said ring to effect elevation and depression of said pins, and a receiver for molten glass surmounting the central portion of said complemental mold member.

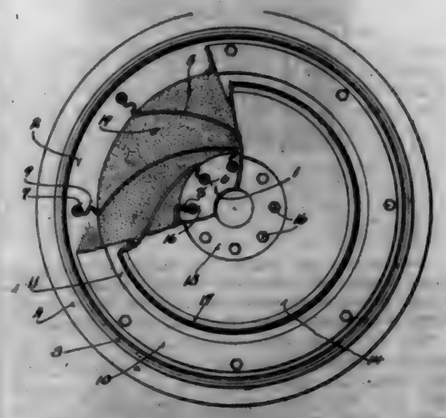
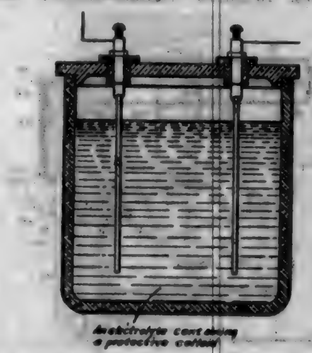
1,543,726. RADIO TRANSMISSION RECORDING SYSTEM. KARL ROTTGARDT, Dahlem, near Berlin, Germany, assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 26, 1921. Serial No. 495,603. 2 Claims. (Cl. 250—8.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



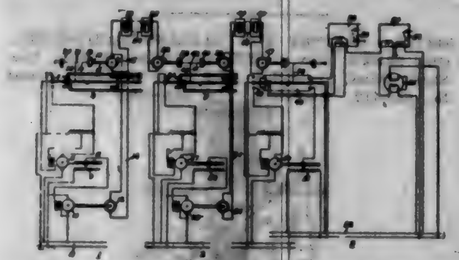
1. In combination with a radio transmitting system including a key, recording apparatus at the sending station for indicating the character of the transmitted signals comprising a Morse writer the operation of which is controlled by the operation of said key.

1,543,727. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR LIMITING CONCENTRATION OF SALTS IN WATER IN BOILERS. FREDERICK SARGENT, Glencoe, Ill., and DAVID S. JACOBUS, Jersey City, N. J., assignors to The Babcock & Wilcox Company, Bayonne, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 28, 1918. Serial No. 256,140. 17 Claims. (Cl. 122—1.)



2. A boiler having a blow-off system, a closed receptacle to receive the blow-off water and to permit it to flash into steam therein, means to condense at least a part of such flashed steam to supply distilled make-up water, means to deliver such distilled make-up water to the boiler, a feed water heater through which the boiler feed water flows on its way to the boiler, and means to pass steam from said closed receptacle to the feed water heater to heat such feed water when the pressure in said closed receptacle exceeds a predetermined pressure.

1,543,728. RESILIENT WHEEL. JOHN H. SCHULS, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Mar. 17, 1924. Serial No. 699,800. 4 Claims. (Cl. 152—51.)



1. A resilient wheel for a vehicle comprising a felly and a hub, a plurality of bowed springs having their ends secured to said hub and said felly, a plurality of curved and tapered rubber blocks completely filling the space between successive springs and between said hub and said felly, a pair of annular members secured to said felly, and a pair of disks closing the space between said hub and felly and slidably related to said annular members.

1,543,729. ELECTROLYTIC CELL. JOSEPH SLEPIAN, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 22, 1919. Serial No. 346,649. 7 Claims. (Cl. 175—315.)

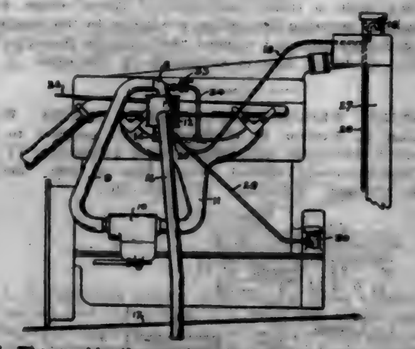
6. An electrolytic cell, such as a condenser, rectifier, lightning arrester and the like comprising electrodes, an electrolyte co-operating therewith to form a film thereon and a protective colloid in the electrolyte for stabilizing the film.

1,543,730. MEASURING SYSTEM. BENJAMIN H. SMITH, Turtle Creek, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 8, 1919. Serial No. 281,529. 36 Claims. (Cl. 171—84.)

1. In a measuring system, the combination with a plurality of wattmeters, of means comprising alternating-current dynamos actuated at speeds proportional to the indications of the respective wattmeters, and means actuated in proportion to the speeds of the dynamos for controlling the wattmeters.

12. A controlling device for a Kelvin balance comprising a synchronous motor, permanent magnets actuated thereby, a disk armature actuated by the magnets and means for operatively connecting the armature to the balance.

33. A control device comprising a shaft, two disc armature members disposed thereon, frequency-responsive means associated with the respective disc members, means controlled by the frequency-responsive means for producing a rotating-magnetic-field effect on the disc members, and a balance device controlled by the shaft and operative to control one of the frequency-responsive means.



1,543,731. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. JAMES A. B. SMITH, Stamford, Conn., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 3, 1922. Serial No. 558,139. 32 Claims. (Cl. 197—126.)

1. In a typewriting machine, the combination with a platen, of means for displacing said platen bodily to permit work-sheets and carbons thereon to be straightened beneath the same, said displacing means comprising a swing-frame and a collating table thereon and between which and the platen a record-sheet passes, a clamp mounted upon said swing frame to hold said record-sheet against the back of the collating table, and controlling means for the clamp to render said clamp ineffective when the swing-frame is in normal position and effective when the swing-frame is displaced.

1,543,732. PREHEATING HUMIDIFIER. JOSEPH H. STALEY, Columbus, Ind. Filed Dec. 6, 1924. Serial No. 754,276. 8 Claims. (Cl. 123—25.)

1. The combination with a hydrocarbon motor having a crank-case, a radiator, an exhaust manifold, and a carburetor air-intake pipe, of an auxiliary mixing chamber through which all of the air passes that enters the carburetor, said mixing chamber discharging into said intake pipe, and said auxiliary mixing chamber having an intake passage to form a Venturi tube in conjunction with said mixing chamber; pipes discharging vapors into said intake passage conducted from said radiator and the crank-case of said motor; and means of heating said mixing chamber.

1,543,733. APPARATUS FOR HANDLING METAL SHEETS AFTER PICKLING. LAWRENCE C. STEELE, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Oct. 11, 1922. Serial No. 593,706. 12 Claims. (Cl. 266—7.)

1. Apparatus for handling pickled sheets comprising a pickling receptacle, means for supporting sheets in upright position in said receptacle, means for discharging the sheets from said receptacle simultaneously in a vertical direction, and means for causing said sheets to assume oblique positions in overlapped relation to one another.

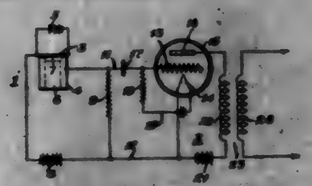
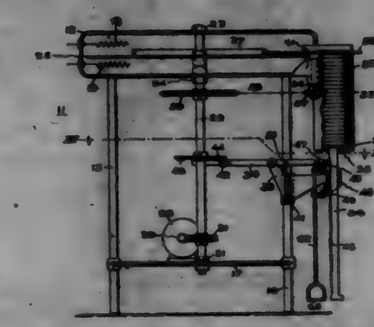
1,543,734. TROLLEY CONDUCTOR AND SUSPENSION MEANS THEREFOR. PAUL G. SWARD, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 27, 1923. Serial No. 671,201. 4 Claims. (Cl. 191—33.)



1. In a catenary system for electric railways, a supporting cable, a trolley conductor of ribbon shape, and means for securing the trolley conductor to the supporting cable comprising a member that extends through the trolley conductor and is supported by the cable.

1,543,735. WEIGHBEAM-SUPPORTING MEANS. WILLIAM H. TAYLOR, St. Johnsbury, Vt., assignor to E. and T. Fairbanks and Company, St. Johnsbury, Vt., a Corporation of Vermont. Filed June 9, 1924. Serial No. 718,699. 6 Claims. (Cl. 265—49.)



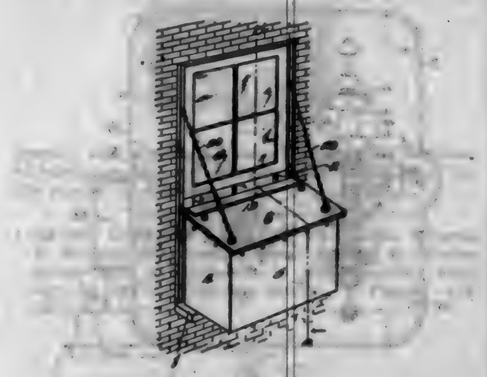
1. A rigid weigh-beam hanger of inverted U-form having its depending limbs formed with lateral extensions and bearings adjustably mounted therein.

1,543,736. METHOD OF AND MEANS FOR TRANSLATING PRESSURE VARIATIONS. PHILLIPS THOMAS, Edgewood, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 14, 1922. Serial No. 600,821. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—121.)

1. In a device for translating sound into electrical changes, a cathode, an anode and means for producing a potential difference between said electrodes, the space between said electrodes being open to the atmosphere whereby it is subjected to pressure variations due to sound, and said potential difference being at all times too small to produce substantial ionization of the atmosphere in said space.

1,543,737. AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC TOASTER. FRANK THORNTON, Jr., Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 13, 1924. Serial No. 698,876. 16 Claims. (Cl. 219—19.)

10. In an electric toaster, in combination, a casing, a substantially horizontal annular table rotating within said casing, a plurality of heating elements located respectively above and below said table, means for pushing slices of bread onto said table at one point relatively to said casing, said pushing means being effective to remove toasted slices of bread from said table after less than one revolution thereon, said pushing means being actuated by, and in direct accordance with the speed of said rotating table.



1,543,738. CABINET FOR TALKING-MACHINE-RECORD DISKS. ROY CORNISH UNDERWOOD, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. Filed June 28, 1923. Serial No. 648,412. 2 Claims. (Cl. 211—16.)

1. A cabinet for receiving talking machine record disks including a plurality of partitions forming disk receiving compartments, an inclined bottom for said compartments, a pivot arranged in front of said compartments, a plurality of stop bars mounted on said pivot and each individual to one of said compartments, each bar being weighted at its forward end which projects outwardly beyond said partitions and which is capable of being grasped to actuate the bar, and the inner end of said bar normally projecting into its compartment in an upwardly inclined position and capable of engaging a disk to retain the same wholly within its compartment, and a spring pressed bar supported upon the bottom of the cabinet and engageable with said stop bars to exert a constant upward pressure upon the inner ends thereof.

1,543,739. WINDOW COOLER. WALTER R. VOWELS, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Sept. 26, 1923. Serial No. 664,870. 4 Claims. (Cl. 20—1.11.)

1. In a cooler structure, in combination with a sliding window sash, a window cooler box having a slotted passage in the roof thereof, a screen closure for the box vertically movable through said passage and projections extending forwardly from the lower edge of the screen closure and means extending from the lower rail of the sliding window sash adapted for engagement with said projections for raising the closure simultaneously with the raising of the window sash.

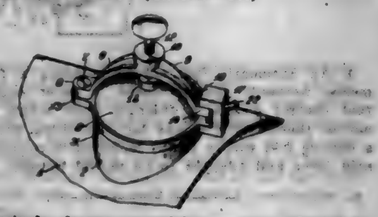
1,543,740. CENTRIFUGAL BLOWER. ADOLPH WAHLE, Davenport, Iowa. Filed May 11, 1923. Serial No. 638,220. 8 Claims. (Cl. 230—11.)

1. In a blower the combination with a casing having an axial inlet and a peripheral outlet, of a rotor within the casing and coaxial with the inlet opening, said rotor having blades extending from adjacent the axis radially outwardly, the outer side edges of the blades being disposed opposite the circumferential edge of the inlet and in a plane parallel with the plane of the inlet and spaced inwardly a distance substantially as great as half the width of the blades.



1,543,741. CAMERA. KLAUS ANDERSON, Savannah, Ga. Filed Feb. 17, 1922. Serial No. 619,698. 3 Claims. (Cl. 161—28.)

1. A camera attachment comprising a casing, a graduated dial on the casing, a shutter operating mechanism arranged within the casing, a shaft included in the shutter operating mechanism, an operative connection between the shaft and shutter, means for normally holding said shutter operating mechanism inoperative, said means including a spring pressed horizontally disposed lever, a pin projecting centrally from the lever, a timing mechanism arranged within the casing, pointers each having beveled ends and including arms movable about the dial by the timing mechanism, a beveled end formed on the pin and being arranged in the path of the beveled ends of the pointers to be engaged thereby to actuate said lever and release the shutter mechanism at and for predetermined intervals.

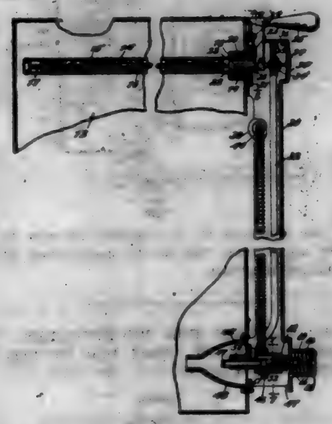
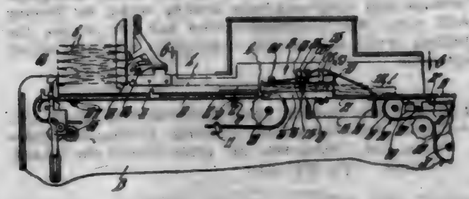
1,543,742. CLOSURE FOR RECEPTACLES. SAMUEL BARITSKY, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 25, 1924. Serial No. 722,227. 4 Claims. (Cl. 220—57.)



1. A receptacle closure comprising a cover adapted to be seated over the opening of a receptacle, the receptacle being provided with a flange seated in said opening and having a counter bore, the flange being also provided with two diametrically opposite extensions, a holding device pivotally secured to one of said extensions and adjustably supporting said cover, and means interposed between said cover and said holding device for forcing said cover into the counter bore and for forcing the holding device into locking engagement with the second extension.

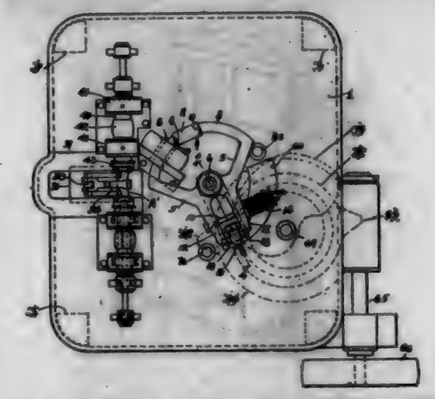
1,543,743. LOCK AND HANDLE FOR BOWLING BALLS OR THE LIKE. CHESTER A. BALLARD, Terre Haute, Ind. Filed Feb. 21, 1925. Serial No. 10,939. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—64.)



1. The combination with a support, a bowling ball, a bracket secured to the support, a combination anchor and handle detachably associated with the ball for securing the handle to the ball, said handle being supportable by said bracket, and means for simultaneously locking the handle to the ball and to the bracket.

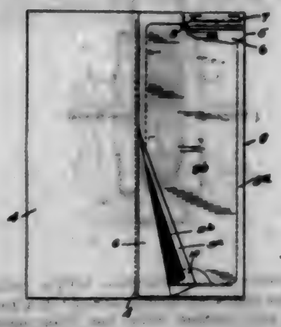
1,543,744. THERMOSTATIC REGULATOR FOR OVENS. HUBERT A. BARSCHOW, Laporte, Ind., assignor to Rudolph Hoffman, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 22, 1922. Serial No. 583,662. 17 Claims. (Cl. 236—15.)

1. An automatic fuel cutoff including a fuel control means normally spring closed, a lever engaging said fuel control means, a fulcrum upon which said lever moves, thermostatic means for controlling the lever, and a flexible fuel supply means mounted in conjunction with said lever and adapted to be moved thereby.



1,543,745. MACHINE FOR AUTOMATICALLY MOLDING CONFECTIONS. ALONZO LINTON BAUSMAN, Springfield, Mass., assignor to National Equipment Company, Springfield, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 27, 1922. Serial No. 597,389. 17 Claims. (Cl. 107—3.)

1. In a confectionery molding machine, spaced trackways for trays, a pivoted tray emptying device interposed between the trackways and operable to successively receive trays one by one from one trackway, empty them and permit them to be discharged to the other trackway, a chute disposed with its longitudinal axis transverse to the line of travel of the trays on said trackways to receive the contents of the trays emptied by said device, and means for separating the contents of trays, said means mounted to receive the discharge from said chute and disposed substantially transversely to said chute.

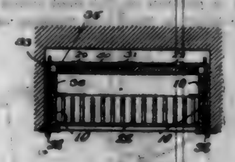


18. In a confectionery molding machine, spaced trackways for trays, a pivoted tray emptying device into which trays are moved from one trackway and out of which trays are discharged to be delivered to the other trackway, the last named trackway being spaced from said device leaving a gap, slidable members movable in the plane of the second named trackway, operating means for said members to project them across the gap and hold them there while a tray is being discharged from said device and subsequently to draw the tray across the gap into the second named trackway.

1,543,746. MACHINE FOR MAKING HANDLE GRIPS. GEORGE W. BENTON, Conneaut, Ohio. Filed Oct. 17, 1923. Serial No. 669,055. 18 Claims. (Cl. 144—152.)

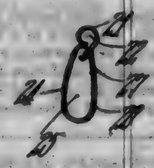
1. In mechanism of the character described, the combination of an internal rotary cutter; and an oscillatory blank holder, including relatively movable grip arms adapted to be pressed against the ends of the blank, whereby the latter may be moved in an arcuate path through said cutter.

1,543,747. FOOTPRINTING OR IMPRESSION DEVICE. VICTOR A. BERY, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed June 30, 1923. Serial No. 648,718. 3 Claims. (Cl. 282—1.)



1. A device for obtaining an impression of a foot comprising a comparatively thin pad of sheets having graduated tables printed thereon and a top leaf formed as an open frame having a transfer sheet mounted thereon, said leaf also comprising a heel locating member whereby the foot can be placed upon said top leaf and pressed against the same to form an impression on the top sheet of said pad.

1,543,748. HEATER. GEORGE G. BROWN, Huntington, W. Va. Filed July 18, 1923. Serial No. 651,341. 7 Claims. (Cl. 126—120.)



1. A heater of the character described comprising a support, including brackets, a fire box engaged by said brackets and mounted on the support, said fire box including opposed side walls and a back wall embodying oppositely inclined superimposed sections, means for holding and adjusting the sections, the bottom edge of the lower section being rounded to accommodate itself to said brackets, the upper edge of said section being recessed, and the lower edge of the upper section being formed with a rounded surface and fitted in said recess, whereby said sections may be adjusted with a minimum of friction to vary the degree of inclination thereof for the purpose specified.

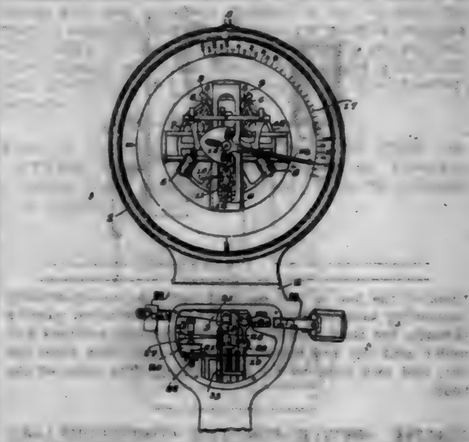
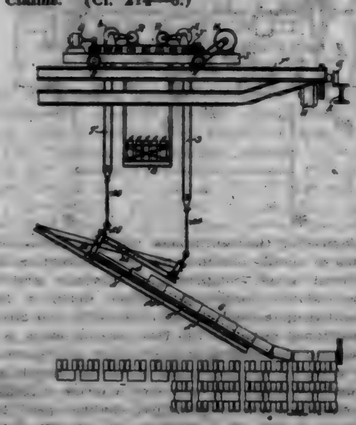
1,543,749. CASE FOR KEYS AND THE LIKE. WARNER R. BUXTON, Longmeadow, Mass., assignor to Buxton, Incorporated, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 25, 1922. Serial No. 556,371. 6 Claims. (Cl. 150—40.)



1. In a key case, of the type wherein the key retaining members are pivotally supported from the case for swinging movement into and out of the latter along arc-like paths of fixed radius, means provided on the case affording a pivotal support, and key retaining members pivotally mounted on the latter, each of said members having a key retaining loop and also having an open eye to be hooked over said support and means affording a spring closure for said eye to retain the member on said support and partition said eye from said loop.

1,543,750. METHOD OF BLENDING LIGHT HYDROCARBONS. HENRY COONEY, Sugar Grove, Ohio. Filed Jan. 16, 1920. Serial No. 351,827. 1 Claim. (Cl. 196—12.)

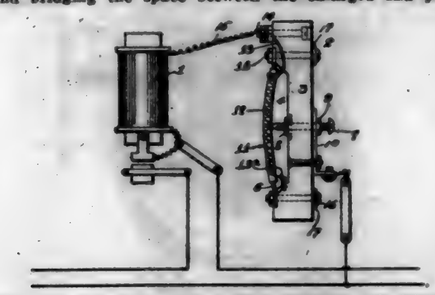


A process of obtaining blended gasoline which comprises compressing natural gas having a gasoline content, first to a low stage of compression, cooling the same sufficiently to produce a low compression condensate, further compressing the remaining gases and vapors to a substantially higher stage of compression, cooling the gases and vapors sufficiently to liquefy a second condensate passing at least a portion of such second condensate and the final gases after substantially lowering their pressure, in heat-conducting relation with a mixture comprising straight run gasoline and at least a portion of said first condensate and withdrawing any residual vapors from said the last mentioned operation into the gas-compression system.

1,543,751. ELECTRIC-CHECK-PRINTING SCALE. SAMUEL G. CRANE, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to Toledo Scale Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 21, 1919. Serial No. 339,688. 23 Claims. (Cl. 265—9.)

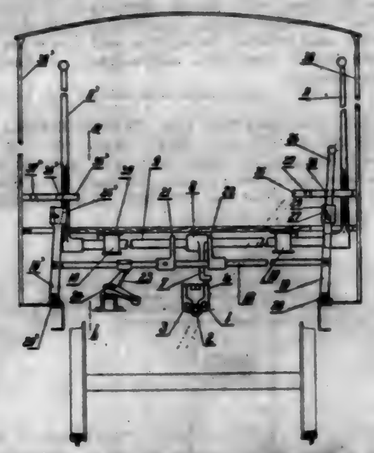
1. In a device for recording weights, in combination, weighing mechanism, printing mechanism, an electric circuit, means to open said circuit actuated upon vibratory movement of said weighing mechanism, said means acting to close said circuit upon cessation of such vibratory movement, means controlled by said circuit for operating said printing mechanism, and means for holding said circuit open when said weighing mechanism is at zero position.

1,543,752. APPARATUS FOR TRANSPORTING AND SETTING BRICK AND THE LIKE. WILLIAM WALLACE DICKINSON, Jr., Little Rock, Ark., assignor to The American Equipment Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 27, 1918. Serial No. 225,077. 11 Claims. (Cl. 214—6.)



1. A pallet for transporting and setting uniform rectangular blocks comprising a rigid rectangular platform having spaced grooves upon its upper surface adapted for the reception of said blocks in longitudinally abutting relation.

1,543,753. THERMOSTAT SIGN FLASHER. CHARLES G. DOMINIC, Springfield, Mo., assignor of one-fifth to Washington J. Gear, Springfield, Mo. Filed Aug. 11, 1923. Serial No. 656,926. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—122.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination of an elongated body provided with enlarged end portions having their outer faces provided with recesses leading from their inner ends and providing seats terminating in abutment shoulders, a bar having its ends resting upon said seats and fitting against said shoulders and bridging the space between the enlarged end portions of the bar, a bolt on said body, means electrically connecting said bar and bolt, an adjustable screw passing through the body between the enlarged end portions and under said bar and movable towards and away from the bar, and lock nuts on the screw at opposite sides of the body.

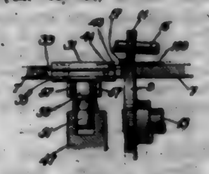
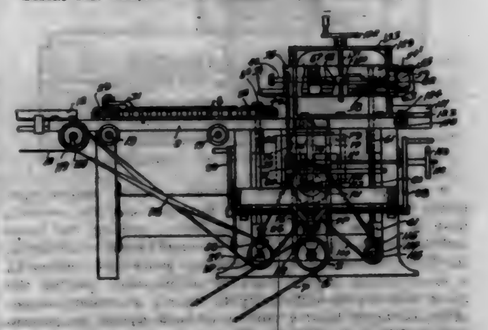
1,543,754. DEVICE FOR THE CONTINUOUS AND PROGRESSIVE CONTROL OF A SERIES OF SPEEDS. — PIERRE EUGÈNE MARIE DONON, Paris, France. Filed Feb. 13, 1924. Serial No. 692,502. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—89.)

1. A device for the continuous and progressive control of a series of speeds obtained by the combination of two change speed boxes, comprising a rotatable and longitudinally slidable horizontal control shaft, a control lever mounted upon each end of said shaft, two auxiliary levers positioned adjacent the two control levers, a horizontal rod interconnecting said auxiliary levers and horizontally movable by the same, a sleeve keyed to the control shaft, a projection on sleeve, a series of forks controlling sliding gears of principal change speed box, a double head at end of each fork, two notches in each head adapted to cooperate with projection on sleeve, two forked members keyed to the rod and slidably mounted on the shaft on either side of the sleeve, and means operably connecting the rod to the second change speed box.



1,543,755. LOCK. PETER ESSMANN, Hollywood, Calif. Filed Jan. 5, 1924. Serial No. 684,617. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—190.)

1. The combination with a door having a recessed portion, of a rotatable locking disk partly received in said recessed portion and having a locking slot extending out through the periphery thereof, a locking bolt adapted to be received in said slot, and a knob carried by the periphery of said disk, a portion of the door being in the path of travel of said knob to limit the turning of the disk.

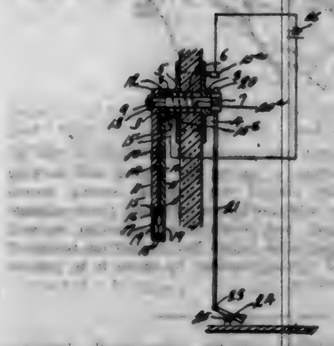


3. A lock comprising a disk having means whereby the same may be rotatably connected to a door and being provided with an eccentric slot opening out through the periphery thereof, the side of said disk with the slot being weighted, knobs carried by opposite sides of said disk, and a fixed bracket arranged between said knobs.

1,543,756. EDGE-FINISHING MACHINE. HERBERT E. ENSLIN, Beverly, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 27, 1922. Serial No. 539,481. 19 Claims. (Cl. 69—1.)

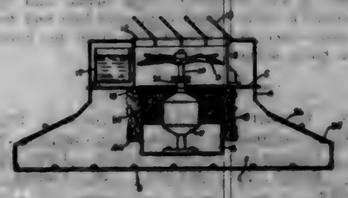
1. A machine for finishing the edge of a piece of stock, having in combination, means for shrinking the margin of the stock on one side to cause the edge of the stock to curl, a hammer having a concavity in its operative face, and means for causing the hammer to pound the edge of the stock.

1,543,757. RELISHING MACHINE. OSCAR G. EDMOND, Spokane, Wash., assignor of one-half to White Pine Sash Company, Spokane, Wash. Filed Aug. 23, 1924. Serial No. 733,712. 18 Claims. (Cl. 144—6.)



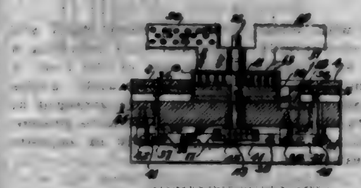
1. In a relishing machine the combination with a continuous feed mechanism adapted to move a line of rails, of means for detaining a pair of rails, means for separating said rails, a relishing tool adapted to operate on the separated detained rails, and means for releasing the pair of detained rails.

1,543,758. SANITARY COUPLING DEVICE FOR PUMPS. JOHN S. ELOWSON, Hazty, Minn. Filed Mar. 6, 1924. Serial No. 697,269. 6 Claims. (Cl. 287—58.)



1. A device for connecting a pump plunger to an operating means comprising a U-shaped member having an elongated leg constituting a connecting pin for said plunger and means, the end of the other leg of said member being bent downwardly substantially at right angles to said first mentioned leg and adapted to be disposed at one side of said plunger with the bight portion of said U-shaped member at the other side of said plunger, and weighted means extending upward from the last mentioned side of said U-shaped member.

1,543,759. VEHICLE DIRECTION SIGNAL. GEORGE O. FALES, Omaha, Nebr. Filed Feb. 20, 1923. Serial No. 620,128. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—62.)



1. The combination with the cowl of an automobile, of a signalling device carried thereby, said signalling device comprising a horizontally disposed shaft extending through an enlarged aperture in the cowl, plates secured to the opposite sides of the cowl, and in bearings of which the shaft is rotatably mounted, a coiled spring surrounding the shaft and having one of its ends anchored to the shaft and its other end to one of the plates, said coiled spring extending through the aperture in the cowl, a signalling arm carried by the outer end of shaft, an arm carried by the inner end of the shaft, a depressible foot lever, and cable connections between the foot lever and the arm carried by the inner end of the shaft.

1,543,760. AIR PURIFIER AND MOISTENER. ALBERT J. FANDREY, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed June 14, 1918. Serial No. 239,917. 2 Claims. (Cl. 261—80.)

1. An air purifier and moistening device comprising a housing, a horizontal partition for said housing and provided with an opening, an air conducting tubular casing positioned in said opening, the lower end of said tubular casing being closed and the upper portion of said casing being perforated for the passage of air therethrough, a tubular air conducting member extending upwardly from said partition and surrounding the upper end of the casing and said partition opening, a fan in said upwardly extending tubular member, a filtering medium surrounding the tubular casing and covering the perforations through which the air must pass, and a tank on said partition for supplying liquid to the filtering medium.

1,543,761. DEVICE FOR KILLING RATS, MICE, OR OTHER RODENTS. BERNHARD ERNST FISCHER, Omaha, Nebr. Filed July 14, 1924. Serial No. 725,989. 10 Claims. (Cl. 43—75.)

1. A rat killing device comprising a base frame, a series of depressible sections hinged at their outer ends and constituting a flexible platform covering the entire frame and depressible at the central portion thereof, a revoluble turret mounted on the base, wings mounted on the turret and extending radially over the platform, and means connected to the turret for revolving the same.

1,543,762. HORSESHOE. HENRY F. FRALICK, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Sept. 15, 1924. Serial No. 737,687. 3 Claims. (Cl. 168—11.)

1. In a horseshoe, a part shaped to fit a hoof and be permanently attached therete and formed between its ends with a downwardly projecting boss interiorly bored and threaded, a second part adapted to lie against the first part having a portion at one end with an opening therethrough for the passage of said boss and formed with a downwardly projecting calk having a shoulder adjacent said opening on the inner side of the calk, said second part of the shoe having outwardly diverging arms extending from said end portion which terminate in downwardly turned calks, each of the said arms near its end having a slot therein and the first mentioned part having two interiorly threaded openings over which the said slots are adapted to come, and set-screws passing through the slots into said openings and into the boss, the head of the screw passing into the boss bearing against the shoulder on the first mentioned calk to hold the screw against loosening, substantially as described.

1,543,763. DECOLORIZING CARBON AND PROCESS OF PRODUCING THE SAME. CHRISTIAN J. GAMBEL, New Orleans, La. Filed June 2, 1923. Serial No. 643,079. 8 Claims. (Cl. 252—3.)

1. The process of making a decolorizing carbon which consists in charring fibrous rice material containing silica; treating the charred material with an alkali to remove the resins present and a substantial proportion of said silica; removing substantially all the alkali from said charred material; treating the alkali left in the carbon thus had with an acid anhydride whose boiling point is below 212° F. to neutralize said alkali; and removing said acid anhydride from the carbon thus produced.

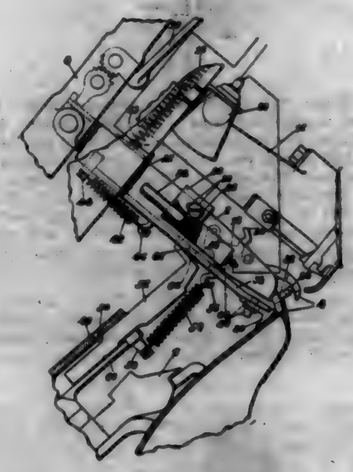
1,543,764. FENCE-WIRE STAPLE. FRANCIS SYDNEY GARFORD, Lougheed, Canada. Filed June 14, 1923. Serial No. 645,391. 3 Claims. (Cl. 256—53.)

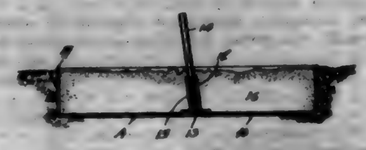
1. A fence wire staple formed of sheet metal and comprising a substantially rectangular body providing a driving head, an extension at one end of the body, a spur projecting from said extension at right angles thereto, said spur comprising a flat plate arranged at right angles to the body and having teeth to prevent its extraction, and hooks upon the body at opposite sides of said extension.

1,543,765. DRILLING MACHINE. GEORGE H. GILMAN, Belmont, Mass. Filed July 30, 1921. Serial No. 488,596. 8 Claims. (Cl. 255—51.)



1. The combination with a drill steel actuator of a support therefor comprising a base and a pair of links, means providing a pivotal connection between each link and said actuator and base, the four pivots thus formed being arranged to lie at the corners of a parallelogram, and to swing in a plane parallel to the axis of the drill steel so as to raise and lower the actuator and move it toward and away from the work, a lever for operating said links to cause them to swing for moving said actuator, and releasable locking means for preventing movement of said actuator.

1,543,766. PULLING-OVER MACHINE. JOSEPH GOULDBOURN and WILFRID THOMAS MINETT, Leicester, England, assignors to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 13, 1922. Serial No. 543,369. 26 Claims. (Cl. 12—9.)



14. In a machine of the class described, the combination with a gripper movable to pull an upper over a last in the direction of the height of the last and thereafter to draw the margin of the upper inwardly over a sole on the bottom of the last, of holddown means automatically operative to position the margin of the sole close to the bottom face of the last prior to the overdrawing operation, and means for indicating to the operator at the end of the movement of the gripper heightwise of the last whether the gripper is in position to clear the margin of the sole in the overdrawing operation.

25. In a machine of the class described, the combination with a toe gripper for pulling an upper over a last, and overlaying and fastening means for the upper, of a holddown member movably mounted on said gripper, a locking member mounted independently of said toe gripper for movement lengthwise of the last and arranged to maintain said holddown member in position for engagement with the margin of the sole in the upper pulling operation, a spring for urging said locking member forwardly toward the gripper, spring means for withdrawing said holddown member from engagement with the sole, and mechanism controlled by said overlaying and fastening means for imparting rearward movement to said locking member to cause it to release the holddown member.

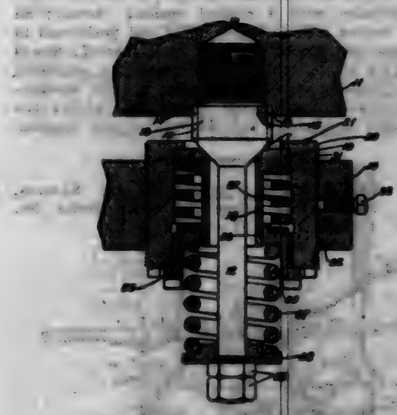
1,543,767. PITCHING COURT. OSCAR E. HEGGEN, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed Aug. 23, 1923. Serial No. 658,915. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—100.)

A pitching court comprising a drum, adapted to be embedded in the ground so that its upper edge is substantially flush with the ground level, a receiving hub on the center of the bottom of said drum, and inclined from vertical a stake mounted in said hub and fire clay around said stake and within the drum for forming a court for horse shoes to be pitched on.



1,543,768. WEIGHING SCALE. HALVOR O. HEM, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to Toledo Scale Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 29, 1920. Serial No. 433,919. 20 Claims. (Cl. 265—62.)

1. In a weighing scale, in combination, a frame, supporting wheels therefor, weighing mechanism supported by said frame, said weighing mechanism including pendulum load counterbalancing means and means for alternatively locking said pendulum load counterbalancing means and releasing said wheels or locking said wheels and allowing said pendulum load counterbalancing means to be released.

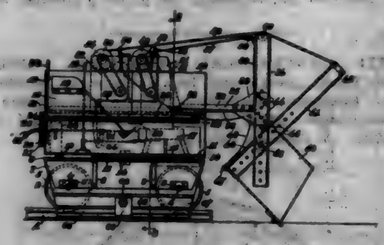
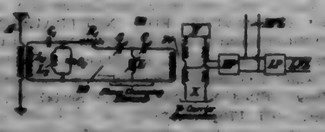
1,543,769. RESILIENT SUPPORT. EDWARD M. HEWLETT and WALDO W. WILLARD, Schenectady, N. Y., assignors to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 21, 1924. Serial No. 714,944. 8 Claims. (Cl. 267—1.)



1. A resilient support comprising two members carried by the supported and supporting bodies respectively, and resilient means for holding said members in engagement, the cooperating bearing surfaces of said members being inclined with respect to the direction of the force applied by said resilient means, whereby lateral shocks are applied to said resilient means.

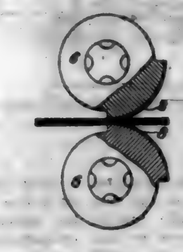
1,543,770. GLASS BATCH. OTTO W. HILBERT, Corning, N. Y., assignor to Corning Glass Works, Corning, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 15, 1921. Serial No. 437,451. 10 Claims. (Cl. 49—77.)



5. The method of preparing a glass batch from raw materials that are in the form of a fine powder, which consists in thoroughly mixing the materials, and then subjecting the mixture to heat of sufficient intensity to form the materials into small granules, each of which is composed of the desired proportions of raw materials.

1,543,771. POWER SHOVEL. SAMUEL TRUAN HOAR, Meaderville, Mont., assignor of one-half to James Doner, Butte, Mont. Filed Feb. 17, 1923. Serial No. 619,613. 6 Claims. (Cl. 214—132.)

1. In a device of the class described a truck mounted upon wheels, a body rotatably mounted thereon, a crosshead slidably mounted on said body, an arm hingedly connected at one end to said cross-head and having a pair of parallel angularly disposed extensions, a scoop lever pivotally mounted between said extensions a scoop on said lever, a pair of drums on said cross-head connected to said arm and said lever respectively, and means for operating said drums independently.



1,543,772. APPARATUS FOR NEUTRALIZING RADIO-INTERFERENCE ON WIRE LINES. RUSSELL N. HUNTER, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 20, 1922. Serial No. 602,145. 9 Claims. (Cl. 179—78.)

4. The method of changing the phase shift of a filter section having series and shunt impedance elements, which consists in so varying the absolute values of said elements as to produce a desired phase shift at a given frequency and so varying the relative values of the series and shunt elements as to produce substantially no change in impedance at the given frequency.

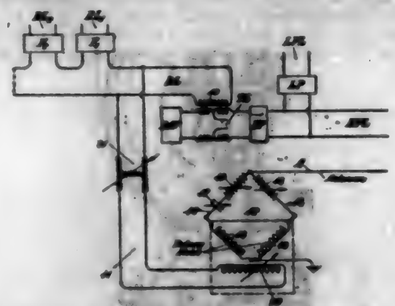
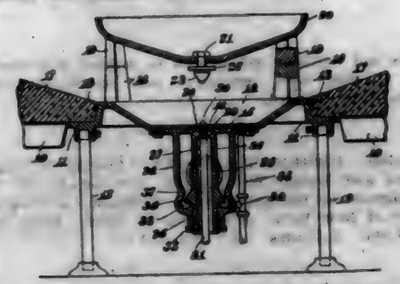
1,543,773. MANUFACTURE OF WHEELS. EMIL IRACH, Bethlehem, Pa., assignor to Bethlehem Steel Company, Bethlehem, Pa. a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 17, 1921. Serial No. 437,724. 12 Claims. (Cl. 80—16.)

12. The method of making a tapered circular plate comprising taking a rectangular blank tapered to a degree equal to the taper of the final product, passing the blank between rolls in a direction transverse to the direction of the grade on said blank and causing the surplus metal to flow from the center and flare the said blank into approximately semi-circular form, reversing the plate and repeating the operation in the opposite direction and trimming the plate to circular form.



1,543,774. MANUFACTURE OF METAL WHEELS. EMIL IRACH, Bethlehem, Pa., assignor to Bethlehem Steel Company, Bethlehem, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 17, 1921. Serial No. 437,725. 5 Claims. (Cl. 29—159.)

1. The method of making a metal wheel which comprises taking a round metal plate, flanging it to form a rim seat, cutting the body of the plate to form metal spokes, substantially equal in length and separated at their hub ends, bending the spokes alternately to form two sets of spokes and securing the severed ends of each set of spokes against opposite sides of a spacer.



1,543,775. APPARATUS FOR NEUTRALIZING RADIOINTERFERENCE ON WIRE LINES. LESTER M. ILGENFRITZ, Orange, N. J., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 20, 1922. Serial No. 602,198. 7 Claims. (Cl. 179—78.)

1. In a wire signaling system subject to interference due to radio signaling, an auxiliary circuit upon which a similar disturbance electromotive force may be impressed for balancing purposes, a device associated with said auxiliary circuit for adjusting the phase of the current resulting from said balancing electromotive force and a device associated with said auxiliary circuit for adjusting the amplitude of said current, said phase adjusting device and amplitude adjusting device controlling their respective functions independently of each other.

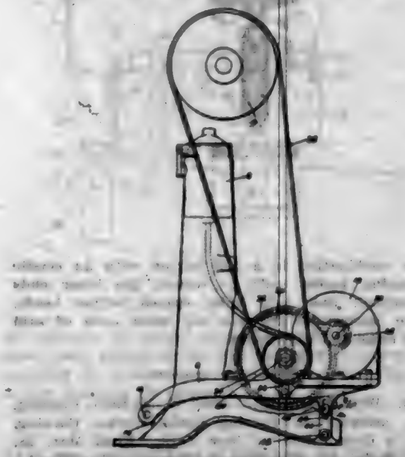
1,543,776. COMBUSTION CHAMBER FOR FUEL BURNERS. LAWRENCE B. JOHNSON, Melrose, Mass., assignor to Economy Heater Co., Inc., Lynn, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Sept. 19, 1923. Serial No. 663,563. 11 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)

1. In a device of the class described, a bed plate having a depression with a central opening therein; an oil nozzle having a cone-shaped upper end positioned in said opening and spaced from the wall thereof; means for supplying oil to said nozzle; means for supplying air to said opening round said nozzle; a basin superimposed above said nozzle; and means for varying the space between said nozzle and the wall of said opening.



1,543,777. CULTIVATOR. EDWARD H. M. KLUKAS, Balaton, Minn. Filed June 5, 1923. Serial No. 643,578. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—158.)

A cultivator comprising a wheel mounted frame, links pivotally connected with the forward portion of the frame, beams pivotally connected with the links for vertical swinging movement, an L-shaped support pivotally connected at its forward end with the beam and having pin and slot connection at its rear end with the beam, the apex of the support being vertically disposed above the beam, a link connecting the support at the apex thereof with the frame, a lever fulcrumed upon the frame, and resilient means connecting the working end of the lever with the support at the apex thereof.

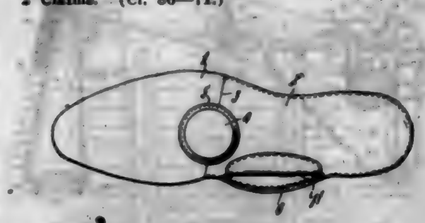
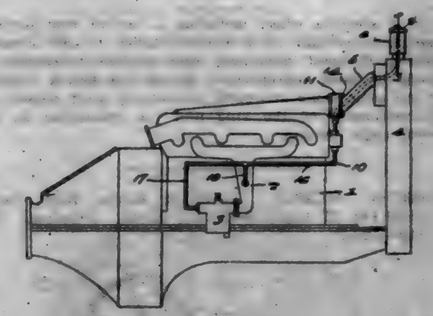
1,543,778. POWER-APPLYING MECHANISM. NORWOOD H. KNOWLTON, Rockport, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 16, 1920. Serial No. 403,694. 4 Claims. (Cl. 64—52.)



2. Mechanism for transmitting power from a motor to an individual machine, comprising a support pivoted to the base of the machine, a motor carried by the support, a counter-shaft mounted on the support, reducing gearing between the motor and the counter-shaft, a belt pulley on the counter-shaft, a belt connecting said pulley to the machine, and an adjustable link connecting the support to the machine base to secure a rigid connection between the support and base and prevent undue vibration of the support when the motor is running.

1,543,779. MANUFACTURE OF INSULATORS. JESSE T. LITTLETON, Jr., and GORDON S. FULCHER, Corning, N. Y., assignors to Corning Glass Works, Corning, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 29, 1922. Serial No. 571,676. 5 Claims. (Cl. 49—81.)

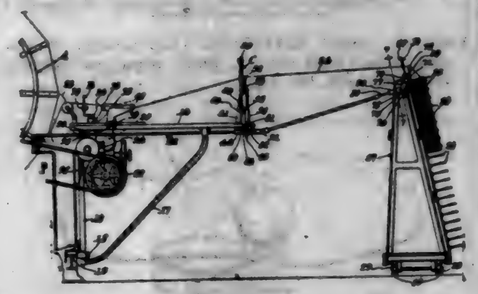


1. The process of manufacturing insulators having a suspension pin moulded therein, which comprises the steps of pressing a pin into the insulating material to embed it therein, and thereafter moving the pin with reference to the insulating material to space it therefrom without removing it from the insulating material.

1,543,780. ARCH APPLIANCE. LEO LUCKEN, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Oct. 11, 1924. Serial No. 743,077. 2 Claims. (Cl. 36—71.)

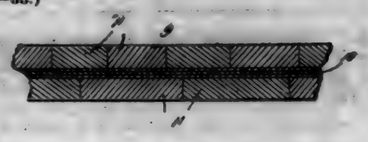
1. A foot correcting form comprising a body, a base secured to the outer edges thereof and terminating in a free end at the longitudinally central portion thereof, a pad secured to the base and body respectively and bridging the free end of the base, and an arch supporting means associated with the body and base.

1,543,781. HUMIDIFIER FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. FRED L. MCNEILL, Annawan, Ill. Filed May 20, 1924. Serial No. 714,628. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—25.)



In combination with an internal-combustion engine and a radiator associated therewith, a conduit extending from the radiator, a fitting between said conduit and said engine forming a connection between the engine and the radiator, a casing having baffle plates arranged in staggered relation therein mounted on the radiator and communicating therewith to receive the vapors therefrom, a pipe extending through the conduit and through said radiator and having its upper end disposed within the casing for receiving the vapors within the casing, said pipe extending downwardly through said fitting and communicating at its opposite end with the carburetor of the engine and a branch pipe extending from the aforementioned pipe into the intake manifold of the engine.

1,543,782. REED-SHIFTING MEANS FOR WARPING MACHINES. FREDERICK WILLIAM MAUS, Shamokin, Pa. Filed Feb. 2, 1924. Serial No. 690,272. 7 Claims. (Cl. 28—30.)



1. The combination with a creel embodying a frame, of a transversely reciprocatory reed mounted upon said frame, a pair of levers pivoted between their ends to the frame and having pivotal connection at their outer ends with the road, means to move the outer ends of the levers downwardly, a pin pivotally connecting the inner ends of the levers, a stop element carried by the pin, and a cam engaging the stop element to shift the same laterally.

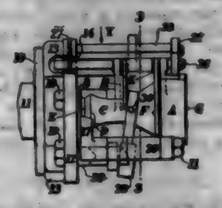
1,543,782. STEERING WHEEL. MAJOR H. MEDFORD, Canton, N. C. Filed Aug. 10, 1922, Serial No. 581,031. Renewed May 8, 1925. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—33.)

In a steering wheel including a central ring section and an inner and outer section applied to said central section, the said inner and outer sections consisting of blocks of wood appropriately joined together, a portion of the same being arranged tangentially with respect to the perimeter of the ring and the remainder at an acute angle thereto.

1,543,784. MUZZLE. JAMES B. MINER, Bend, Oreg. Filed Feb. 27, 1925. Serial No. 12,064. 3 Claims. (Cl. 119—129.)



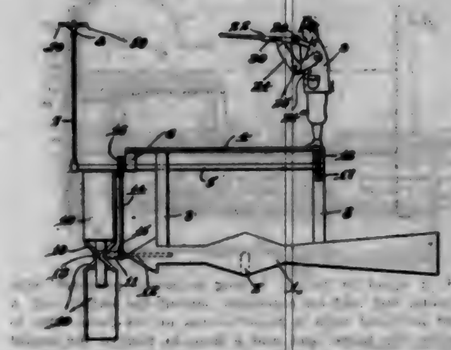
1. A muzzle for live stock comprising a nose loop, a substantially shovel-shaped lower jaw guard made of spaced apart wire members and attached at its forward end to side portions of said nose loop, a pair of side straps connected at their lower ends to the bottom portion of said guard adjacent to the juncture of the latter with side portions of the nose loop, said side straps being adapted to be adjustably engaged with each other at their other ends and to extend at the sides of the head of a grazing animal and across the head of a grazing animal, a strap encircling the throat of the animal, means connecting the side straps with the upper portion of the throat strap, and other means connecting the lower portion of the throat strap with the rearward portion of the guard.

1,543,785. CUFF BUTTON. FRED H. MODRELL, Spokane, Wash., assignor of one-half to William J. Doust, Spokane, Wash. Filed Feb. 14, 1925. Serial No. 9,313. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—102.)

1. The combination in a cuff button with an elastic shank having socket ends to receive the inner ends of a dumbbell link, said links, spaced button heads, and loose connections between the outer ends of said dumbbell links and said heads.

1,543,786. WORKHOLDER. JOHN W. MURPHY, Corning, N. Y., assignor to Corning Glass Works, Corning, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 28, 1923. Serial No. 628,309. 3 Claims. (Cl. 279—1.)

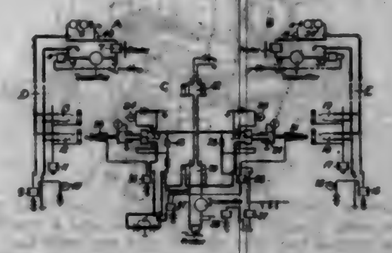
1. In a lathe work-holder for forming a central cavity in an article comprising separable hinged members, the combination of a base plate having a pin projecting therefrom adapted to pass through the pivot holes of the separable members, clamping and centering means on the base plate for the base of the article, and a yoke pivotally carried by the base plate and adapted to hold the upper portion of the separable members together.



1,543,787. ELECTROLYTE FOR STORAGE BATTERIES. OSCAR ALFRED OLSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Potent Dry Battery Company, Denver, Colo. Filed Apr. 26, 1922. Serial No. 556,753. 7 Claims. (Cl. 136—153.)

1. An electrolyte for storage batteries comprising kieselguhr in intermixture with water, sulphuric acid, nickel ammonium sulfate and sodium chloride.

1,543,788. TOY. JOHN O. PARKER, East Marion, Mass. Filed June 11, 1924. Serial No. 719,323. 1 Claim. (Cl. 46—40.)



A toy of the kind described, comprising a support, upright standards on said support, carrying thereon a platform, a shaft carried by said standards, and having secured at one end thereof a bird or other quarry, a driven pulley carried by said shaft, and means on the support to rotate said shaft, a man-like figure on said platform opposite said bird or quarry, said man-like figure being provided with a head, arms, and a gun, all operable by means of an eccentric carried on said shaft, said human figure, and said bird or quarry, being operated in synchronism to simulate the action of a hunter shooting its quarry.

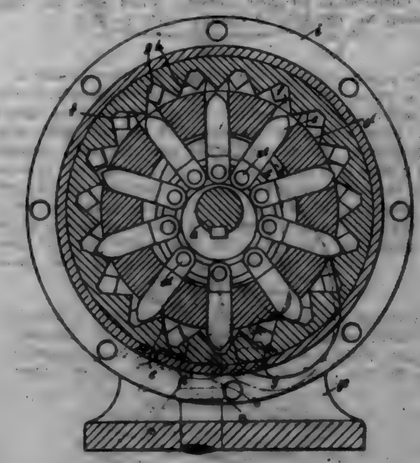
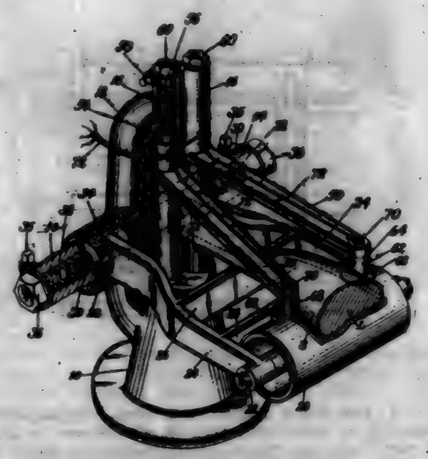
1,543,789. PRINTING-TELEGRAPH EXCHANGE SYSTEM. RALSEMOND D. PARKER and GILBERT S. VERNAM, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 23, 1922. Serial No. 608,778. 12 Claims. (Cl. 178—2.)



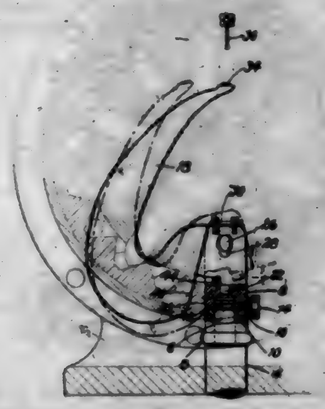
1. In a printing telegraph exchange system, a plurality of subscribers' stations, printing telegraph equipment located at each of said stations, a central office, signaling conductors connecting said stations with said central office, signaling means at said central station individual to each of said signaling conductors operative upon the association of said printing telegraph equipment with said signaling conductor to apprise the operator at the central station that connection is desired with another line, a link circuit at said central office, a receiving printer, and means operative for connecting said printer with said link circuit, and said printer being thereby rendered responsive to the operation of the printing telegraph equipment at the calling subscriber's station when said link circuit is connected with the line thereof to record the number of the party desired.

1,543,790. CATTLE GUARD. JONAS PEDERSON, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, assignor of one-fourth to Frederik O. Eickerman, Winnipeg, Canada. Filed Sept. 9, 1924. Serial No. 736,702. 2 Claims. (Cl. 256—16.)



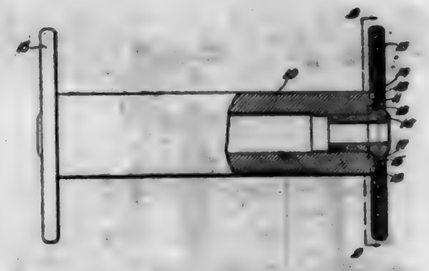
1. A cattle guard comprising a frame, parallel shafts supported by said frame, horn wheels disposed in pairs on said shafts and free to rotate thereon, and means on the shafts spacing the individual pairs of horn wheels from each other, the wheels of each pair being provided with inwardly extending hubs having interlocking engagement with each other.

1,543,791. TRANSMISSION GEARING. WALTER CHARLES PITTER, Eltham, England. Filed Aug. 18, 1920. Serial No. 404,358. 17 Claims. (Cl. 74—64.)



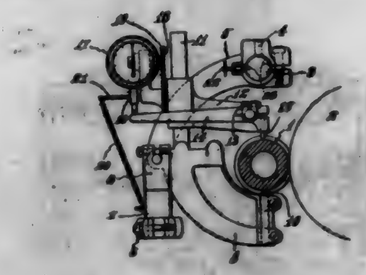
11. In a variable transmission, a driving member and a driven member, one of which has a concentric surface, and an intermediate transmitting means compressed between said members and [illegible] and radially actuated by movement of the eccentric face to advance the other, [illegible] clinching surface in alignment

1,543,792. SHOE-SHAPING APPARATUS. ARTHUR F. PEM, Lynn, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 24, 1921. Serial No. 439,484. 28 Claims. (Cl. 12—51.)



1. In a shoe-shaping apparatus, members to engage the bottom of the sole and both sides of the upper of a relasted turned shoe, progressively to smooth the shoe materials into conformity with the enclosed last, and means to supply heat to set the materials as they are smoothed.

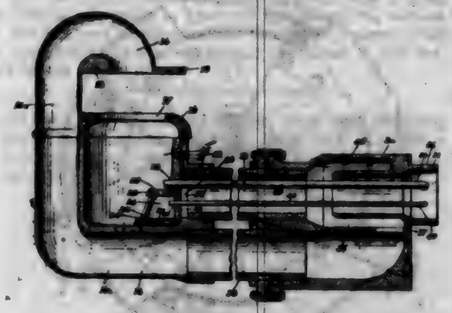
1,543,793. WORK SUPPORT. WILLIAM THOMAS BUCKINGHAM ROBERTS, Leicester, England, assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 23, 1923. Serial No. 620,805. 2 Claims. (Cl. 1—41.)



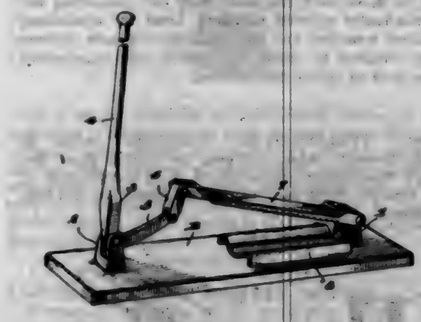
1. In a fastening inserting machine, the combination of a driver, a post, a carrier block mounted on the post, a horn pivotally mounted on the carrier block for [illegible] movement toward and from the clinching surface of the horn to move into and out of alinement with the driver, and a [illegible] interlocking parts carried by the horn and the carrier block for retaining the horn with its clinching surface in alinement with the driver.

1,543,794. SPOOL. EMM ROBINSON, Greenville, S. C., assignor to Shambow Shuttle Company, Woonsocket, R. I., a Corporation of Rhode Island. Filed Aug. 19, 1924. Serial No. 732,953. 4 Claims. (Cl. 242—118.)

1. A spool or bobbin having a barrel provided with a round end and an extension beyond the barrel end, a head provided with a round recess on its inner side to receive the barrel end and a hole to receive the barrel end extension, a ball for holding the barrel and head from relative rotation, the barrel end and the bottom of the round recess of the head being provided with opposed cavities extending the one into the barrel end and the other into but not through the head in which the ball is received, and means for engaging the barrel end extension and head to hold the head on the barrel.



1,543,795. CONTINUOUS READING GAUGE. HUGH M. ROCKWELL, Bristol, Conn., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Standard Steel and Bearings Incorporated, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 7, 1920. Serial No. 387,180. 13 Claims. (Cl. 33—148.)



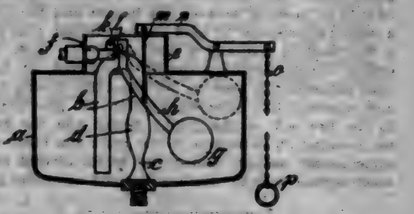
1. In a device of the character indicated, a support, a standard rotatably mounted thereon, a primary arm pivotally mounted on said standard, a secondary arm rotatably supported by the primary arm, contact members on each arm adapted to engage a piece of work, and resilient means to force said contact members against the work.

1,543,796. CRUDE-OIL BURNER. FREDERICK W SCHEIFELE, Audubon, N. J. Filed Nov. 6, 1924. Serial No. 748,229. 4 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)

1. In a crude oil burner, a casting formed to provide a vertically extending burner chamber and a conduit upon the exterior of the chamber, the chamber having an inlet formed in the side wall thereof, a cap for the chamber providing a cover therefor having a vertical opening of less size than the burner chamber, the cap including a goose-neck conduit communicating at one end with the conduit of the burner chamber when the cap is in position and having the opposite end thereof opposed to the opening of the cap and means for introducing a forced draft to the burner chamber including an aspirator communicating at its inlet end with the other end of the conduit of the burner chamber.

1,543,797. NUTCRACKER. JOSEPH SCIORTINO, Youngstown, Ohio. Filed Oct. 23, 1923. Serial No. 670,361. 4 Claims. (Cl. 146—16.)

1. In a device of the character described, in combination with a base, a clamping bar swingingly connected at one end with one end of said base and having its opposite end loosely connected with one end of a link, and an operating lever of substantially bell crank formation loosely mounted upon the opposite end of said base, and having one of its arms loosely connected with the opposite end of said link in such manner as to permit the swinging end of said clamping bar to be disposed either above or below the arm of said operating lever, in order to adjust the device to the accommodation of different sized nuts.



1,543,798. EXPLOSIVE. ALEXANDER CRUICKSHANK SCOTT, Cardiff, Wales, assignor to Mexico Limited, London, England, a British Company. Filed Aug. 26, 1924. Serial No. 734,219. 16 Claims. (Cl. 102—6.)

14. A cartridge comprising a casing in the form of an external shell and a central axial tube therein between which and the shell is a space, said tube being pervious to liquid hydrocarbon and crystals of the kind described so crushed and packed into said space that the volume of the voids between the crystals does not exceed thirty-two per cent of the volume occupied by the crystals, said tube moreover being of such dimensions that its internal volume is equal to the volume of hydrocarbon required to be introduced to prepare the cartridge for use.

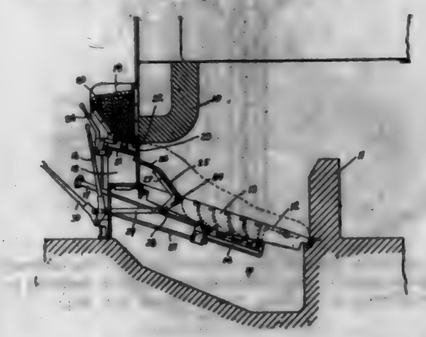
1,543,799. RINSING TANK FOR WATER-CLOSETS AND THE LIKE. CHARLES HEINRIK SEGATO, Copenhagen, Denmark. Filed Aug. 7, 1922. Serial No. 580,151. 1 Claim. (Cl. 4—19.)

A rinsing tank for water closets and the like, a siphon fixed firmly in the tank, an inlet valve for water, a float gauge actuated means to control the said valve, the said tank having an upwardly extending neck of a smaller sectional area than that of the tank and the bend of the siphon being located within said neck a lever mounted in the tank and connected to said float gauge actuated means and a chain attached to said lever said chain ending in a ring and a nail disposed laterally and near the said chain and off which nail said ring may easily slip when the chain becomes slack.

1,543,800. NESTABLE CONTAINER. WILLIAM M. SHEWAY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Space Saver Dish Company, a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 15, 1923. Serial No. 657,571. 2 Claims. (Cl. 65—15.)



1. As a new article of manufacture, a pair of rectangular superimposed dishes, the upper having its bottom resting directly upon the upper edge of the lower dish and one dish having a flange extending thereabout out of alignment with its side walls for engaging with the other dish for holding said bottom in engagement with said edge, each dish having notches formed in all of its side walls and opening through its upper edge

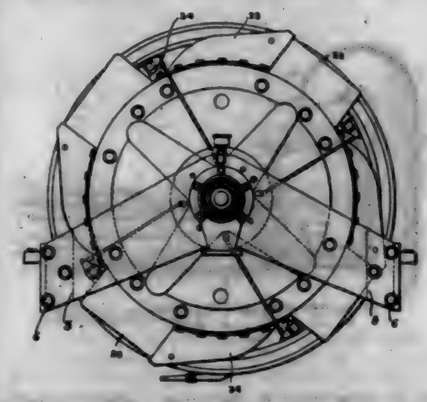
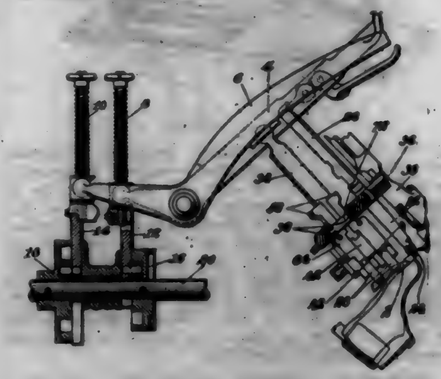
1,543,801. GRATE CONSTRUCTION. EDWIN B. SMITH, Marion, Ind., assignor to Marion Machine, Foundry & Supply Company, Marion, Ind., a Corporation. Filed Mar. 22, 1924. Serial No. 701,690. 2 Claims. (Cl. 110—32.)



1. In a force feed boiler construction, the combination with a hopper having a fuel discharge throat, a grate below the same and offset therefrom, said boiler having an opening between the hopper and the grate, and a ram reciprocable in said hopper throat and including a fuel feeding face and a fuel supporting face, of an inclined coking device pivotally supported at its lower edge adjacent the opening for normally closing the same and movable into lowered position for providing access to the fire bed on the coking device and the grate and for forming an extension of the grate and connecting the same to the hopper, said device in its pivotal movement serving as a ram for feeding the bed upon the grate.

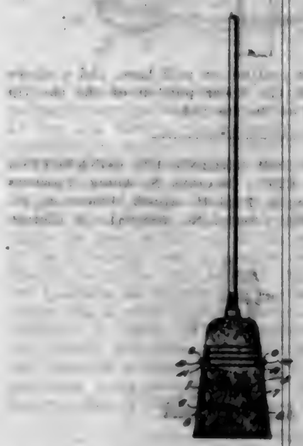
1,543,802. LOCK FOR RADIATOR CAPS. KYLE E. STANT and IVAN H. STANT, Connersville, Ind., assignors to The Stant Machine Company, Connersville, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 700,153. 14 Claims. (Cl. 220—24.)



5. In a lock of the character described, a member adapted for attachment to a mounting having an attaching means extending through the radiator cap, a nut rotatably carried by said member but overwise in fixed relation therewith, and gravity operated means for connecting and disconnecting said member and nut with respect to their relative rotation.

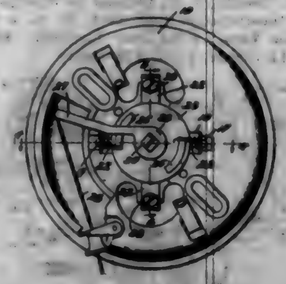
1,543,803. GAS ENGINE. EMIL P. STANY, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Filed Sept. 16, 1920. Serial No. 409,446. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—48.)

In an internal combustion engine, a support, a stationary hollow shaft mounted on the support, a cam mounted on the hollow shaft, a shaft mounted within the hollow shaft, a housing keyed on the last mentioned shaft to revolve therewith, cylinders carried by the housing, substantially triangular pivoted members mounted within the housing, pistons having rods operating in the cylinders, arms having connection with the pivoted members, a roller mounted on each pivoted member and adapted to move over the cam, arms for connecting adjacent triangular pivoted members, arms for connecting the pivoted members and piston rods, and said pivoted members adapted to move the rollers into engagement with the cam to rotate the housing.



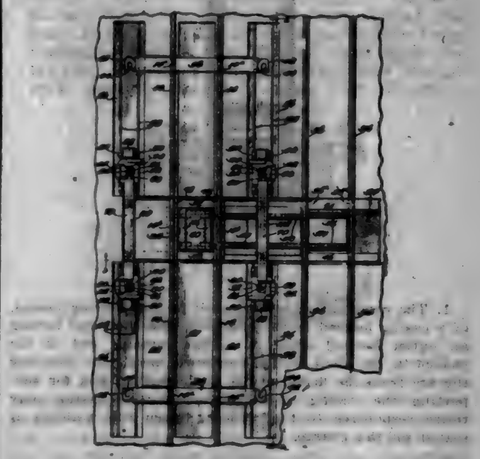
1,543,804. PULLING-OVER MACHINE. ALBA B. STONE, Everett, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 17, 1921. Serial No. 437,786. 41 Claims. (Cl. 12—4.)

9. In a machine of the class described, the combination with a plurality of pairs of upper gripping jaws, and operating mechanism for closing said jaws on an upper and for moving them to pull the upper, of a device associated with one of said pairs of jaws and operative independently of the gripping and pulling movements of the other jaws to prevent said pair of jaws from gripping the upper while permitting them to move in the direction of pull.



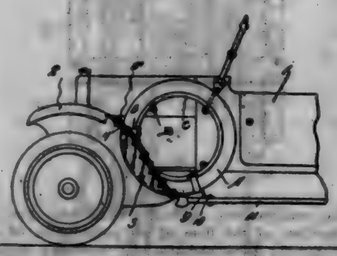
32. In a machine of the class described, the combination with grippers for pulling an upper in different locations including a gripper for engaging the upper at the side of the last, of power operated means for effecting relative movement of the different grippers and the last to pull the upper and for imparting to said side gripper an inward movement to draw the upper over the bottom of the last and a simultaneous turning movement about an axis extending transversely of the plane of the bottom of the last.

1,543,805. BROOM STIFFENING AND PROTECTING DEVICE. JAMES R. TACKETT, Olive Hill, Ky. Filed Dec. 16, 1924. Serial No. 756,321. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—170.)



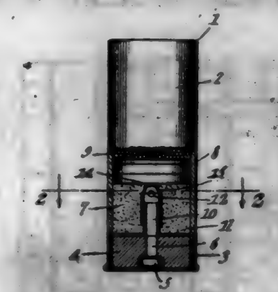
In a broom stiffening and protecting device, a broom encircling element, bails each having ends secured to opposite sides of the said encircling element, said bails having looped central portions, knobs having grooves in which the loops of the bails are located and on which they are oscillatable, and screws secured to the said knobs adapted to be imbedded in fibre of the broom for anchoring the same.

1,543,806. ELECTRIC-FIXTURE SWITCH. DON N. THOMPSON, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed July 5, 1923. Serial No. 649,733. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—64.)



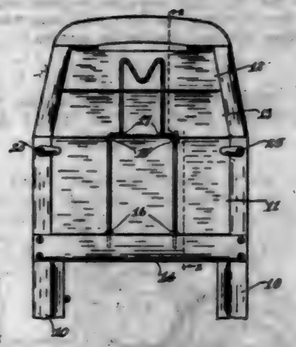
1. In an electric switch, the combination with a disk having electrical contacts and means for imparting an intermittent rotation to said disk, of a square hub connected to the disk and oppositely disposed spring impelled rollers bearing upon the hub, radial slides upon which the rollers are mounted and fixed guides for said slides.

1,543,807. COMBINATION LOCOMOTIVE JACK AND DRIVER LIFT. JOHN S. TOWNSEND, Harvey, Ill., assignor to Whiting Corporation, Harvey, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 31, 1923. Serial No. 642,458. 17 Claims. (Cl. 104—32.)



1. In mechanism of the class described, in combination with two separated elevatable load carrying members, a single elevating machine; means permitting movement of the machine from one carrying member to the other; and forked means on each carrying member, each engageable with a different knife edge on the elevating machine, by which the elevating machine may selectively attach itself to either carrying member to elevate it.

1,543,808. TIRE CARRIER. FRANCIS LEE TURNMIRE, Oakland, Calif. Filed Mar. 31, 1924. Serial No. 703,225. 1 Claim. (Cl. 296—37.)



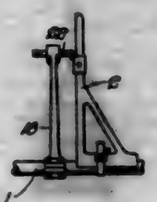
In combination with an automobile including the fender thereof, the latter having a longitudinally extending opening provided therein, a tire receiving member disposed on the under side of said fender and communicating with said opening, a frame arranged on the top of said fender extending around said opening, means extending through the frame, the fender and said tire receiving member for securing the same in position thereon, an extension formed on the lower end of said frame and secured to the running board of said automobile, tire receiving brackets extending upwardly from said frame and said extension, and auxiliary means for engagement with the upper portion of a tire for holding the same in position in the tire receiving member.

1,543,809. SHELL. TOM B. WALKER, Alexandria, La. Filed Mar. 30, 1925. Serial No. 19,437. 2 Claims. (Cl. 102—15.)

1. The combination with a shell having a firing means, of a casing located in the charge of the shell and having an outlet located adjacent to the forward end of the charge in the shell, and a combined means for carrying the fire from the firing means to the casing, and for supporting the casing slidably whereby the casing may retire responsive to the wadding when the wadding is seated on the charge.

1,543,810. RETAINER FOR FLOOR BOARDS. WINFIELD S. WALKER and HUBERT A. BIRDWELL, Limestone, Tenn. Filed Jan. 6, 1925. Serial No. 868. 2 Claims. (Cl. 296—1.1.)

2. The combination with the horizontal and inclined board sections of the floor of an automobile, of a spring member having intermediate coil portions disposed between the horizontal and inclined sections, the portion of the spring member at one side of the coil portions being engaged with the chassis of the automobile and with the said horizontal section, and the portion of the spring member at the other side of the coil portions resiliently engaging the inclined sections to retain said sections against rattling and displacement from their seats.



1,543,811. BILLIARD-CUE-TIP HOLDER. WILLIAM C. WRIGHT, Lynn Haven, Fla. Filed Apr. 25, 1924. Serial No. 708,960. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—70.)

3. A billiard cue comprising a tapering cue rod having a reduced end, a tip base secured on said reduced end, hook members pivotally supported at their inner ends on said base and extending beyond the outer end of the base, a cue tip supported on the outer end of the base, the outer end of the hook adapted to engage the cue tip and hold the same in position on said base, and a sleeve fitting over the base, the lower portion of the cue tip and the reduced end of the cue rod.

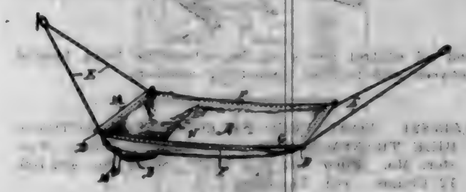
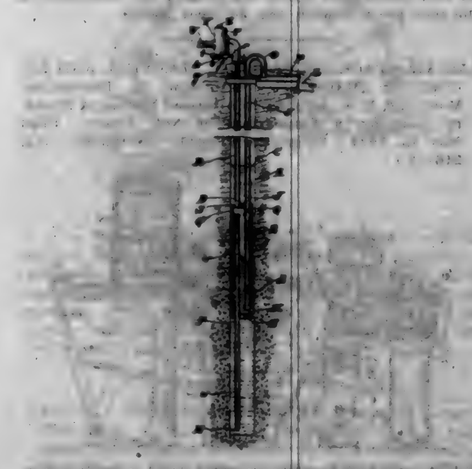
1,543,812. MEANS FOR TRUING UP CONNECTING RODS, PISTONS, ETC. CHARLES N. ADDIS, Downers Grove, Ill., assignor to Paul H. Appell, Evanston, Ill. Filed Sept. 16, 1922. Serial No. 588,684. 3 Claims. (Cl. 33—180.)



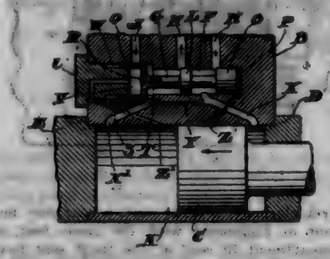
1. In a device of the class described, the combination of an elongated support adapted to have the end of a connecting rod clamped thereon intermediate of the ends and having coaxial portions of the same cross section at opposite sides of the point of attachment of the connecting rod, and a square having a recessed base for optional mounting on either end of the supporting member, said square being provided with an arm extending upwardly from the base for obtaining corresponding measurements at both sides of the outer end of the connecting rod when the latter is clamped on the support.

1,543,813. IMPULSE-GENERATING DEVICE. GEORGE F. ATWOOD, Newark, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 14, 1923. Serial No. 651,488. 14 Claims. (Cl. 178—90.)



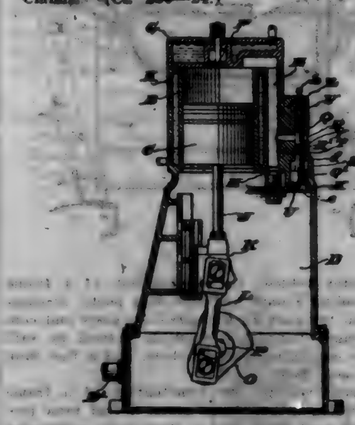
1. In a transmitting system, a circuit, means to transmit a plurality of series of current impulses thereover, means to transmit the impulses of each series at a measured ratio between the duration of a particular impulse and the time spacing between successive impulses, means to vary said ratio at will, and means to introduce a time spacing between said series of impulses.

1,543,814. HAMMOCK. JANE MAY BANNING, Hinsdale, Ill. Filed Sept. 27, 1924. Serial No. 740,182. 2 Claims. (Cl. 5—122.)



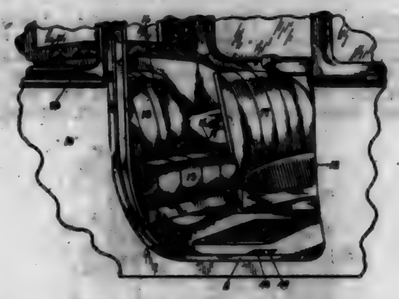
1. A hammock composed of fabric and comprising a comparatively flat body portion merging uninterruptedly at one end into a comparatively deep pocket portion configured to receive and retain a pillow, the material composing the pocket being given the necessary fullness to bag downwardly in the center and being upturned at the sides of the hammock to align with the side edges of the body portion, and the base of the pocket being below the level of the base of the adjacent body portion of the hammock, and the pocket downwardly extending directly from the base level of the body portion when the hammock is suspended in a substantially horizontal plane, and a rigid cross spreader at each end of the hammock to which the outer ends of the body portion and pocket are respectively secured and from which the hammock is suspended, the space between the cross spreaders being unobstructed by rigid cross supports, substantially as described.

1,543,815. FLUID-PRESSURE PUMPING APPARATUS. LEWIS C. BAYLES, Easton, Pa., and HERBERT T. ABRAMS, Orange, N. J., assignors to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 28, 1924. Serial No. 695,621. 6 Claims. (Cl. 103—245.)



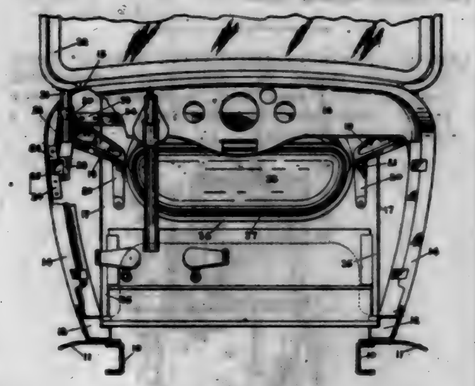
1. Fluid pressure pumping apparatus for automatically discharging liquid from a well in accordance with the rise of liquid in the well, comprising a casing located in the well into which casing the liquid is permitted to enter, means controlled by the back pressure in the casing for automatically discharging the casing by main pressure fluid, and means controlled by the liquid discharged for cutting off the main pressure fluid.

1,543,816. VALVE FOR ROCK DRILLS. LEWIS C. BAYLES, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Original application filed Oct. 16, 1922, Serial No. 594,728. Divided and this application filed Nov. 19, 1924. Serial No. 750,766. 3 Claims. (Cl. 121—28.)



1. In a rock drill, the combination of a cylinder, a reciprocatory piston within the cylinder, a valve chest having a valve chamber with an enlarged bore at one end, inlet ports for the valve chamber, an exhaust port for the chamber communicating with the atmosphere, and a valve within the chamber to control the exhaust and inlet ports, said valve having a central head, one end head of the same diameter having an actuating face, and another enlarged end head with an actuating face and opposed holding faces.

1,543,817. PRESSURE-REGULATING DEVICE. LEWIS C. BAYLES, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 10, 1925. Serial No. 1,714. 2 Claims. (Cl. 230—24.)

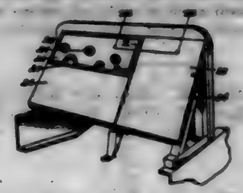


1. In a compressor comprising a storage receiver, and a compressing cylinder having a passage communicating with said cylinder and the storage receiver, a piston to reciprocate within the cylinder, a valve actuated by fluid under pressure within the storage receiver to open communication between the cylinder and atmosphere, a spring to return the valve to its normally closed position, means to augment the force of the spring to return the valve to its closed position, and an adjusting member to vary the tension of the spring for attaining different pressures within the storage receiver.

1,543,818. VEHICLE BODY. EDWARD H. BELDEN, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 26, 1920. Serial No. 406,186. 22 Claims. (Cl. 296—65.)

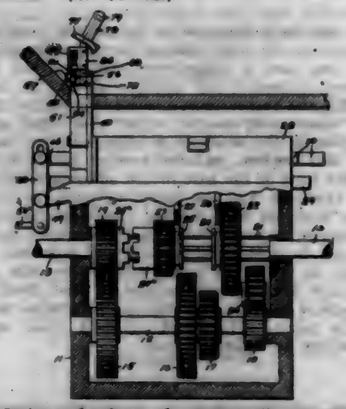
1. In a vehicle body, a front seat, a rear seat movable into and out of alignment with the front seat, and a storage compartment in rear of the front seat having a side panel extending upwardly at the left of the rear seat to form one end thereof.

1,543,819. MOTOR VEHICLE. EDWARD H. BELDEN, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 22, 1920. Serial No. 425,898. 15 Claims. (Cl. 180—54.)



1. In a motor vehicle, the combination of a frame structure including a dash and side door posts, brackets extending from the dash to the side door posts and connecting the same, windshield supports carried by said brackets, a tie connecting said brackets, and a fuel tank supported by said dash.

4. In a motor vehicle, the combination of a frame structure including a transverse plate, a fuel tank projecting through said plate, and a three-point suspension for the tank carried by the plate.



1,543,820. AUTOMOBILE FRAME. EDWARD HALE BELDEN, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Feb. 26, 1921. Serial No. 448,019. 10 Claims. (Cl. 180—89.)

1. In an automobile, a frame including side rails, an inclined toe-board supporting member located above one of said side rails and a second inclined toe-board supporting member located between the rails, the steering post and all control levers of the automobile being located between said inclined supporting members.

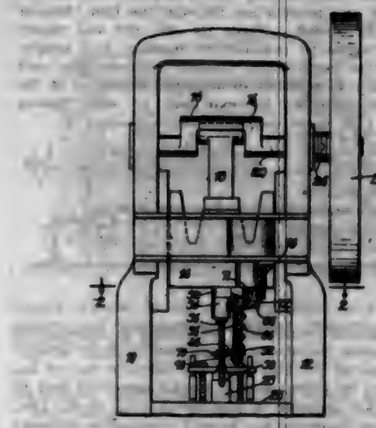
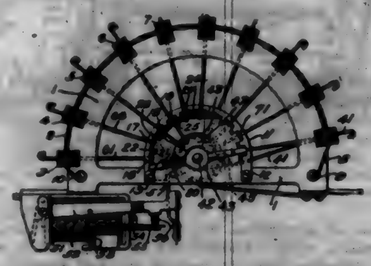
1,543,821. FOOT-SPEED SELECTOR FOR AUTOMOBILE TRANSMISSIONS. JASPER BLACKBURN, Webster, Mo. Filed Aug. 13, 1921. Serial No. 492,100. 12 Claims. (Cl. 74—58.)



1. A foot speed selector for automobiles, comprising a sliding gear transmission and its casing, a gear shifting mechanism, means for operating the gear shifting mechanism, a preselecting mechanism mounted in said casing, a foot lever in communication with said preselecting mechanism for operating the same and pivotally mounted on said casing, and means for limiting the movement of the foot lever between two adjacent speeds.

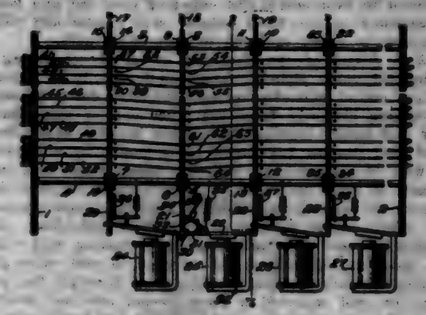
1,543,822. PACKAGE SEALING, STAMPING, AND RECORDING MACHINE. WILHELM B. BRONANDER, Montclair, N. J., assignor to American Machine & Foundry Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 15, 1924. Serial No. 713,411. 34 Claims. (Cl. 216—2.)



1. A package sealing, stamping, and recording machine, comprising means for printing and recording package sealing stamps, means for gumming said stamps, and means for sealing revenue packages with the gummy stamps.

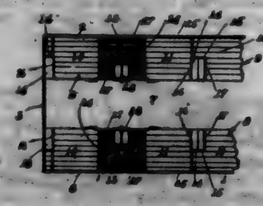
1,543,823. PUNCH-PRESS UNLOADER. HENRY BUSCHER, West Hoboken, N. J. Filed July 16, 1924. Serial No. 726,271. 13 Claims. (Cl. 207—1.)

5. In combination with a punch press having a reciprocating portion carrying an arm adapted to be swung into and out of alignment with a forming die, an unloading mechanism carried by said arm including a jaw supporting member, means for moving the latter in the direction of the length of the punch as the arm is swung out of alignment with the forming die, work engaging jaws carried by said member and means for releasing the work from the grip of said jaws.



1,543,824. SWITCHING DEVICE. EDWARD B. CRAFT, Hackensack, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 24, 1921. Serial No. 524,564. 15 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)

1. In a switching mechanism, a bare wire conductor serving as a passive terminal element, a plurality of movable terminal elements, each having a point of cooperation with said passive wire, and a single selectively operable device for selecting one of said movable terminal elements and for moving the selected element into contact with said passive wire.



1,543,825. SWITCHING DEVICE. HENRY F. DOBBIN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 4, 1921. Serial No. 506,715. 20 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)

1. In a switching device, a plurality of passive conducting elements, a plurality of movable conducting elements, each movable element having a separate point of cooperation with each of said passive elements, and a plurality of magnets, one for each point of cooperation between the movable and passive elements, the operation of any one of said magnets serving to move the corresponding movable element into contact with the corresponding passive element.

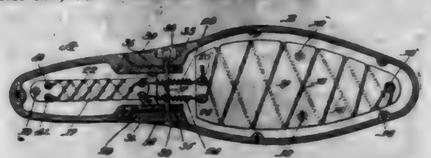
1,543,826. RABBIT HUTCH. JOHN K. DOLAN, Oakland, Calif. Filed Feb. 9, 1922. Serial No. 535,336. 2 Claims. (Cl. 119—16.)

1. A rabbit hutch comprising a plurality of sections, extensions on certain sections, offsets on other sections which receive said extensions, angle plates in said extensions, angle plates in said offsets engaging the angle plates in said extensions and forming feed bins, and screens in said extensions and said offsets communicating with said bins.

1,543,827. LIQUID-DISPENSING NOZZLE. JERALD G. DOTY, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to J. G. Doty Pump Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Nov. 17, 1924. Serial No. 750,235. 3 Claims. (Cl. 251—155.)



1. A device of the character described comprising a combined handle and valve chamber, an inlet conduit to one end thereof arranged for attachment to a hose connection, a delivery nozzle extending obliquely from the other end of said handle and valve chamber, a valve in said valve chamber at right angles to the axis thereof for opening and closing communication to said nozzle, a rod extending through the end wall of and axially through said valve chamber, and a lever having one end pivoted to said nozzle and engaging said rod and being engageable by the hand holding said handle and valve chamber to cause said rod to open said valve.

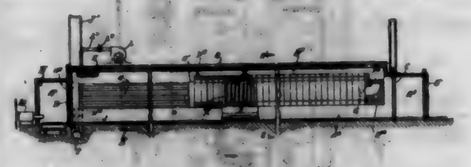
3. A device of the character described comprising a combined valve chamber and handle, an inlet conduit to one end of said chamber and handle, a delivery nozzle extending obliquely from the other end of said chamber and handle leaving the surface between said nozzle and said conduit engageable as a handle by one hand, a wall in said chamber between said conduit and said nozzle at right angles to the axis of said chamber and having an opening therethrough, a valve in said chamber at right angles to the axis thereof controlling said opening, a spring in said chamber actuating said valve to close said opening, a rod attached to said valve and extending through said opening and through the end wall of said chamber, a lever having one end pivoted to said nozzle and engaging said rod and being engageable by the hand holding said handle and chamber to actuate said rod in a direction to move said valve in opposition to said spring and to the pressure of the liquid in said chamber to open said opening, and means supported by said chamber for holding said lever in position to prevent operation of said rod.

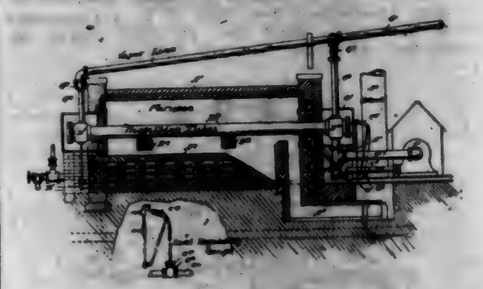
1,543,828. COMBINED SHOE TREE AND DRIER. ANN G. DOYLE, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 26, 1922. Serial No. 571,006. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—19.)

1. A hollow shoe tree comprising two pivotally connected hollow sections, an electric heating element in each of the sections, electric conducting members in the form of helical springs connecting the heating elements, and each of said hollow sections arranged in communication with each other whereby the heat is evenly distributed throughout the entire shoe tree.



1,543,829. DRIER FORM. ANN G. DOYLE, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 26, 1922. Serial No. 571,007. 2 Claims. (Cl. 228—17.)

1. A drier form comprising two sections of stamped metal, ears carried by the respective sections having openings therethrough, there being corresponding openings in said sections registering with the openings in said ears, and rivets passing through all of said openings for securing said sections together.

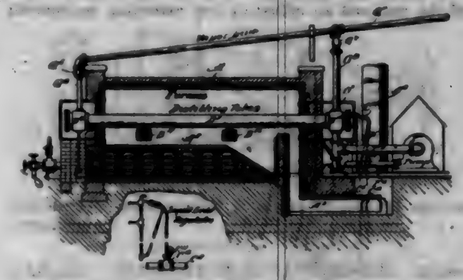


1,543,830. CONTINUOUS KILN AND METHOD OF OPERATING SAME. CONRAD DRESSLER, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to American Dressler Tunnel Kilns, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Continuation of application Serial No. 890,295, filed July 27, 1920, renewed Apr. 24, 1923. This application filed Aug. 29, 1924. Serial No. 734,859. 8 Claims. (Cl. 263—6.)

6. The method of annealing billets at a desired temperature and utilizing casting heat in so doing, which consists in passing the billets through a tunnel kiln chamber, heating said chamber by an internal combustion chamber located in the kiln chamber and extending from the exit end toward the entrance end of the kiln chamber, and passing air through the kiln chamber from its entrance end towards its exit end and thence into and through the combustion chamber, and supplying fuel to the combustion chamber adjacent the exit end of the kiln as required to maintain a portion of the kiln chamber adjacent its exit end at said desired temperature.

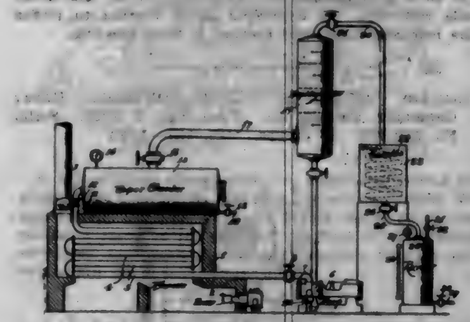
8. A continuous tunnel kiln comprising in combination with an elongated chamber, a combustion chamber extending lengthwise of the kiln from the delivery end of the latter toward its entrance end, means supplying fuel to said combustion chamber at the delivery end of the kiln, and means for supplying air to said combustion chamber at the delivery end of the kiln including provisions for causing the air so supplied to travel longitudinally of the kiln chamber from the entrance end to the delivery end thereof and to abstract heat from the kiln chamber in its travel.

1,543,831. APPARATUS FOR TREATING HYDROCARBON OILS. CARBON P. DUBBS, Wilmette, Ill., assignor to Universal Oil Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of South Dakota. Original application filed Nov. 30, 1917, Serial No. 204,527. Divided and this application filed Dec. 12, 1918, Serial No. 266,398. Renewed June 16, 1923. 16 Claims. (Cl. 196—107.)



1. In an apparatus for treating hydrocarbons, the combination with a heating coil, of a vaporizing coil of larger diameter than the heating coil and adapted to be heated to a temperature at or above that maintained in the heating coil, a pump and connections to the heating coil for causing a local circulation therein and another pump connection to the vaporizing coil for causing a local circulation in said coil.

1,543,832. PROCESS FOR TREATING HYDROCARBON OILS. CARBON P. DUBBS, Wilmette, Ill., assignor to Universal Oil Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of South Dakota. Filed June 3, 1922. Serial No. 565,684. 12 Claims. (Cl. 196—50.)



9. A process of converting heavy hydrocarbons into lighter hydrocarbons consisting in the passing of hydrocarbon oil in a relatively small stream through a heating zone, discharging the oil therefrom into a distilling zone of relatively greater cross section effecting independent forced local circulations of the oil periodically in the heating and distilling zones, said circulations taking place at substantially the same level and in a substantially horizontal plane, subjecting the vapors evolved in the distilling zone, to a condensing action, and maintaining a vapor pressure during distillation of the oil.

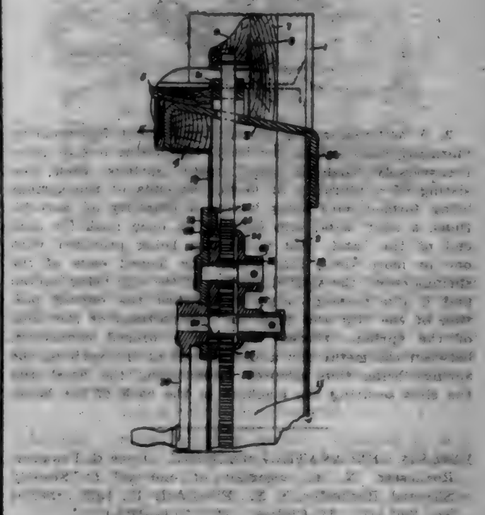
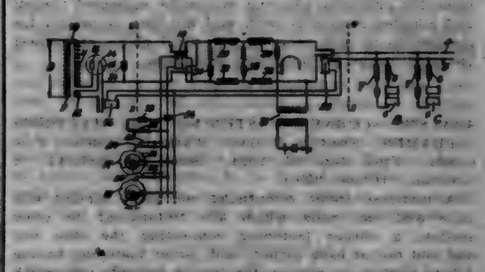
1,543,833. TREATED CARBONACEOUS FUEL. GUSTAV EGLOFF and HARRY P. BENNER, Independence, Kans., assignors to Universal Oil Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of South Dakota. Filed Feb. 10, 1921. Serial No. 443,745. 1 Claim. (Cl. 44—1.)



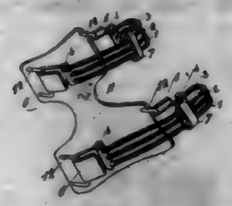
An artificial fuel composed of a residue obtained from the cracking of petroleum oil under heat and pressure, said fuel consisting of a pitchy solid carbon which has been freed of its oily constituents and is in a substantially dry state, and obtained by subjecting the pitchy carbon residue to the action of pressure distillate produced by the cracking of the petroleum oil to remove the liquid oil therefrom.

1,543,834. EJECTOR. RAYMOND N. EHRHART, Edgewood, Pa., assignor to Elliott Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 2, 1922. Serial No. 540,434. 5 Claims. (Cl. 230—18.)



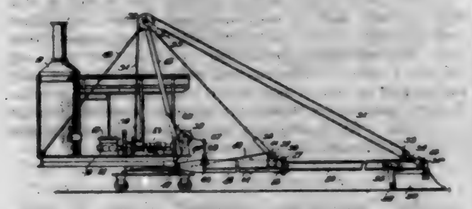
1. In an ejector, a converging-diverging diffuser structure, a long annular structure forming within the converging portion of the diffuser structure a converging-diverging passageway, and a short annular structure discharging into said passageway, substantially as described.

1,543,835. RAILWAY-CAR WINDOW. THOMAS ELLIOTT, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Cincinnati Car Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 20, 1924. Serial No. 744,688. 5 Claims. (Cl. 20—52.1.)



1. The combination with a railway car having a window opening and a sash mounted therein, of guard rods secured to the sash and adapted to move therewith, and operating mechanism to adjust the sash and its guard rods to different positions, comprising a rack bar carried by one of said guard rods, a crank and intermediate gearing by which the rack is operated through the crank, such mechanism being mounted on the side of the car beneath the window sill.

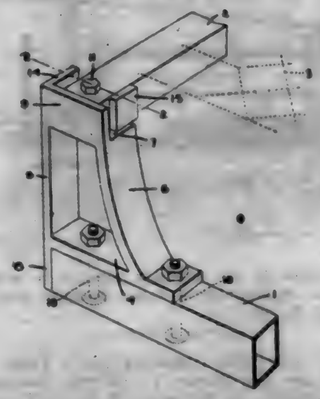
1,543,836. SIGNALING SYSTEM. JOSEPH C. FIELD, Orange, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 26, 1920. Serial No. 426,409. 7 Claims. (Cl. 177—340.)



7. In a signaling system, a source of alternating current, a rectifying circuit comprising a two element rectifier, a heating circuit for one of the elements of said rectifier, a plurality of signaling devices intermittently energized over a circuit from said alternating current source through said rectifier, said heating circuit being controlled by the means for intermittently energizing said signaling devices.

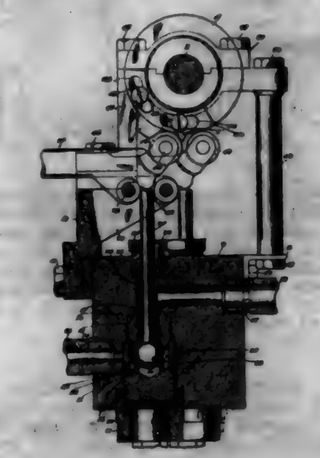
1,543,837. SPRING-BAND CLASP. CHARLES FISCHER, New York, N. Y. Filed May 16, 1922. Serial No. 561,356. 4 Claims. (Cl. 267—73.)

2. A self-conforming spring band clasp for securing vibrating machines to the hand, comprising one or more transversely bendable spiral, metal springs, each consisting of a plurality of loops, the ends of the springs being formed with loops having a plurality of convolutions, a bent metal clip forming an open hook for each end of the band, said metal clip being provided with one or more slots, into which the looped ends of the springs enter, the slotted portion of the clip being curved and a pin passing transversely thru the curved portion of the clip and thru the convolutions of the ends of the springs, thereby forming a hinged connection between the metal clip and the ends of the springs, the springs being thus adapted to surround the hand and the clips securing the machine to the back of the hand.



1,543,838. EXCAVATING MACHINE. JOHN G. FOGARTY, Rochester, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Stanley Shepard, Rochester, N. Y. Filed July 15, 1920. Serial No. 396,549. 19 Claims. (Cl. 214—102.)

1. In an excavating machine, the combination of a mast, a longitudinally extensible boom supported for vertical and horizontal swinging movements, a bucket on said boom, a fall line connecting said mast and boom and adapted primarily to effect vertical swinging movement of the latter, a digging line connected with the boom for primarily effecting extensible movement thereof and adapted conjointly with said fall line to control the movements of said boom in a vertical plane, and power operated means for actuating said lines.



1,543,839. CORNER FASTENING FOR MATTRESS FRAMES. FRANCIS G. GALE, Waterville, Quebec, Canada. Filed Jan. 23, 1924. Serial No. 687,941. 1 Claim. (Cl. 5—225.)

A mattress frame comprising one piece tubular side rails and end rails which are rectangular in cross section, a corner fastening connecting the side rail and end rail at each corner, said corner fastening having a base portion to rest on the top of the side rail which base portion is of substantially the same transverse dimension as the side rail, two separate legs rising from the base portion, a rest supported by said legs and on which the end rail is supported, one of the legs being extended downwardly to form a depending apron which overlies and closes the open end of the side rail and also being extended upwardly beyond the rest, said corner fastening having a flange or curb rising from the rest at right angles to said upward extension and connected thereto, said curb or flange engaging and closing the open end of the end rail, said rest being slotted, a hold-down bolt extending through the end rail and slot of the rest and an adjusting bolt extending horizontally through the end rail and through the upward extension of the leg, the engagement of the end of the end rail with the curb or flange and the engagement of the end of the side rail with the depending apron serving to stiffen the mattress frame and prevent it from twisting.

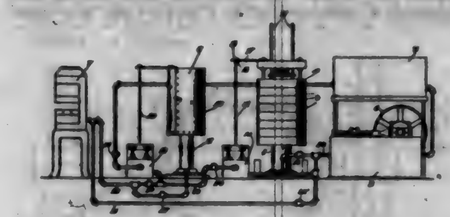
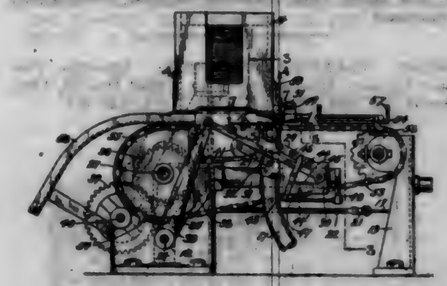
1,543,840. MULTIPLE-VALVE CONTROL. HENRY GRIGOLEIT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 7, 1922. Serial No. 580,379. 37 Claims. (Cl. 137—145.)



33. A device of the character described including a valve block having a plurality of individual valves, manual means for operating said valves, and automatic means for operating said valves.

1,543,841. PRESSURE-CONTROL SYSTEM. HENRY J. GRIGOLEIT, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 2, 1923. Serial No. 649,185. 29 Claims. (Cl. 103—222.)



1. A fluid supply system of the character described including a pair of accumulators, a pump for supplying fluid to said accumulators, and automatic means for connecting said pump to said accumulators to maintain the desired predetermined pressures in each of said accumulators.

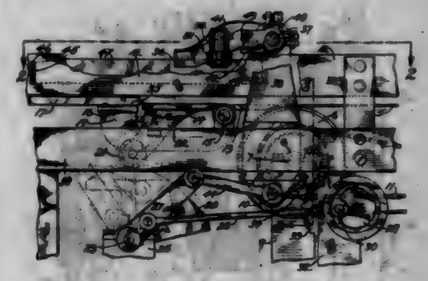
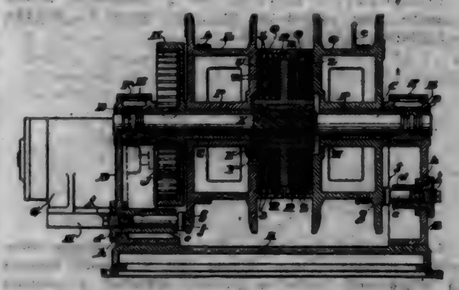
1,543,842. ENVELOPE-CHARGING DEVICE. GEORGE W. GWINN, Brooklyn, N. Y., and WILHELM B. BRONANDER, Montclair, N. J., assignors to American Machine & Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 5, 1924. Serial No. 704,508. 14 Claims. (Cl. 93—6.)



1. An envelope charging device, comprising means for supporting a plurality of open envelopes, means for successively moving envelopes from said supporting means, a spout in the path of the flaps of the moving envelopes, and means for pushing articles through said spout into the envelopes.

1,543,843. WAX-SEAL-COOLING MECHANISM. GEORGE W. GWINN, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Machine & Foundry Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 1, 1924. Serial No. 710,389. 16 Claims. (Cl. 93—2.)

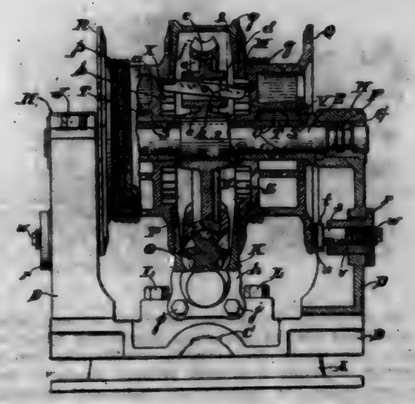


1. A wax seal cooling mechanism comprising means for supporting articles bearing hot seals, cooling means contacting with the seals of the supported articles, and means for dampening said cooling means.

1,543,844. ARTICLE-FEEDING DEVICE. GEORGE W. GWINN, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Machine & Foundry Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 10, 1924. Serial No. 719,220. 24 Claims. (Cl. 198—20.)

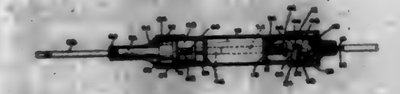
1. An article feeding device comprising primary means for advancing articles, secondary means for advancing articles, and means for normally transferring articles at regular intervals from said primary means to said secondary means and operative to render said secondary means inactive when said primary means advances articles irregularly.

1,543,845. DOUBLE-DRUM HOIST. CHARLES C. HANSEN, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 3, 1924. Serial No. 703,875. 1 Claim. (Cl. 254—185.)



In a hoist, the combination of a frame, a rotatable shaft, a motor connected to operate said shaft, two drums rotatable about said shaft, a worm on said shaft, a main driver in engagement with said worm adapted to be moved longitudinally relative to said shaft in one direction or the other in accordance with the direction of rotation of said shaft, a series of friction plates carried by said main driver, and a second series of friction plates carried by said drums alternating respectively with the plates on said driver, the two series of plates being adapted to be forced together by said main driver to drive one or the other of said drums according to the direction of rotation of said shaft.

1,543,846. DOUBLE-DRUM HOIST. CHARLES C. HANSEN, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 3, 1924. Serial No. 703,876. 3 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)



1. In a hoist, the combination of a frame, a shaft supported in said frame, a reversible motor, two drums rotatable about said shaft, a main driver connected to be driven by said motor, opposed drum drivers on said drums and a transversely pivoted longitudinally extending pawl carried by said main driver located and and oscillating in a plane passing through the longitudinal axis of the said shaft for engaging one or the other of the said opposed drivers in accordance with the direction of rotation of the said main driver.

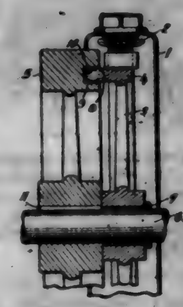
1,543,847. ELECTRICALLY-OPERATED SURGICAL BONE-CUTTING DEVICE. JAY A. HENDRIXE, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Apr. 21, 1921. Serial No. 463,422. 3 Claims. (Cl. 128—305.)

1. An electrically operated bone-cutting device comprising a holder for a cutting tool, a tubular member in which said holder is slidably mounted, a solenoid mounted in said tubular member, a core for said solenoid, means for retracting said core in rearward direction when said solenoid is deenergized, a pivoted contact member insulatively mounted in said tubular member, a fixed contact member insulatively mounted in said tubular member and which is engaged by said pivoted contact member when the latter is in rearward position whereby a circuit is completed through the coils of said solenoid, means for operating said pivoted contact member to cause the circuit to be broken when said core reaches its forward position and to cause the circuit to be completed when said core is retracted, and a hammer carried by the forward portion of said core for delivering a succession of blows upon said tool holder.



1,543,848. REENFORCED CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION. ALBERT HENDERSON, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Henderson Corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 25, 1921. Serial No. 584,311. 9 Claims. (Cl. 72—1.)

1. A structure, comprising a member formed of blocks placed end to end and tied together by reenforcing means extending through said member, a second member extending at an angle to the first member and formed of blocks placed end to end and tied together by reenforcing means extending through said second member, and means connecting said members together, comprising a plate secured to a face of the first member and a plate secured to the end of the second member, said plates being connected together, substantially as described.

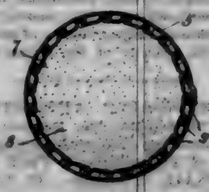
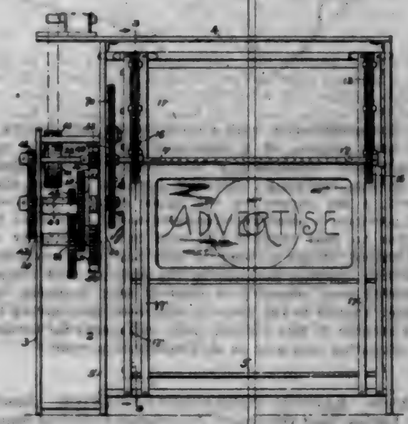
1,543,849. FLEXIBLE FLYWHEEL. CHARLES TRUMAN HIBBARD, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Dec. 26, 1922. Serial No. 608,978. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—6.)



1. In combination with an electric motor having a rotor and a stator, a driven machine, a rotary element rigidly connected to said driven machine and mounted directly adjacent to the rotor of said motor, said element having an appreciable moment of inertia, and flexible means directly connecting the said rotary element with the adjacent side of said rotor.

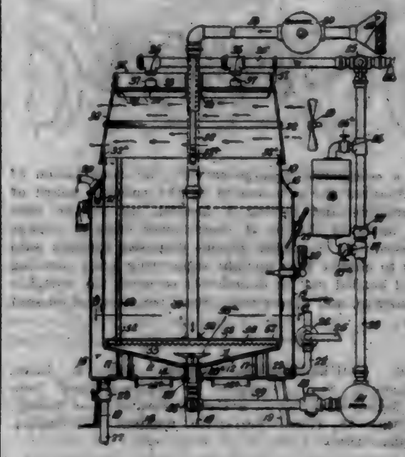
1,543,860. EXPLOSIVE CARTRIDGE. GROSVENOR B. HOLMANS, New Rochelle, N. Y., assignor to Air Reduction Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 23, 1924. Serial No. 727,652. 10 Claims. (Cl. 102—6.)



10. In an explosive cartridge a filling of carbonaceous material, an inner wrapper of paper and an outer expansible wrapper of textile material, said textile material being impregnated with a water-repellant material.

1,543,851. EXPLOSIVE CARTRIDGE. GROSVENOR B. HOLMANS, New Rochelle, N. Y., assignor to Air Reduction Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 8, 1924. Serial No. 730,858. 4 Claims. (Cl. 102—6.)

1. In an explosive cartridge a filling of carbonaceous material, an inner wrapper of textile material, an outer wrapper of frangible material, the inner wrapper being adapted to expand and to hold the filling when the outer wrapper is broken.



1,543,852. ADVERTISING DEVICE. HERBERT HANSCOM, Fryeburg, Me. Filed May 22, 1923. Serial No. 640,766. 3 Claims. (Cl. 40—36.)

1. In an advertising device the combination of an upper chamber and a lower chamber, both containing a pack of display cards, a middle chamber between the two, a reciprocating rack for conveying the cards one at a time from the upper chamber to the middle chamber and thence to the lower chamber on one side of the device, a reciprocating rack for conveying one at a time from the lower chamber to the middle chamber and thence to the upper chamber on the opposite side of the device, a rack gear for each rack, gearing connected with the rack gears for simultaneously rotating the same and for reversing the movement of the rack gears at intervals, including a sectional gear having a portion arranged to be carried into and out of mesh with the said gearing intermittently, and means for continuously rotating the sectional gear in one direction.

1,543,853. APPARATUS FOR DEODORIZING CREAM. OTTO F. HUNZIKER, La Grange, Ill., assignor to The Pfaudler Co., Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 27, 1921. Serial No. 487,913. 8 Claims. (Cl. 261—12.)

1. An apparatus for the purpose described comprising an open-topped container, spray means located above and spaced vertically from the container top, means for continuously withdrawing a liquid from the container and discharging it through said spray means for return by gravity through the air into the container means for forcing air through the liquid in said container in a plurality of vertically directed jets closely spaced over the horizontal area of the container, and heating means for maintaing the circulating liquid at a predetermined high temperature.

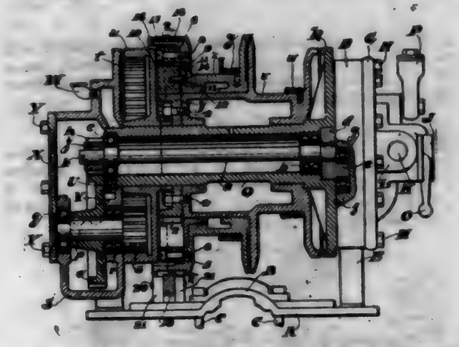
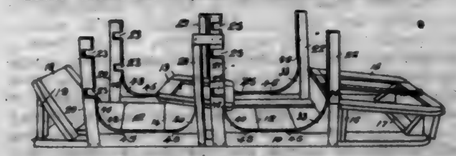
1,543,854. TELEPHONE-EXCHANGE SYSTEM. LEWIS H. JOHNSON, Bloomfield, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 8, 1921. Serial No. 434,489. 19 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)



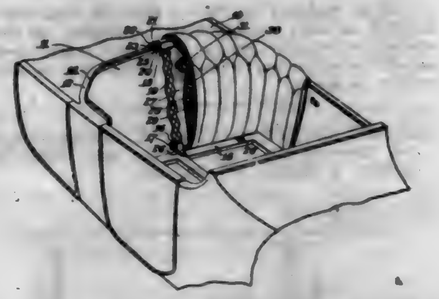
1. In a telephone exchange system, a calling line, selector switches and a connecting circuit for extending a connection from said line, a sending mechanism for controlling said switch, a fundamental switch controlling circuit comprising said connecting circuit extending between said sending mechanism and said switches, means associated with one of said switches controllable over said fundamental circuit for governing the extent of movement of said switch, and means operative during the movement of said switch for reversively controlling said sending mechanism, said first named means being rendered quick to release over a fundamental circuit of upwards of fifteen miles in length when a releasing condition is established in said circuit at said sending mechanism.

1,543,853. LUGGAGE CARRIER. WILLIAM H. JOY, Lansing, Mich. Filed Apr. 4, 1923. Serial No. 629,799. 4 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)



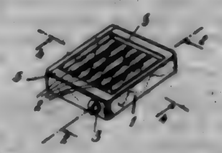
4. In a collapsible luggage carrier, the combination of clamps adapted for attachment to the running board of an automobile and having a headed lug at the base thereof, uprights slotted at their lower ends to engage said headed lug, clamping screws disposed through said uprights to engage said upright supporting arms coacting with said headed lug for detachably securing the uprights to said clamps, and a lazy tong structure mounted on said uprights.

1,543,856. DOUBLE-DRUM HOIST. EARL B. LEAR, Phillipsburg, N. J., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 699,968. 12 Claims. (Cl. 254—185.)



1. In a hoist, the combination of a frame, a driving shaft, two drums concentric with the driving shaft, a motor connected to operate the driving shaft, opposed drivers carried by said drums respectively, a main driver rotated by the driving shaft, a pawl carried by the main driver for automatically connecting said main driver to one or the other of the said opposed drivers in accordance with the direction of rotation of the driving shaft, and a guide member in engagement with said pawl and adapted to insure the movement of said pawl.

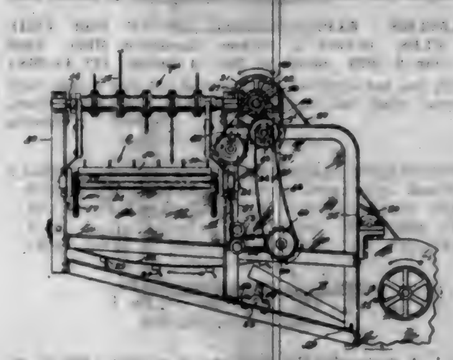
1,543,857. COMPOSITE BODY FOR AUTOMOBILES. JOSEPH LEDWINKA, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 28, 1920. Serial No. 377,249. 2 Claims. (Cl. 296—28.)



1. In a composite body structure for automobiles, longitudinally extending side sills, door posts extending substantially vertically therefrom and having their upper ends freely disposed, sheet metal body stampings provided with integral reinforcements extending from the free body of one post to the free body of the other and having inturned flanges at the edges thereof for supporting engagement with the sills and posts, and gussets interbracing the posts and the sills and also engaging the inturned flanges of said stampings and contoured to the shape thereof, whereby the gussets in addition to bracing the posts constitute a means of attaching, bracing and retaining the contour of the stampings.

1,543,858. DETACHABLE UPHOLSTERY. JOSEPH LEDWINKA, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 11, 1920. Serial No. 388,147. 7 Claims. (Cl. 155—180.)

1. The combination with an automobile body having a seat back portion, of a detachable and removable upholstery unit, comprising a rearwardly-presenting channel having vertically extending portions at the ends thereof, a bar connecting the upper ends of said vertical portions, a sheet of reticulated metal secured at its margins to said channel and said bar, a plurality of hook-shaped straps secured to said bar, a downwardly-presenting channel fastened to the ends of said straps, a tacking strip mounted in each of said channels, upholstery applied to the front of said sheet and having its edges secured to said tacking strip, and means for detachably mounting said unit on said seat back portion.



1,543,859. RADIUM THERAPEUTIC DEVICE. EDWIN D. LEMAN, East Orange, N. J., assignor to United States Radium Corporation, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 27, 1922. Serial No. 597,268. 6 Claims. (Cl. 174—177.)

1. An applicator for applying radium radiations comprising a plurality of tubes containing radio-active material disposed side by side so as to present an extended effective radiating surface, and a flat casing supporting the said tubes and enclosing and protecting them, the applicator being adapted to have one flat side applied to the body to be treated with the radiations.

1. In a device of the class described, a beater, an endless carrier emptying into the beater, a feeding conveyor leading to said endless carrier at right angles with respect thereto, the delivery end of said conveyor terminating above the platform at an elevation less in extent than the length of a bundle, rotary band knives above the delivery end of the conveyor arranged to cut the bands of bundles before the travel thereof is effected by the endless carrier and, after the bundles are tilted and later turned by said endless carrier, to strike the elevated ends of the bundles diagonally and thereby loosen and distribute the stocks thereof longitudinally upon said endless carrier, a stripping rake, above the endless carrier, inclined downwardly toward the beater, means for driving the beater, band cutter, stripping rake, endless carrier and conveyor, said means including mechanism for propelling the endless carrier and conveyor only during efficiently operative speeds of the remaining elements.

1,543,861. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING COPPER SHEETS ELECTROLYTICALLY. WILLIAM W. MCCOOL, Wyandotte, Mich., assignor to McCord Radiator & Mfg. Co., Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Maine. Filed May 16, 1924. Serial No. 713,668. 10 Claims. (Cl. 204—11.)

1. The process of maintaining a substantially constant percentage of metallic content in the electrolyte of an electrolytic apparatus, consisting in circulating the electrolyte through a plurality of connected electro-depositing units and supplying only certain of the units with metal stock so that the excess metallic content produced in such units will be deposited out in the units not supplied with metal stock.

1,543,862. TIRE TOOL. WILLARD M. MCEWEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 23, 1921. Serial No. 479,781. 8 Claims. (Cl. 157—1.)

1. A tire tool of the character described, comprising a pair of arcuate members arranged end to end and adapted to be moved toward and from each other for varying the diameter of the tool in the direction in which the members are movable, and means located in the space formed by said members and engaged with both for moving them toward and from each other, said means engaging said members at a plurality of spaced points in the circumferential length of each for simultaneously applying substantially the same amount of power against said members at said points when moving them from each other.

1,543,863. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR ELECTRICAL REGULATION. FRANK W. MERRILL, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 24, 1921. Serial No. 494,921. 10 Claims. (Cl. 171—225.)

1. In combination with a system of electrical distribution, a shunt wound motor generator across the supply end of said system, a second motor generator mechanically connected to the first and connected to the load end of said system, said second machine having two differentially wound shunt fields, and means for controlling the current through one of said fields whereby said field may be stronger, equal to or weaker than the other.

1,543,864. ICE-SCORING MACHINE. CHARLES R. MILLER, Houston, Tex. Filed Aug. 20, 1923. Serial No. 658,301. 10 Claims. (Cl. 125—13.)

1. In an ice scoring machine, an upright frame, an ice elevator adjacent one end thereof, means comprising a rotatable drum and cable thereon to raise said elevator and ice in the path of a plurality of scoring saws, means actuated by the movement of the elevator to reverse said raising means and permitting movement of said elevator downward, means to move said ice longitudinally from said elevator against horizontal scoring saws, and means to stop the operation of said last named means when said ice is past said saws.

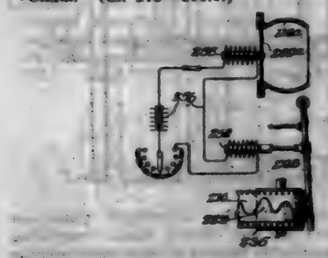
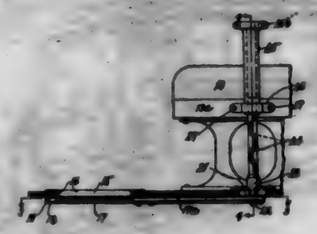
1,543,865. WRAPPER FOR WAX SHEETS OF PAPER. WILLIAM H. MUCHMORE, Middletown, Ohio, assignor to The Crystal Waxing Company, Middletown, Ohio. Filed Dec. 31, 1923. Serial No. 683,561. 15 Claims. (Cl. 206—57.)



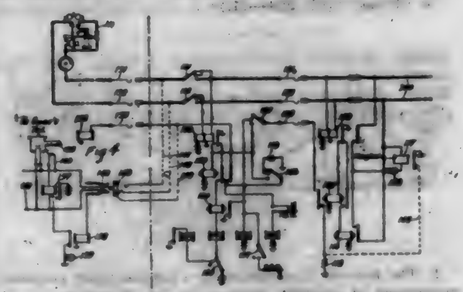
1. A wrapper, a pile of wax paper sheets therein, said wrapper having a series of perforations formed in the side thereof to permit the portion surrounded by said perforations to be separated from the body portion of the wrapper thereby providing an opening in the wrapper, as and for the purpose described.

1,543,866. METHOD OF TESTING SLATE FOR ELECTRICAL PURPOSES. WILLIAM ROBERT NOYNEST, Euclid, Ohio. Filed May 15, 1923. Serial No. 639,181. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)



3. In a device for testing slate, the combination of a transformer provided with primary and secondary winding, a source of current supply in circuit with said primary windings, an electrical measuring instrument provided with a movable and a fixed coil, a circuit extending from the source of current for the primary winding of the transformer to the fixed coil of the measuring instrument, a circuit extending from the secondary winding of the transformer to the winding of the movable coil of the measuring instrument, said circuits and coils so proportioned that resistance of the slate is indicated by said electrical measuring instrument.

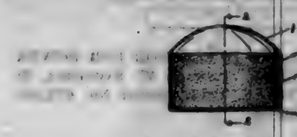
1,543,867. REPRODUCER FOR SOUND RECORDS. HOWARD L. PAGE, Chicago, Ill. Original application filed May 3, 1922, Serial No. 558,269, Patent No. 1,445,030, dated Feb. 13, 1923. Divided and this application filed Oct. 9, 1922. Serial No. 593,183. 1 Claim. (Cl. 179—100.1.)



Sound reproducing mechanism comprising, in combination with an undulated strip record, a bar pivoted to swing in a plane transversely to the direction of movement of said record, a spring holding said bar in engagement with the undulated portion of said record whereby the bar is oscillated when the record is moved, a rod pivoted to said bar between the pivot of the latter and the record, an armature on said rod, a magnet in operative relation to said armature, and a reproducing mechanism in circuit with said magnet.

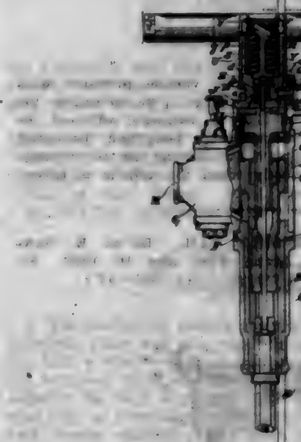
1,543,868. EXPECTORATING DEVICE FOR VEHICLES. OCTAVE A. POIRIER, Gladstone, Minn. Filed Jan. 2, 1925. Serial No. 290. 4 Claims. (Cl. 4—268.)

1. A device for the disposing of waste matter in vehicles comprising a vehicle floor having an opening, a plate slidably mounted in guides fixed adjacent said opening and normally closing it, an integral extension of said plate and a toothed rack on said extension, a pinion fixed on a vertical shaft and in mesh with said rack, means slidable on said vertical shaft and adapted to rotate it and the pinion to move the plate away from the opening in the floor and means for returning the plate to its closing position.



1,543,869. TELEPHONE-EXCHANGE SYSTEM. LIPA POLIENKOWSKY, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 5, 1919. Serial No. 301,998. 31 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)

1. In a telephone exchange system, a calling line, a plurality of step-by-step switches, means for directively operating said switches to extend the calling line, a plurality of switches each arranged to be driven in a continuous movement, a switch-controlling mechanism, means for variably setting said mechanism, and means controlled by said mechanism for selectively controlling the operation of said last named switches to further extend the calling line.



1,543,870. MAGNIFYING GLASS. HENRY T. PEARCE, Kalamazoo, Mich. Filed June 17, 1921. Serial No. 478,273. 1 Claim. (Cl. 88—39.)

As an article of manufacture, a magnifying glass formed as a single molded piece, comprising a cylindrical body and a curved top constituting a lens, the depth of the body being such as to focus the lens when the body is resting upon the surface to be magnified, the lens surface and the bottom being unobstructed and polished throughout and the sides of the body being ground.

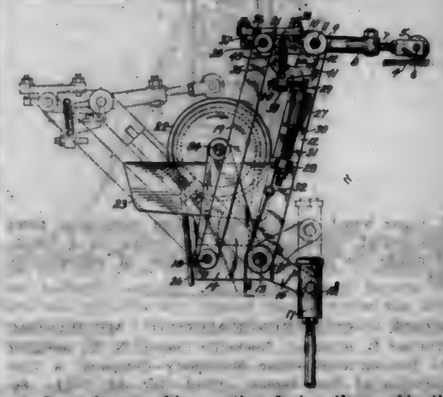
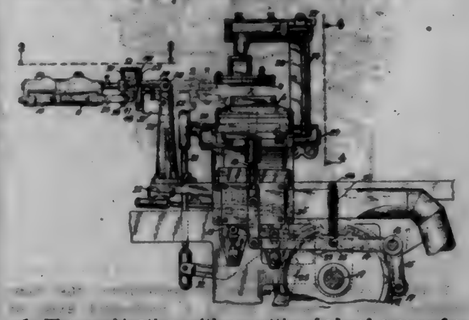
1,543,871. WATER-TUBE BACK-HEAD CONNECTION FOR ROCK DRILLS. WILLIAM PRELLWITZ, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 21, 1924. Serial No. 700,780. 8 Claims. (Cl. 121—10.)



8. In a rock drill, the combination of a back head having a recess and a passage in communication with said recess into which liquid under pressure is adapted to be introduced, a back head plug having a recess adapted to communicate with said passage and also adapted to be screwed into the recess in said back head, said plug being formed with a tapered portion adapted to cooperate with a tapered seat in said back head to form a fluid tight connection between said plug and back head, a liquid conducting tube adapted to extend into the recess in said plug, a sleeve secured to said tube and adapted to be screwed into the recess in said plug, said sleeve being formed with a tapered portion adapted to cooperate with a tapered seat in said plug to form a fluid tight connection between said plug and sleeve, a stem carried by said plug and provided with a hole adapted to receive a suitable tool for enabling said plug, sleeve and tube to be removed from said back head, and flattened portions on opposite sides of a portion of said sleeve, to enable said tube and sleeve to be separated from said plug.

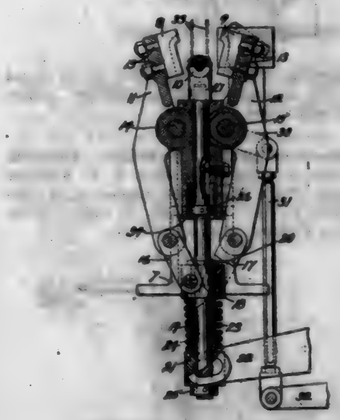
1,543,872. VACUUM-TUBE APPARATUS. SAMUEL RUBEN, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 13, 1922. Serial No. 551,988. 6 Claims. (Cl. 250—27.)

1. The combination, with a vacuum discharge device having a cathode and a plurality of anode or plate elements, located in a vacuum space, and separate external circuits connecting said cathode with either of said elements, of another circuit which includes a gap located in said vacuous space and arranged to be closed and opened by the expansion and contraction respectively, of one of said anode elements.



1,543,873. CIGAR-MACHINE PASTING DEVICE. RUPERT E. RUNDELL, Rockville Center, N. Y., assignor to International Cigar Machinery Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 8, 1923. Serial No. 678,350. 8 Claims. (Cl. 131—39.)

1. In a cigar machine pasting device, the combination with paste conveying means normally traveling to and fro between paste receiving and delivering positions, of means selectively active on said conveying means to incapacitate and rehabilitate it during its travel.



1,543,874. SAFETY CIGAR-WRAPPER CUTTER. RUPERT E. RUNDELL, Rockville Center, N. Y., assignor to International Cigar Machinery Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 10, 1923. Serial No. 679,787. 7 Claims. (Cl. 131—39.)

1. The combination with a cutting bed, of means for cutting a leaf-section on said bed, means for removing it therefrom, and mechanism operative without machine stoppage for incapacitating said cutting bed when an obstruction rests on said bed and whereby it is rehabilitated when said obstruction is removed.

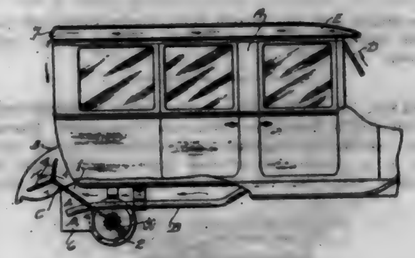
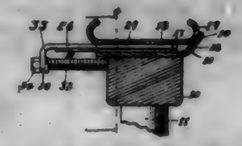
1,543,875. CIGAR-BUNCH REDUCING MECHANISM. RUPERT B. RUNDELL, Rockville Center, N. Y., assignor to International Cigar Machinery Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 22, 1923. Serial No. 682,172. 9 Claims. (Cl. 131—89.)



1. Cigar bunch reducing mechanism comprising three complemental reducing devices for acting on a bunch, and means for operating said devices in non-synchronism.

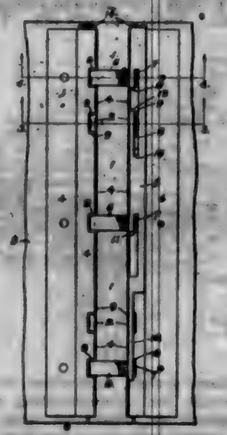
1,543,876. CIGAR-BUNCH-MAKING MECHANISM. RUPERT E. RUNDELL, Rockville Center, N. Y., assignor to International Cigar Machinery Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 24, 1924. Serial No. 701,241. 10 Claims. (Cl. 131—89.)



1. In a cigar bunch making mechanism, the combination with a turret having a horizontal axis, of means for intermittently rotating said turret, a plurality of sectional bunch containers arranged about and across the perimeter of said turret, means for holding said containers in closed condition during turret travel, and container opening and closing means successively engaging said containers at bunch charging and discharging position while said turret is at rest.

1,543,877. EXHAUST-GAS DEFLECTOR FOR POWER-OPERATED VEHICLES. EDWARD W. SAUNDERS, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Nov. 7, 1923. Serial No. 673,343. 11 Claims. (Cl. 180—1.)

1. An automobile or similar vehicle provided with a body, an exhaust gas discharge pipe arranged underneath said body, and a device arranged adjacent the rear end of the body between the body and the outlet end of said discharge pipe for causing air to circulate rearwardly under the body when the vehicle is traveling forwardly.

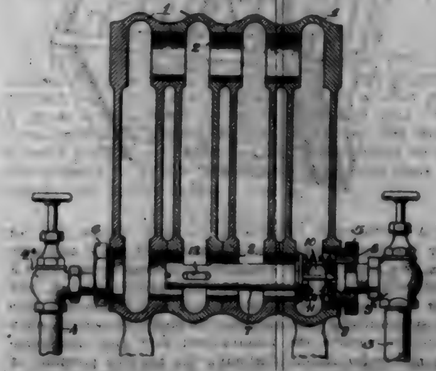


1,543,878. DEMOUNTABLE RIM. ELVER E. SAWTELLE, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed Aug. 10, 1922. Serial No. 580,876. 3 Claims. (Cl. 301—17.)

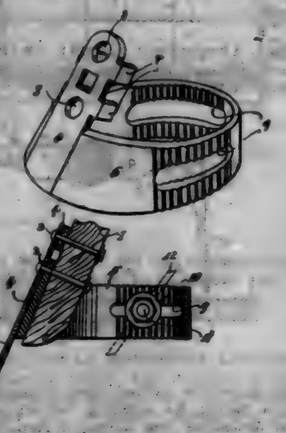
2. In combination, a felly rim, a demountable rim, means for causing the demountable rim to be locked to the felly rim by rotating the demountable rim relative thereto, means for rotating said demountable rim comprising a set of spaced parallel cleats secured to said felly rim and arranged transversely therewith, said cleats being arranged to form a dove tail groove, a slide bar for said groove, a plate for said slide bar having its transverse edges inclined and parallel with each other, a pair of angular cleats for said demountable rim designed to coact with the inclined edges of said plates, and a laterally extending screw threaded bolt for actuating said plate and said slide bar.

1,543,879. LOOSE-LEAF BOOK. JOHN SCHADE, Holyoke, Mass., assignor to National Blank Book Company, Holyoke, Mass., a Voluntary Trust Association of Copartnership, F. B. Towne, R. S. Towne, J. M. Towne, and F. W. Wilson, trustees. Filed Oct. 11, 1924. Serial No. 742,985. 5 Claims. (Cl. 129—24.)

1. A loose leaf book comprising a metal back having hinge eyes at its edges, covers having housings secured to their inner edges, the latter having recesses at a plurality of locations, strips slidable within said housings and carrying pintles that are in alinement with said recesses, a predetermined number of the latter containing said eyes which are permanently engaged by certain of said pintles whereby said covers and back are permanently hinged together, and loose leaf posts having perforated ends and extending within the remaining recesses and removably retained therein by certain of said pintles which are inserted through said ends.

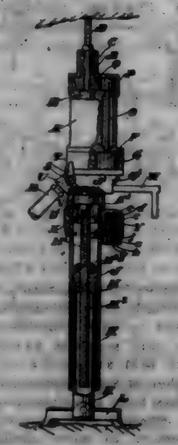


1,543,880. METHOD OF MAKING KNIFE BLADES, ETC. THOMAS C. SHERMAN, Upper Montclair, N. J., assignor to Wade & Butcher Corporation, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 4, 1924. Serial No. 717,792. 9 Claims. (Cl. 76—104.)



1. The method of making an elongated article having relatively thick and thin edges, which consists in forming from a blank a slug of the required width and having relatively thick and thin edges with excess material adjacent its thick edge, and then longitudinally rolling said slug to generally lengthen the same and to crowd said excess material along with said thick edge to lengthen the latter in compensation for the natural differential elongation of said thick and thin edges.

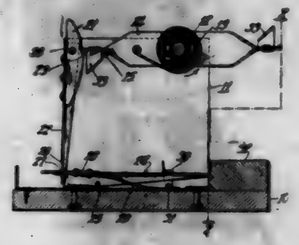
1,543,881. CONTROLLING DEVICE FOR RADIATORS. WILFRED SHURTLEFF, Moline, Ill., assignor to The Herman Nelson Corporation, Moline, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 2, 1923. Serial No. 649,007. 10 Claims. (Cl. 236—42.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination with a radiator consisting of sections connected at their ends, and having a fluid inlet connected with one of the end sections, of a casing adapted to be mounted in said inlet and comprising a valve for controlling the fluid supply to the radiator, a temperature responsive element remote from said valve and operatively connected therewith, and a plate adjustably mounted on said casing intermediate said valve and heat responsive element.

1,543,882. WING-SWEEP ATTACHMENT FOR PLOWS. M T SKINNER, Cleburne, Tex., assignor to Skinner Horse-Hoof Combination Sweep Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 1, 1923. Serial No. 665,792. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—133.)

1. In a wing sweep attachment for plows, a circular band having its front portion higher than the rear portion and said front portion provided with a tongue portion inclined inwardly and extended well beyond the band and provided with spaced lugs to secure the band in position on a plow; and means for attaching the wing sweeps to the band.



1,543,883. AUTOMATIC AIR-FEED REGULATOR FOR ROCK DRILLS. FRED M. SLATER, Easton, Pa., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 2, 1921. Serial No. 512,188. 1 Claim. (Cl. 121—5.)

An automatic air feed regulator valve for rock drills adapted to be controlled by the pressure fluid in the feeding element, comprising a valve chest open at one end and mounted at one side of the cylinder of the feeding element, a passage at the side of the valve chest affording communication between the valve chest and feed cylinder, a valve cage in the form of a hollow cylindrical plug, having an inner portion of reduced diameter removably secured within the open end of the valve chest, an atmospheric port in the outer end of the valve cage, a hollow cylindrical valve closed at its inner end forming a head and slidable within the valve cage, and a valve having a series of ports in its walls adapted to cooperate with the passage at the side of the valve chest, and a spring within the valve opposing the pressure fluid exerted on the valve head, whereby one or more of the valve ports are brought into communication with the feed cylinder passage in accordance with the pressure in the cylinder.

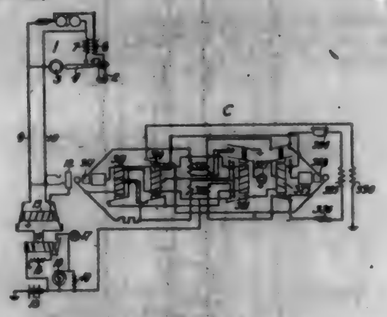
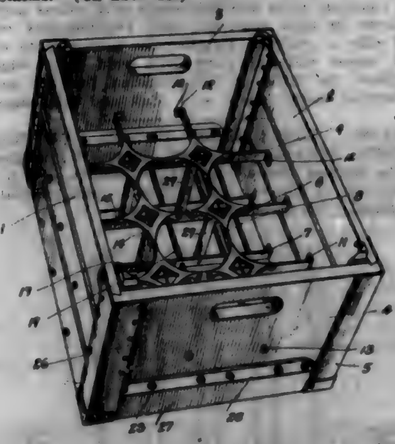
1,543,884. AUTOMATIC ANIMAL TRAP. HERBERT A. STILSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 28, 1923. Serial No. 635,354. 4 Claims. (Cl. 43—75.)



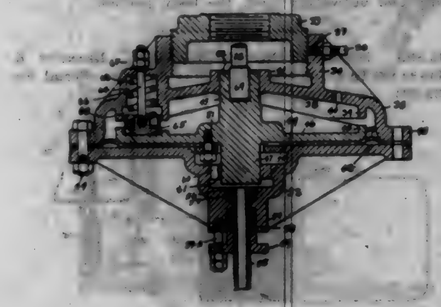
1. An automatic animal trap comprising a rotary striker, a spring for rotating the striker, a pivotally mounted depending arm having a stop for holding the striker, a trigger for holding the arm whereby when released the striker rotates the stop and arm to free the striker, and a cam carried by the arm engaged by the striker as it returns on its rotation to gradually slow down the striker as it re-engages the stop and rotate the arm to be re-engaged and held by the trigger, and means acting upon the arm to slow its movement by the impact of the striker so as to positively effect holding re-engagement of the arm by the trigger.

1,543,885. TILTABLE SUPPORT FOR AUTOMOBILE HEADLIGHTS. ANDREW C. TAYLOR, Marysville, and FERDINAND PFEIFER, Springfield, Ohio; said Pfeifer assignor, by mesne assignments, to said Taylor. Filed Mar. 31, 1924. Serial No. 703,073. 18 Claims. (Cl. 240—61.)



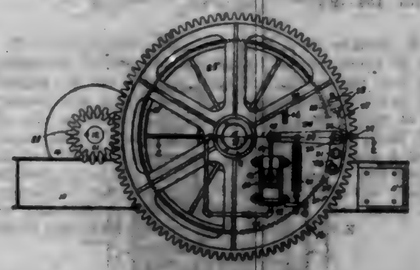
1. A tiltable support for automobile headlights comprising two substantially parallel members arranged side by side and adapted to extend across the front of an automobile, one of said members having means for securing the same to said automobile and constituting a main frame, the other of said members having means for supporting headlights near the respective ends thereof, a hinged connection between said members to permit the last mentioned member to move about a longitudinal axis with relation to the first mentioned member, and means for controlling the movement of said last mentioned member about said axis.

1,543,886. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. HUBERT S. TURNER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Original application filed Feb. 27, 1915, Serial No. 11,046, now Patent No. 1,451,896, dated Apr. 17, 1923. Divided and this application filed Feb. 10, 1923. Serial No. 618,192. 3 Claims. (Cl. 179—44.)



1. In a telephone system, subscribers' lines, a first and second link circuit for interconnecting said lines, an operator's telephone set associated with each of said link circuits, means responsive to the connection of said first link circuit with one of said lines for automatically connecting the operator's telephone set associated therewith with the first link circuit, means associated with said second link circuit for connecting therewith the associated operator's telephone set, a source of signaling current, and means responsive to the connection of said second link circuit with another of said lines for disconnecting the operator's telephone set from said second link circuit and connecting said current source thereto.

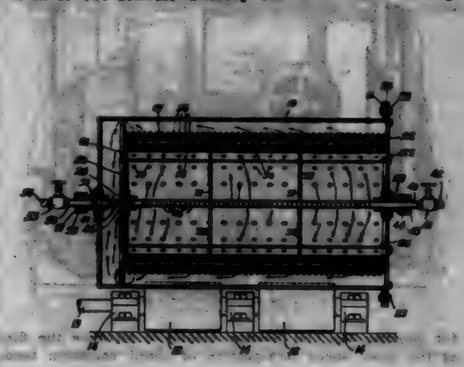
1,543,887. BOTTLE CASE. ANDREW L. WAGSTAFF, Kansas City, Mo., assignor to Wagstaff Box Manufacturing Company, Kansas City, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Apr. 11, 1924. Serial No. 705,824. 5 Claims. (Cl. 217—19.)



1. A bottle case comprising an outer frame and an inner frame, the outer frame having end walls and side walls, the inner frame comprising an upper deck and a lower deck connected together in spaced relation, the upper deck having longitudinal bars and transverse bars and substantially rectangular tie-plates provided with grooves to receive the longitudinal bars and transverse bars, means for rigidly fastening the grooved portions of the tie plates to the respective bars and means for removably securing the inner frame to the outer frame.

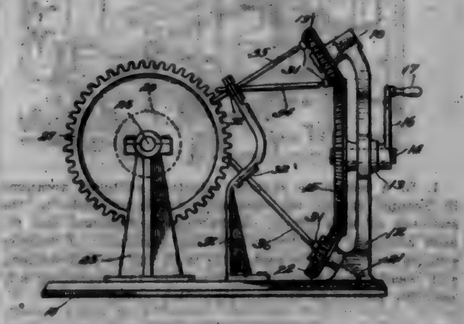
1,543,888. DIAPHRAGM AIR-FRICTION DEVICE. POWERS A. WICKES, Portland, Oreg., assignor to Willamette Iron and Steel Works, Portland, Oreg. Filed Nov. 13, 1923. Serial No. 674,441. 3 Claims. (Cl. 192—85.)

1. A diaphragm air friction device consisting of a cylindrical body member, a diaphragm plate slidably mounted in said body member extending almost to the side walls of said body, a diaphragm across the end of said body and resting against said plate adapted to bag between said side walls and the outside of said diaphragm plate, and a cover member adapted to clamp said diaphragm to said body and guide its end of said diaphragm plate.



1,543,889. LOGGING ENGINE. POWERS A. WICKES, Portland, Oreg., assignor to Willamette Iron and Steel Works, Portland, Oreg. Filed Nov. 26, 1923. Serial No. 676,900. 9 Claims. (Cl. 254—187.)

1. In a logging engine, the combination of a side frame; a gear having a hub journaling in and projecting through said side frame; a shaft mounted in said gear; a drum on said shaft concentric with said gear; fluid actuated friction means between said gear and drum; a cover plate on said hub; and a swivel coupling on said hub adapted to deliver fluid through said cover plate and hub to said friction means.



1,543,890. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR VULCANIZING RUBBER. ROBERT E. WILLIAMS, Roselle, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,408. 11 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)

11. In a vulcanizing apparatus, a rotatable oven, a foraminous reel for receiving the material to be vulcanized symmetrically positioned within said oven and rigidly secured thereto, the common axis of rotation for said oven and reel comprising a hollow conduit having a plurality of openings therethrough, means for admitting steam to the conduit whereby the steam flows through the openings in the conduit and the foraminous portion of the reel to the material to be vulcanized, and means for rotating the oven.

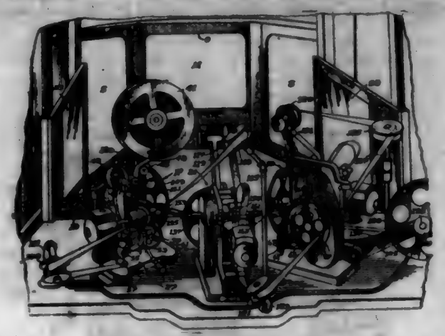
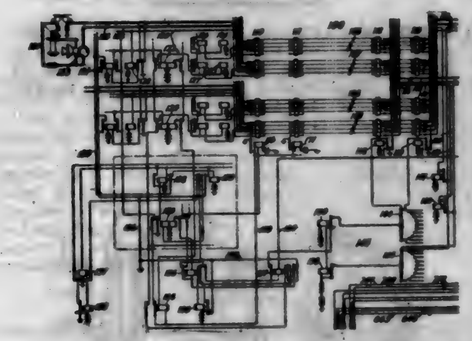
1,543,891. MECHANICAL MOVEMENT AND ENGINE. JOHN C. WILLIAMS, Miami, Fla., assignor to John C. Williams Corporation, Miami, Fla., a Corporation of Florida. Filed Oct. 6, 1924. Serial No. 741,919. 10 Claims. (Cl. 74—54.)



1. A mechanical movement comprising a gear wheel, a lever fulcrumed intermediate its ends with one end in engagement with the teeth of said gear wheel, and mechanism connected with the other end of said lever for moving it through a circle for correspondingly moving the first end of the lever and thereby imparting a step by step movement to the gear wheel.

1,543,892. MOTION-PICTURE-PROJECTOR APPARATUS. EUGENE KING WILLARD, Boston, Mass. Filed Feb. 2, 1923. Serial No. 616,607. 8 Claims. (Cl. 88—24.)



2. Apparatus of the character described comprising, in combination, a plurality of screens, projectors for throwing images on the screens, each of said projectors having an electric motor, and means driven by the motor for feeding a film through the projector; means for guiding the film from one projector to another, and means for causing the film feeding means to advance the film at the same speed irrespective of speed variation tendencies of said motors.

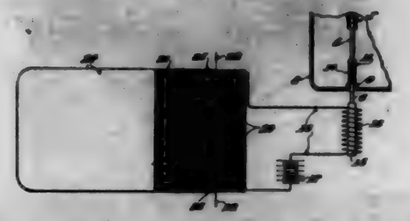
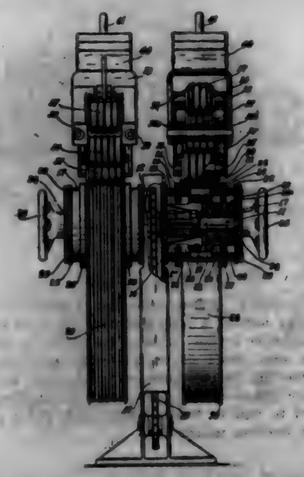
1,543,893. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. SAMUEL B. WILLIAMS, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 31, 1923. Serial No. 629,019. 12 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)



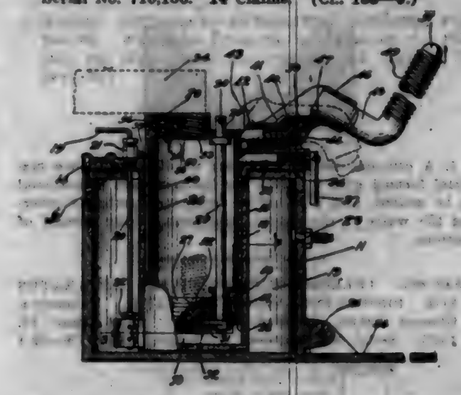
1. In a telephone system, selective switches arranged in groups, means for extending incoming calls to the switches of each group, controlling mechanisms, one for each group of switches comprising a number of register senders and a marker associable with any of said senders, and means controlled by said marker for operating any selective switch of the corresponding group.

1,543,894. DITCHING PLOW. WILLIAM F. WILSON, Tieton, Wash. Filed Sept. 2, 1924. Serial No. 735,877. 2 Claims. (Cl. 97—206.)



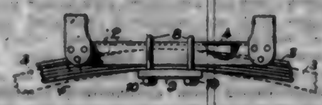
1. A ditching plow blade comprising a concaved upwardly and rearwardly inclined body portion having its concaved surface forwardly directed and a horizontally disposed point integral with the body portion and having its forward edges formed by continuation of the side edges of the body portion, the side edges of the body portion and the forward edges of the point being sharpened, the upper portion of the body formed to provide earth spreading lobes directing earth received from the body to opposite sides of the ditch, each of said lobes having its forward face concaved and extending rearwardly and outwardly from the body portion.

1,543,895. DETONATING MECHANISM. ERASTUS E. WINKLEY, Lynn, Mass. Filed May 6, 1918. Serial No. 232,991. 4 Claims. (Cl. 102—2.)



1. A detonating mechanism for vehicles comprising a hammer, means normally held in condition to actuate the hammer, and a covering member adapted for application to surfaces of the vehicle subject to the action of extraneous force, said covering member being connected with the hammer actuating means in such manner that when a normal condition of a component part of the covering member is destroyed by the action of extraneous force, the hammer actuating means is permitted to perform its hammer actuating function.

1,543,896. TIRE-BUILDING APPARATUS. GEORGE WISE, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The B. F. Goodrich Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 22, 1921. Serial No. 479,540. 2 Claims. (Cl. 154—9.)

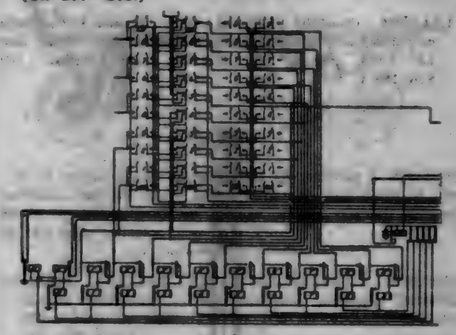


1. Tire-building apparatus comprising a projecting roller adapted to support an annular tire-support hung thereon, a pair of guide rings encircling said roller and adapted to rotate therewith and to engage the opposite sides of said tire-support to position the same, and a right-and-left threaded member for adjusting said rings from and toward each other, said member lying within the circumference of said roller.

1,543,897. PNEUMATIC-PRESSURE DEVICE. JAMES HENRY BAKER, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Edward Westberg, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 30, 1924. Serial No. 710,186. 14 Claims. (Cl. 188—9.)

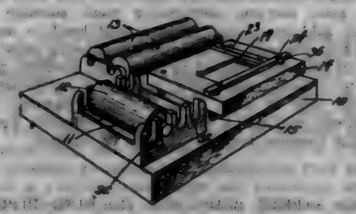
1. In a pneumatic pressure device, means for confining an elastic fluid under pressure, a piston within a cylinder, means for releasing a portion of said elastic fluid beneath said piston to support a load, and means permitting the utilization of said load in effecting a recompression of said elastic fluid.

1,543,898. AUTOMOTIVE-VEHICLE CROSS-SPRING SEAT. ANDREW J. BARRON, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Phoenix Horse Shoe Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Feb. 17, 1923. Serial No. 619,622. 1 Claim. (Cl. 267—52.)



The combination with the rear cross channel of an automobile frame, of an elliptical spring seated in said channel; a bar disposed between said spring and said channel and provided with a longitudinally-curved face the arc of which is of greater radius than that of the spring and, oppositely thereto, with a flat-plane face adapted to bear against the channel and having a longitudinally-extending pocket; a pad disposed in said pocket, insuring a perfectly level bearing of the bar against the channel; and means for securing said spring and bar in assembled relation with said channel.

1,543,899. HAND TOOL. WILLIAM A. BERNARD, New Haven, Conn., assignor to The William Scheilhorn Company, New Haven, Conn. Filed Jan. 27, 1921. Serial No. 440,383. 14 Claims. (Cl. 30—24.)



1. In a fruit clipper, a pair of pivoted lever members, two cooperating jaws operated thereby, and a stop member secured by the pivot of said lever members extending over said jaws to limit the insertion of an object between the jaws and having means thereon to limit the opening movement of the jaws.

1,543,900. TESTING SYSTEM FOR AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SWITCHES. ARNOLD S. BERTHOLD, Tenafly, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 28, 1922. Serial No. 653,125. 24 Claims. (Cl. 179—175.)

1. In a testing system, a testing device, an automatic switch to be tested, control circuits, means to position said switch by means of said control circuits, means to operate said testing device to test said control circuits, apparatus progressively operated during a service connection through auxiliary circuits associated with said switch, and auxiliary testing device and means to test said apparatus, said progressive operation and auxiliary circuits under the control of said auxiliary testing device.

1,543,901. LABELING DEVICE. FRANK P. BICKNELL, Denver, Colo. Filed Apr. 14, 1924. Serial No. 706,418. 4 Claims. (Cl. 216—44.)

1. A labeling device comprising in combination a base; a liquid receptacle mounted on said base; a roller mounted over said receptacle and projecting therewithin; label applying means mounted on said base adjacent said roller and other rollers mounted on said base alongside of said applying means said rollers and said applying means being so arranged that the article being labeled will travel from one to the other without being carried or lifted.

1,543,902. BEARING FOR ROTORS OF RADIO APPARATUS. EDWARD BOARD, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 9, 1923. Serial No. 650,253. 5 Claims. (Cl. 64—54.)

1. The combination in a bearing, of a base having two integral bearing plates at right angles to the base, one of said bearing plates having a perforation; a ball mounted between the plates and resting in the perforation; a spindle extending through the ball; and means for adjusting the plates, one in respect to the other to place more or less friction on the ball.

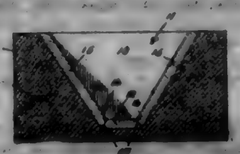
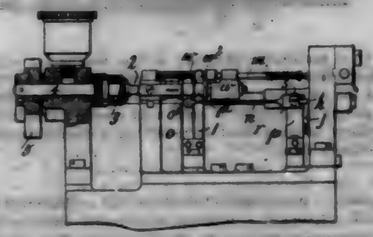
1,543,903. CASING PERFORATOR. HARRY S. CAMERON and JAMES S. ABERCROMBIE, Houston, Tex. Filed Jan. 13, 1923. Serial No. 612,554. 10 Claims. (Cl. 81—188.)



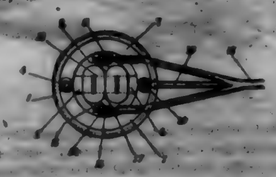
1. In a pipe perforator, an operating and supporting stem, a head thereon, perforating teeth movable outwardly in said head, means below said head to anchor said head in the pipe, a downwardly tapered expanding mandrel in said head, means to force said mandrel downwardly to extend said teeth outwardly comprising a telescoping pipe in said stem having a hammer head at the lower end and a block on said mandrel against which said hammer head is adapted to contact.

1,543,904. SAFETY SLIPS FOR HOLDING PIPE IN WELLS. ARTHUR J. CARR, Houston, Tex. Filed Oct. 22, 1923. Serial No. 669,949. 14 Claims. (Cl. 24—243.)



2. In a device of the character described a bushing adapted to support pipe engaging slips, one short section of which is cut longitudinally and hinged to the body of the bushing, slips in said bushing and a lever opposite said hinged section connected with said slips to raise and lower said slips simultaneously.

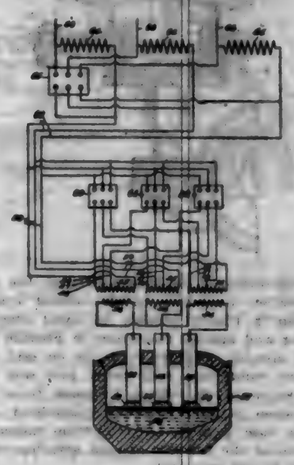
1,543,905. LINED CRUCIBLE. MONROE S. CRAWSON, Upper Montclair, N. J. Filed July 9, 1923. Serial No. 650,371. 5 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)



1. A crucible including a body of high resistance material formed with a cavity for the reception of material to be melted, and a lining of refractory material covering the walls of the cavity, said lining being formed of sections.

1,543,906. TELEGRAPHIC RECEIVING APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING PUNCHED TAPE. FREDERICK GEORGE CREED, Croydon, England. Filed June 18, 1923. Serial No. 646,100. 5 Claims. (Cl. 178—92.)

1. A cable receiver, adapted to reproduce as perforations in a tape, signals according to the Morse cable code, wherein there are associated with a tape feed wheel, two punches that are selectively operated under the control of non-polarized and polarized relays subject to the positive and negative impulses being received, and punch operating mechanism adapted to be connected to and discontinued from a constantly running shaft through starting and driving mechanism and comprising a punch selector, the punch operating mechanism being under the control of the non-polarized relay and the punch selector being under the control of the polarized relay, the arrangement being such that the punch operating mechanism will be brought into action to punch a hole or holes in the tape, under the control of the non-polarized relay, whenever a positive or negative impulse is received, and that the punch selector will, under the control of the polarized relay, be moved in one direction upon the reception of a positive impulse and in the opposite direction upon the reception of a negative impulse, the punch selector remaining in one or other position during the reception of successive impulses of the same polarity, substantially as described for the purpose set forth.



1,543,907. RECEIVER. GEORGE G. CROMARTIE, East Orange, and EINAR W. NIELSEN, Newark, N. J. Filed Aug. 22, 1923. Serial No. 659,859. 16 Claims. (Cl. 179—114.)

9. In a device of the class described including a casing, magnet, core pole pieces, diaphragm and armature piece, a winding for each of said cores, protecting heads for the winding and means on one of the heads for attaching thereto an extremity of the winding and a cord terminal.

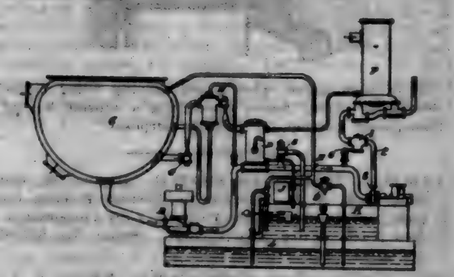
1,543,908. METHOD OF OPERATING ELECTRIC FURNACES. WALDEMAR DYBERGH, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 20, 1922. Serial No. 545,057. 14 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)

1. The method of operating an electric arc furnace which consists in maintaining a substantially or approximately constant E. M. F. at the arc regardless of variations in the transformer voltage and varying the amperage to control the magnitude of the power input.

1,543,909. APPARATUS FOR HEATING AIR AND GASES. WALDEMAR DYBERGH, Tarrytown, N. Y. Filed Feb. 15, 1924. Serial No. 693,021. 15 Claims. (Cl. 263—19.)

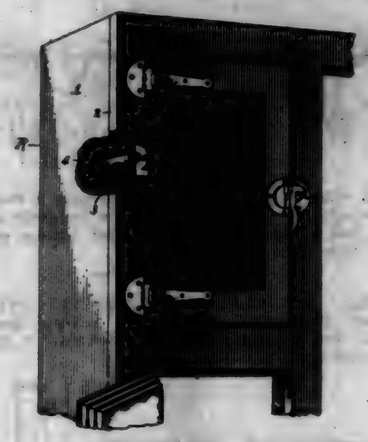


1. An apparatus of the class described comprising a plurality of chambers each having a multiplicity of heat exchanging plates therein and means for automatically passing hot gases in contact with said plates for a determined period and then passing air to be heated in contact therewith for another period.

1,543,910. TRUCK-SOCKET PLATE FOR ROLLER SKATES. GEORGE J. HART, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 28, 1924. Serial No. 728,679. 15 Claims. (Cl. 208—179.)

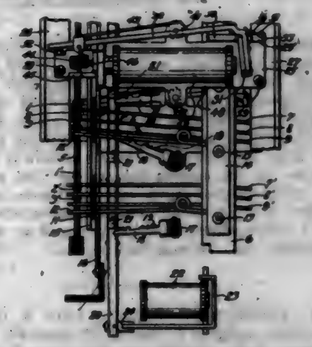
1. A roller skate truck socket comprising a flat body portion adapted to be secured to the foot-plate of the skate, and a separately formed socket portion secured to the body portion.

1,543,911. BOILER-FEED-WATER-SUPPLY SYSTEM. HARRY FOTHERGILL, Westminster, London, England. Filed Nov. 2, 1922. Serial No. 598,591. 7 Claims. (Cl. 257—24.)



1. A steam condensing and boiler feed water system comprising a condenser, a boiler feed pump to which condensate from the condenser flows, and an automatically operating throttle valve arranged in the system on the discharge side of the feed pump, said throttle valve operating automatically to throttle the supply of water from the feed pump to the boilers if and when the pressure on the suction side of the feed pump falls below a predetermined value and to remove said throttling effect if and when said pressure rises again, whereby a substantially uniform pressure is maintained on the suction side of said feed pump.

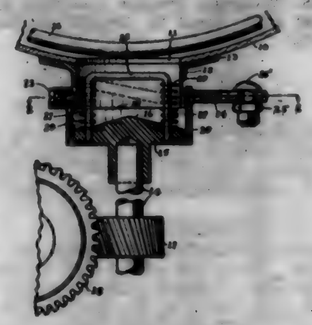
1,543,912. DOORCHECK STRAP. JOHN R. GAMMETER, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The B. F. Goodrich Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 15, 1923. Serial No. 612,820. 9 Claims. (Cl. 16—82.)



1. A door-check strap comprising a relatively-thin and wide, rubberized, fabric, foundation belt having its sides vulcanized together and looped at the end of the strap to form an eye for receiving an anchoring member, the body of the strap in at least a portion of its length being highly flexible to permit bending.

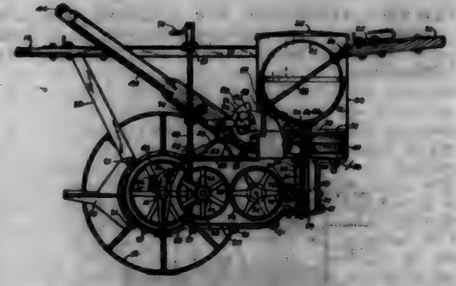
1,543,913. MEANS FOR SHOWING WALL FILLINGS. JAMES LEONARD GILLARD, Muskegon, Mich., assignor to The Alaska Refrigerator Company, Muskegon, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Dec. 24, 1923. Serial No. 682,594. 4 Claims. (Cl. 217—36.)

1. In combination with a wall having filling material therein, a display means comprising a capsule having a transparent portion for viewing purposes.



1,543,914. TELEPHONE SWITCH. HAROLD W. GOFF, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 1, 1923. Serial No. 635,903. 5 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.5.)

1. In a telephone switch structure, the combination of disengaged contacts, an operating member therefor, a plurality of plates arranged to loosely support said member, an arm fixedly arranged on said member, an armature supporting member loosely supported on one of said plates and lying in a plane substantially parallel to the length of said arm and arranged to engage said arm, and a magnet armature fixedly arranged on said supporting member for operating said operating member to cause interengagement of said contacts.

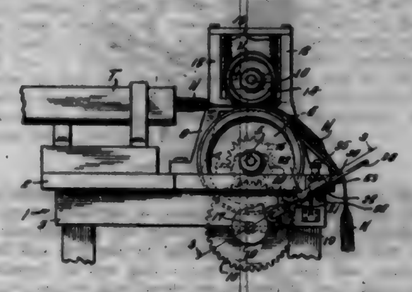


1,543,915. DUSTING APPARATUS. LEE B. GREEN, Lakewood, Ohio, assignor to The Globe Machine and Stamping Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 8, 1923. Serial No. 661,584. 6 Claims. (Cl. 221—120.)

1. In apparatus of the class described, the combination of a container having a discharge opening, a rotary member opposed to said opening and spaced therefrom to provide an annular opening through which the material may be discharged, a pin carried by said member and projecting into said discharge opening, and a member loosely arranged on said pin and rotatable thereon to agitate and break up the material in said discharge opening.

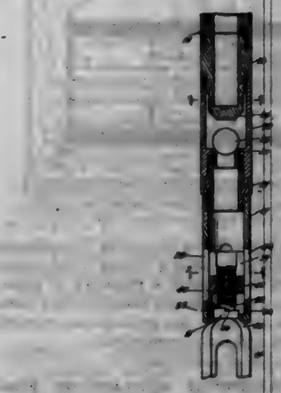
6. In apparatus of the class described, the combination of a container having a tubular outlet attachment in the bottom, a rotary member in axial alignment with said outlet and spaced therefrom to provide an annular discharge opening, a sleeve rotatable on said attachment, cam means connecting said sleeve and said attachment adapted to cause the sleeve to move to or from said member when rotated on said attachment, and means carried by said member and rotatable thereon arranged to run around the interior of said attachment to agitate and break up the material.

1,543,916. DUSTING APPARATUS. LEE B. GREEN, Lakewood, Ohio, assignor to The Globe Machine and Stamping Company, Cuyahoga, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 8, 1923. Serial No. 661,585. 3 Claims. (Cl. 43—148.)



1. In apparatus of the class described, the combination of a frame, a supporting wheel, a reservoir having a substantially hemispherical bottom with an outlet, an agitating ring in said reservoir, a shaft on which said ring is mounted, a blower beneath said reservoir having an intake surrounding said outlet and into which said outlet discharges, a vertical impeller shaft for said blower having an upward extension which carries an agitator arranged in said outlet, and gearing for driving said shafts from said wheel.

1,543,917. AUTOMATIC CUTTER FOR CUTTING A TUBULAR GAUZE COVERING FOR SANITARY NAPKINS. CHRISTOPHER G. GUIGNARD, Columbia, S. C. Filed June 6, 1924. Serial No. 718,416. 1 Claim. (Cl. 164—42.)



In an automatic cutter for cutting tubular gauze covering for sanitary napkins, the combination of a knife-edge, a knife fulcrumed on one end of said knife-edge and adapted to cooperate therewith to cut the material, a spring connected with the shank of the knife to normally hold the knife in open position, cam controlled means adapted to move the knife to a closed position at regular intervals, a cam, a roller riding on said cam, a rod connected to the hub of said cam, a sleeve in which the rod is slidably mounted, said sleeve being operatively connected to the shank of the knife, and a spring contained within the sleeve and bearing on the end of the slidable rod.

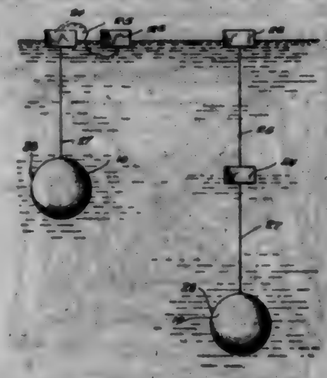
1,543,918. STANDING VALVE CONNECTION. ROBERT W. GUNN and WILLIS A. S. THOMPSON, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Dec. 1, 1924. Serial No. 753,403. 6 Claims. (Cl. 103—180.)

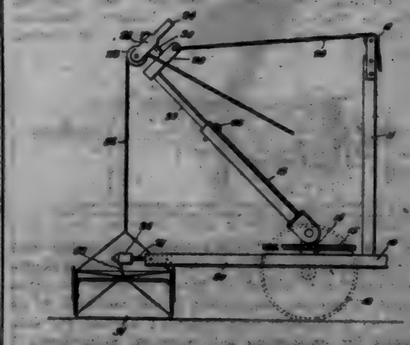


1. In combination, a plunger element and a standing valve, a threaded shank on the standing valve, a grip on the plunger element adapted to engage said shank threadably, and means adapted to prevent the grip from being threaded into binding engagement with the valve and its shank.

1,543,919. EXCELSIOR KNIFE. HARRY A. HARIGHORST, Portsmouth, Va. Filed May 4, 1923. Serial No. 636,582. 4 Claims. (Cl. 144—241.)

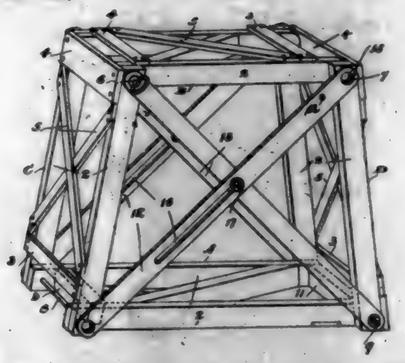
1. An excelsior knife having a flat inclined edge of the inclined end, and separated corrugations extending rearwardly from the forward end, cutting teeth at the forward teeth.

1,543,920. MINE. CLARENCE N. HICKMAN, New York, N. Y. Filed May 17, 1924. Serial No. 714,099. 7 Claims. (Cl. 102—8.)



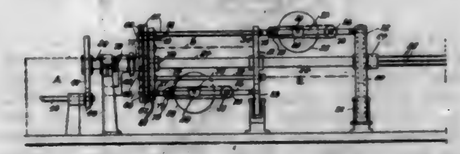
1. In combination with a member adapted to be suspended at a predetermined depth below the surface in which it is immersed, a ballast chamber, means for admitting fluid to said ballast chamber and hydrostatically controlled means for stopping the admission of fluid thereto after the member has reached a predetermined depth and means including a float adapted to prevent a further sinking of said member.

1,543,921. METALLIC ALLOY. BERT MACE HUFF, Detroit, Mich., assignor of one-third to Harold A. Arnold, Detroit, Mich., and one-third to Maurice B. Fitzgerald, Pontiac, Mich. Filed Jan. 28, 1924. Serial No. 689,149. 7 Claims. (Cl. 75—1.)



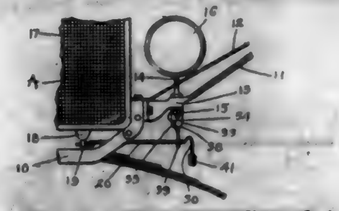
1. A metallic alloy conthining as the principal ingredient substantial amounts of cobalt, chromium and tungsten totaling not less than 70% together with relatively small amounts of manganese and silicon, the cobalt not exceeding 50%, the chromium not exceeding 35% and the tungsten not exceeding 15%.

1,543,922. PULLEY STRUCTURE FOR TRENCH-FILLING MACHINES. WALTER G. HUMPHREYS and OMAR B. HUMPHREYS, Omaha, Nebr. Filed Nov. 3, 1924. Serial No. 747,611. 3 Claims. (Cl. 37—144.)



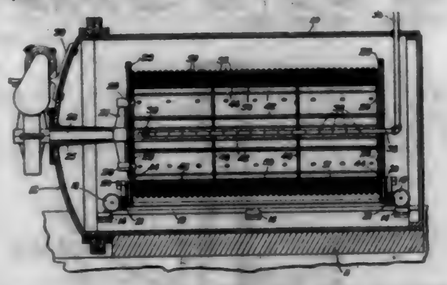
1. In a trench filling machine having an out rigger, a boom, a shovel, and cables connected to the opposite ends of the shovel, a counterweighted pulley on the outer end of the out rigger for receiving one of said cables thereover, a head on the outer end of the boom having an offset pin thereon, and a second counterweighted pulley pivotally mounted on said pin and adapted to receive the other cable thereover.

1,543,923. COLLAPSIBLE BOX OR CRATE. VICTOR THOMAS HUNTER, Bradford, Ontario, Canada. Filed Apr. 8, 1924. Serial No. 704,908. 3 Claims. (Cl. 217—47.)



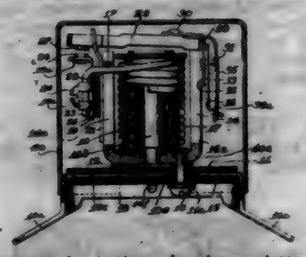
1. A structure of the class described comprising a bottom frame; a first end frame hinged at its lower end to one end of said bottom frame to straddle same; a second end frame hinged to the other end of said bottom frame to straddle same, and adapted to fold over said bottom frame; a top frame hinged at one end to the upper end of said first-mentioned end frame and within the same; a first brace at each side of said structure each hinged at its lower end to the hinging means for said second-mentioned end frame, each brace adapted to be removably coupled to the hinging means coupling said top frame to said first-mentioned end frame; a second brace located at each side of said structure; means pivoting the lower end of each of said second-mentioned brace to the lower end of said first-mentioned end frame; means adapted to couple each pair of braces together to permit of the manipulation of said first-mentioned braces through the medium of said second-mentioned braces, and a coupling device passing through the upper end of each of the said second-mentioned braces and through the overlapping ends of said second-mentioned end frame and said top frame.

1,543,924. ROPE-UNTWISTING MACHINERY. PETER BURD JAGGER, deceased, late of London, England, by Mary Pauline Jagger, executrix, London, and Thomas Clark Harding, Cleckheaton, England; said Harding assignor to Mary Pauline Jagger, London, England. Filed Jan. 11, 1924. Serial No. 685,719. 20 Claims. (Cl. 117—1.)



1. For the purpose of mechanically untwisting and reeling the strands of a rope or the like, or the separate wires or yarns of a strand, or group of wires or yarns of a strand, a machine comprising spools mounted so as to revolve on a common axis, gripping devices for said rope, means for untwisting said rope, a main drive, a drive for revolving said spools, a drive normally acting as a positive gear drive for rotating said spools on their own axes, a slipping component interposed in said drive of rotation, which said slipping component allows the bobbins to slow down or even stop altogether, whenever and as often as and according as the resistance to winding grows abnormal, and means for preserving horizontally of said spools.

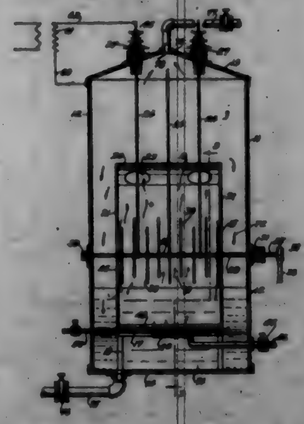
1,543,925. RADIATOR ATTACHMENT. ROBERT S. JURGENS, St. Paul, Minn., assignor of one-half to Julius Jurgens, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Feb. 25, 1924. Serial No. 694,964. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—139.)



As an article of manufacture, a radiator drain pet-cock operating means comprising a rod adapted to be pivotally attached to the pet-cock, the opposite end of the rod adapted to be supported by the free end of a bracket, said rod end having a loop and an extension from said loop to receive the thumb and fingers respectively, for opening the pet-cock, and a weight at the extremity of the rod to return the pet-cock to its closed position.

1,543,926. METHOD OF VULCANIZING RUBBER AND SIMILAR MATERIALS. ARCHIE R. KEMP, Towaco, N. J., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,541. 11 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)

7. The method of vulcanising a strand of vulcanisable material, which consists in forming a strand in separated convolutions of a helix arranged in a plurality of superposed layers separated by foraminous material, and passing a heating medium through the foraminous material and the spaces between adjacent convolutions.



1,543,927. CUT-OUT ASSEMBLY. OTTO KRESTEN, Highland Park, Mich. Filed Oct. 14, 1921. Serial No. 507,782. 21 Claims. (Cl. 200—87.)

1. In cut-outs for battery charging systems, a magnet formation including a core-carrying member of U-shaped configuration and a pair of windings of fine and coarse wire characteristic and having a hinged armature movable to make and break the circuit through the coarse wire winding, and a support for said formation, said support comprising a cup-shaped sheet metal member having means to permit mounting upon a generator casing, an insulating member of sheet form positioned on the outer side of the bottom of the cup, a sheet metal terminal positioned on said insulating member and in underlying relation to and in contact with said core-carrying member, said terminal having a connection with one end of the fine wire winding, and means for securing said cup member, insulating member, terminal and core-carrying member into a unitary formation, said means including a screw having its head within the cup and its shank passed through the cup, the insulating member and terminal and threaded to the core-carrying member, said screw being insulated from the cup-member.

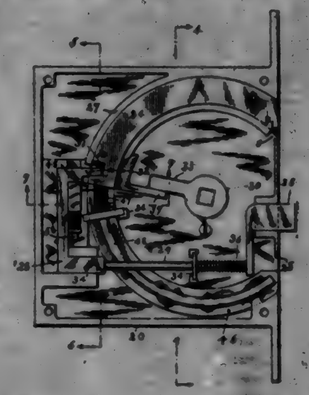
1,543,928. ELECTRICAL DEHYDRATOR. RECTOR B. LAND, Houston, Tex., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company, a Corporation of California. Filed Aug. 4, 1923. Serial No. 655,694. 18 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)



1. In a dehydrator, the combination of: a shell; a horizontal shaft extending within said shell; means for rotating said shaft; rotating flat plate electrodes mounted substantially evenly spaced along said shaft so as to rotate therewith; stationary electrodes disposed between said rotating electrodes; and means for impressing an electric potential between said stationary electrodes and said rotating electrodes.

1,543,929. DOORLOCK WITH AUTOMATIC INTERLOCKING BOLT. CLIVE W. LANPHEAR, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 25, 1922. Serial No. 563,645. 29 Claims. (Cl. 70—14.)

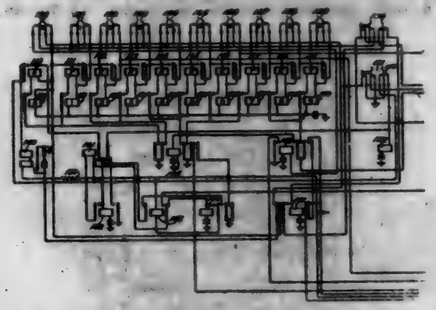
1. A door-lock having a bolt curved on an arc of a circle, a casing having means for projecting the bolt from its face and means for retracting said bolt, a guard formed in two parts, one having a foot to secure upon the door-jamb and the other having a flange attached to the door-jamb and a plane face having apertures in the foot-piece, the foot-piece and the flange having overlapping parts provided with means for adjustment in different positions, and the packing-plates adapted to fit between the flange and the door-jamb when the said flange is adjusted as desired.

1,543,930. INTERLOCKING AUTOMATIC LOCK. CLIVE W. LANPHEAR, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 6, 1923. Serial No. 617,235. 62 Claims. (Cl. 70—46.)

1. The combination, with a lock having an arc-bolt movable into and out of its face, of means to project the bolt, means to hold the bolt in its projected position, means to retract the bolt, means to hold the bolt in its retracted position, and a guard having adjustable parts for varying the relative positions of the lock and guard.

62. A lock comprising a casing, a bolt movable in a curved path and carried by said casing, and a cylinder lock for actuating said bolt, said cylinder lock having the casing thereof extended into the lock casing.

1,543,931. THEATRICAL ILLUSION. HARRY ROBERT LAW, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 19, 1925. Serial No. 3,302. 2 Claims. (Cl. 272—10.)

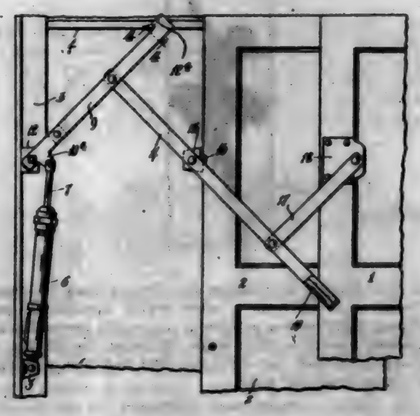


1. The method of creating the illusion that an object is being removed from a scene which consists in projecting a light upon a portion of a movable screen having a phosphorescent surface while throwing the shadow of the object thereon, removing the light and then removing the screen from the scene.

1,543,932. USE OF COLLOIDAL SULPHUR AND LATEX. CHAUNCEY C. LOOMIS, Yonkers, and HORACE B. STUMP, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors, by mesne assignments, to The Heven Corporation, a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 26, 1923. Serial No. 634,902. 8 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)

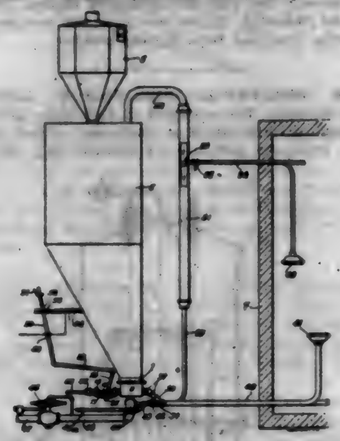
1. The process of manufacturing rubber, which comprises introducing sulphur in colloidal form into a natural latex, and subsequently vulcanising.

1,543,933. TESTING DEVICE FOR TELEPHONE-EXCHANGE SYSTEMS. ERIC R. LUNDIUS, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 8, 1923. Serial No. 637,417. 48 Claims. (Cl. 179—175.)



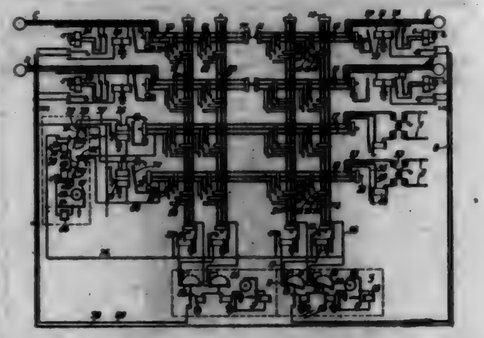
2. In a telephone exchange system, a plurality of line switches, a testing device, a plurality of automatic switches to select line switches, means to associate said testing device successively with said automatic switches, and means in said testing device for conducting tests on said line switches.

1,543,934. PREPARATION OF BAUXITE. ALMER MCDUFFIE MCAFEE, Port Arthur, Tex., assignor to Gulf Refining Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Texas. Filed Mar. 10, 1922, Serial No. 542,502. Renewed Apr. 29, 1925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 23—86.)



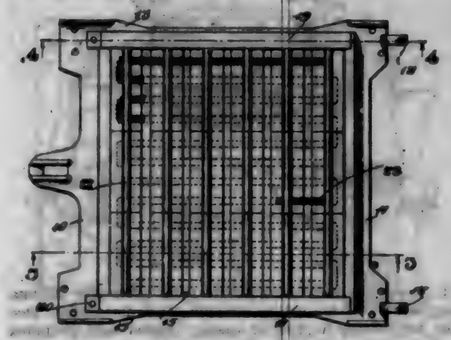
1. In the preparation of bauxite for the manufacture of aluminum chlorid therefrom the process which comprises dehydrating the bauxite at a temperature below that at which substantial shrinkage takes place and then catalytically depositing carbon in its pores.

1,543,935. ELEVATOR-DOOR CLOSER AND CHECK. OSCAR P. MCGEE, Dallas, Tex. Filed Feb. 14, 1922. Serial No. 536,464. 1 Claim. (Cl. 268—8.)



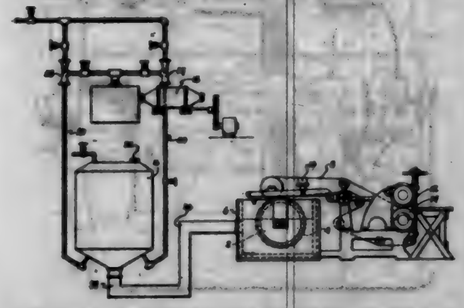
In combination with a pair of sliding doors, a fixed bracket, a bar, a pin carried by the bracket and on which the outer end of the bar is pivoted, an arm and a check bar each pivoted at their outer ends on said pin, the inner end of the check bar being pivoted to a central point on the arm, a check device connected to said check bar, a lever, means to pivotally connect the outer end of the lever to said first bar and to connect the inner end of said arm to the lever and first bar, means to pivotally connect said lever at an intermediate point to one of the doors, and a bar pivoted at one end to the other door and pivoted at its opposite end to the lever between the intermediate pivot of the lever and the opposite end of the lever.

1,543,936. PULVERIZED-COAL FEEDER. ARCHIBALD S. MCMILLAN, St. Louis, Mo., and GEORGE W. WHIPPLE, Cherryvale, Kans. Filed Oct. 21, 1921. Serial No. 509,358. 1 Claim. (Cl. 110—104.)



The combination with a feed hopper and a furnace of means below the hopper for creating a suction to withdraw pulverized fuel from the bottom of said hopper, a substantially horizontal feed nozzle movable longitudinally to control the volume of fuel withdrawn by suction from the hopper and means for supplying an auxiliary stream of air at a pressure slightly greater than that of atmosphere to assist the furnace draft in drawing the fuel thereto and to promote combustion.

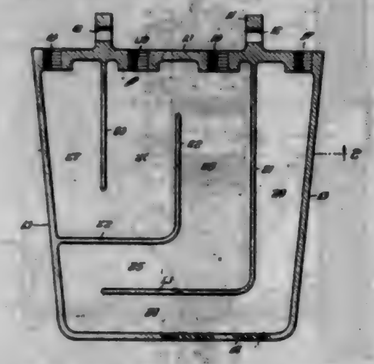
1,543,937. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE-EXCHANGE SYSTEM. JAMES L. MCQUARRIE, New York, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 28, 1921. Serial No. 518,326. 13 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)



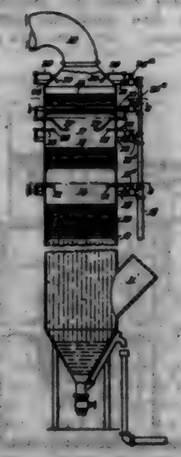
1. In a switching system, a unitary switching apparatus comprising sets of incoming line conductors, sets of link conductors primarily accessible from said sets of incoming conductors, sets of outgoing conductors, means for preselecting an idle set of link conductors, means for preselecting an idle set of outgoing conductors, and means for connecting any set of incoming line conductors with an idle one of any of said sets of outgoing conductors through an idle set of link conductors.

1,543,938. ELECTRIC-STOVE HEATER ELEMENT. ROBERT H. MACINNES, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, assignor to D. Moore Company, Limited, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Filed Feb. 9, 1925. Serial No. 7,904. 8 Claims. (Cl. 219—37.)

1. In a device of the kind described, a supporting plate having slots extending inwardly from its edge, and heating element supporting bars each having a base provided with channels in its side edges to receive the edges of the plate at the side of the slots, said bars being engaged in said slots.



1,543,939. PROCESS OF TREATING SEWAGE. ANGUS MACLACHLAN, Perth Amboy, N. J., assignor to Maclachlan Reduction Process Co., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 11, 1922. Serial No. 543,108. 13 Claims. (Cl. 71—8.)

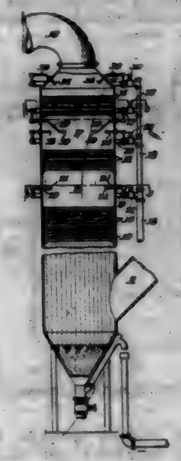


1. The process of treating sewage, which consists in separating the sludge therefrom, sterilising the sludge, and then gathering the solid contents of the sludge upon a sheet-forming screen, removing the sheet from the screen and squeezing the water therefrom.

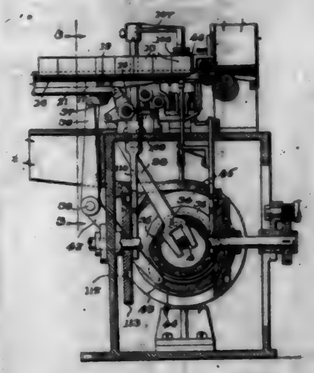
1,543,940. WATER-COOLED BOSH PLATE. WALTHER MATHESIUS, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 19, 1920. Serial No. 397,430. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—6.)

A bosh plate comprising a substantially rectangular box tapered from its outer end to its inner end and having a back wall provided with a water inlet at one end thereof and a water outlet at the opposite end of the back wall, said back wall also being provided with intermediate plugged openings, a baffle plate leading from the back wall and terminating short of the opposite wall and located between the inlet opening and the adjacent plugged opening, said baffle having a terminal extension disposed at substantially right angles to the baffle and leading towards the opposite side of the bosh plate, a second baffle plate leading from the back wall and disposed between the outlet opening and the adjacent intermediate opening, and a transverse baffle disposed between the second mentioned baffle and the extension of the first mentioned baffle and leading from one of the side walls of the bosh plate, said transverse baffle having a terminal extension disposed at substantially right angles thereto and lying opposite the interval between the plugged openings, said baffles defining a continuous undivided and unobstructed water passage from the inlet opening to the outlet opening and occupying the entire interior area of the bosh plate, said water passage being of substantially uniform cross sectional area throughout its length.

1,543,941. APPARATUS FOR CLEANING GAS. WALTHER MATHESIUS, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 5, 1922. Serial No. 566,091. 9 Claims. (Cl. 261—111.)



1. In combination, a gas washer comprising a gas container having a gas inlet and a gas outlet, and spraying means adapted to spray a liquid for forming a vortex of cleansing liquid in said container extending across its entire cross-sectional area whereby all of the gas passing through the container is subjected to the washing action of the vortex.



1,543,942. METHOD FOR CLEANING GAS. WALTHER MATHESIUS, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 5, 1922. Serial No. 566,092. 8 Claims. (Cl. 183—121.)

1. In the method of cleaning gas which consists in conducting the gas through a container and causing the entire body of gas to pass through a whirling vortex of cleansing fluid, the said vortex extending over the entire cross sectional area of said container in a predetermined plane, the cross-sectional area being substantially unobstructed in such plane.

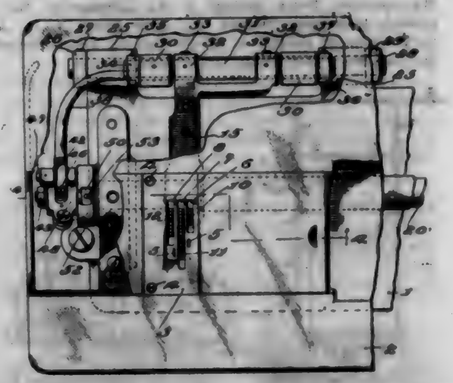
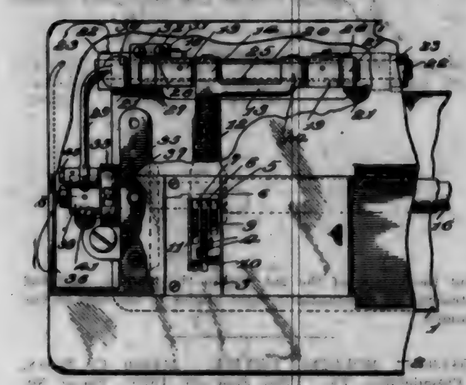
1,543,943. CONVEYER. MICHAEL J. MILMOE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to F. B. Redington Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Original application filed Mar. 31, 1919, Serial No. 286,345. Divided and this application filed Sept. 15, 1920. Serial No. 410,400¼. 6 Claims. (Cl. 198—219.)



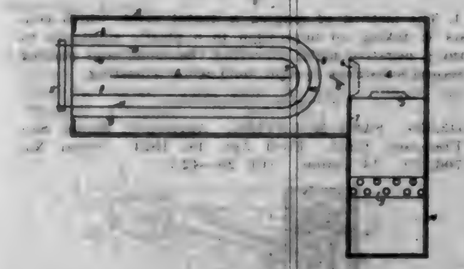
1. In combination, an elongated support for articles to be fed, an abutment member for engaging an article at the end of a series upon said support, means for shifting said support into and out of engagement with said articles, and means for moving said support in the direction of said abutment member while the articles are engaged by said support the movement of said support toward said abutment serving to grip the endmost article between said abutment and the next adjacent article to support said endmost article when said elongated support is shifted out of engagement with said endmost article.

1,543,944. TIRE-FABRIC-STRIPPING MACHINE. HARRIET B. MITCHELL, Detroit, Mich. Filed Feb. 26, 1924. Serial No. 695,842. 4 Claims. (Cl. 154—8.)

1. Means for recovering fabric from outer tire casings, comprising a reciprocatory stripping instrumentality, feed rolls for forcing a piece of casing against said stripping instrumentality, and means adapted for simultaneously revolving said rolls and reciprocating said stripping instrumentality.



1,543,945. FEEDING MECHANISM FOR SEWING MACHINES. JAMES R. MOFFATT, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Union Special Machine Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,571. 9 Claims. (Cl. 112—210.)

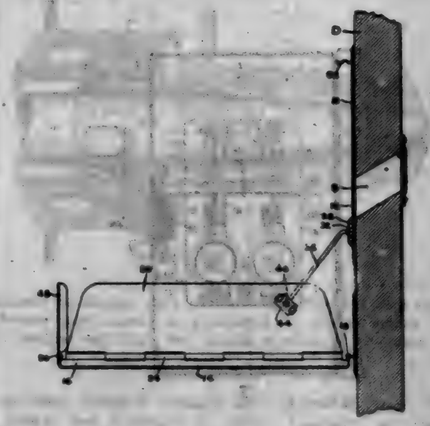


1. A feeding mechanism for sewing machines including in combination a work support having feed slots therein, a feed dog mounted beneath the work support and having fabric engaging sections extending through said slots, means for raising and lowering the feed dog, means for moving the feed dog back and forth, said last named means including adjustable devices for varying the working position of the fabric engaging sections of the feed dog without changing the length of the feed stroke, whereby the same may be centered longitudinally of the respective slots in which said sections operate.

1,543,946. FEEDING MECHANISM FOR SEWING MACHINES. JAMES R. MOFFATT, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Union Special Machine Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,572. 4 Claims. (Cl. 112—210.)

1. In a sewing machine, the combination of a work support having feed slots and a feeding mechanism including a feed dog having fabric engaging sections working in said slots, a feed bar to which said feed dog is attached, means for raising and lowering said feed bar, a feed rocker to which said bar is connected, an arm, means for connecting said arm to the feed rocker, and means for oscillating the arm for imparting feed movements to the feed dog, said connecting means for the arm and rocker being such as to permit the working position of the feed rocker to be shifted forwardly or rearwardly for centering the feed dog lengthwise of the feed slots, the length of the stroke remaining the same.

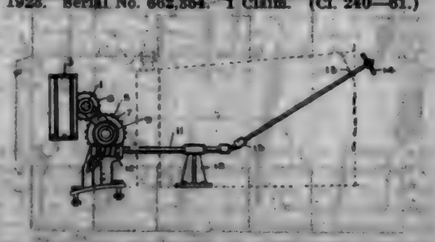
1,543,947. APPARATUS FOR THE DEHYDRATION OF VEGETABLE PRODUCE. CHARLES C. MOORE, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Aug. 13, 1923. Serial No. 657,204. 13 Claims. (Cl. 34—46.)



1. In a dehydration apparatus, the combination of plural enclosures adapted to receive produce to be dried therein, an air passage common to the said enclosures, means for sending air under pressure through the said air passage and on through the said enclosures, an air passage for returning the air to the intake of the said means for sending air under pressure, and means for moving the same produce that is being dried toward the passing air in one of the said enclosures and in the direction of the passing air in another of the said enclosures.

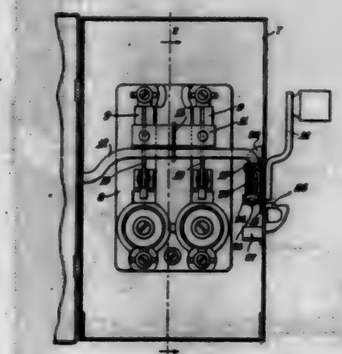
1,543,948. PROCESS OF PRODUCING FRUIT CAKES. CHARLES C. MOORE, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Feb. 2, 1924. Serial No. 690,307. 4 Claims. (Cl. 99—11.)

1. The process of treating commercially died prunes which comprises removing the pod and comminuting the meat substance of the prune, shaping the comminuted substance into cakes, and subjecting the cakes to a drying temperature that is below the inversion point of fruit sugars until the cakes are substantially dry.



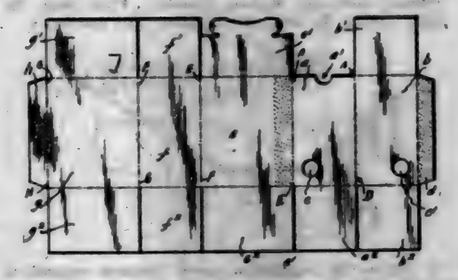
1,543,949. FOLDING MAIL BOX. ADOLPH W. OLSON, Mahnomen, Minn. Filed May 7, 1924. Serial No. 711,902. 5 Claims. (Cl. 232—17.)

1. A folding mail-box comprising a bottom member, means for hingedly attaching said bottom member at one end to a door having a slot therein, side walls movably attached to said bottom member, means for causing said side walls to assume an upwardly-projecting position when the device is unfolded and whereby said side walls assume a depressed position when the device is swung up over said slot, and an end wall attached to the free end of said bottom member.



1,543,950. [WITHDRAWN.]

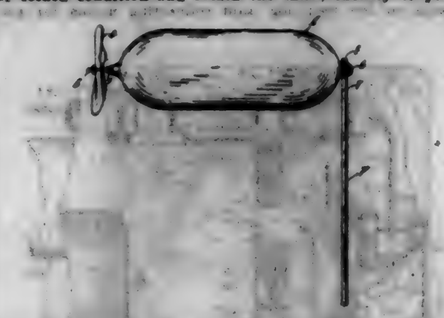
1,543,951. AUTOMOBILE HEADLIGHT. GEORGE PIERCE, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Sept. 12, 1923. Serial No. 662,354. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—61.)



In automobile headlights spaced brackets secured to the frame of the machine and having inclined upper portions and provided at the ends of the same with upper and lower bearings, upper and lower transverse shafts mounted in the said bearings and located in advance of the engine hood, lamps mounted upon the upper transverse shaft, intermeshing gears fixed to the shafts, a worm wheel located at one end of the lower transverse shaft and connected therewith, adjacent one of the said brackets, and operating shaft composed of a horizontal front portion and an inclined rear portion and provided with a connecting universal joint the horizontal front portion of the operating shaft being mounted below the worm wheel in the adjacent bracket, a worm mounted upon the said horizontal portion of the operating shaft and meshing with the worm wheel and adapted to be rotated by the operating shaft to partially rotate the said transverse shafts and tilt the lamps from an upright position and return them to said position.

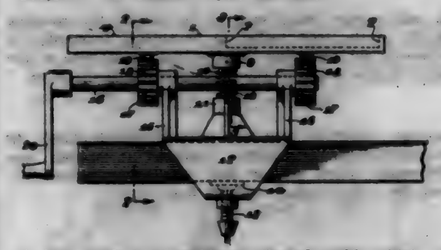
1,543,952. ELECTRIC SWITCH. CLARENCE D. PLATT, Bridgeport, Conn. Filed Jan. 10, 1925. Serial No. 1,560. 7 Claims. (Cl. 200—73.)

1. A safety switch comprising a casing, a knife blade switch mounted therein, an oscillating crank connected to the switch blades, an oscillating plate operator having spaced-apart projections for engaging opposite sides of one arm of said crank, a spring, and means for connecting said crank arm to said plate to compress said spring when the plate is being operated to open the switch.



1,543,953. CARTON. DAVID THEODORE ROTHSCHILD, Portland, Oreg. Filed May 18, 1922. Serial No. 562,007. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—17.)

1. A carton, made of a single sheet of cardboard, comprising a plurality of adjacent sections foldable on parallel lines to form the sides of the carton, one of the outer sections being folded inward against the inner face of the adjacent section so as to overlie the latter and form therewith a slideway, the last mentioned sections being provided with coinciding apertures, and an imperforate slide for closing said apertures.



1,543,954. TOY BALLOON. JOHN W. SHIMA, Ravenna, Ohio, assignor to The Oak Rubber Company, Ravenna, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 19, 1922. Serial No. 582,842. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—37.)

1. In a toy balloon construction, the combination with a bladder having an inflating neck and a handle in the form of a rod provided with a slot at one end thereof which is adapted to receive said inflating neck in twisted or folded condition and retain the same, thereby to prevent the escape of the gas within the bladder, said rod extending at substantially right angles to the axis of the bladder.

1,543,955. MOLDING DEVICE. ALFRED C. SLOAN, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed June 24, 1920. Serial No. 391,414. 12 Claims. (Cl. 22—45.)

1. The method of making a dental mold, which consists in taking an impression in a plastic substance to form a negative mold, vibrating the mold, and placing a second substance in said mold while vibrating.

1,543,956. SASH MOUNTING. ARTHUR C. SOCIA, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Apr. 14, 1924. Serial No. 706,259. 14 Claims. (Cl. 20—42.)

1. A window construction comprising a frame; guides on opposite sides thereof; slide shoes engaging said guides; a sash in said frame pivotally connected at corresponding points on opposite sides to the slide shoes; means pivotally connected at corresponding points to the opposite sides of said sash and slidably and pivotally related to said guides, for supporting the sash; support guides on opposite sides of said window frame; and slide shoes pivoted to said sash supporting means and slidably confined in said support guides.

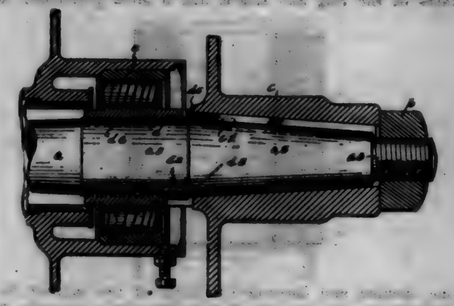
1,543,957. TRELLISING HOOK. EDWARD STEINER, Auburn, Wash. Filed Mar. 27, 1924. Serial No. 702,178. 1 Claim. (Cl. 47—47.)

A device of the class described comprising double hook-shaped members attached to and extending from a main stem, each hook-shaped member embodying two hooks formed of one piece of material having its central portion connected to the main stem by twisting both the hook-shaped member and the stem; and suitable means at the ends of the main stem for attaching it to other supporting means.



1,543,958. TRAILER FOR VEHICLES. BENJAMIN DAVID SUTHERLAND and WILLIAM ERNEST SAMUEL, Llanelly, Wales. Filed Mar. 20, 1924. Serial No. 700,705. 3 Claims. (Cl. 280—151.)

1. A trailer having in combination, a chassis, a casing carried by the chassis, a driving shaft adapted to be rotated by a crank handle, a counter-shaft, and a sliding intermediate shaft mounted in bearings in the casing, toothed gearing adapted to connect the three said shafts, two grooves in the intermediate shaft, a pivoted plate adapted to engage with either groove in the intermediate shaft, a handle on the intermediate shaft, a chain wheel on the counter-shaft, rear carrying wheels for the trailer, a chain wheel fixed to a rear carrying wheel, and a chain connecting the two chain wheels, substantially as set forth.

1,543,959. SLEEVE FOR BEARINGS. HORACE T. THOMAS, Lansing, Mich. Filed Nov. 4, 1921. Serial No. 512,716. 6 Claims. (Cl. 308—236.)

1. The combination of an axle having the cylindrical portion a^2 and the conical portion a^3 coaxial with each other, and a sleeve adapted to fit upon said cylindrical portion of the axle and having an end of lesser diameter adapted to engage upon the conical portion of said axle whereby said sleeve is positioned by the co-action of its smaller end and the conical portion of the axle.

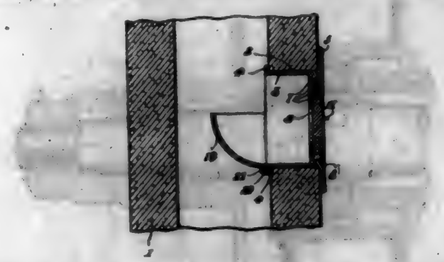
1,543,960. INSECT GUARD AND MUZZLE. JOHN R. TOBIN and CHARLES J. TOBIN, Langford, S. Dak. Filed Oct. 14, 1924. Serial No. 743,560. 1 Claim. (Cl. 54—80.)

A device for protecting the mouths of animals from attacks of insects including a single piece of flexible material having a bottom and imperforate side walls, and a rigid front wall meeting the side and bottom walls at approximately right angles and having a single horizontal line of saliva escape openings formed through and extending longitudinally of the lower portion thereof, said bottom wall having saliva escape openings adjacent the front wall.



1,543,961. REAGENT. GERRIT JOHN VAN ZOMEREN and EDWARD JOHN DE PEMA, Holland, Mich. Filed May 7, 1923. Serial No. 637,266. 8 Claims. (Cl. 23—230.)

4. As a new product, a dry, non-hygroscopic and water-soluble reagent made up of copper sulphate and other ingredients which may be brought together into an intimate physical mixture without causing decomposition of the copper sulphate in the presence of atmospheric air; said reagent, when dissolved in the proper amount of water, forming a solution reacting similarly to Fehling's solution and useful for the same purposes.

1,543,962. COMBINED FLUE STOPPER AND STOVE-PIPE SUPPORT. JOHN WALENTOWIC, Verona, Pa., assignor of one-half to Stephen Mack, Oakmont, Pa. Filed June 30, 1923. Serial No. 648,811. 1 Claim. (Cl. 126—319.)

In a stove pipe support and flue stopper, a support embodying a sleeve, and flanges carried by the sleeve with a wall of the chimney construction positioned between the end flanges for anchoring the sleeve in position and a plurality of interlocking rings removably mounted in one end of the sleeve, the connection between the outer ring and sleeve including registering openings in the adjacent contacting faces of the ring and sleeve with the openings bounded by the opposite faces of the ring and sleeve, and a latch positioned in one opening and operable exteriorly of the support for partially moving the latch into the other opening to lock the rings in the sleeve.

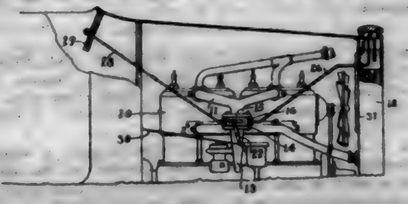
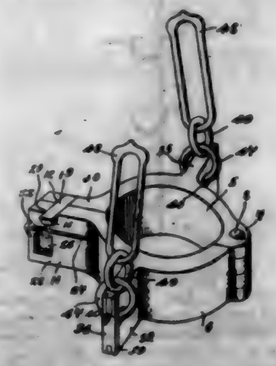
1,543,963. METALLIC PACKING. JULIAN N. WALTON, New York, N. Y., assignor to Crane Packing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 25, 1923. Serial No. 653,673. 4 Claims. (Cl. 288—1.)



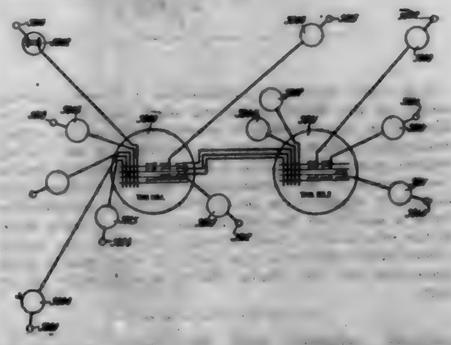
1. A metallic packing ring formed of coaxial substantially cylindrical layers of metal deformed to a substantially continuous ring having smooth walls and an internal plaited structure presenting interfitting folds affording easy further endwise compressibility in use and inward and outward radial expansibility.

1,543,964. METHOD OF TREATING CANNED GOODS. HARVEY P. WELLMAN, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to Anderson-Barngrover Mfg. Co., San Jose, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 751,831. 5 Claims. (Cl. 99—8.)



5. In the treatment of canned goods involving a continuous procession of individual and individually rolling containers, through a treating path, the method of treating goods in containers unadapted for such rolling procession in said path which consists in initially placing said unadapted containers in temporary incasements adapted for such rolling procession in said path; passing said adapted incasements in continuous procession of rolling individuals through said path; and removing the containers from the incasements after passing through said path.

1,543,965. FUEL DEVICE FOR MOTORS. HARRY G. WHYMOUTH, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 1, 1921. Serial No. 489,044. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—25.)

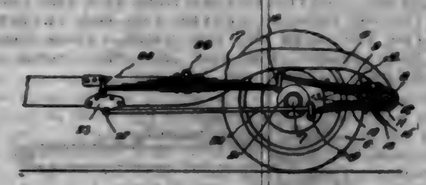


1. The combination of a motor vehicle radiator, an internal combustion engine, an intake conduit for said engine, a throttle valve for said intake conduit, controlling means for said valve, said radiator having an open overflow pipe connected with the upper part thereof provided with a return bend at the top so that air supplied therethrough will be delivered into the water in the radiator, a conduit independent of said overflow pipe extending from the space in said radiator, above the water level, to said intake conduit for supplying moist air to the latter, and a valve for controlling said second-mentioned conduit operatively connected with said throttle valve so as to be automatically controlled thereby.

1,543,966. ELEVATOR. CLINTON FRANK WILLIAMS, Tonkawa, Okla., assignor of one-half to W. J. Beaven, Tonkawa, Okla. Filed Jan. 21, 1924. Serial No. 687,580. 3 Claims. (Cl. 294—90.)

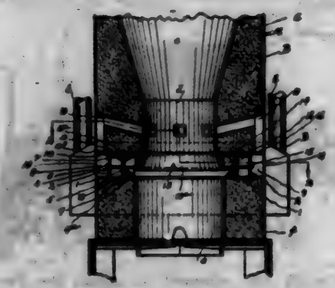
1. An elevator comprising a pair of hingedly connected sections having their terminals formed with flat extensions, a latch pivoted to one of the extensions and having its under side formed with a depending lug, one of said extensions being provided with a socket to receive said lug, a hand contact member pivotally carried by one of said extensions and having a crank to engage said latch to move the same to releasing position.

1,543,967. TELEPHONE-EXCHANGE SYSTEM. SAMUEL B. WILLIAMS, Brooklyn, N. Y., and EARL S. GIBSON, Ridgewood, N. J., assignors to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 12, 1923. Serial No. 645,011. 21 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)



1. The combination in a telephone system having offices and means for extending a connection involving a number of said offices, of means for storing in one of said offices a record pertaining to said connection, means for transferring said record directly through one of said offices to another of said offices, and means in said last office for receiving said record to control the extension of said connection.

1,543,968. COMBINATION INSECT TRAP AND BAIT BUCKET. SION H. WILLIAMS and CARLOS O. NEELY, Hornbeak, Tenn. Filed Dec. 11, 1922. Serial No. 606,246. 3 Claims. (Cl. 43—56.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a container, a removable bottom detachably connected with the wall of said container and having an entrance passage, means for connecting said container and bottom, said bottom being removable by turning said bottom relative to said container and radial ribs on the lower side of said bottom defining other entrance passages leading to the first named passage, said ribs having the additional function of handles for turning the bottom to disconnect it from said container.

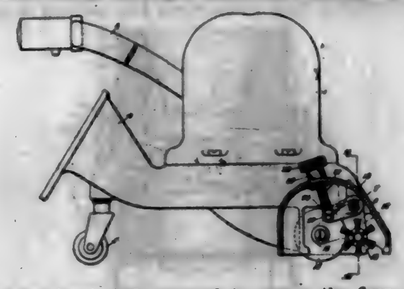
1,543,969. CANTILEVER-SPRING CONSTRUCTION. NOEL YOUNG, Noblesville, Ind. Filed Dec. 26, 1923. Serial No. 682,723. 1 Claim. (Cl. 267—41.)

A vehicle spring structure comprising a rod pivoted at one end to the frame of the vehicle and disposed transversely of the axle bearer, a clip connected with the rod at a point between its ends and passing around the axle, a leaf spring bent upon itself and pivotally connected at the bend with the frame of the vehicle, one end portion of said spring extending toward the rod and connected with the rod at a point at one side of the axle, the other end portion of the spring being disposed transversely of the axle, and a leaf spring pivoted upon the body of the vehicle and having one end pivotally connected with that end portion of the first mentioned spring which is disposed transversely across the axle, and the other end portion of the second mentioned spring being pivotally connected with the frame at a point above the point of pivotal connection of the rod with the frame.

1,543,970. FURNACE CONSTRUCTION. FRANCIS J. ZIPPLER, Avalon, Pa. Filed June 27, 1924. Serial No. 723,766. 11 Claims. (Cl. 110—72.)

1. A furnace provided with an annular air passage, means for supplying air under pressure to said passage, the air passage having an inner wall extending from the top of the passage, the lower edge of said inner wall being spaced above the bottom of the passage, and a plurality of closure members supported between the inner and outer walls of the passage and extending across said passage, said members being arranged in spaced relation and forming twyer openings establishing communication between the air passage and the interior of the furnace.

1,543,971. TIRE FOR MINE-LOCOMOTIVE WHEELS. JAMES N. ABBOTT, Christopher, Ky. Filed Apr. 18, 1925. Serial No. 12,893. 1 Claim. (Cl. 295—15.)



In a wheel for mine locomotives the combination of a wheel base of soft iron of a comparatively soft degree having a rim of a predetermined diameter and extending from side to side of said base; a metal tire portion of medium hardness, having an external surface of a predetermined diameter and an internal surface also extending from side to side of said base and of a diameter to frictionally engage said rim when shrunk thereon; an annular hardened steel tread portion having a surface of a predetermined internal diameter to frictionally engage the external surface of said tire portion when shrunk thereon; and means integral with said tire portion to position said tread portion thereon and form the flange of the assembled wheel.

1,543,972. NOZZLE AND BRUSH ADJUSTING DEVICE. THOMAS O. ADAMS, New Philadelphia, Ohio, assignor to The Wise-McClung Manufacturing Company, New Philadelphia, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 23, 1921. Serial No. 517,905. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—6.)

1. In a vacuum cleaner including a case provided with a nozzle, a rock shaft within the nozzle, a brush ec-

centrically suspended from the rock shaft, a pair of wheels eccentrically suspended from the rock shaft at the same side of the rock shaft as the brush and spaced from the brush and arranged to engage the floor, and means for rocking said shaft to adjust the brush within the nozzle and to adjust the nozzle with reference to the floor.

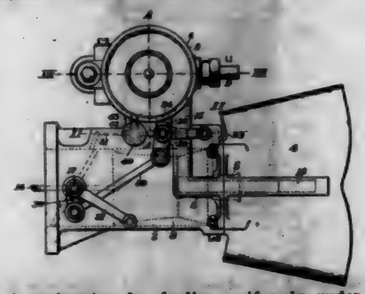
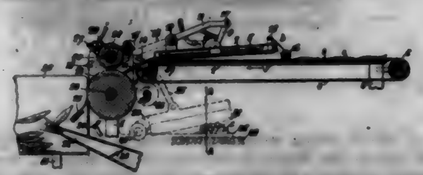
1,543,973. ILLUMINATED INSTRUMENT. CHARLES E. ADAMS and FLOYD J. METZGER, New York, N. Y., assignors to Air Reduction Company, Incorporated, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 23, 1922. Serial No. 562,976. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—2.)



1. In an illuminated instrument the combination of light-transmitting indicating means, a scale behind the indicating means, a glow vessel disposed between the scale and indicating means and means for delivering high tension current to the glow vessel.

1,543,974. LAPPING AND GRINDING MACHINE. HERMAN E. BARNES, Houston, Tex. Filed July 17, 1923. Serial No. 652,051. 1 Claim. (Cl. 51—119.)

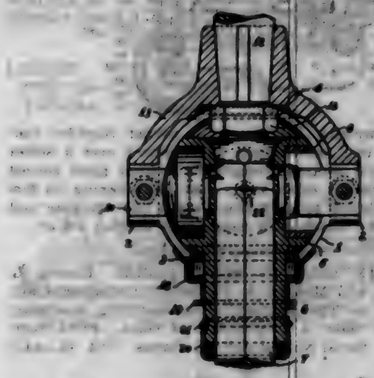


A machine for grinding a spherical surface upon a metallic head comprising in combination a rotary shaft, means for detachably but rigidly securing an article having a head upon which said surface is to be ground, with the axis of said head axially in line with said shaft, a crank on the end of said shaft and a cup having an hemispherical, internal or concave surface, the counterpart of that desired to be formed, mounted loosely by a universal joint upon the free end of said crank and adapted to be engaged and be guided by said article and caused to have a free rotary motion about an axis of the cup intersecting said joint, as well as gyratory motion of said axis produced by the crank, the radius of the crank and the angle of the axis of the cup being such that the edge of the cup constantly intersects a diameter of the head at right angles to the common axis of the work and the shaft.

1,543,975. CARBURETOR. FRANÇOIS BAVEREY, Lyon, France, assignor to Societe du Carburateur Zenith, Lyon, France. Filed Oct. 29, 1918. Serial No. 260,100. 7 Claims. (Cl. 261—121.)

1. A carburetor for feeding uniformly under various degrees of inclination, comprising a constant level chamber, means for maintaining a constant level of fuel therein irrespective of the inclination of the carburetor, a mixing chamber having its longitudinal axis lying in a plane parallel to the longitudinal axis of the vehicle carrying the carburetor, a plurality of atmospheric wells fed from the constant level chamber and communicating with a single common fuel inlet passage, said wells being on opposite sides or adjacent a vertical plane perpendicular to the longitudinal axis of the mixing chamber and extending substantially through the middle of the constant level chamber, substantially as described.

1,543,976. CONTINUOUS MACHINE FOR THE IRONING OF TOBACCO LEAVES AND FOR FLATTENING THE RIBS OF THE SAME. EMILE BELOT, Paris, France. Filed Dec. 27, 1923. Serial No. 683,043. 6 Claims. (Cl. 131—58.)



1. In an apparatus for the ironing of tobacco leaves and for flattening the ribs of the same, the combination of means for heating the said leaves which have been previously slightly moistened, means for flattening the same and means for rapidly cooling them when leaving the said flattening means.

1,543,977. UNIVERSAL COUPLING. JAMES F. BEMISS, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 1, 1922. Serial No. 565,151. 18 Claims. (Cl. 64—21.)

1. A universal joint, comprising, in combination, a pair of complementary shell forming members each having a pair of laterally extending channel portions adapted to form when assembled a pair of openings in the wall of the shell, a ball member adapted to be enclosed within said shell and movable angularly with relation to the axis of the shell, a pair of pivot members carried by said ball member adjacent to said openings, a pair of keys removably carried in said openings and extending into said pivot members, said ball member being movable relatively to said keys in a plane transverse to the axes of its pivot members, and means for removably securing the shell members together.

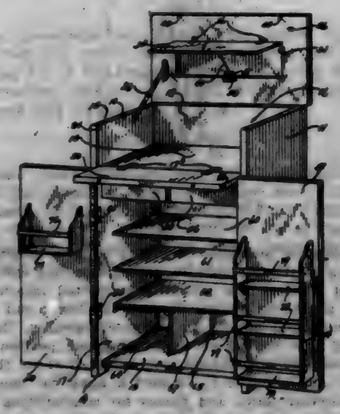
1,543,978. SHOCK ABSORBER. ARTHUR F. BLACK, Selby, Calif. Filed Oct. 3, 1923. Serial No. 666,338. 4 Claims. (Cl. 267—17.)

1. A shock absorber comprising a cylindrical body having an extension formed upon one side thereof and adapted to be rigidly secured upon an axle of an automobile; a brace adapted to be rigidly secured between the axle and an extension formed upon the opposite side of the body, a plunger slidably mounted within the cylindrical body; springs mounted above and below the plunger; a stem connected with the plunger and extending outwardly from the body; means for connecting the outwardly extending end of the stem to the adjacent end of a leaf spring of the automobile whereby said spring and the weight carried thereby are supported above the axle; and a pair of arms pivotally connected between the extension formed upon the brace and the outer end of the stem for guiding the stem and plunger when moved against the resistance of either spring.



1,543,979. SHOCK ABSORBER. ARTHUR F. BLACK, Selby, Calif. Filed Oct. 3, 1923. Serial No. 666,339. 7 Claims. (Cl. 267—17.)

1. A shock absorber comprising a body rigidly secured upon the axle of an automobile; a pair of arms having one end pivotally connected upon the body; a shackle pivotally connecting the other end of the arm to a spring supporting the frame of said automobile above said axle; a plunger slidably mounted with the absorbed body; springs mounted above and below the plunger; and a pin secured between the arms and engaging the plunger whereby a pivotal movement of the arms will move the plunger against the resistance of one of the springs to absorb vibration and to retard movement of the frame relative to the axle, said pin extending between the arms through arcuate slots formed in the sides of the body and through a transverse slot formed in the plunger to accommodate the arcuate movement of the arms about the pivot mounting thereof.

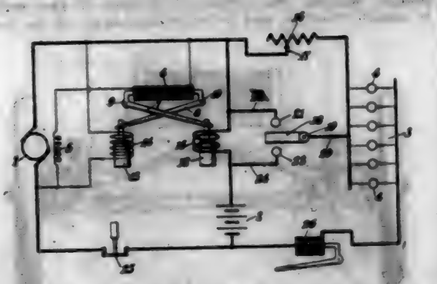
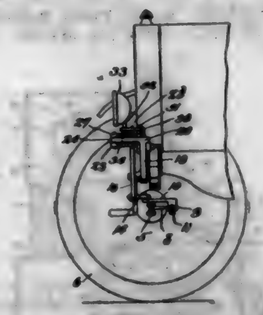
1,543,980. CABINET. ROY F. BLOOD, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Aug. 25, 1922. Serial No. 584,331. 3 Claims. (Cl. 45—16.)



3. A cabinet of the character described comprising a body having a compartment therein open at its top, a closure for the open top pivoted to the body for vertical swinging movement into and out of a closed position and having a substantially rectangular opening provided centrally therein, a cover plate for the opening secured upon the outer face of said closure and forming of the opening a pocket leading from the inner face of said cover, a shelf member hingedly connected with said closure at the upper edge of said pocket and adapted to fit entirely within the pocket when in a lowered inoperative position and a bracket pivotally mounted in said pocket and adapted to be swung outwardly beneath the shelf member to retain the shelf member in an elevated position for use.

1,543,981. ELECTRICAL SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION. WILLIAM F. BOUCHER, Lancaster, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Gould Coupler Company, a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Jan. 21, 1922. Serial No. 530,986. 8 Claims. (Cl. 171—329.)



2. The combination of a variable speed generator, a battery circuit and work circuit adapted to be fed thereby in parallel including a coil responsive to current changes in circuit between the generator and battery, switching means for connecting one side of the work circuit to either side of said coil, and a resistance connected in shunt to said switching means.

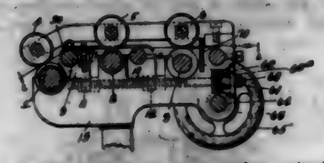
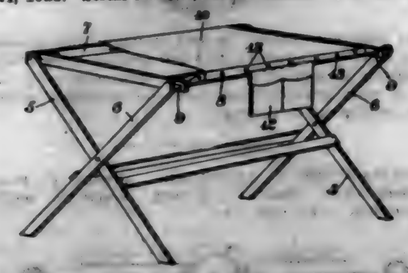
1,543,982. REVERSIBLE AUTO LIGHT. PETER BROWN, Chattanooga, Tenn., assignor of one-third to Drew A. Landress, Chattanooga, Tenn. Filed Jan. 12, 1925. Serial No. 1,937. 2 Claims. (Cl. 240—62.)



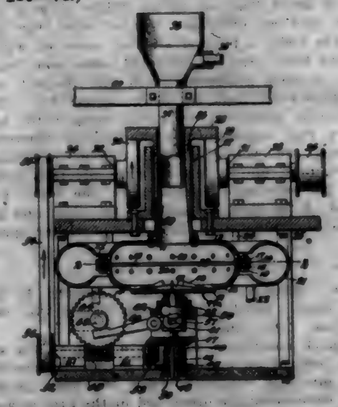
1. A dirigible headlight including an arm adapted for connection with the spindle arm connecting rod of a vehicle, a vertical arm pivotally supported intermediate its ends, a member connected with the lower end of the vertical arm and having an elongated opening, the first mentioned arm having an upstanding end portion fitted in the elongated opening, an arm mounted above the vertical arm and adapted to support a lamp for movement in a horizontal plane, and means for transmitting movement from the upper end of the vertical arm to the last mentioned arm.

1,543,983. AUTOMATIC DRAFT CONTROLLER. ELMER E. BURNS, Madison, N. J., assignor to Thermogen Equipment Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 3, 1923. Serial No. 655,529. 2 Claims. (Cl. 236—76.)



1. In an automatic draft controlling apparatus driven by an electric motor, a succession of circuit breakers each provided with a reciprocating plunger adapted to operate it, electrical connections normally connecting said circuit breakers in series with said motor, and automatic means for operating said circuit breakers successively, said means comprising a roller adapted to travel along the series of plungers so as to cause operative movement of one plunger at a time.

1,543,984. DRAWING MECHANISM. ARTHUR CECIL BUTLER, Boston, Mass. Filed May 22, 1922. Serial No. 562,967. 14 Claims. (Cl. 19—130.)

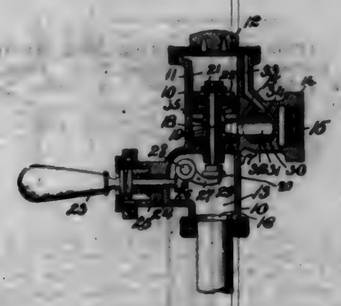


6. In a drawing mechanism, a roving retarder constructed to rest on a roving as it passes over a series of rollers, said retarder comprising a front plate curved to conform to one roller and a rear plate having its forward end hinged to said front plate and its rear end resting on the roving as it passes over another roller.

1,543,985. INFANT'S DRESSING TABLE. HAROLD L. CALDWELL and MARCUS A. CALDWELL, Columbus, Ohio, assignors to The Caldwell Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 14, 1923. Serial No. 662,628. 3 Claims. (Cl. 45—31.)

3. A dressing table including, in combination, a pair of folding leg frames hinged together near their middles, a rigid rectangular table-top frame having end members projecting forwardly beyond said frame when in horizontal position, means hinging said table top frame at its rear to the upper end of one of the leg frames and a towel bar at the other leg frame engaging said forwardly projecting portions spaced horizontally from said table-top frame.

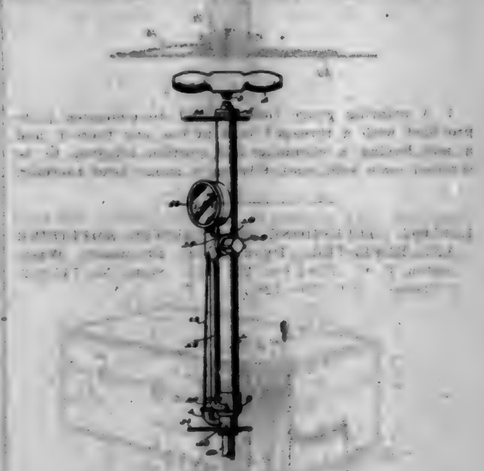
1,543,986. CENTRIFUGAL WASHING AND DRYING APPARATUS. GEORGE BURTON CLINCH, Mulberry, Fla. Filed Apr. 10, 1923. Serial No. 631,282. 5 Claims. (Cl. 210—74.)



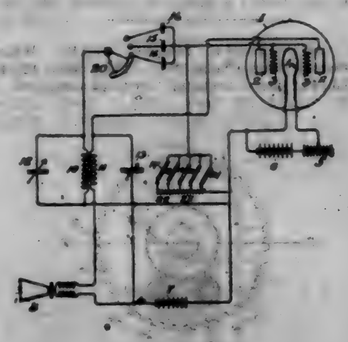
1. A centrifugal washing and drying machine, comprising a rotatable vessel provided on one of its axial sides with an inlet for the wetted material to be washed and dried and on its opposite axial side with an outlet for the dried solids and at its periphery with an outlet for the liquid separated from the solids, and a plate movable axially toward and from said solids outlet and rotatable in the same direction as said vessel but at a different speed.

1,543,987. ORE JIG. ELMO M. DAUGHERTY, Webb City, Mo. Filed Mar. 4, 1924. Serial No. 696,857. 6 Claims. (Cl. 83—79.)

2. An ore jig of the character described, comprising a central sieve compartment, means for delivering material to be separated upon the central portion of the sieve of said central compartment, a sieve compartment upon each side of the central compartment, and an inclined apron extending between the central portion of each side sieve compartment and the associated end of the central sieve compartment.



1,543,988. FLUSH VALVE. VERNER F. DAVIS, West Orange, N. J. Filed Aug. 1, 1923. Serial No. 655,051. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—93.)

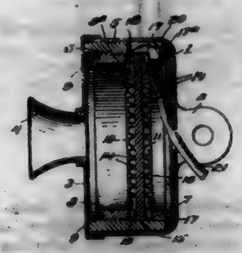


2. A flush valve comprising a casing having a valve chamber and an inlet port and having a by-pass from the inlet port to the valve casing, a cock having a plug controlling the passage of fluid through the inlet port and having a groove to permit a substantially constant flow of liquid through the by-pass at all open positions of the plug.

1,543,989. COMBINED TESTING PUMP AND GAUGE. LEE DECK, Shreveport, La. Filed Oct. 4, 1923. Serial No. 666,579. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—77.)

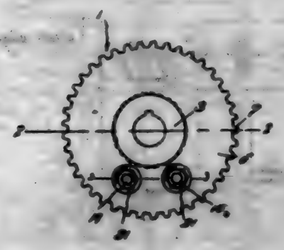
1. Apparatus of the character described comprising a pump barrel, a plunger operable in the barrel to compress air therein, a fitting at the end of the barrel having a partition dividing it into upper and lower chambers, a nipple in connection with the lower chamber adapted to be joined with a system of piping to be tested, a gauge to indicate the pressure of air delivered to said piping, an associated check valve to the body of which said gauge is connected, pipes respectively furnishing communication between the check valve and gauge and said upper and lower chambers, and a casing enclosing all of the foregoing parts excepting the nipple for protection, said casing having a door through which the gauge may be read.

1,543,990. ELECTRICAL MEANS FOR PRODUCING MUSICAL NOTES. LEE DE FOREST, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to De Forest Phonofilm Corporation, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 24, 1915. Serial No. 23,700. 5 Claims. (Cl. 177—7.)



1. An electrical tone producer including an audion having plate, grid and filament electrodes, a series oscillating circuit connecting the plate and filament electrodes, a circuit connecting the grid and filament electrodes, and a resistant leak path comprising a plurality of resistance elements, means for connecting any number of said resistances between said circuits, means for inductively associating the circuits with each other, and a sound producing device included in said plate-filament circuit.

1,543,991. PRINTING GAUGE. GENNARO DE PAMPHILIS, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 3, 1925. Serial No. 12,927. 7 Claims. (Cl. 101—415.)

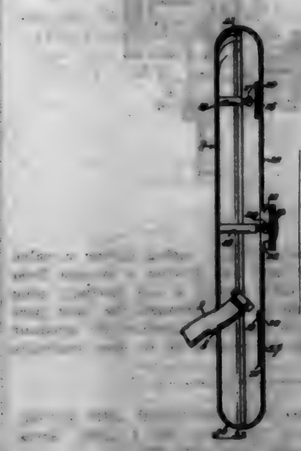


1. A printing gauge consisting of an elongated plate provided with a threaded stud at one end thereof, and a nut having a clamping hub portion adapted to be screwed upon said stud, forming a gauge head therefor.

1,543,992. TELEPHONE TRANSMITTER AMPLIFIER AND REPEATER. HENRY H. C. DUNWOODY, Washington, D. C. Filed Oct. 25, 1924. Serial No. 745,812. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—128.)

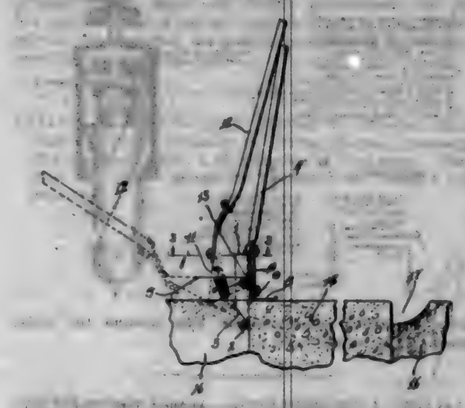
1. Telephone apparatus, comprising in combination an annular casing, an annular supporting member within said casing, and means carried within said annular supporting member for effecting a variation in an electrical current under the influence of sound vibration comprising a pair of permanently magnetized plates, a plurality of microphonic contacts carried by each of said plates, and a diaphragm intermediate said plates and cooperating with the microphonic contacts carried thereby, whereby said plates normally tend to attract each other and exert a predetermined pressure upon said diaphragm.

1,543,993. ADJUSTABLE TIMING GEAR. WILLIAM D. ELKINGTON, Eau Claire, Wis. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,792. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—28.)



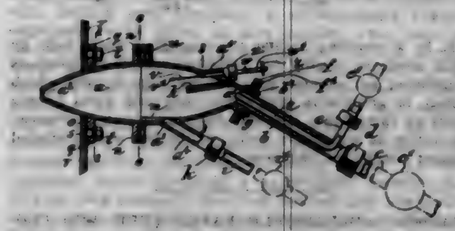
A timing gear comprising a main section having an externally screw threaded centrally disposed hub projecting beyond one face thereof and equipped with peripheral gear teeth, a supplemental annular section placed flat against the hub carrying face of the main section, the central opening of said annular section being provided with screw threads threaded onto said hub, said main section being provided with a hole extending therethrough and said hole being countersunk at its inner end, said supplemental section being provided with a recess and a screw threaded opening extending therefrom for coaction with the opening in said main section, an adjusting screw threaded through said opening and having an inner pointed end cooperative with the aforesaid countersunk portion, and a lock nut cooperative with said screw and arranged in said recess.

1,543,994. INDUCTOMETER. JOHN G. FERGUSON, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 18, 1923. Serial No. 681,356. 5 Claims. (Cl. 171—119.)



5. In an inductometer, two oppositely mounted stationary pairs of coaxial, hollow, truncated, rectangular cones, a rotatable metallic shaft, an insulating joint dividing the shaft, a hollow truncated cone within each of said pairs of stationary cones and mounted upon one of the divisions of said rotatable shaft, two sets of concentric coils embedded in each pair of stationary cones, two coils so placed in each rotatable cone that they may be made concentric with the coils of said sets, means to rotate the shaft, and an electrical circuit including all of said coils and the divisions of said shaft.

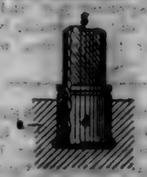
1,543,995. APPLIANCE CARRIER FOR AUTOMOBILES. DAVID H. FISHER, Albany, N. Y. Filed Jan. 30, 1923. Serial No. 615,903. 2 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)



1. In appliance carriers for automobiles, a plate having a marginal flange forming an enclosure, a door therefor, means for holding the door against movement, and a gasoline filling tube extending through the plate and terminating back of the door.

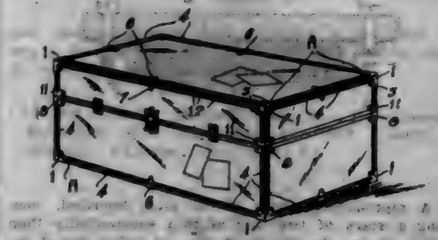
1,543,996. DEVICE FOR TRIMMING SOD. WILLIAM LEWIS FRANKS, Louisville, Ky. Filed Oct. 8, 1924. Serial No. 742,476. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—227.)

2. A sod trimming device comprising a U-shaped cutter having a foot piece on the exterior thereof, a second cutter pivotally secured to said U-shaped cutter and having sod cutting edges, said second cutter being so pivoted as to be swung to bring its lower cutting edge into substantial engagement with the lower cutting edge of the first named cutter.



1,543,997. BURNING OF LIQUID FUEL IN BOILER AND OTHER FURNACES OR HEATING APPARATUS. GIUSEPPE GIDINI, Westminster, England. Filed Nov. 12, 1924. Serial No. 749,522. 12 Claims. (Cl. 158—76.)

3. A device for producing fuel saturated air, comprising a mixture or saturating chamber provided at its rear end with an inlet opening for air and liquid fuel, an abutment surface opposite said opening, a nozzle opening for fuel saturated air at the front end of the chamber, an outlet opening intermediate its ends and at the lower side thereof for conducting surplus liquid fuel away, valve controlled air and liquid fuel supply pipes arranged to deliver air and liquid fuel into the rear end of the chamber through the inlet opening therein and in a direction inclined to the abutment surface therewithin, with the discharge end of the air supply pipe surrounding the discharge end of the liquid fuel supply pipe, and a drain pipe connecting with the intermediate outlet opening of the chamber, substantially as described.



1,543,998. CONNECTION OF ELECTRIC CONDUCTORS. EUGÈNE GINDRE, Levallois-Perret, France, assignor to Societe Anonyme la Carbone, Levallois-Perret, France. Filed Apr. 14, 1924. Serial No. 706,552. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—326.)

1. From the electrical point of view the end of the cable and the capsule, forced into the substance of the brush, constitute a connection the loss in contact of which is reduced to a minimum. It is furthermore protected against all external influences and is not exposed to deterioration by heating of the brush.

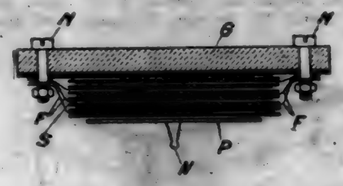
1,543,999. REENFORCING ELEMENT FOR TRUNKS. NATHAN GOLDSMITH, Newark, N. J. Filed Aug. 30, 1921. Serial No. 496,890. 5 Claims. (Cl. 190—87.)

1. As an article of manufacture, a reenforcing element for trunks and the like, including a corner shield adapted to fit a tribedral corner of a trunk, and three corner edge strips each permanently connected at one end to said corner shield in fixed and angular relation thereto and to the other strips so that said corner shield and said edge strips may be applied simultaneously to the corner and the three corner edges formed by three concurring sides of the trunk, respectively.

3. A reenforcing strip for a corner edge of a trunk or the like, consisting of an elongated strip of sheet metal angular in cross-section to fit a corner edge of a trunk or the like and of substantially uniform thickness throughout its length, and a rod arranged in the angle of said strip extending the full length thereof and secured to both walls of the strip, said rod having its exposed side flattened to engage a corner edge of a trunk or the like.



1,544,000. WRENCH. PETER W. GRADY, Grand Forks, N. Dak., assignor of one-fourth to Clara Donahoe, Seattle, Wash. Filed May 26, 1924. Serial No. 715,896. 3 Claims. (Cl. 81—78.)

2. A wrench including a frame, a pair of jaws mounted in said frame one of which is movable in and the other fixed to the frame, a spring to normally hold the movable jaw spaced from the stationary jaw, a handle to urge the working end of the movable jaw toward the working end of the stationary jaw, and a tooth carried by the stationary jaw and engageable with the movable jaw to lock the latter from sliding movement in the frame.

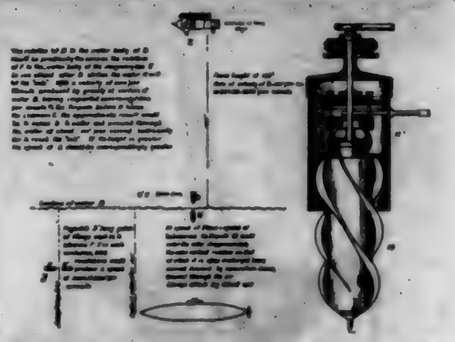
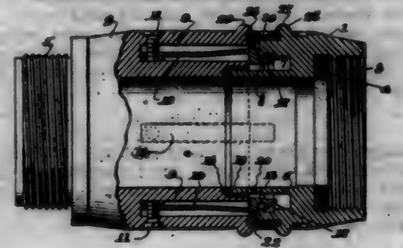
1,544,001. ELECTROSTATIC REPRODUCER FOR TALKING MACHINES AND THE LIKE. WILHELM GROENEBAUM, Neu-Babelsberg, near Berlin, Germany, assignor to the Firm Naamlooze Vennootschap Financiele Maatschappij Driebergen, Amsterdam, Netherlands. Filed Jan. 8, 1925. Serial No. 327. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—100.1.)

1. A reproducing device of the kind described, comprising a stack of two sets of thin substantially limp metallic sheets, the sheets of one set being placed between the sheets of the other set, elastic insulating sheets interposed between adjacent metallic sheets, insulating means at the ends of the stack, a support, terminals mounted on said support, means for mechanically and electrically connecting the sheets of each set to one of the terminals whereby said stack is suspended from said support, a stylus, and means for transmitting movement of the stylus to said stack.



1,544,002. STEAM-JACKETED MOLD. FRANK H. GROVE, Columbiana, Ohio. Filed Jan. 20, 1923. Serial No. 613,886. 5 Claims. (Cl. 18—38.)

1. A tire mold including a fixed section and a movable section, each section having a steam compartment therein, steam supply and return pipes connected to the fixed section and a passage connecting the interiors of the two sections and means for circulating steam entirely around each compartment and back to a point near the steam inlet.



1,544,003. PROJECTILE AND METHOD OF CONTROLLING THE FLIGHT THEREOF. ALBERT ENNIS HENDERSON, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed Jan. 14, 1918. Serial No. 211,868. 9 Claims. (Cl. 102—2.)

6. A missile designed to penetrate fluid media of varying densities said missile having an approximately cylindrical body provided with a plurality of spiral flanges extending from end to end of such body each flange extending approximately once around the body, substantially as set forth.

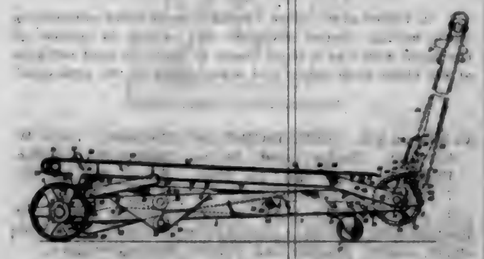
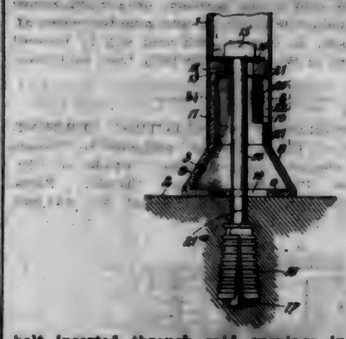
1,544,004. PIPE COUPLING. ALBERT HENDERSON, Albany, Ga. Filed July 10, 1924. Serial No. 725,215. 4 Claims. (Cl. 285—174.)



3. In a coupling having two engaging parts held by latch members, a ring for releasing said latch members comprising an annular part having edge flanges which engage in grooves in said parts, and said parts having beads at their edges adjacent the ring member, whereby the latter is accurately held and guided and protected against accidental displacement.

1,544,005. COLLAPSIBLE PASTE TUBE AND CLOSURE THEREFOR. JOHN I. HILL, Mexia, Tex. Filed June 19, 1924. Serial No. 721,085. 1 Claim. (Cl. 221—60.)

A paste tube terminating in an end having an annular beveled portion and a flat portion in the annular beveled portion, said flat portion provided with an opening, a flat closure pivoted to the flat portion of the end of the tube so as to be in a plane parallel thereto for closing the opening and provided with a handle adapted to extend angularly therefrom for abutting the beveled portion when said closure is disposed over the flat portion, and a spring member fixed to the beveled portion for engaging the handle and holding the closure over the flat portion.



1,544,006. LIFTING JACK. ERNEST W. HOLMES, Chattanooga, Tenn., assignor to Ernest Holmes Company, Chattanooga, Tenn., a Corporation of Tennessee. Filed Sept. 23, 1924. Serial No. 739,380. 29 Claims. (Cl. 254—2.)

18. A lifting jack comprising a frame, lifting means carried by said frame, a ratchet wheel operatively connected to said lifting means and an operating lever therefor, a member pivotally mounted on said lever, a lifting pawl carried by said member and co-acting with said ratchet wheel, a holding pawl pivotally mounted on said frame provided with keepers on opposite sides of its pivotal axis, pivotally mounted reversing means for said holding pawl including a spring-pressed plunger engageable with either of said keepers when said reversing means is oscillated, the pressure of said plunger being insufficient to move said holding pawl to inoperative position until it is relieved from the frictional resistance of the load imposed upon it by said ratchet wheel, through a slight lifting movement of said operating lever, said reversing means being formed with recesses defining shoulders, actuating means for said reversing means including a reciprocable member carried by said pivotally mounted member and engageable with certain of said recesses in selective positions of said lever, a spring connecting said reciprocable member to said pivotally mounted member at one side of the pivotal axis of the latter, means for depressing said reciprocable member to cause the same to enter one of said recesses and simultaneously to compress said spring, thereby biasing said pivotally mounted member in a direction to move said lifting pawl to inoperative position, said spring being of less pressure than the resistance to movement of said reversing means so that when said reciprocable means engages a shoulder of said reversing means to oscillate the latter to cause it to move said holding pawl to inoperative position, the pivotally mounted member is thereby biased in a direction to throw said lifting pawl back into operative position simultaneously with the movement of said holding pawl to inoperative position.

1,544,007. TOILET PARTITION. ARTHUR SHERIDAN HUGHES, Mansfield, Ohio. Filed Aug. 11, 1921, Serial No. 491,459. Renewed Nov. 10, 1924. 14 Claims. (Cl. 189—34.)

1. In a partition, a base shoe for the posts or columns of the partition, comprising a flared base, a shank rising from the base and provided with an opening in the top, the base having a larger opening, a securing bolt inserted through said openings in the shoe, and means for holding one end of the bolt to the shank, the other end being fastened to the floor.

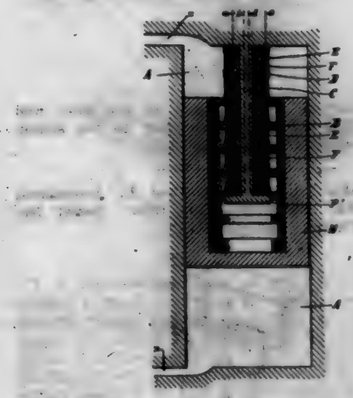
1,544,008. ROPE GUIDE. LEONIDAS E. JEFFERSON, Baltimore, Md. Filed Oct. 19, 1923. Serial No. 669,620. 4 Claims. (Cl. 156—15.)

1. A device of the character described including a main plate and clamping plate one of which has spurs and the other openings to receive said spurs after which they are bent to clamp the plates on opposite sides of the material to which the device is secured, one of said plates having an open-ended loop or eyelet and a guide having its ends extending into the opposite ends of the loop or eyelet whereby the guide is pivoted or swiveled to the plate.



1,544,009. COMBINED CASING AND TOOL SPEAR. MONROWE W. JONES and BERT H. BRUSH, Ardmore, Okla.; said Jones assignor to Jones Everett Machine Co., Ardmore, Okla., a Corporation. Filed Feb. 11, 1925. Serial No. 8,451. 9 Claims. (Cl. 294—86.)

1. The combination with a spear having a body, a slip supported on the body for movement upward and outward from position inwardly of the periphery of the body to position to extend outward beyond the periphery of the body, and a spring urging said slip upward on the body toward said upper position, of a rigid means releasably attachable to the body and adapted when attached to the body to engage with said slip to prevent upward movement of the slip on the body from said lower position.

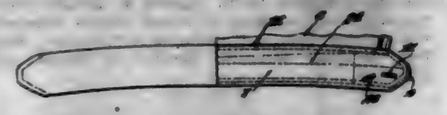
1,544,010. GENERATOR OF ELECTRIC CURRENT. EUGÈNE JORDAN, Paris, France, assignor to Societe l'Air Liquide (Societe Anonyme pour l'Etude et l'Exploitation des Procedes Georges Claude), Paris, France. Filed Apr. 24, 1923. Serial No. 634,205. 3 Claims. (Cl. 290—1.)

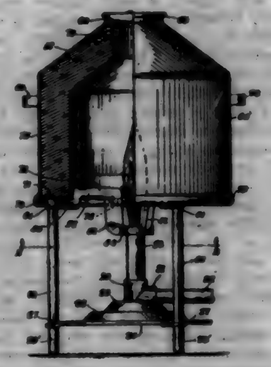


1. A reciprocating fluid pressure generator of electric current, which comprises a cylinder, a piston adapted to reciprocate therein, and fixed means within the piston for generating induced currents by the displacement of the piston.

1,544,011. TIRE-MOLD-HANDLING DEVICE. JOHN KEARNS, Conshohocken, and WILLIAM Y. DUNCAN, Jr., Barren Hill, Pa. Filed Sept. 23, 1921. Serial No. 502,648. 12 Claims. (Cl. 18—2.)

1. A device of the character described, including supporting means capable of automatically collapsing in being introduced from above through the opening of an annular mold, and subsequently, of expanding automatically to engage the mold from beneath, comprising a group of freely suspended hooks formed with cam edges for engaging the inner periphery of the mold so as to be swung inwardly in effecting automatic collapse of the supporting means as aforesaid; in combination with means operative in opposition to said hooks for applying a downward pressure to hold the parts of the mold tightly closed together.

1,544,012. COLLAR. EDWARD A. KING, Dorchester, Mass., assignor to Lion Collars & Shirts, Inc., Troy, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 10, 1922. Serial No. 593,501. 9 Claims. (Cl. 2—131.)

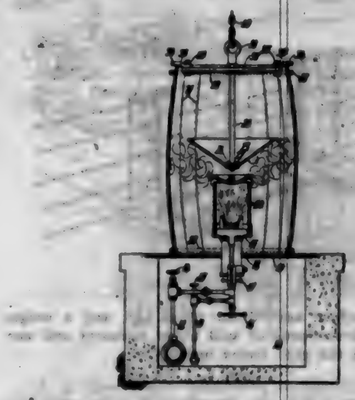


1. A folded-over collar having a neck-band comprising cloth having woven selvages and which is woven of the same width as a band blank so that the said selvages of the cloth form upper and lower edges of the neck-band.

1,544,013. TREATMENT OF TIMBER. JOHN W. KITCHIN, Horley, and VICTOR LEFEBURE, London, England. Filed Jan. 15, 1923. Serial No. 612,803. 7 Claims. (Cl. 134—76.8.)

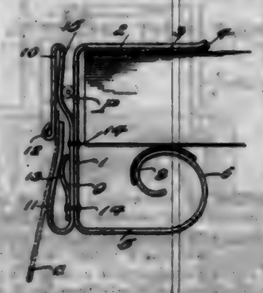
1. A process for treating timber which consists in impregnating it with a carbohydrate solution containing sugar, sodium fluoride and sodium dinitrophenolate.

7. An aqueous carbohydrate solution for the treatment of timber consisting of water and sugar in the form of syrup with the addition of 1% of sodium fluoride and ¼% of dinitrophenolate and an additional carbohydrate such as dextrine so as to give a density to the solution of about 1.080.



1,544,014. BURNER AND OVEN. MILTON M. KOHN, New York, N. Y. Filed June 19, 1922. Serial No. 569,346. 8 Claims. (Cl. 126—39.)

1. A heat retainer comprising a casing having a beaded lower edge, a nonconducting lining enterable from the bottom therein, and means partially contained in said beaded edge for removably securing said lining within said casing and means to support the retainer in a plane raised from the supporting surface.



1,544,015. COOPER STOVE. EDWARD J. LAMY, Elizabeth, N. J., asignor to A. Lamy & Son, Inc., Elizabeth, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 27, 1923. Serial No. 628,011. 24 Claims. (Cl. 34—18.)

1. In a barrel drier, the combination with a crosset, of a spreader removably supported above said crosset and mounted to conduct the heated gases to the bilge portion of the barrel; said spreader in the form of an inverted cone nearly closing the barrel, and means for lifting said spreader out of the barrel.

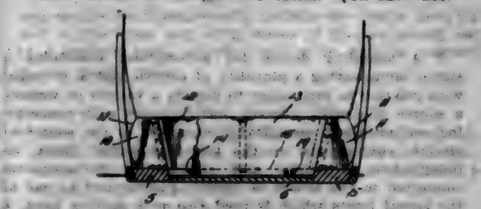
1,544,016. SCORE CARD AND PENCIL HOLDER. WINNIFRED C. LYMAN, Southampton, Mass. Filed Sept. 25, 1924. Serial No. 739,871. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—81.)



1. A score card and pencil holder comprising a resilient strip having an elongated body portion and having its ends folded inwardly into overlapping relation with each other at the ends of said body portion to provide spring arms to yieldably engage a score card, and a support against which said body portion is secured, one end of said body portion being outwardly offset from said support to co-act therewith in forming a yieldable pencil holder.

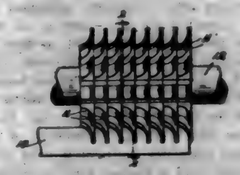
1,544,017. RADIATOR CAP. GEORGE KETCHUM McCORD and HORACE HERMAN SCHWARK, Fort Worth, Tex. Filed Aug. 10, 1922. Serial No. 656,646. 4 Claims. (Cl. 257—25.)

1. A radiator cap comprising a body having means whereby the same may be secured to the neck of a radiator, and an air inlet funnel secured to said body and having a discharge end terminating adjacent the center of the body, there being an outlet member arranged in the path of travel of the air entering the body whereby the force of the air is broken and whereby the air is prevented from agitating the water in the radiator cap.

1,544,018. COMBINED FOOT REST AND CURTAIN HOLDER. UNA MCDONALD, Belton, Tex., assignor of one-half to Edwin Puddy, Belton, Tex. Filed Feb. 19, 1924. Serial No. 693,797. 1 Claim. (Cl. 224—29.)

Means for utilizing waste space in the tonneau of an automobile, wherein the automobile has spaced parallel side bars, a bottom positioned between and below the upper surface of said side bars, and the back of the front seat overhangs the bottom portion of the tonneau, comprising bar members having oppositely directed lateral extensions on the opposite ends thereof adapted to be secured to the bottom of the back of the front seat and the upper side of the frame bars at each side of the automobile body, plate members secured to said bar members and extending outwardly therefrom to conform to the contour of the interior of the automobile for forming a compartment at the ends thereof with the body, said plate having offset portions adjacent said bar member, a strip mounted on the bottom of the automobile body between the frame bars and in line with said bar member, a door hinged to said strip and adapted to seat on said offset extensions of the plate member in closed position for forming a compartment under the overhanging portion of the back of the front seat, and also adapted to form a foot rest for the occupants of the back seat, a strip member hingedly connected with the central portion of the strip, and a keeper for receiving the free ends of the strips mounted on the under side of the back of the front face to provide a supplemental support for the central portion of the door in closed position for forming a foot rest.

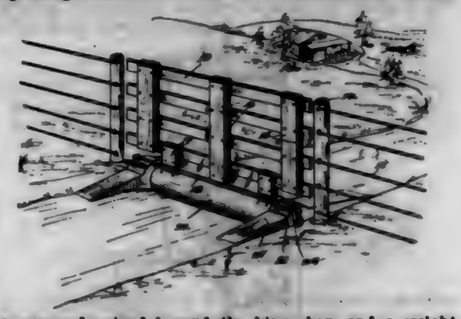
1,544,019. BURGLAR-ALARM SYSTEM. WILLIAM MCNAMES, Aberdeen, S. Dak. Filed Nov. 6, 1924. Serial No. 748,228. 3 Claims. (Cl. 116—86.)



2. In a device of the class described, a base plate, a fire arm rigidly secured to the base plate, an alarm mechanism including a bell, a base plate for the alarm mechanism, a swinging lever for the fire alarm carried by the first mentioned base plate, a sliding rod for actuating the alarm mechanism carried by the second mentioned base plate, means connecting the lever and the rod together for synchronous movement, a contractile spring coiled about the rod for normally urging the rod and lever to an operative position, a rigid latch arm carried by the lever having a hook terminal, an upstanding leaf spring secured to the first mentioned plate, a latch lug carried by said leaf spring for receiving said latch arm for normally holding the lever and rod against movement, a guide carried by the latch lug and spring for said latch arm, and an operating cable connected to the free end of said leaf spring.

1,544,020. SIGNALING DEVICE. HENRY R. MADDOX and FRANCIS I. S. HULL, Richmond, Va. Filed Mar. 10, 1923. Serial No. 624,140. 3 Claims. (Cl. 177—329.)

1. A signaling device for automobiles combining a signal lamp having a plurality of electric lights arranged with relation to each other to display a variety of signals, a source of electric current, switch-levers with cooperating contact-plates electrically connected to the source of electric current and to the aforesaid signal lights, an independent connector and cooperating contact-plates connected to the source of electric current and to one of the signal lights which is used also as a parking light, a locking means engaging said connector to hold it in contact with the plates, and means for disengaging the locking means actuated on the operation of any one of the switch-levers.



1,544,021. METHOD OF MANUFACTURING MACHINE KEYS. SILAS C. MERRICK, New Brighton, Pa., assignor to Standard Horse Nail Co., New Brighton, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 21, 1924. Serial No. 708,015. 2 Claims. (Cl. 29—148.)

1. The method of making machine keys having a curved edge and a straight edge which consists in taking a rectangular bar having a width and thickness respectively equal to the width and thickness of the keys produced, cutting a series of spaced notches in one edge of said bar extending approximately half-way across the width of the bar, each of said notches having a curved side which forms part of the curved edge of a partially formed key, and also having a straight side which forms part of the straight edge of a partially formed key cutting a second series of similar spaced notches in the other edge of the bar directly opposite the first named notches, the said second series of notches also extending approximately half-way across the width of the bar, whereby said bar is severed into a plurality of keys, each of said second series of notches also having a curved side which forms the rest of the curved edge of a key, and also having a straight side which forms the rest of the straight edge of a key.

1. A gate mechanism comprising foundations arranged at the sides of a roadway in a gate opening and having their upper surfaces inclined downwardly from their centers to their ends whereby to constitute runways for the wheels of an automobile, a hinge bar extending between said foundations and secured thereto at the centers thereof, a gate frame arranged above the foundations and having tracks upon its sides aligned with the foundations, hinge members secured to said frame and depending therefrom between the foundations to rotatably engage and extend beyond the hinge bar, and a weight fixed to the lower ends of said hinge members and normally holding the gate frame upright.

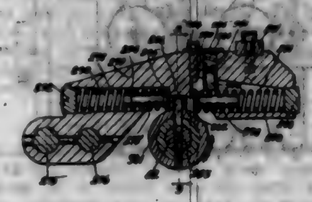
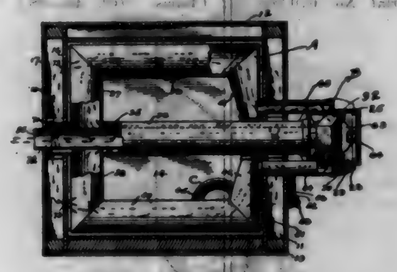
1,544,023. METHOD OF CURING MOLDED RUBBER ARTICLES AND APPARATUS THEREFOR. HENRY R. MINOR, Ossining, N. Y., assignor to General Carbonic Co., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 30, 1923. Serial No. 654,564. 14 Claims. (Cl. 18—4.)



1. The method of vulcanizing rubber articles which consists in maintaining constantly a major supply of a non-oxygen gas, withdrawing from said supply, and separately therefrom, confining a minor volume thereof, maintaining said minor volume under a constant predetermined pressure, utilizing withdrawals from said minor volume for the vulcanizing operation and simultaneously replenishing said minor volume with an amount of gas equivalent to that withdrawn therefrom for said vulcanizing uses.

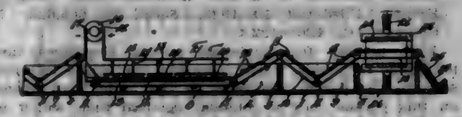
1,544,024. SAFETY DEVICE FOR TANKS CONTAINING INFLAMMABLE LIQUIDS. HENRY L. MOELLER and WALTER J. WILLENBORG, Weehawken, N. J. Filed Dec. 10, 1921. Serial No. 521,437. 16 Claims. (Cl. 220—85.)



12. A liquid-receptacle provided with a valved pipe through which liquid is adapted to pass into and from the receptacle, and a fuse the melting of which will admit the outside air to said pipe at a point located between the receptacle and the valve which controls said pipe.

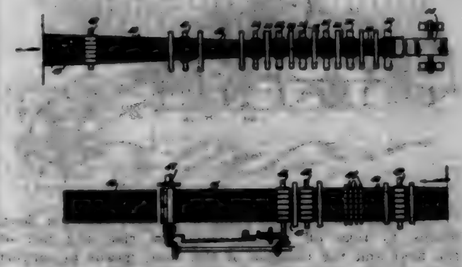
1,544,025. STOP MECHANISM. HAROLD W. MORRIS, Waltham, Mass., assignor to Frederick Gumn Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 7, 1923. Serial No. 643,898. 7 Claims. (Cl. 192—149.)

6. A stop device comprising a member having a pair of opposed sockets therein, a spring pressed abutment in each of said sockets extending toward the other in substantial alinement therewith, one of said sockets being laterally extended to permit its abutment to yield laterally out of said alinement, and a spring pressed plunger in said lateral extension and bearing on said abutment to yieldingly hold it in such alinement.



1,544,026. INCUBATOR. WILBERT C. MORSE, Hollister, Idaho. Filed Apr. 21, 1922. Serial No. 555,855. 2 Claims. (Cl. 236—4.)

1. In an incubator including a housing, a source of heat positioned externally of the housing, a conduit having movable means associated therewith for controlling passage of heat therethrough and a thermostat in the incubator housing; means for effecting movement of the control means, said means comprising a rotatable shaft journalled in the housing wall, an arm carried by the inner end portion of said shaft and arranged to bear upon said thermostat, a crank carried by the outer end portion of said shaft, a lever pivotally mounted externally of the incubator, a rod connected with said crank and with said lever for adjustment longitudinally of the lever, and means connecting said lever with the control means for moving the latter to different positions according to the temperature of the incubator.



1,544,027. PLATING DEVICE. JOHN J. MUELLER, Jr., Ottawa, Ill. Filed Feb. 1, 1923. Serial No. 616,857. 2 Claims. (Cl. 204—11.)

1. A device of the character described comprising an electroplating bath having an anode, means for conveying portions of a strip to be plated through said bath, and electrically controlled means for guiding said strip in a substantially straight path through said bath, said means comprising a pair of rollers, a pivotally mounted frame for rotatably supporting said rollers, said strip being arranged to pass between and engage with said rollers, and means for automatically turning the frame carrying said rollers when said strip moves of its own accord out of a straight path, whereby said strip may be restored to its proper path.

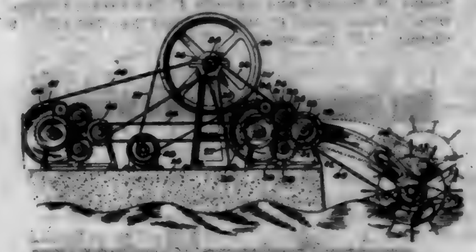
1,544,028. EXPANDED-METAL MANUFACTURE. HARRY M. NAUGLE and ARTHUR J. TOWNSEND, Canton, Ohio. Filed June 1, 1922. Serial No. 565,127. 9 Claims. (Cl. 164—6.6.)

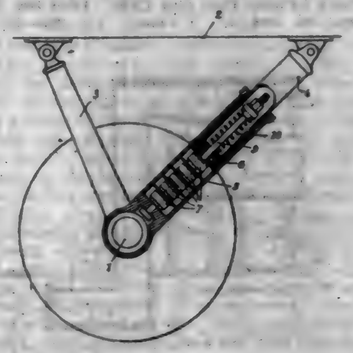
1. The method of making expanded metal which includes rolling sheet-bars, strips or the like longitudinally only to form strip-sheets, then slitting the strip-sheets to form bonds and strands, and expanding the resultant meshes.

1,544,029. WATER LIFTER AND CONDENSER. HANS JULIUS NELSON, Palo Alto, Calif. Filed Dec. 26, 1922. Serial No. 608,867. 1 Claim. (Cl. 203—5.)



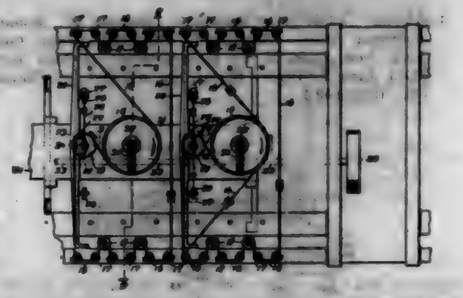
An apparatus for distilling water by means of solar heat, consisting of a container for water, a cover for said container, said cover comprised of a frame studded with burning-glasses for focusing the rays of the sun on the water held in the said container, a stack rising from said container for the purpose of providing a passage-way for vapors rising from the water heated in said container, an air-flue entering the top of said stack, a condensing chamber for said vapors, an outlet for said condensing chamber, a receptacle for condensed water and means for distributing the condensed distilled water.

1,544,030. PROCESS FOR RENDERING POROUS ELECTRODES IMPERMEABLE TO LIQUIDS. RENÉ OFFENHEIM, Levallois-Perret, France, assignor to Société Anonyme le Carbone, Levallois-Perret (Seine), France. Filed Oct. 19, 1923. Serial No. 669,625. 5 Claims. (Cl. 136—122.)



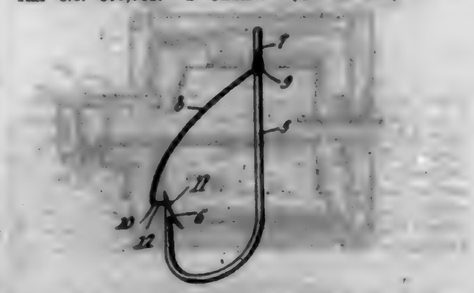
1. A process for rendering porous electrodes impermeable to liquids, which comprises applying a metallic soap to the porous electrode, so that said soap forms on this porous body a colloidal pectised film, which is non-decomposable by electric current, is a good conductor of electricity, and is impermeable to liquids but permeable to gases.

1,544,031. WAVE MOTOR. CHARLES G. POLLEYS, West Somerville, Mass. Filed June 8, 1923. Serial No. 644,162. 8 Claims. (Cl. 253—4.)



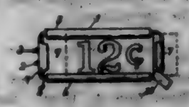
1. A wave motor embodying a buoyant rotating float, means to take off motion from the rise and fall of the float and the rotation of the float, means to convert each of said motions separately into continuous rotary motion, and means to combine the continuous rotary motion of both.

1,544,032. SHOCK ABSORBER FOR VEHICLES. HENRY CHARLES ALEXANDER POTEZ, Levallois-Perret, France. Filed Oct. 19, 1923. Serial No. 669,584. 3 Claims. (Cl. 244—2.)



2. A shock absorber for aeroplanes and other vehicles comprising suspension members respectively connected to the body of the vehicle and the part adapted to engage with the ground, india-rubber washers provided with central holes disposed between said members and adapted to work by compression, metal plates provided with central holes and inserted between said washers, the holes of said washers having a diameter larger than the holes of said metal plates, a common guiding rod secured to one of said suspension members, and extending through the holes in the washers and plates, and metal washers imbedded in the mass of said india rubber washers and projecting into the central holes of the latter.

1,544,033. SPINNING AND TWISTING MACHINE. JAMES CHARLES POTTER, Pawtucket, R. I. Filed Dec. 24, 1921. Serial No. 524,681. 7 Claims. (Cl. 118—47.)



1. A spinning or twisting machine having two lines of spindles, a drive pulley mounted substantially midway between the two lines of spindles on an axis parallel with the spindle axes, an endless belt passing in opposite directions from said pulley to the spindles of each line in succession, a tension device over which said belt passes, idlers adjacent the spindles of each line over which such belt passes, and a movable carriage supporting said spindles, tension device and idlers, for traversing the spindles, said belt partaking of the movement of said carriage.

1,544,034. WEEDLESS FISHHOOK. PERRY FOSTER RATCLIFF, Shreveport, La. Filed Oct. 26, 1923. Serial No. 670,965. 2 Claims. (Cl. 43—38.)

1. In a fishing hook, a body portion having a piercing extremity, a guard including a length of wire secured to the body portion, one end of the guard extending inwardly and outwardly and terminating at a point in space relation with the main portion of the guard to provide a bait securing member.

1,544,035. CARD HOLDER. WILLIAM S. RANCH, San Diego, Calif. Filed Dec. 6, 1921. Serial No. 520,418. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—16.)

1. A price tag holder, consisting of a single blank plate made of springy sheet metal with a pair of loop flanges in spaced relation transversely across said plate, said loops bent down so that they are in spaced relation from the main body and the extended ends curved inwardly and extending backwardly, the ends of the main body turned backwardly in the direction of said loop flanges forming flanges on the ends, one of said end flanges being considerably lower than the flange at the other end to permit the insertion of the card.

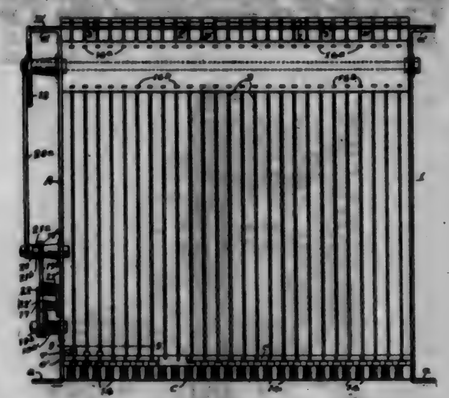
1,544,036. NICKEL-CHROMIUM ALLOY AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. MILTON J. ROSENCRANTS, New York, N. Y. Filed June 13, 1919. Serial No. 304,018. Renewed Aug. 21, 1924. 12 Claims. (Cl. 75—1.)

1. A process of making a nickel-chromium alloy comprising melting nickel and chromium and a previously formed nickel-chromium alloy which has been treated with zirconium while in a molten state.

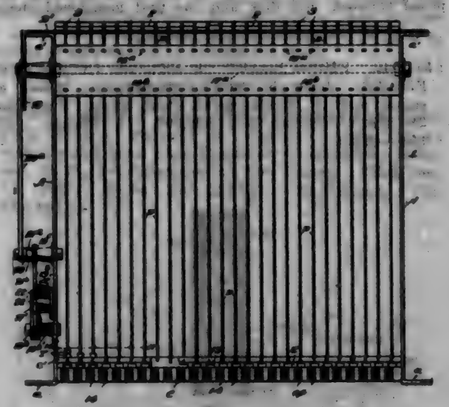
1,544,037. NICKEL-CHROMIUM ALLOY AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. MILTON JOHN ROSENCRANTS, New York, N. Y. Filed June 13, 1919. Serial No. 304,019. Renewed Aug. 19, 1924. 8 Claims. (Cl. 75—1.)

1. A process of making a nickel-chromium alloy, comprising melting nickel and chromium, and introducing zirconium into the melt.



1,544,038. APPARATUS FOR MAKING CORES. DANIEL J. RYAN, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Oct. 28, 1922. Serial No. 597,668. 14 Claims. (Cl. 22—13.)

1. In apparatus of the class described, the combination of a support and a core box comprising a main section of tubular shape having a cut away portion extending inwardly from its open end and a sub-section engaging the outer end of said main section and provided with an extension fitting said cut away portion and shaped to form a boss forming recess in the core.



1,544,039. STORING MECHANISM FOR TYPE. ARTHUR D. SABORSKY, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Advance Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Maine. Original application filed Jan. 6, 1917, Serial No. 140,989. Divided and this application filed July 12, 1920. Serial No. 395,736. 41 Claims. (Cl. 276—45.)

1. In apparatus of the character described, the combination of a member adapted to hold type in stacked relationship, and means for supporting said type holding member, said means being controlled and actuated while supporting said member to permit movement of the type endwise thereof.

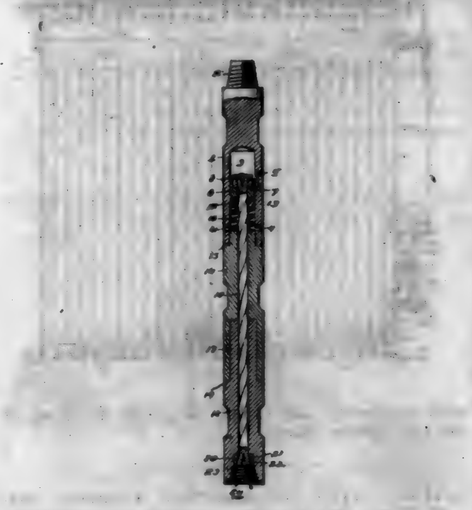
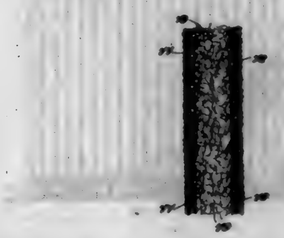
1,544,040. TYPE DISTRIBUTING, STORING, AND SETTING MECHANISM. ARTHUR D. SABORSKY, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Advance Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Jan. 6, 1917, Serial No. 140,989. Renewed May 5, 1923. 31 Claims. (Cl. 276—22.)



4. In apparatus of the class described, the combination of a frame, a platform thereon, said platform having an opening, type storing members in said frame upon which said type fall through the opening in said platform, a type distributing case adapted to slidably engage said platform, and co-operating means between said platform and distributing case for discharging the type one at a time from said distributing case to selected type storing members.

1,544,041. WELL DRILLING AND FISHING JAR. JOHN P. SCHENNUSEWA, Paintsville, Ky. Filed May 23, 1924. Serial No. 715,372. 2 Claims. (Cl. 255—27.)



1. A well drilling jar structure comprising a socket member, a sleeve screwed therein, and provided at its lower end with a socket, a second sleeve fitting snugly in the socket of the first mentioned sleeve and provided at its lower end with a socket, a block secured in the socket of the first mentioned member, a block located in the socket of the second mentioned sleeve, a wire cable section secured at its ends in the blocks and passing through the sleeves, a disk housed in the socket of the first mentioned member, and a spring housed in the socket of the first mentioned member and interposed between said disk and the first mentioned sleeve.

1,544,042. FIBER BOARD OF FELTED INTERLACED FIBERS. JOHN K. SHAW, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to C. F. Dahlberg, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Mar. 26, 1920. Serial No. 368,995. 6 Claims. (Cl. 154—45.9.)

1. The herein described fiber board composed of different masses of different kinds of fibers, a portion of the fibers of each of said masses interlaced with a portion of the fibers of an adjacent mass, and a portion of said fibers carrying natural pith like protuberances serving as entangling agents between the fibers.

1,544,043. DISTRIBUTOR AND TIMER COMBINED FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. CHESTER L. SNOOK, Peru, Kans. Filed Aug. 15, 1922. Serial No. 582,023. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—21.)

2. In a rotor, a hub formed of insulating material and having a socket for receiving a timer shaft, a contact shoe, a resilient carrier of conducting material for said shoe, a spring element of conducting material carried by said hub and positioned for engaging a timer shaft extending into the socket and frictionally holding the hub upon the shaft, and means for securing the carrier and spring element to the hub in contacting engagement with each other.

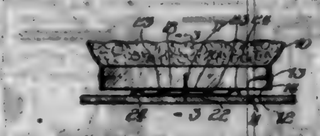
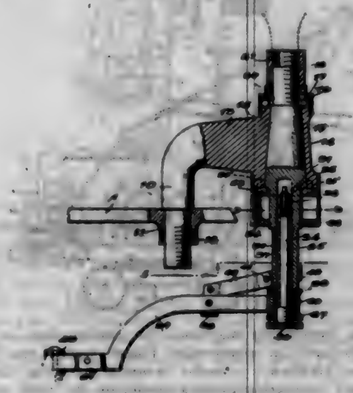
1,544,044. PROCESS OF AND APPARATUS FOR AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC ARC WELDING. ANDREW SMITH, San Mateo, Calif. Filed Mar. 24, 1919. Serial No. 284,528. 20 Claims. (Cl. 219—8.)



1. The process of welding metal with an electric arc, which comprises controlling the transverse travel of the electric arc automatically through a plurality of solenoids operating successively.

1,544,045. CIGARETTE CASE. J. P. STRAUS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 26, 1923. Serial No. 615,060. 8 Claims. (Cl. 131—59.)

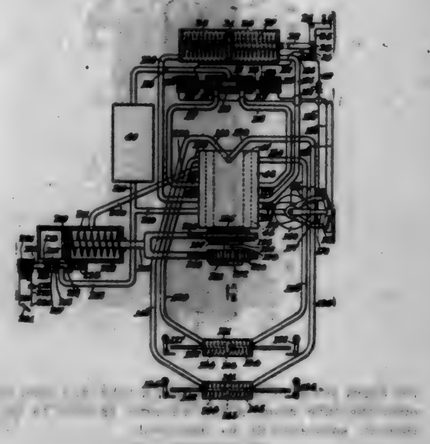


1. The combination with a case, of an ejector therein, a lighting element carried by the ejector for contact with the end of the article being ejected, a battery, and means operated by the actuation of the ejector for closing the circuit between the battery and the lighting element.

1,544,046. HAT CARRIER. JOSEPH STAFFA and RUDOLF STAFFA, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 11, 1923. Serial No. 680,107. 8 Claims. (Cl. 206—8.)

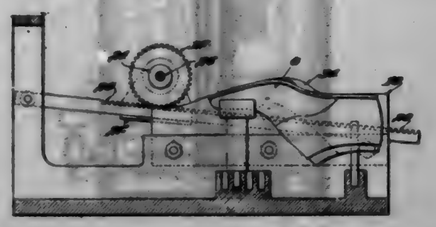
3. A hat carrier comprising a body formed with a foundation disc member adapted to be disposed parallel to and face a support, and body sustaining means comprising open-ended, slidingly engageable interlocking members adapted to be interlocked and released by movement of said members in either directions, said members being narrower than the circumference of said disc and extending diametrically across said disc.

1,544,047. DIRIGIBLE HEADLIGHT. THEODORE H. STINSON, Snohomish, Wash. Filed Sept. 28, 1922. Serial No. 591,137. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—52.)



1. In a dirigible headlight, a support, a spindle for supporting a headlight rotatably carried by the support, a crank arm journaled on the lower end of said spindle for normal swinging movement relative thereto, means carried by the crank arm for movement into and out of locking engagement with the spindle whereby the crank arm can be locked with the spindle for movement therewith, and means carried by the spindle for locking engagement with the support to prevent rotary movement of the spindle when said means carried by the crank arm is moved out of engagement with the spindle.

1,544,048. TREATMENT OF COPPER METALLURGICAL SLAG. HARRY HOWARD STOUT, Douglas, Ariz. Filed Nov. 23, 1921. Serial No. 517,198. 5 Claims. (Cl. 75—82.)

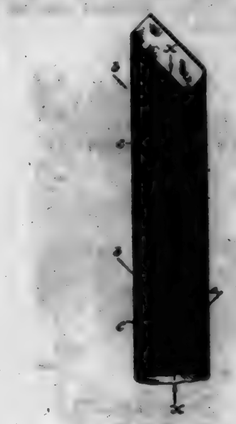


1. The method of precipitating copper from molten copper metallurgical slag, which consists in providing a charge of the molten slag at a definite temperature, adding to the charge a quantity of metallic iron, effecting melting and fusion of the iron by the unincreased heat of the slag charge, and distribution of the iron throughout the body of the charge, so that the iron combines with copper-compound constituents of the slag as such, to replace and precipitate the copper content thereof.

1,544,049. SYSTEM FOR THE CONTROL OF DIRIGIBLE DEVICES FROM A DISTANCE. ALBERT DELAFIELD TERNOR, Gloucester, Mass., assignor to John Hays Hammond, jr., Gloucester, Mass. Filed Mar. 31, 1916, Serial No. 88,052. Renewed Aug. 25, 1923. 32 Claims. (Cl. 114—21.)

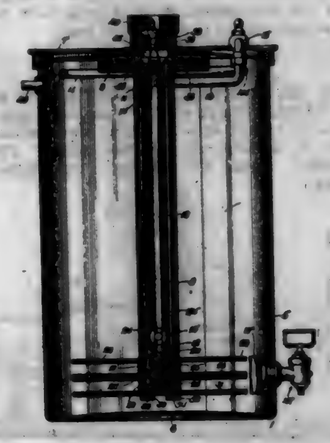
1. The combination with a plurality of independently operative fluid actuated devices, of a source of fluid pressure, and means operative in response to an impulse of energy to cause the distribution of fluid pressure from said source to one of said devices to actuate the same, and operative upon the cessation of said impulse to cause the distribution of fluid from said source to another of said devices to actuate the same.

1,544,050. MATRIX ROLL AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. ERASTUS B. WINSLEY, Lynn, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 19, 1921. Serial No. 523,527. 23 Claims. (Cl. 22—195.)



1. A step in the method of making matrix rolls which consists in impressing a pattern form in the periphery of a plastic body while rotating the body and giving its axis of rotation a pre-determined path of travel with relation to the pattern.

1,544,051. PROCESS OF BIAS CUTTING. ORRIS B. SOLIER, New York, N. Y., assignor to Brand & Oppenheimer, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 30, 1923. Serial No. 648,853. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—248.)



The improvement in the art of bias-cutting fabrics which comprises bending woven material having the warp and weft threads thereof extending parallel and perpendicular, respectively, to the selvedge so that the warp and weft threads will lie in helical lines, uniting the edges of the material to form a tube, and then slitting open the tube along a line running parallel to the axis thereof, substantially as described.

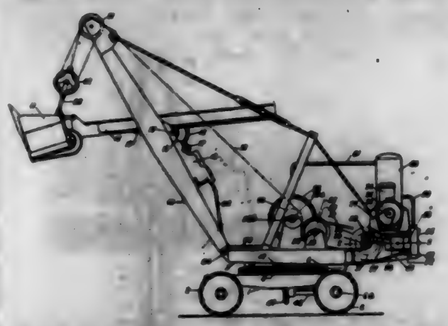
1,544,052. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR PURIFYING LIQUIDS. MEREDITH D. AVERY, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 19, 1923. Serial No. 613,648. 8 Claims. (Cl. 204—25.)

1. The method of electrically purifying liquids which includes rotating a confined body of liquid by effect of its velocity between oppositely polarized surfaces.



1,544,053. ADJUSTING MEANS FOR RAILWAY BRAKES. CHARLES O. ANDERSON, Omaha, Nebr. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,774. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—197.)

2. In a railway brake mechanism, the combination with a dead-lever, and a dead-lever-guide having a series of longitudinally spaced fulcrum-pin holes therein, of a head carried by said lever adjoining said guide, said head having a plurality of fulcrum-pin holes spaced in vernier-like relation to the holes in the guide, whereby the holes in the head may register successively with holes in the guide when the lever is at adjusted positions intermediate those in which any one hole of the head is in register with a hole in the guide, and a fulcrum-pin insertible through the registering holes to connect the lever and guide in said intermediate positions of adjustment.

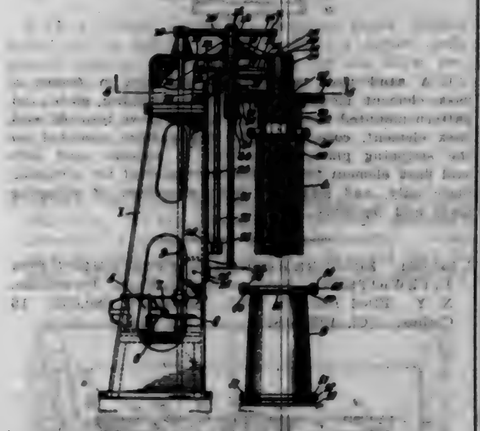
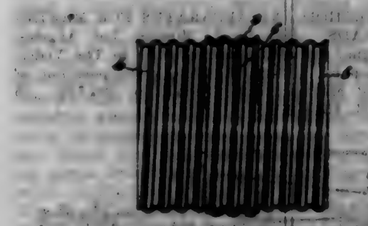
1,544,054. EXCAVATING MACHINE. EDWIN J. ARMSTRONG, Erie, Pa., assignor to Erie Steam Shovel Company, Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 14, 1924. Serial No. 720,128. 9 Claims. (Cl. 214—135.)



1. In an excavating machine, the combination of a turning platform; a compressor frame formed at the rear of the platform; a motor mounted over the compressor; and excavating devices driven by the fluid compressed.

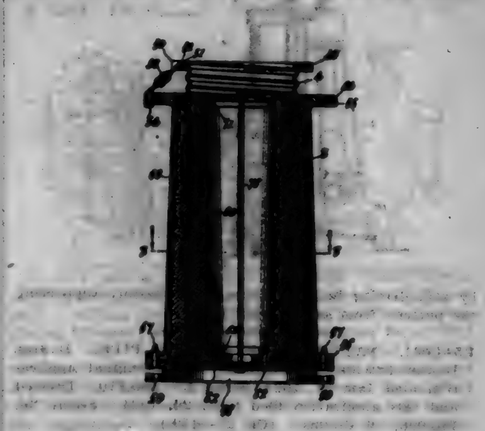
1,544,055. WARPING. HOWARD D. COLMAN, Rockford, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Edgar S. Nethercut, Evanston, Ill. Filed Sept. 10, 1917, Serial No. 190,501. Renewed Feb. 10, 1923. 86 Claims. (Cl. 28—32.)



33. A creel-braking mechanism having, in combination, a brake-controlling arm, thread-controlled means for holding said arm in brake-released position, said arm tending to move into brake-applied position, a cam for moving said arm into brake-released position, said cam having an intermediate dwell portion, a starting and stopping device controlling said cam, means connected to move with the arm for operating the starting and stopping device, means for locking the starting and stopping device in running position, and a device moving with the cam for operating the locking means to unlock the starting and stopping device, when the dwell portion is in engagement with the arm.

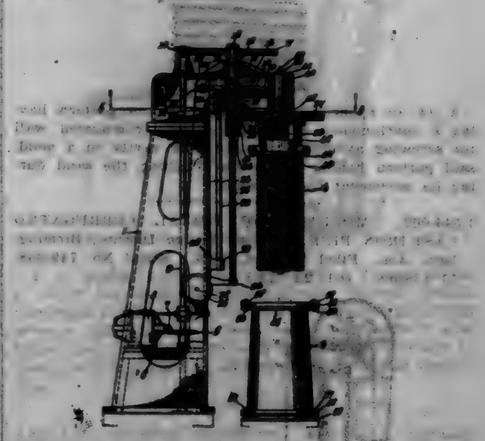
1,544,056. APPARATUS FOR MOLDING PIPE. DANIEL BAKER DIMICK, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Sept. 16, 1922. Serial No. 588,649. 9 Claims. (Cl. 22—14.)

2. An apparatus for molding pipe comprising a mold, a pattern having a spiral wall extending to both interior and exterior faces thereof adapted to be received into said mold and to receive the sand against both interior and exterior faces thereof, a master screw having the same pitch as said pattern supported externally of the mold, and rotating means traveling on said master screw and coupled to said pattern for simultaneously turning and withdrawing the pattern axially from the mold.



1,544,057. CAST PIPE AND JOINT THEREFOR. DANIEL BAKER DIMICK, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Sept. 16, 1922. Serial No. 588,650. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—75.)

2. A seamless cast metal spirally corrugated thin walled pipe.



1,544,058. PIPE MOLD. DANIEL BAKER DIMICK, Birmingham, Ala. Original application filed Sept. 16, 1922, Serial No. 588,649. Divided and this application filed Jan. 22, 1924. Serial No. 687,867. 9 Claims. (Cl. 22—183.)

1. A molding apparatus for casting pipe comprising inner and outer mold members having an annular space therebetween for receiving the sand, and a spirally corrugated pattern adapted to pass centrally through the sand and having means at its upper end cooperating with the upper end of the outer member of the mold to hold such pattern against displacement, substantially as described.

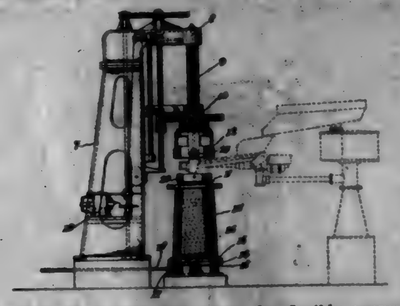
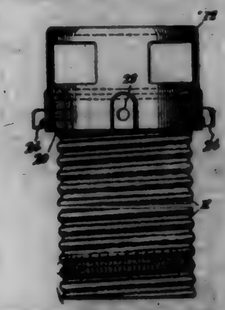
1,544,059. METHOD OF CASTING PIPE. DANIEL BAKER DIMICK, Birmingham, Ala. Original application filed Sept. 16, 1922, Serial No. 588,649. Divided and this application filed Jan. 22, 1924. Serial No. 687,868. 2 Claims. (Cl. 22—199.)



2. The herein-described method of casting pipe which consists in placing a hollow spirally-corrugated pattern in a mold in a substantially upright position, packing sand in the mold against both inside and outside walls of the hollow pattern, withdrawing said pattern from the mold by a simultaneous rotary and longitudinal motion, and pouring molten metal into the mold cavity so formed.

1,544,060. APPARATUS FOR CASTING PIPE. DANIEL BAKER DIMICK, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Jan. 31, 1924. Serial No. 689,810. 3 Claims. (Cl. 22—14.)



1. In an apparatus for casting pipe, a driving head and a continuously cylindrical and corrugated pattern adapted to be simultaneously lifted and rotated out of a continuously cylindrical cavity in the sand in a mold by said driving head, and means for flexibly supporting the pattern from said driving head.

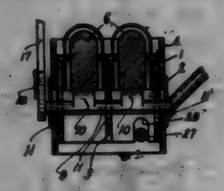
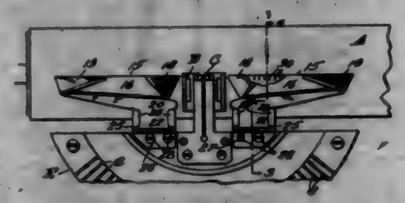
1,544,061. PATTERN FOR CASTING PIPE. DANIEL BAKER DIMICK, Birmingham, Ala. Original application filed Jan. 31, 1924, Serial No. 689,810. Divided and this application filed Sept. 26, 1924. Serial No. 740,066. 6 Claims. (Cl. 22—159.)



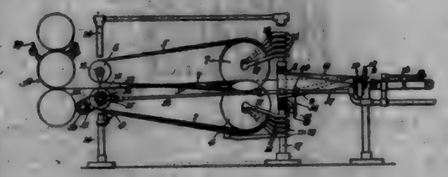
1. In an apparatus for casting pipe, a pattern having a continuously cylindrical spirally corrugated wall for screwing axially out of the sand cavity in a mold, said pattern having means for roughing the sand during its movement therethrough.

1,544,062. MOLDING OF SPIRAL CORRUGATED CAST-IRON PIPE. DANIEL BAKER DIMICK, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Nov. 10, 1924. Serial No. 749,068. 11 Claims. (Cl. 22—18.)



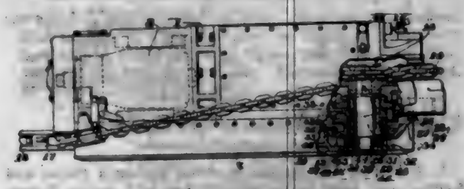
1. An apparatus for casting pipe comprising a rotary turn table, means to rotate said turn table, a flask supported upon said turn table, and a spiral pattern held against rotation and supported for axial movement of the pattern.

1,544,063. SAND-MOLDING APPARATUS. SAMUEL P. KING, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Aug. 6, 1923. Serial No. 656,060. 12 Claims. (Cl. 22—25.)



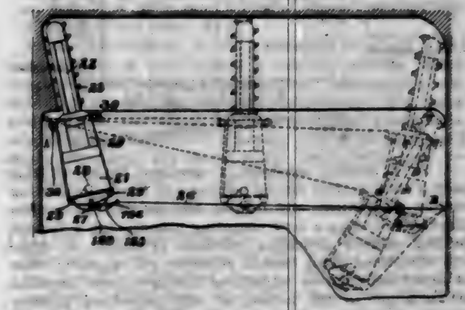
1. A sand mold apparatus, comprising a frame, a flask element mounted thereon, a stripping plate and pattern mounted in the frame free to move towards said flask element, core prints for the pattern mounted on the stripping plate, and means to squeeze sand into said flask element first by the movement of the stripping plate only, and lastly by joint movement of stripping plate and patterns.

1,544,064. ERASURE-RECEIVING ATTACHMENT FOR TYPEWRITERS. EDWARD K. MCNEAL, Forestville, N. Y. Filed Dec. 11, 1923. Serial No. 680,001. 16 Claims. (Cl. 197—131.)



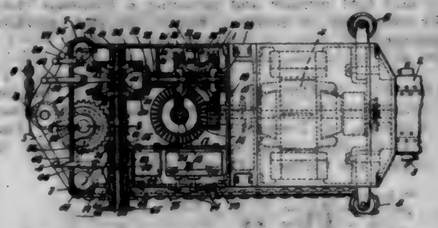
1. An attachment for typewriters comprising a receptacle adapted to receive material dropping from the work supported on the platen and means for supporting said receptacle on the typewriter in its operative position during the operation of said typewriter and relatively to which receptacle said platen may move during the operation of the typewriter.

1,544,065. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR MAKING TIRE TREADS. HOWARD I. MORRIS, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Yoder-Morris Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 5, 1919. Serial No. 294,733. 25 Claims. (Cl. 154—9.)



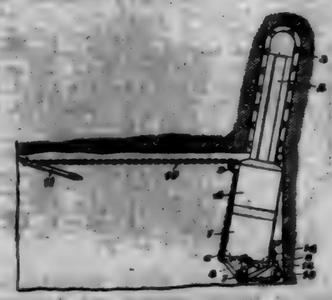
14. A tread machine having vertically disposed compressing rolls and a series of supporting, conveying and folding means converging toward the point of contact of said rolls, said means being spaced apart so that the folds formed thereby decrease in width progressively from one side to the other.

1,544,066. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Nov. 12, 1917, Serial No. 201,468. Renewed Oct. 29, 1924. 30 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



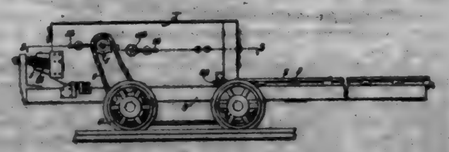
1. In a mining machine, a machine frame slidable bodily on its bottom during cutting, a cutter chain driving member thereon, a bearing for the latter preventing lateral displacement thereof, and means including an opening in the bottom of said frame and a removable closure therefor for enabling removal of said bearing through the bottom of said frame.

1,544,067. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 22, 1918, Serial No. 224,072. Renewed May 12, 1923. Serial No. 552,598. 158 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



1. A room and pillar mining machine slidable on the mine bottom comprising a frame, cutting mechanism thereon including a cutter bar projecting from said frame in fixed longitudinal relation thereto and carrying a rotatable cutter chain provided with elements circulating in orbits extending longitudinally of said bar and operative to cut and clear kerfs, flexible feeding means operative to effect feeding movement and to determine the angular relation of said machine to a working face during the various cutting operations and including advance and receding portions disposable laterally in opposite directions from the opposite ends of said frame, and feed operating and cutter chain driving means including a motor having a power shaft disposed longitudinally of said frame and means actuatable by the rear end of said power shaft and disposed wholly to the rear of the front end of said motor and operative to effect circulation of said cutter chain and to wind in said advance portion and unwind said receding portion to feed said machine at a predetermined low speed across a face as said cutter chain is rotated in one direction, said means having provision for winding in said receding portion at a like predetermined speed and at another speed, both without reversing the direction of said cutter chain or motor or alteration in the mode of operative connection between said receding portion and said winding means existing during said feed across the face.

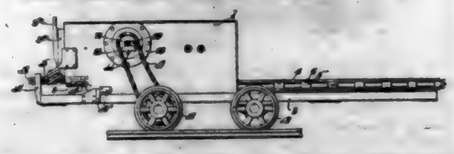
1,544,068. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 28, 1918, Serial No. 225,340. Renewed Oct. 8, 1923. 260 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



1. In a mining mechanism, a wheeled truck adapted to provide a support for a mining machine during transport, a mining machine adapted to be mounted thereon during transport but dismountable therefrom for cutting upon a mine bottom and including a motor, cutting means operable thereby, a truck driving member and transmission means driven by said motor for driving the truck driving member at different speeds, and means for operatively connecting said truck driving member and the wheels of said truck.

1,544,069. MINING MACHINE. FRED T. LORENZ, Winslow, Ind., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed May 18, 1918, Serial No. 235,284. Renewed Dec. 11, 1924. 25 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)

1. A mining apparatus comprising a frame having a cutter bar extending longitudinally thereof, flexible transverse feeding means therefor including single strand advance and receding portions at opposite ends of said frame, and means whereby said receding portion may be operatively connected at will as a double strand connection.



1,544,070. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 21, 1919. Serial No. 305,825. 43 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)

38. The combination with a mining machine, of a motor thereon, a truck driving member, driving connections between said motor and said member, a feed operating member, and connections between said connections and said feed operating member driven by the terminal element of said connections and including a plurality of drive trains and clutch mechanism controlling the connection of the terminal element of said trains to said feed member and including a frictional clutch for obtaining a constant torque on said operating member.

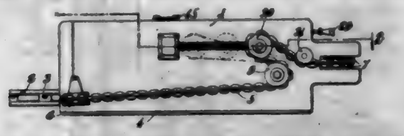
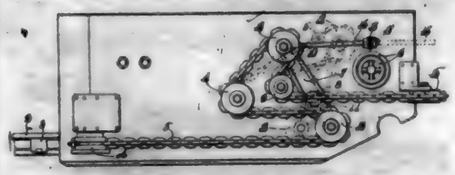
1,544,071. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 21, 1919, Serial No. 312,346. Renewed Nov. 20, 1924. 119 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



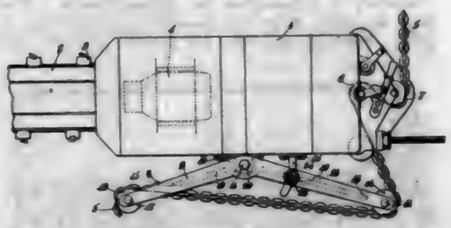
1. The combination with a mining machine, of a feed operating member, cutting mechanism, and variable speed mechanism therebetween operative to cause the speeds of said feed operating member and said cutting mechanism to vary inversely.

1,544,072. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 13, 1921. Serial No. 477,041. 49 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



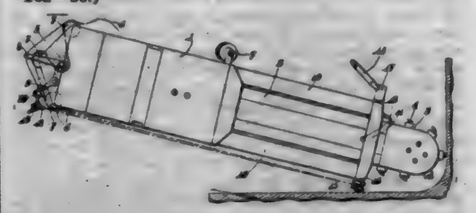
1. In a mining machine, feeding mechanism including a plurality of friction clutches and a supplemental variably controllable dragging friction clutch operatively connected to one of the elements of said clutches and adapted on loading to retard the rotation of either of said clutches.

1,544,073. MINING MACHINE. ROBERT C. OSGOOD, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 13, 1921. Serial No. 477,045. 23 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



1. In a mining machine, a frame slidable on a mine bottom during cutting, a feed operating member thereon, a flexible feed member engaging said feed operating member and extending in opposite directions from opposite ends of said frame, and take-up means rectilinearly movable longitudinally on the frame adjacent said operating member and operative to effect angling of said machine frame without changing the point from which the feed operating member leaves the frame.

1,544,074. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 13, 1921. Serial No. 477,042. 80 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)



1. A flexibly fed mining machine having a frame and feeding and guiding mechanism for said frame including flexible feeding means including flexible portions extending oppositely from points adjacent opposite ends of said frame, and takeup means operable by the pull of one of said portions while both are under tension to shorten the then receding portion.

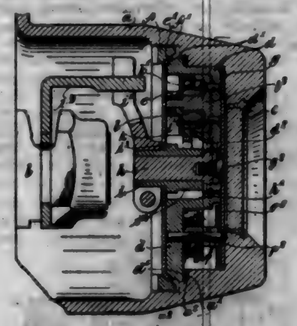
1,544,075. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 18, 1921. Serial No. 485,091. 23 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)

1. In a mining machine, a machine frame slidable upon a mine bottom during cutting and having projecting cutting mechanism, and feeding and guiding mechanism therefor including a feed operating member and a flexible feeding member providing portions extending in opposite directions from points adjacent the opposite ends of said frame and an adjustable takeup member disposed at an angle to the horizontal and presenting guiding means at the opposite ends of said frame with which said flexible feeding member cooperates, one of said guiding means and said feed operating member being so disposed as to be cut by horizontal planes substantially above the plane of said cutting mechanism and the other of said guiding means being cut by horizontal planes cutting said cutting mechanism.

1,544,076. MINING MACHINE. EDMUND C. TREESE, Huntington, W. Va., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 12, 1921. Serial No. 507,344. 18 Claims. (Cl. 262—30.)

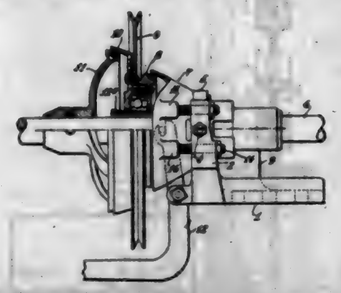
1. In a mining apparatus, a mining machine having a frame and telescopic guiding means supported by said frame adapted to be fixed in extended position, and a self-contained feeding means independent of the fixation means having operative connection with said guiding means and said machine frame.

1,544,077. MINING MACHINE. EDMUND C. TREESE, Huntington, W. Va., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Nov. 19, 1921, Serial No. 516,494. Renewed Dec. 5, 1924. 18 Claims. (Cl. 105—107.)



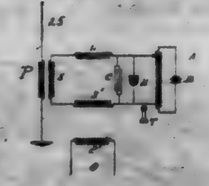
1. In a mining apparatus, a mining machine truck, a mining machine slidable thereover during loading or unloading and having flexible truck driving connections connected thereto and a single longitudinally adjustable means between said machine and truck for insuring proper tensioning of said flexible driving connections in either direction.

1,544,078. ELECTROLYSIS OF ALKALI-METAL CHLORIDES. CHARLES F. VAUGHN and RALPH E. GROSSHEIMER, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignors to The Mathieson Alkali Works, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed Jan. 7, 1921. Serial No. 435,788. 7 Claims. (Cl. 204—58.)



1. The improvement in the electrolysis of alkali metal salt solutions in cells having a mercury cathode, which comprises electrolyzing the solution, resaturating the solution with salt containing impurities which are taken into solution and which are active during electrolysis, removing such impurities following the resaturation and before returning the solution for electrolysis, and returning the solution for electrolysis.

1,544,079. HUB ODOMETER. CURTIS HUSSEY VEEDER, Hartford, Conn., assignor to The Veeder Manufacturing Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Nov. 18, 1924. Serial No. 750,513. 3 Claims. (Cl. 235—95.)

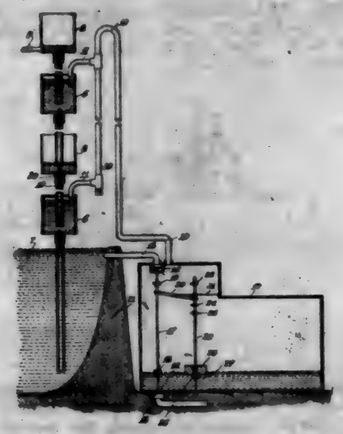


1. In a hub odometer having a hub cap formed with a recess extending from the inner end of the cap outward, a frame supporting the odometer mechanism arranged in said recess and a protecting plate at the inner side of the frame and odometer mechanism, means for securing the plate in position comprising a bevel formed on the inner face of the frame at its periphery, an outwardly inclined flange at the periphery of the protecting plate fitting the bevel on the frame and means for holding the inclined flange of the protecting plate against the beveled periphery of the frame consisting of a ring nut having its interior face beveled and having its exterior provided with means for engaging the interior of the cap.

1,544,080. TRANSMISSION APPARATUS. MAX T. VOIGT, Reading, Pa., assignor to Louis Frankel, New York, N. Y. Filed July 29, 1922. Serial No. 578,296. 9 Claims. (Cl. 192—18.)

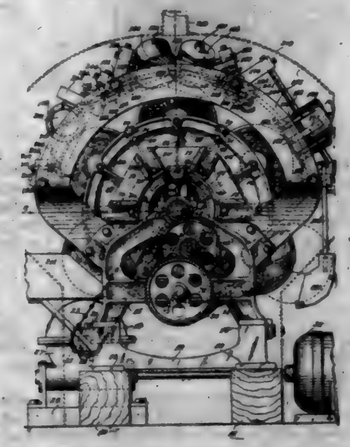
1. Apparatus of the character described, comprising a constantly rotating body, a member adapted to be rotated thereby, means for moving the member to engage the body, and pivotal means for adjusting the body relatively to the member.

1,544,081. TRANSMITTING INTELLIGENCE BY RADIANT ENERGY. FREDERICK K. VREELAND, Montclair, N. J., assignor to Vreeland Apparatus Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Jan. 2, 1907, Serial No. 350,476, Patent No. 1,289,852, dated Sept. 11, 1917. Divided and this application filed Oct. 27, 1915. Serial No. 58,100. 6 Claims. (Cl. 250—8.)



1. The method of receiving oscillating current energy by first combining it with the energy of a separately produced auxiliary oscillating current whose frequency is slightly different from the frequency of the received current, and then rectifying and utilizing the combined current to operate an indicator.

1,544,082. LIQUID-RAISING SYSTEM. HERBERT JAMES CLEMENT WELLS, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 21, 1923. Serial No. 620,337. 6 Claims. (Cl. 103—237.)



1. In a liquid raising system having an open tank above a closed tank positioned above a supply of liquid to be raised, and one-way upward flow connections from the supply to the closed tank and from the closed tank to the open tank, the combination of a closed chamber connected to the upper portion of each closed tank, an outlet for said chamber, an inlet, a valve device for opening either said outlet or said inlet and concurrently closing the other, and means for operating said valve device comprising a pivoted member swingable between two extreme positions, means acting constantly on said pivot member to cause resistance to movement thereof from either of its extreme positions to its central position and then to cause the pivoted member to move rapidly to complete its movement to the other extreme position, means, including a float in the chamber and having a lost motion connection with the pivoted member, to shift the pivoted member from either of its extreme positions past its central position to cause filling or draining of the tank in accordance with the directions of such movement.

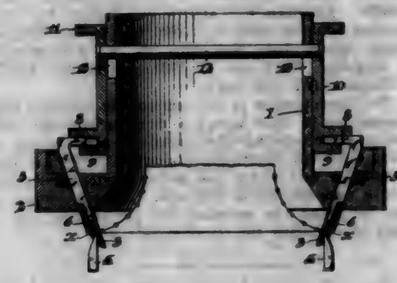
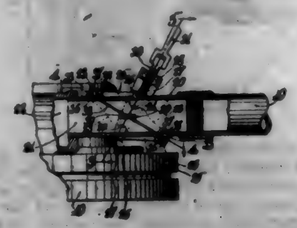
1,544,083. METHODS AND MEANS FOR SURFACING OR EDGING ARTICLES. FRANCIS S. WHITTEN, Miami, Fla., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Columbia Phonograph Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 12, 1921. Serial No. 507,514. 45 Claims. (Cl. 29—38.)



1. In a surfacing machine, a rotatable conveyor for records or the like adapted to support a plurality of records in spaced relation, record holding means having cushioning surfaces for frictionally engaging and supporting the records, means for intermittently rotating the conveyor to bring the records successively into predetermined positions, and means adapted to engage the edges of the records in such positions to surface them.

1,544,084. DOLL. DAVID WIENER, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 7, 1924. Serial No. 697,447. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)

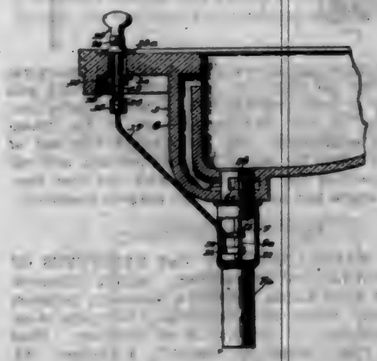


1. A doll or similar toy having a stuffed body, a shoulder-piece secured thereto provided with one element of a detachable connection, and a head and shoulder portion formed in one piece and provided with the other element of the detachable connection, said shoulder portion on the head being adapted to extend over and at least partly cover the shoulder piece secured to the body.

1,544,085. DEVICE FOR TRANSFERRING KNITTED FABRICS. LOUIS N. D. WILLIAMS, Ogonts, Pa. Filed Feb. 23, 1923. Serial No. 620,589. 11 Claims. (Cl. 66—82.)

1. A device for transferring knitted fabrics including in combination, means adapted to be aligned with the needles of a knitting machine to facilitate impalement of the fabric stitches upon the needles, and incorporated means for subsequently relatively moving the stitches and needles laterally to position the stitches within the needle hooks.

1,544,086. COMBINED STRAINER AND PIPE COUPLING. CHARLES W. WYMAN, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 17, 1921. Serial No. 478,434. 26 Claims. (Cl. 183—51.)



1. A fluid conduit comprising pipe sections having diagonal meeting surfaces, a strainer disposed therebetween, and quick detachable unitary clamping means therefor.

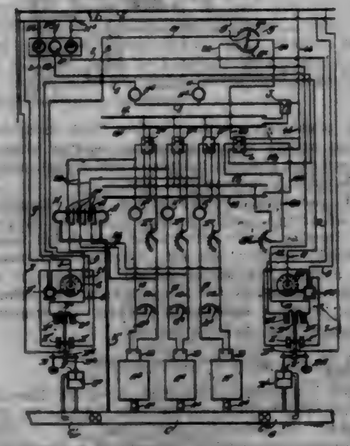
1,544,087. BUTTON FASTENER. JOHN A. DUPAUIL, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Mar. 20, 1925. Serial No. 16,977. 6 Claims. (Cl. 24—97.)

1. A button fastener comprising, a shank, yieldable expansible gripping jaws carried at one end of the shank, a base plate, and means on the plate releasably engageable between the jaws.

1,544,088. WASTE-VALVE-CONTROLLING DEVICE. CARL H. DUBBY, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, assignor to Dearborn Brass Company, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Filed Jan. 8, 1924. Serial No. 684,982. 3 Claims. (Cl. 4—208.)

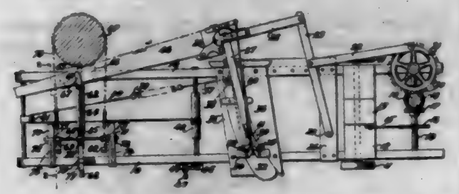
1. Combined with a lavatory waste-valve having a depending stem, a seat therefor provided with a guide for said stem, a flexible pull-and-thrust member attached to the stem below said guide, a tubular guide for said member, and means attached to the free end of said member for operating the same to open and close the valve, the valve-stem guide forming a stop to limit the lift of the valve.

1,544,089. SAFETY SWITCH AND FUSE BOX. CHARLES L. EIDLITZ, New York, N. Y., assignor to Metropolitan Electric Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Original application filed Aug. 14, 1919, Serial No. 317,515. Divided and this application filed June 17, 1921. Serial No. 478,263. 9 Claims. (Cl. 200—50.)



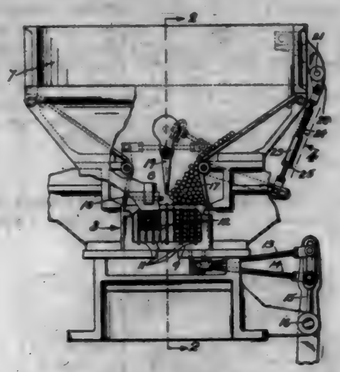
1. In a safety switch and fuse box, the combination of a casing and a cover therefor, a switch within the casing and having an operating member projecting thru the cover when the cover is in closed position, the member and opening through which it projects being so shaped as to permit the cover to be opened, a locking member carried by the operating member, means carried by the cover and co-acting with said locking member to permit the cover to be opened when the switch is in the "off" position and prevent it when in other positions.

1,544,090. MEASURING DEVICE. OTTO EPPENSTEIN, Jena, Germany, assignor to the Firm of Carl Zeiss, Jena, Germany. Filed June 19, 1923. Serial No. 646,362. 1 Claim. (Cl. 88—39.)



In a device for comparing two distances, running parallelly to each other, a fixed sighting device adapted to observe the one of these two distances, an optical system located in front of the said sighting device and displaceable parallelly to these distances, the optical axis of which system lies in the plane determined by these two distances, the front focal point of which system lies on the distance to be sighted at with this system and of which system that point lies on the other of the two distances which has the property that a ray aiming at it in the object-space emanates from the said optical system at an angle to the axis which is equal to that on entering with respect to magnitude and direction, and means for ascertaining the position of the said optical system with respect to the other distance.

1,544,091. FURNACE REGULATION. GEORGE H. GIBSON, Montclair, N. J. Filed Mar. 5, 1923. Serial No. 622,891. 17 Claims. (Cl. 236—34.5.)

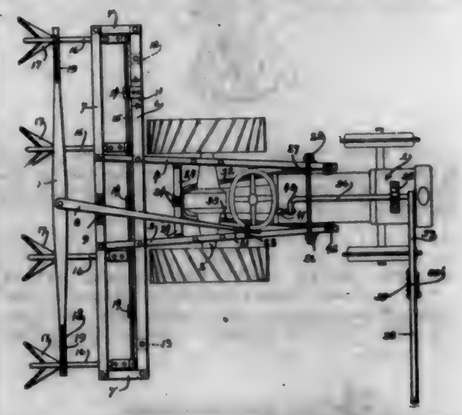


1. The method of automatically regulating combustion in a plurality of boiler furnaces supplying steam to a common distributing system having a plurality of outlets, which consists in establishing a control force proportional to the steam flow through each of said outlets, and varying the aggregate rate of combustion in said boiler furnaces in response to variations in the sum of said control forces.

1,544,002. TREE-FELLING APPARATUS. MOSES G. HUBBARD, Chatham, N. J., assignor to Excelsior Tree Felling Saw Co., Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 23, 1921, Serial No. 487,022. Renewed December 5, 1924. 8 Claims. (Cl. 143—63.)

1. Tree-felling apparatus comprising a frame, a saw supported thereby, a slide mounted to move across the frame, a rigid lever pivotally connected with the saw and mounted on said slide so as to rock across the same during operation, a spring attached to said slide adapted to move the same forward during operation, and a motor on said frame adapted to reciprocate the saw.

1,544,093. PACKAGING-MACHINE ARTICLE FEED. MAXIMILIAN KLEIN, North Plainfield, N. J., assignor to American Machine and Foundry Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 26, 1924. Serial No. 734,171. 16 Claims. (Cl. 226—5.)



1. A packaging-machine article feed comprising a source of article supply having a delivery throat, two sets of coacting stacking devices in said throat, and means for differentially moving said sets.

1,544,094. CULTIVATOR. HELLMUTH E. KRESS, Fayetteville, Tex. Filed July 24, 1923. Serial No. 653,491. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—47.)

The combination with a tractor; of a frame comprising a pair of longitudinally extending bars connected to the axle housing of the tractor intermediate their ends, a transverse bar extending across the outer ends of said longitudinal bars, a second transverse bar suspended from and below the first mentioned transverse bar, plow beams hingedly connected to the last mentioned transverse bar and extending rearwardly thereof, plows on the outer ends of said beams, a third transverse bar supported at the rear ends of said longitudinal bars, means for raising and lowering said plow beams comprising a lever fulcrumed intermediate of its ends centrally of the third transverse bar, a transverse beam pivotally connected to the rear end of said lever and arranged in a plane above said beams, a spacing and connecting bar engaged with said plow beams, and pairs of downwardly divergent flexible connections engaged with the transverse beam at their one ends and with said connecting and spacing bar at their opposite ends, a hook member carried on one of the longitudinal bars of the frame adapted for engagement with the forward free end of said lever to retain the beams in raised position, and coil springs connecting the plow beams with the first mentioned transverse bar, as and for the purpose described.

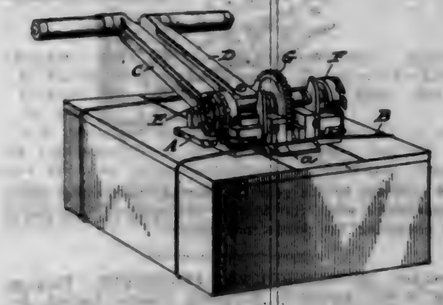
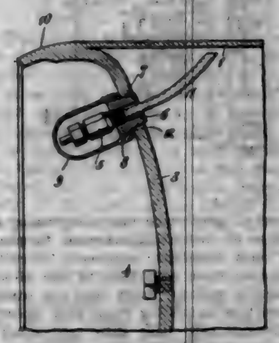
1,544,095. MANUFACTURE OF VAT DYESTUFFS OF THE ANTHRAQUINONE SERIES. ARTHUR LÜTTRINGHAUS and FILIP KAČER, Mannheim, Germany, assignors to Badische Anilin- & Soda-Fabrik, Ludwigshafen-on-Rhine, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Dec. 12, 1923. Serial No. 680,257. 4 Claims. (Cl. 260—44.)



1. The process of producing vat dyestuffs of the anthraquinone series which consists in a 1-mercapto-2-aminoanthraquinone body with a glyoxal body.

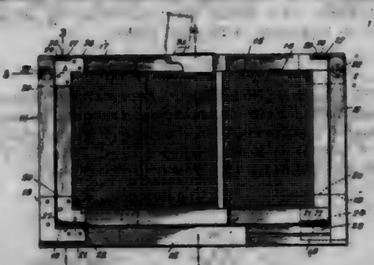
1,544,096. TENSION MEANS FOR WIRE-TYING MACHINES. JOHN SHERMAN MCCHESNEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Cary Manufacturing Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 28, 1924. Serial No. 746,281. 5 Claims. (Cl. 254—61.)



5. A tension head for wire tying machines embodying a body member recessed in one face and provided with a tie-locking abutment, and a tie-locking member rotatable in said body member and positioned in the recess thereof for contact with a tie when the latter is inserted, said locking member and the abutment co-operating with a deformed tie to lock the same in fixed engagement with said head.

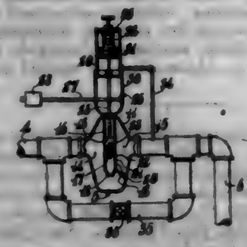
1,544,097. TENSION DEVICE FOR WIRE-TYING MACHINES. JOHN SHERMAN MCCHESNEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Cary Manufacturing Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 28, 1924. Serial No. 746,282. 7 Claims. (Cl. 254—51.)

6. A tension head for wire tying machines embodying a rotatable member provided with notched rims for a deformed wire tie and having a plurality of tangential pockets for receiving and retaining a plain wire tie.



1,544,098. VALVE FOR LIQUEFIED-GAS CONTAINERS. MAX MAURAN, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignor to The Mathieson Alkali Works, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed May 18, 1922. Serial No. 562,002. 6 Claims. (Cl. 220—85.)

1. A container for liquefied gases having a dished head and a chime extending beyond the head, the head having one or more projections beyond its outer surface near its junction with the cylindrical wall of the container, an internally threaded bore through each such projection, a valve screwed into the bore, the valve having its operating mechanism lying beyond the end of the projection and having a pipe extending through the bore into the container to a point near the wall of the latter, and a cap for enclosing and protecting the valve removably mounted on the projection.



1,544,099. WINDOW SCREEN. EDWARD NUEBLING, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 12, 1923. Serial No. 680,078. 7 Claims. (Cl. 156—38.)

1. In a window screen, an outer supporting frame comprising a pair of vertical uprights and an extensible cross bar secured to and connecting the lower extremities of said uprights; a screen section pivotally secured to each of said uprights for free movement to opened position, means for detachably securing said supporting frame rigidly within a window frame and means to lock said screen sections in closed position, said supporting frame being free from connecting cross bars at the upper end thereof whereby a free, unobstructed opening will be provided when said screen sections are moved to opened positions.

1,544,100. AIR-LIFT PUMPING MECHANISM. CHARLES BRAND OFFICER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed May 19, 1923. Serial No. 640,027. 10 Claims. (Cl. 103—11.)

1. In an air lift pumping mechanism, a source of pumping fluid, a foot piece, and means connecting the same including means always in communication with the fluid flow to said foot piece for varying the communication between them in proportion to the variations in the hydrostatic head against which pumping fluid is discharged, said connecting means being adapted to allow a flow of fluid which is insufficient to pump a normal flow of liquid under any head thereof during the existence of normal pumping pressure.

1,544,101. ENVELOPE FASTENER AND PATCH-APPLYING MACHINE. ALBERT OLOAT, Glenellyn, Ill., assignor to Gaw-O'Hara Envelope Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 5, 1923. Serial No. 622,843. 4 Claims. (Cl. 93—61.)

1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of a stationary anvil adapted to receive an envelope, means for punching and applying patches to the envelope flap, a reciprocatory fastener applying punch, a feed wheel for feeding a strip of fasteners to said punch, means for imparting an intermittent movement to said wheel, and means for positioning the endmost fastener in alignment with said punch.

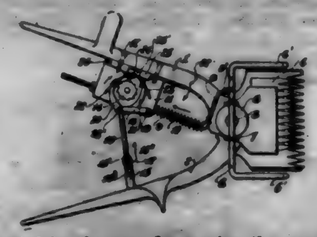
1,544,102. ARC GENERATOR. PEDER OLUF PEDERSEN, Frederikaberg, near Copenhagen, Denmark, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Poulsen Wireless Corporation, a Corporation of Arizona. Filed June 21, 1919. Serial No. 305,844. 18 Claims. (Cl. 250—38.)

1. In an arc converter, a pair of electrodes, and means for restricting the travel of the arc along one of the electrodes, comprising means for cooling said electrode on a restricted place on the electrode corresponding to the limit of arc travel, said cooling being of such degree as to prevent the continuation of the arc at the cooled place.

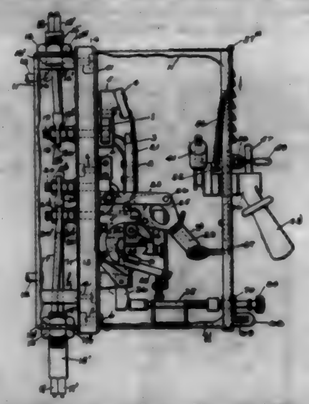
1,544,103. PROCESS OF MAKING SOAPS AND DETERGENTS. ROBERT M. PETTIT, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Colloidal Soap Products Corporation, Dover, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Continuation of application Serial No. 752,124, filed Nov. 25, 1924. This application filed Feb. 27, 1925. Serial No. 12,172. 3 Claims. (Cl. 87—16.)



1. The process of making soaps and detergents consisting of subjecting potato pulp mixed with a caustic alkali to a mixing in a closed mixer, at a heat of substantially 210° F., for a period of ten to twenty minutes, and then adding soda ash and saponifiable oil, and subjecting this mixture to a mixing in a closed mixer, at substantially the same temperature as before, for a period of from ten to twenty minutes.

1,544,104. PROCESS OF MAKING SOAPS AND DETERGENTS. ROBERT M. PETTIT, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Colloidal Soap Products Corporation, Dover, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Continuation of application Serial No. 752,124, filed Nov. 25, 1924. This application filed Feb. 27, 1925. Serial No. 12,173. 2 Claims. (Cl. 87—16.)

1. The process of making soaps and detergents consisting of subjecting potato pulp mixed with a caustic alkali to a mixing in a closed mixer, at a heat of substantially 210° F., for a period of ten to twenty minutes, and then adding soda ash and a fatty acid, and subjecting this mixture to a mixing in a closed mixer, at substantially the same temperature as before, for a period of from ten to twenty minutes.



1,544,105. ATTACHMENT FOR HAIR CLIPPERS. GEORGE POSNICK, Springfield, Mass. Filed Jan. 7, 1922. Serial No. 527,631. 7 Claims. (Cl. 30—1.)

1. An attachment for hair clippers of the type described having a fixed and a movable plate and comprising, in combination, handles for operating the movable plate, a member pivotally connected to a fixed part of the clipper and designed to be tilted below the lower surface of the fixed plate, pawls connected to the movable plate, a ratchet wheel on one of the handles and actuated by the pawls from the other handle, a gear actuated by the ratchet wheel, a rack connected to said member and actuated by the gear for moving the member below said surface when the handles are operated and means for rendering the pawls inoperative.

1,544,106. SWITCH-HOUSING STRUCTURE. WILLIAM M. SCOTT, Tredyffrin Township, Chester County, Pa. Original application filed Oct. 2, 1919, Serial No. 328,056. Divided and this application filed May 22, 1920. Serial No. 383,362. 12 Claims. (Cl. 200—168.)

11. An electrical protective unit comprising a pair of housings, a base of insulating material forming a common wall of said housings, automatic circuit breaker mechanism secured upon said base in one of said housings and accessible without entry into the other of said housings, connectors extending from said circuit breaker mechanism through said base into said other of said housings, conductors extending from the exterior into said other of said housings, to effect electrical communication with said connectors, and means for attaching said other of said housings to a support for supporting the unit.

1,544,107. CHUCK. ARTHUR E. SHARPLES, Providence, R. I. Filed June 15, 1922. Serial No. 568,087. 1 Claim. (Cl. 77—62.)

A work chuck comprising a base, a rectangularly shaped groove therein, oppositely disposed diagonal grooves also in said base joining said rectangular groove, a plurality of clamping jaws slidable on the face of said base and each having a slot therein, a pin on each of said jaws slidable in and guided by either said rectangular or diagonal grooves, and a binding bolt extending through the slot in each of said jaws for holding them in adjusted position.

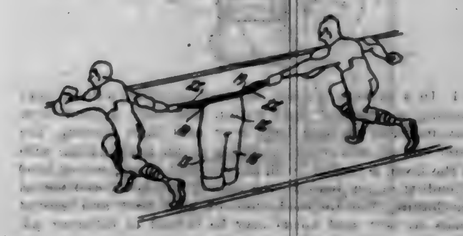
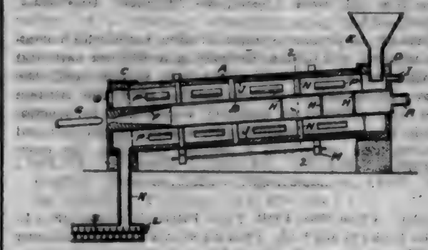
1,544,108. PROCESS OF MAKING BRONZE. HARRY H. SMITH, Berwyn, Pa., assignor of one-half to Anna H. Smith, Berwyn, Pa. Filed Dec. 11, 1923. Serial No. 680,039. 9 Claims. (Cl. 75—1.)



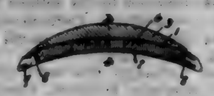
1. A method of making bronze which consists in fusing approximately 40 parts tin, 10 parts zinc and 1 part phosphor copper to produce a foundation metal, using approximately 300 parts copper, raising the temperature of the copper to approximately 2200 degrees and fusing the foundation metal with the copper.

1,544,109. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. JESSE A. B. SMITH, Stamford, Conn., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 4, 1922. Serial No. 558,357. 29 Claims. (Cl. 197—128.)



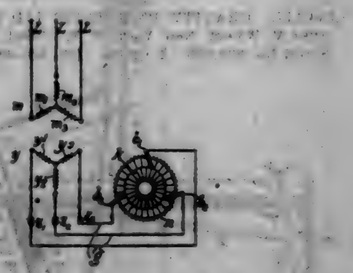
1. In a typewriting machine for typing alternatively upon either of two work-sheets arranged side by side, in combination, a revoluble platen, means co-acting with the platen at one side of the latter to cause work-sheets on the platen to be held thereto and to have line-space movement therewith, and means at the other side of the platen for holding work-sheets in fixed position for printing thereon against the platen, and for effecting a line-space movement of such work-sheets over the platen, independently of movement of the platen, said last-mentioned means being supported in part upon the platen about midway of the platen.

1,544,110. TACKLING DUMMY. WALTER T. STALL, Brockton, Mass. Filed Apr. 29, 1925. Serial No. 26,651. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—35.)



1. A portable tackling dummy, comprising body and leg portions, simulating parts of the body and legs of a foot ball player, and provided at one end with handle members adapted to be grasped by two assistants, the arrangement being such that the assistants may run side by side with the dummy suspended, legs downward, between them, in position to be tackled by a player running in the opposite direction.

1,544,111. PROCESS OF REDUCING ORES. ALFRED STANSFIELD, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Mar. 22, 1920. Serial No. 367,851. 7 Claims. (Cl. 75—14.)



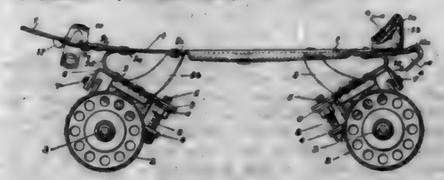
1. The process of reducing iron ores consisting of feeding a preheated mixture of powdered ore and carbonaceous matter into the coolest end of a reducing chamber, passing the mixture with violent agitation in zones of increasing temperature and through the opposite flow of reducing gases in the chamber and withdrawing the material after treatment.

1,544,112. SAFETY RAZOR. EDWIN Q. SULLIVAN, Red Bluff, Calif. Filed Apr. 4, 1922. Serial No. 549,432. 4 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)

1. A safety razor of the character described comprising a razor blade, two clamping members contacting the blade from opposite sides and means for clamping the members upon the blade, one of the clamping members being formed with a shallow recess in its contacting face allowing the bottom of the recess and the blade to co-operate in drawing in and dispensing a liquid by capillary action.

1,544,113. ALTERNATING-CURRENT INDUCTION MOTOR. THEODORE TORDA, Budapest, Hungary. Filed June 7, 1922. Serial No. 566,559. 9 Claims. (Cl. 172—274.)

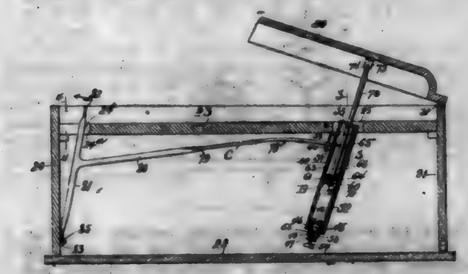
1. In an asynchronous induction machine, a stator, a rotor, a polyphase rotor winding for the rotor and connected with slip-rings, a commutator winding and commutator arranged on the rotor, brushes placed in polyphase arrangement for co-operating with the said commutator, brushes for co-operating with the said slip-rings, means connecting the brushes associated with the slip-rings with the brushes associated with the commutator, and means to reduce the mutual induction of the two rotor windings.



1,544,114. PROCESS OF RECOVERING PURE LITHIUM SALTS. HANS WEIDMANN, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, assignor to American Lurgi Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 752,035. 10 Claims. (Cl. 23—63.)

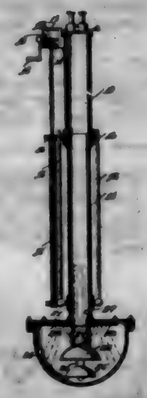
1. Process of preparing pure lithium salts which comprises treating a solution containing a lithium salt and impurities with an alkali metal salt of an acid, the lithium salt of which is less soluble than the lithium salt in said solution in quantity insufficient to precipitate said less soluble lithium salt, separating precipitated impurities, and recovering a lithium salt from the purified solution.

1,544,115. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF ALKALI-EARTH-METAL PERMANGANATES. ROBERT E. WILSON, LEON W. PARSONS, and STANLEY L. CHISHOLM, Cambridge, Mass., assignors to The Secretary of War of the United States of America, trustee. Filed July 17, 1922. Serial No. 575,759. 4 Claims. (Cl. 23—58.) (Granted under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L. 625.)



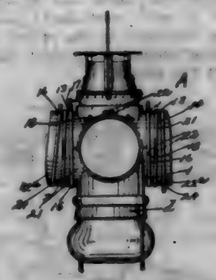
1. In a process of making calcium permanganate, the steps which comprise neutralising permanganic acid with an alkaline compound of an alkaline earth metal of greater atomic weight than calcium and then treating the resulting solution with calcium sulphate.

1,544,116. ROLLER SKATE. RUSSELL WINSLOW, Worcester, Mass., assignor to The Samuel Winslow Skate Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 30, 1923. Serial No. 628,782. 4 Claims. (Cl. 208—173.)



1. In a roller skate, a front hanger or bracket for the front rolls, adapted to be secured to the foot plate, and having, at its front end, guides for the inner edge of the toe clamps, said guides made integral with the hanger or bracket.

1,544,117. GRAVITY PNEUMATIC LID CHECK. ERNEST V. WYATT, New York, N. Y. Filed May 16, 1923. Serial No. 639,356. 1 Claim. (Cl. 16—66.)

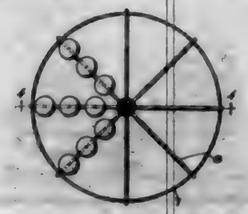


In a pneumatic check the combination, of a cylinder trunnioned to the wall of a receptacle, a piston adapted to move in said cylinder, a piston rod with one end thereof extending from said piston and its other end pinned to the hinged lid of the receptacle, a spring clamping arm comprising a spring member and an operating bar, the lower end of the bar fastened to a wall of the receptacle and the outer end of the spring member adapted to lock with an element extending from said piston at a predetermined position thereof, said bar adapted to swing to move the spring member and means to control the extent of the swing of said bar.

1,544,118. UNDER-WATER PERISCOPE. WILLIAM FLETCHER YANCEY, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Dec. 28, 1923. Serial No. 683,191. 4 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.)

1. A periscope including a sight tube, a plane reflector carried transversely by one end of the tube, and a curved reflector supported in spaced relation to said tube end and centrally with respect to the plane reflector, said curved reflector being arranged to receive reflections from the plane reflector and reflect such reflections through the tube.

1,544,119. LAMP AND LANTERN. GEORGE F. ZAUN, San Bernardino, Calif. Filed May 3, 1922. Serial No. 558,175. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—22.)



1. In a lantern, a body member provided with a light opening, a source of light within said body, a hood turnably mounted on said body over said light opening, the outer end of said hood extending at an angle to the axis of the hood, a second hood, the rear end of said second hood extending at an angle to the axis of the hood, and means for joining the inclined ends of said first and second hoods so that said hoods may be turned to different positions with relation to each other.

1,544,120. CONFECTION APPARATUS. JOHN TEATSE ZICKOS and WILLIAM TEATSE ZICKOS, Fulton, Mo., assignors of one-third to Thomas Harrison Grant, Fulton, Mo. Filed Sept. 27, 1924. Serial No. 740,310. 3 Claims. (Cl. 91—60.)

1. An apparatus for constructing ice cream coated confections, comprising a carrier formed with a series of radiating arms, means on each arm to removably support a base with the upper surface of the base entirely free for the application of an edible mass thereto, and a central support by means of which the carrier may be handled.

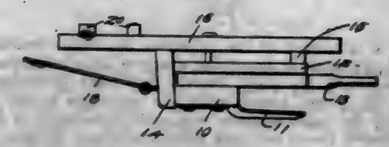
1,544,121. ANCHOR. CLAUDE EDWIN ALLEN, Moncton, New Brunswick, Canada. Filed Dec. 24, 1924. Serial No. 757,850. 5 Claims. (Cl. 114—207.)

1. A collapsible anchor comprising a tubular arm formed with an anchoring member at one end and adapted to slidably engage with a turnable anchoring member at the other end.

1,544,122. ICE-CREAM-FILLING MACHINE. GEORGE P. BARCLAY, Uniontown, Pa. Filed Oct. 9, 1923. Serial No. 667,547. 13 Claims. (Cl. 226—107.)



1. A filling machine of the character set forth comprising a container, a cylinder therein having an outlet and an inlet in one side within the container, an expelling plunger operating in the cylinder across the inlet, and a feeding device surrounding the cylinder and mounted to reciprocate on the cylinder and operating in the container outside said cylinder.

11. In a filling machine, the combination with a container, of a cylinder extending upwardly thereinto, a shaft across the container having oppositely disposed cranks, a piston in the cylinder connected to one crank, and a feeder mounted to reciprocate on the cylinder and connected to the other crank.

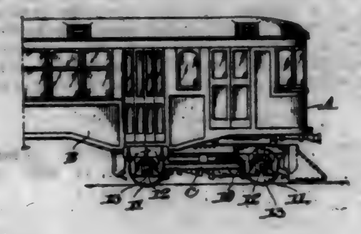
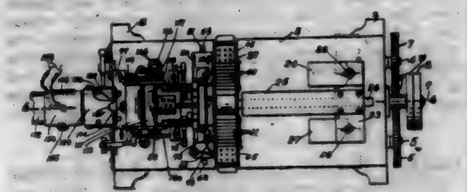
1,544,123. TRASH-DUMPING WEEDER. PERRY F. BARTON, Escalon, Calif. Filed Feb. 14, 1923. Serial No. 619,026. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—144.1.)



A weeder having a riser, said riser at its lower edge constituting a fulcrum, a platform supported on said riser and extending forwardly thereof to enable the weight of an operator on the platform to tilt it, a cross beam at the base of said riser and rearwardly thereof, weeder blades carried by said cross beam and extending a considerable distance rearwardly therefrom and in contact with the ground to materially increase the supporting surface of the weeder, a beam above and spaced from the cross beam and extending rearwardly beyond the same, handle members disposed intermediate the cross beam and second mentioned beam and extending rearwardly thereof, and a riser adjacent the rear end of the second mentioned beam located between the same and platform and in supporting contact with the latter.

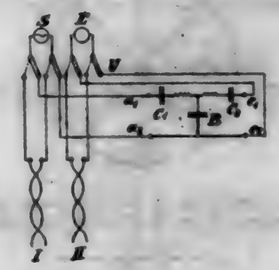
1,544,124. PULLEY HANDLER AND ROPE CATCHER. OTTO G. BAUMGARTENER, Wrightstown, Wis. Filed Aug. 23, 1924. Serial No. 733,845. 6 Claims. (Cl. 294—19.)



1. A device of the character described comprising a handle, a head adjustably carried by one end of the handle including a face plate, and a pair of jaws associated with the face plate and arranged at right angles thereto and projecting laterally therefrom, as and for the purpose specified.

1,544,125. RAIL COACH. GERALD GORDON BELL, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. Filed Feb. 16, 1923. Serial No. 619,431. 7 Claims. (Cl. 105—34.)

1. A rail coach of the character described comprising a pivotal truck or bogie and a hollow king pin mounted on rollers in the bogie whereby said bogie oscillates on said pin, power transmission and operating means carried by the bogie whereby said bogie is designed to form a complete power unit and means extending through said hollow king pin whereby the bogie as a complete power unit is operated and controlled from the coach.



1,544,126. WRAPPING MACHINE. HERMAN C. BELLIDO, Habana, Cuba, assignor to Alfredo de la Fuente y Quiñones, Habana, Cuba. Filed Apr. 9, 1921. Serial No. 460,038. 2 Claims. (Cl. 93—4.)

1. In a wrapping machine, folding means including a bottom, a lid, laterally adjustable guides for folding downwardly the upper side edges of the blank or wrapper, adjustable rear and front guides pieces for forming the side folds of the closed head of the blank and for folding up the lower side edges thereof, means to fold inwardly the side edges of the open head of the blank, a duct arranged at the discharge end of the folding device and mounted for movement into and out of line with the path of the wrapped article, means in said duct for folding down the upper portion of the open end of the blank and to hold the same in folded position while the duct is out of line with said path, means for applying paste to the outer face of the lower edge of such end of the blank and means to complete the closing and pasting of the open end of the blank when said duct returns into alinement with said path.

1,544,127. METHOD AND ARRANGEMENT FOR DETERMINING CROSSTALK IN MULTICIRCUIT SYSTEMS. FRANZ BERISCH, Berlin, Germany. Filed Aug. 18, 1921. Serial No. 492,034. 6 Claims. (Cl. 179—175.)

8. An arrangement for determining the extent of crosstalk between telephone circuits comprising a transmitter, a receiver, a regulable artificial line, and switching means for connecting the transmitter and the receiver to two of the said telephone circuits and to the two ends of the artificial line alternately, the impedance of the artificial line regarded from its end that is connected to the transmitter being equal to the impedance of the telephone circuit that is connected to the transmitter, and the impedance of the artificial line regarded from its end that is connected to the receiver being equal to the impedance of the telephone circuit that is connected to the receiver.

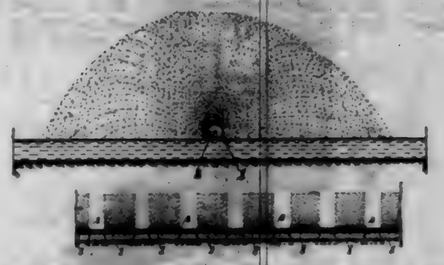
1,544,128. FISHING REEL. SELDEN J. BUDD, Manhasset, N. Y., and JOHN C. FORD, Woodbury, N. J. Filed Feb. 1, 1923. Serial No. 616,287. 3 Claims. (Cl. 43—20.)

1. A fishing pole comprising a grip including a forward member, a rear member, and plates connecting the forward and rear members, a reel journaled on the plates, and a brake strip secured to the rear member and comprising a lateral arm engaging the reel, the rear member having a slot wherein the arm operates, the slot being bridged by one of the side plates.



1,544,129. FISH LURE. HUGH V. BURT, Rock Island, Ill. Filed Sept. 20, 1924. Serial No. 738,825. 4 Claims. (Cl. 43—41.)

1. In a device of the class described, a pair of frames, foldable one within the other, adapted to hold a container for bait, and means for holding said frames normally in open position.

1,544,130. PROCESS OF CONCENTRATING SOLUTIONS. NIELS C. CHRISTENSEN, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Dec. 3, 1920. Serial No. 428,127. 9 Claims. (Cl. 159—48.)

1. The process of concentrating solutions which consists in maintaining the upper surface of a body of the solution to be concentrated in contact with the lower part of a cylindrical surface revolving about a central horizontal axis, so that said cylindrical surface shall be approximately tangent to said liquid surface and shall dip slightly into said body of liquid, whereby a spray of said solution will be continuously thrown into the atmosphere surrounding said cylindrical surface and solvent thereby be evaporated from said solution causing the concentration of said solution.

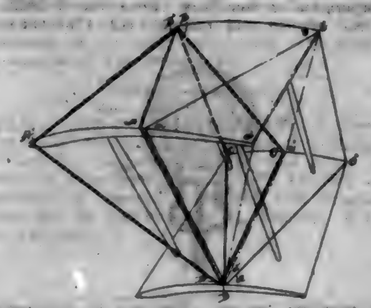
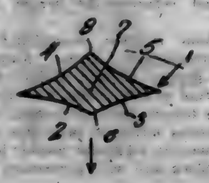
1,544,131. CUFF LINK. JAMES F. CONNOR, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed June 24, 1924. Serial No. 722,093. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—102.)



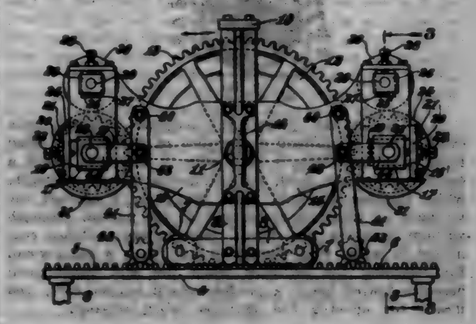
1. A cuff link comprising in combination, a pair of heads, a casing carried by one of the heads with a portion of said casing extending beyond the base of the head and adapted for insertion through the buttonhole of a cuff, a spring drum mounted within the casing, and a flexible connection between the spring drum and the second head, the casing being provided with an opening through which the flexible connection passes.

1,544,132. NUT LOCK. HENRY COOK, Wellston, Ohio. Filed Apr. 18, 1924. Serial No. 707,477. 3 Claims. (Cl. 151—9.)



1. The combination with a bolt or the like having a bore extending transversely therethrough with longitudinally disposed grooves leading from the ends of said bore, one of said grooves extending through the end of the bolt and the other terminating short of said end and equipped with a longitudinally extending socket, a spring locking pawl mounted in said bore with one end engaged with said socket, and a nut having a ratchet groove for cooperation with said pawl to lock the nut on the bolts.

1,544,133. TRIDIMENSIONAL RADIO COMPASS. CLARENCE C. CULVER, Washington, D. C. Filed June 29, 1921. Serial No. 481,421. 4 Claims. (Cl. 250—11.)



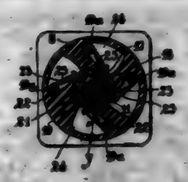
1. In combination with an airplane, a radio compass having a plurality of coils to form a plurality of dihedral angles, the axes of said dihedral angles being angularly disposed with respect to each other and to the longitudinal axis of said airplane.

1,544,134. BLADE CONSTRUCTION FOR PADDLE WHEELS. JOSEPH A. DAVID, Elizabeth, N. J. Filed July 25, 1924. Serial No. 728,182. 1 Claim. (Cl. 170—141.)

In a blade for paddle wheels, the same being substantially diamond shaped in cross section, the faces thereof being concaved, the apex of the front faces being nearer the longitudinal center than the apex of the rear faces.

1,544,135. MACHINE FOR MARKING ENAMELED WARE. EMIL S. DENK, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Aug. 1, 1921. Serial No. 489,104. 8 Claims. (Cl. 101—212.)

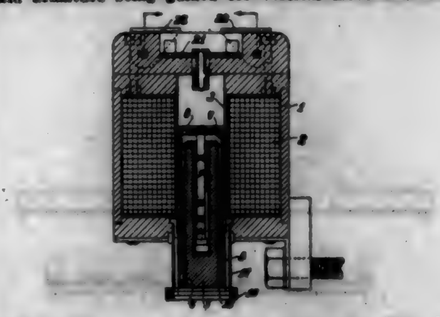
1. A machine for marking enamel ware, comprising, a bed adapted to hold the ware, a drum mounted above said bed, an elastic die on said drum, an unyielding coating roller mounted above said bed and laterally of said drum, a fountain in which said roller runs, an elastic distributing roller mounted above and engaging said coating roller, and means for moving said drum to first engage said die with said coating roller and thereafter engage said die with the ware on said bed.



1,544,136. ELECTRICAL CONNECTION FOR TELEPHONE HEADSETS. FREDERICK DIETRICH, Flushing, N. Y., assignor to C. Brandes, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 5, 1923. Serial No. 672,949. 17 Claims. (Cl. 179—114.)

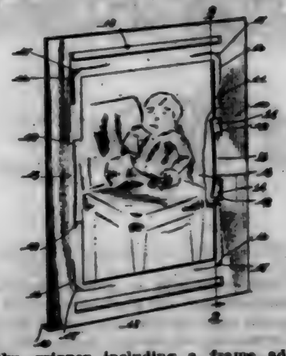
1. A telephone headset, comprising in combination a receiver casing including electromagnetic operating means, a single longitudinally extending clamping means interior of said casing operative from the exterior thereof, a plurality of connections adapted to be completed by said clamping means, a plurality of conductors leading through said casing and secured under said single longitudinally extending clamping means, one of said conductors being shorter than the other of said conductors and electrically connected to a shield encasing said other conductors whereby said shorter conductor serves to electrically connect said casing with said shield and removes the strain from the other conductors.

13. A telephone receiver, comprising in combination a casing, electromagnetic means, permanent magnetic means in one portion of said casing, a terminal block in another portion of said casing and having its opposite ends extending toward said permanent magnetic means, and unitary means adjacent each end of said terminal block and permanent magnetic means for securing both said terminal block and said permanent magnetic means in said casing.



1,544,137. DEVICE FOR PROTECTING ELECTRICAL CIRCUITS FROM OVERHEATING. OTTO DRESEL, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Jan. 21, 1925. Serial No. 3,731. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—122.)

1. A device for protecting electrical circuits from overheating, comprising a plurality of parallel-connected fuses each of which is only able to carry by itself a current of, at the most, the permanent, normal strength, while together the said fuses can carry a current the strength of which is a multiple of the normal strength without breaking the circuit, temperature switches connected in series with certain of said fuses, a heating-coil for releasing the switches when the said heating-coil becomes heated above a predetermined temperature, and means for opening the switches when released.



1,544,138. PROTECTIVE DEVICE FOR ELECTRIC CURRENT-CONSUMING APPARATUS. OTTO DRESEL, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Apr. 25, 1924. Serial No. 708,994. 10 Claims. (Cl. 200—86.)

1. In a device for protecting electric circuits against excessive heating and overload, in combination; a temperature switch comprising a non-magnetic weight-core, a tube-like magnet armature loosely surrounding said weight core, a soldered joint normally connecting said weight core and said armature, said weight core and said armature being guided for vertical movement and being normally held in their lowermost position by gravity, and a magnet-coil surrounding said armature and connected to the circuit to be protected.

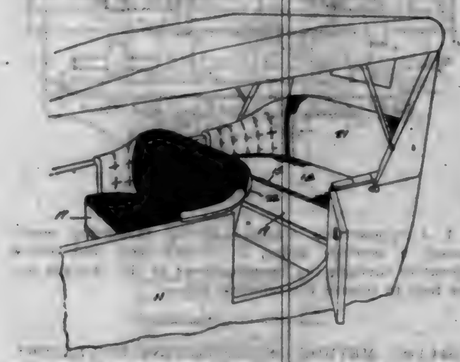
1,544,139. FILM GRIPPER AND HOLDER. GUSTAVE DUCLOS, Lowell, Mass. Filed Aug. 16, 1924. Serial No. 732,528. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—158.)

1. A film gripper including a frame adapted to be formed of thin sheet metal, having a main film opening and having spaced apart slits at the opposite sides of said opening, each slit including portions angularly disposed with respect to one another, said slits forming between them inwardly projecting film engaging extensions flexible in a direction parallel to the sides of the opening, the said extensions cooperating with the portions of the frame at the opposite ends of the film opening, as described.



1,544,140. FOLDING COT. BENJAMIN B. DUDLEY, Visalia, Calif. Filed Dec. 13, 1921. Serial No. 522,079. 1 Claim. (Cl. 5—112.)

A folding cot of the character described having a rectangular frame including a pair of side bars, a central joint on each side bar for folding the frame to half its length, said joint comprising two channel plates each embracing respectively the top and both sides of one of the side bars and secured to the bar at one side of the joint, and a pin in the side bar on the other side of the joint guided in a U-shaped slot in the legs of the channel whereby the frame may be folded flat on itself by manipulating the frame to make the pin follow the slot from one leg of the U to the other, and the channels cooperating with the side bars to lock them rigidly in all directions against bending at the joint when the cot frame is unfolded.

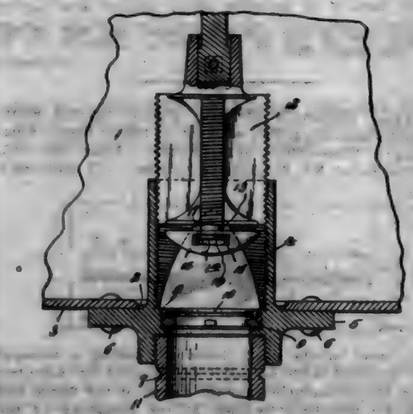
1,544,141. SLIP COVER FOR AUTOMOBILES. RUFUS R. EDDINS, Marlin, Tex. Filed Aug. 30, 1922. Serial No. 585,305. 9 Claims. (Cl. 155—182.)

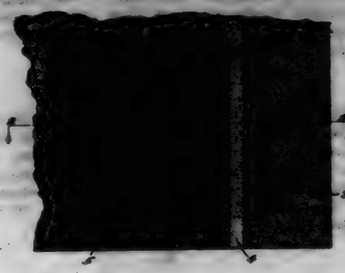


1. A slip cover for automobile seat cushions comprising separate seat and back sections, each formed from a sheet of matting composed of grass, cane or other vegetable fibers cut to the size and shape required to completely cover the wearing surface of the cushion, and a reenforcement of flexible material extending around and secured to the sheet at its edges, the reenforcement of the back section being made of sufficient width to permit the same to be tacked or otherwise secured at its upper and side edges to the back cushion and straps secured to the lower edge of said reenforcement for passing beneath the front cushion, the reenforcement of the seat section being made of sufficient width to provide a valance for concealing the edges of the seat cushion and a shirring cord secured to the free edge of the valance for securing the seat section in place.

1,544,142. DEEP-WELL PUMP. CHARLES P. EISENHAUER, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Duro Pump and Manufacturing Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 20, 1923. Serial No. 669,710. 7 Claims. (Cl. 103—190.)

1. The combination with a double acting pump cylinder, of upper and lower inlet valve seats removably engaged in the cylinder and adapted to be upwardly displaced, a plunger piston operating within the cylinder between the valve seats, both valve seats being engageable with the plunger piston for elevation out of the cylinder by abnormal movement of the plunger, said plunger being engageable with each of the valve seats independent of the other for driving said valve seats into engagement with the cylinder.

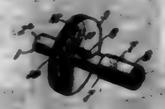
1,544,143. TANK-CAR VALVE. THOMAS J. ENTWISLE, JOSEPH W. DONNELLY, and HENRY P. O'MARA, New Orleans, La., assignors, by direct and mesne assignments, of three-fourths to the said Entwisle and of one-fourth to Edward L. Martin, New Orleans, La. Filed Oct. 20, 1922. Serial No. 595,850. 6 Claims. (Cl. 137—21.)



4. A tank car valve including a valve body having an annular seat and an annular threaded flange extending from the body around the seat, and in concentric relation with respect thereto, a valve plug having a threaded portion for cooperation with the threaded flange, one end of the body having a plane face, and a recess therein, a valve head adapted for cooperation with the seat in the body having a plane face on one side opposed to the face on the end of the plug and adapted for engagement therewith in the seated position of the plug and the head, said valve head having a projection extending into the recess in the plug, and securing means mounted in the plug and extending through the projection for rigidly connecting the head with the plug.

6. A plug for tank car valves comprising a threaded body member having a plane face on one end and having a recess in the end provided with said plane face, a valve head having a plane face opposed to the face on said body and adapted for contact therewith when the valve is closed, said head having a projection thereon loosely engaging in the recess in the body and adapted to produce a movement of the head in the rotation of the body, and a pin removably mounted in said body adapted for cooperation with said projection for loosely connecting the head to the body.

1,544,144. ROOFING. DOZIER FINLEY, Berkeley, Calif., assignor to The Paraffine Companies, Inc., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 21, 1922. Serial No. 608,141. 3 Claims. (Cl. 108—7.)



2. A prepared roofing comprising a roofing sheet, a lap guide line of granular material disposed thereon, and a surfacing of granular material of different color than the material of said guide line on each side of said line, that on one side being coarse and that on the other side being fine.

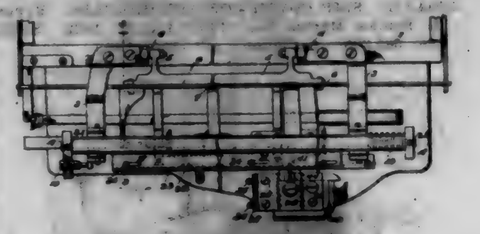
1,544,145. STORAGE SPOOL. HARRY ARTHUR FOOTHORAP, Harrisburg, Pa., assignor to Elliott-Fisher Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 13, 1920. Serial No. 373,571. 4 Claims. (Cl. 242—68.)

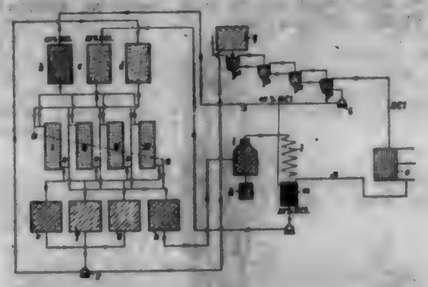


1. A spool of the class described, having a recessed flange provided with an axial opening, of an eccentric locking disc mounted within the recess of the flange and having its periphery exposed at the periphery of the flange and within the axial opening thereof.

1,544,146. SHIFTING TYPE HEAD. HARRY A. FOOTHORAP, Harrisburg, Pa., assignor to Elliott-Fisher Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 30, 1923. Serial No. 635,676. 4 Claims. (Cl. 197—75.)

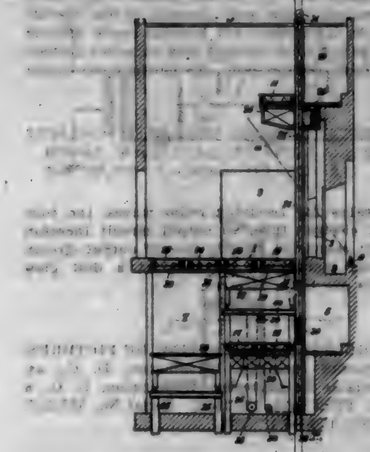
1. The combination with a type bar, of a type head pivotally mounted thereon, a trigger extended from the head, a retaining spring for the head, and a positive connection between the spring and head and movable to opposite sides of the axis of the head.

1,544,147. LETTER-FEED-CONTROLLED REBOUND LOCK. FRED P. GOUIN, Seattle, Wash. Filed Sept. 17, 1920. Serial No. 410,837. 12 Claims. (Cl. 197—176.)



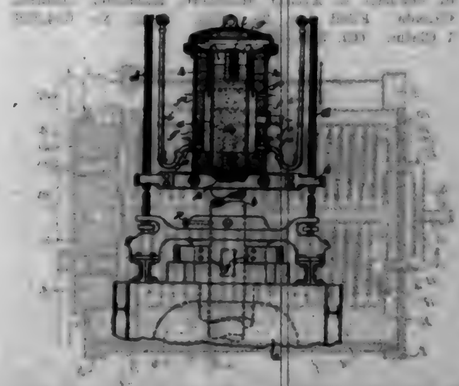
1. A typewriting machine having tabulating mechanism, a carriage buffer, a rebound lock, and means operative through the re-engagement of the carriage letter feed to release the rebound lock.

1,544,148. METHOD OF CONNECTING INSULATORS. MINOR F. H. GOUVERNEUR, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Locke Insulator Corporation, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Filed June 28, 1924. Serial No. 722,956. 4 Claims. (Cl. 18—59.)



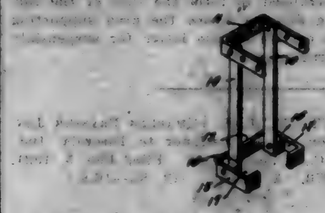
1. The method of connecting parts of an insulator which consists in applying a metallic powder to the surfaces to be connected, interposing between said surfaces granulated material coated with said metallic powder, and finally introducing between said interposed surfaces a molten metallic substance.

1,544,149. PROCESS AND PLANT FOR MANUFACTURING CARBOHYDRATES FROM VEGETABLE MATTER. ERIK HEGGLUND, Heidelberg, Germany, assignor to the Firm of Th. Goldschmidt A.-G., Essen, Germany. Filed Aug. 30, 1921. Serial No. 496,952. 3 Claims. (Cl. 127—37.)



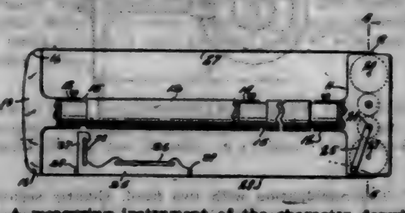
3. Process of manufacturing carbohydrates which comprises reacting upon cellulosic vegetable matter with a solution of hydrochloric acid containing not less than about 39% by weight of hydrochloric acid, separating the resulting solution of carbohydrates from undissolved residue, leaching said residue with a solution of hydrochloric acid containing substantially less than 39% by weight of hydrochloric acid, dissolving hydrochloric acid gas in the resulting leach liquor, and using the resulting solution for reacting upon a further quantity of cellulosic vegetable matter.

1,544,150. THEATER STAGE. MAX HABART, Dresden, Germany, assignor to Aktiebolaget Ars, Stockholm, Sweden, a Corporation. Filed May 26, 1921. Serial No. 472,776. 8 Claims. (Cl. 20—1.12.)



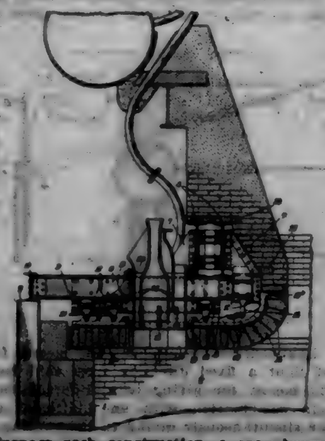
1. In combination with a stage floor composed of carriages adapted to be raised and lowered, frames supporting the carriages, the latter being movable laterally in relation to said frames, means adapted to raise and lower the frames, supplementary compartments provided on a level with the stage floor, a lower area below the stage level, supplementary compartments provided in said lower area, the carriages being movable into and out of the supplementary compartments, guiding means supporting the carriages when moving into and out of the compartments, said guiding means being movable into and out of the path of movement of the carriages.

1,544,151. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR FORMING CONTINUOUS ELECTRODES. ALOIS HELFENSTEIN, Vienna, Austria, assignor to Union Carbide Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed Mar. 20, 1923. Serial No. 626,391. 13 Claims. (Cl. 204—65.)



10. Apparatus for forming continuous electrodes for use in electric furnaces, comprising in combination with a furnace, electrode feeding means including an adjustable clamp, a mould and a heating chamber therefor mounted on the clamp in alignment with the electrode and means for passing gases from the furnace into the heating chamber.

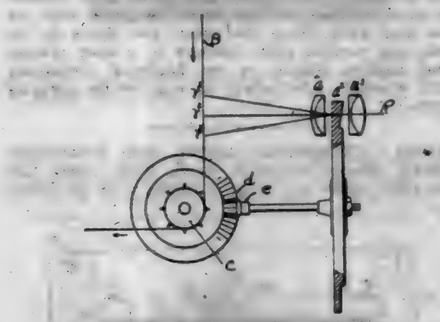
1,544,152. PISTON GUIDE FOR WINDMILLS. FOCKE HEMEN, Hildreth, Nebr. Filed July 28, 1924. Serial No. 728,754. 2 Claims. (Cl. 170—76.)



2. A piston guide for windmills, consisting of vertical guide members, a guide block slidably mounted between said guide members and operatively connected with the crank arm which drives the piston, and means for securing said vertical guide members in a fixed vertical spaced position relative to the functional mechanism of the windmill, substantially as and for the purposes described.

1,544,153. EXTENSIBLE LEVEL AND STRAIGHT-EDGE. FRANK HOLMGREN, Stage, Calif. Filed Jan. 20, 1925. Serial No. 3,652. 8 Claims. (Cl. 33—208.)

1. A measuring instrument of the character described including oppositely disposed heads, a plurality of sections adapted to be interposed between said heads and the sections having detachable engagement with each other whereby any desired number of sections may be used between the heads to extend or contract the distance between the same, a tape secured to one of said heads, and means mounted upon the other head whereby the tape may be wound up and held in a taut condition.



1,544,154. FURNACE ARCH CONSTRUCTION. LOUIS H. HOSBEIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to M. H. Detrick Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 5, 1923. Serial No. 649,473. 18 Claims. (Cl. 110—99.)

4. In furnace arch construction, a span beam extending across the furnace chamber, longitudinal beams supported by the span beam, arch supporting beams carried by the longitudinal beams and extending respectively across only a fraction of the width of the furnace chamber, refractories arranged to form the roof of the furnace chamber at a distance below the arch supporting beams, and means carried by the latter for suspensibly supporting the refractories.

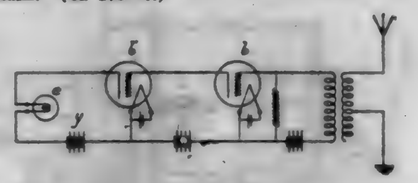
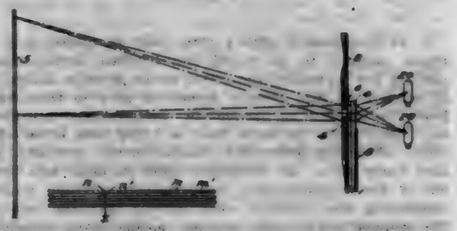
1,544,155. OBJECTIVE LENS. CHARLES FRANCIS JENKINS, Washington, D. C., assignor to Discrola, Inc., Washington, D. C., a Corporation. Filed Feb. 5, 1921. Serial No. 442,870. 2 Claims. (Cl. 88—16.8.)



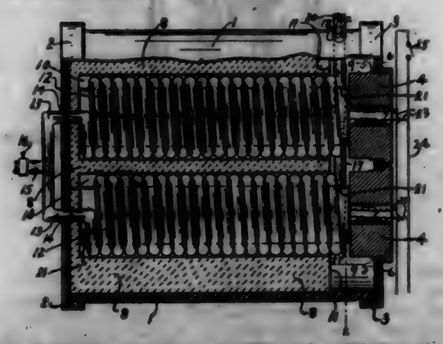
1. The combination with two fixed, slightly separated elements of a compound lens, of a relatively movable light refracting member of progressively varying refracting power and constructed continuously to change the angle between incident and emerging rays of light interposed between said elements, the general plane of the three parts, considered as a unit, being transverse to the path of an axial light beam approaching one side of said unit, and constantly cutting the axial line.

1,544,156. TRANSMITTING PICTURES BY WIRELESS. CHARLES FRANCIS JENKINS, Washington, D. C. Filed Mar. 18, 1922. Serial No. 543,331. 6 Claims. (Cl. 178—7.)



1. In light-controlling mechanisms, means for giving a ray of light a fixed direction from said means, and refracting means for giving it a different varying direction, in combination with an additional refracting means for simultaneously giving to the varying direction ray a direction approximately perpendicular to the first direction.

1,544,157. RADIO RECEIVING DEVICE. CHARLES FRANCIS JENKINS, Washington, D. C., assignor to Jenkins Laboratories, Washington, D. C., a Corporation. Filed Sept. 11, 1922. Serial No. 587,506. 1 Claim. (Cl. 178—7.)



In an apparatus for receiving radio waves, the combination of an electron tube, an output circuit therefor, an electric light connected directly in said output circuit, said light being maintained normally at a dull glow when no signals are being received.

1,544,158. WIRELESS BROADCASTING OF PICTURES. CHARLES FRANCIS JENKINS, Washington, D. C., assignor to Jenkins Laboratories, Washington, D. C., a Corporation. Filed Sept. 11, 1922. Serial No. 587,507. 6 Claims. (Cl. 178—7.)

1. The method of simultaneously scanning a plurality of sections of a picture area by pencils of light, each of said sections being covered by a plurality of lines from a corresponding light pencil.

1,544,159. ELECTRIC WATER HEATER. FORD CHARLES JENTO, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, assignor of one-half to Arthur McIntyre, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Filed Apr. 24, 1923. Serial No. 634,336. 1 Claim. (Cl. 219—39.)

An electric water heater comprising an enclosed casing containing heat insulating material formed with a plurality of longitudinally extending cylindrical cavities having smooth walls, a spiral water container within each cavity, an inlet connection common to all containers and all containers connected to a common outlet connection, a cylindrical core having a smooth peripheral surface extending axially through each spiral and being of size and shape to closely fit within the spiral, a heating element carried by each core, a plurality of removable closures carried by the casing at one end thereof axially opposite each spiral respectively and permitting when removed the withdrawal of the cores and heating elements, said closures constituting when inserted means for securing the cores against axial movement.

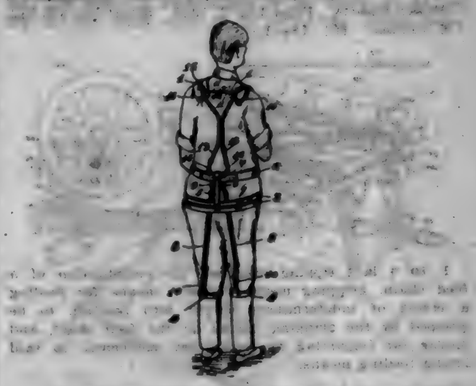
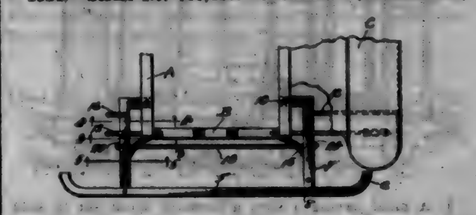
1,544,160. ORNAMENT FOR MOTOMETERS. JOHN I. KELLEY, Mount Union, Pa. Filed Aug. 2, 1924. Serial No. 729,733. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—2.)



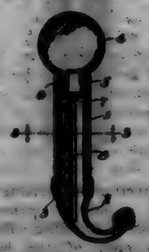
An ornament for motometers comprising a cylindrical barrel formed at one end with an attaching flange perforated for the passage of screws of the motometer casing, the flanged end of the barrel being provided with laterally projecting ornamental wings disposed approximately in the plane of said flange, and a figure mounted upon said flange of the barrel between the wings, the barrel having openings discharging light against the wings and against said figure, and an electric lamp disposed in the barrel to one side of the middle thereof whereby it will not obstruct the view of the indicating column of the motometer, the end of the barrel remote from said attaching flange being provided with a glazed opening.

1,544,161. DRAWING-PEN NIB, MORE PARTICULARLY FOR FOUNTAIN PENS. THEODOR KOVACS, Berlin, Germany. Filed Jan. 17, 1921. Serial No. 437,874. 5 Claims. (Cl. 120—43.)



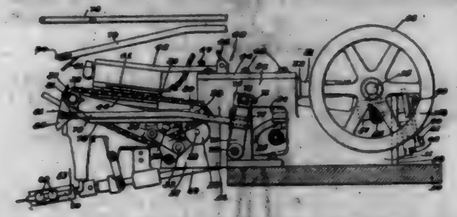
1. In a fountain drawing pen in combination, an ink reservoir, means for detachably holding by its shank, an unslotted pen nib having a perforation therein, means for feeding ink from the reservoir through the perforation to the outside of the pen, and capillary means for conveying ink from the perforation to the point of the nib.

1,544,162. BACK BRACER. ALFRED J. LA VIGNE, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Dec. 4, 1924. Serial No. 753,949. 4 Claims. (Cl. 2—44.)



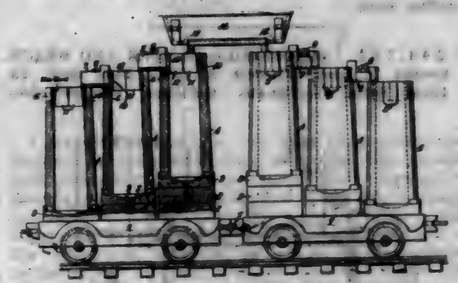
1. An appliance of the character described comprising a pair of shoulder pads, a waist encircling strap, a hip encircling strap, tension spring means connecting the rearward ends of said shoulder pads to said waist encircling strap, and other tensioning means connecting the forward ends of said shoulder pads to said hip encircling strap.

1,544,163. AUTOMOBILE BUMPER AND BRACE. ROBERT P. LEE, Mitchell, S. Dak. Filed Sept. 23, 1924. Serial No. 739,416. 6 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)



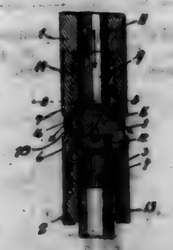
1. A device of the class described including in combination a bumper, a pair of L-shaped bracket bars attached to intermediate portions of the bumper, an automobile chassis, means for attaching the other ends of the bars to the chassis, struts having their ends in abutment with the bumper and extending along the bars and then being curved inwardly to abut the end of the chassis.

1,544,164. INSUFFLATOR. FREDERICK A. MARSH, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Feb. 18, 1924. Serial No. 693,716. 3 Claims. (Cl. 128—266.)



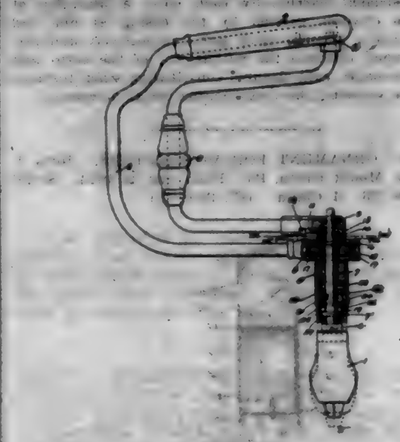
1. An insufflator including a drum, a nozzle on one end of the drum, an air bulb on the opposite end of the drum, and a tube slidably connected to said air bulb and terminating at a point adjacent the mouth of the nozzle.

1,544,165. LACE-TIPPING MACHINE. CARL A. MATSON, Lynnfield, Mass., assignor to Matson Lace Tipping Machine Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Jan. 2, 1923. Serial No. 610,142. 6 Claims. (Cl. 18—1.)



1. In a lace tipping machine, the combination of a feed chain, gripping means thereon, means for feeding a lacing of indeterminate length into position to be grasped by the gripping means on the feed chain, and means for imparting an oscillatory movement to said lacing feeding means.

1,544,166. APPLIANCE FOR THE CONTINUOUS TRANSFER OF MOLTEN METAL. FRANK BAIRD MCKUNE, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Filed Feb. 3, 1922. Serial No. 616,682. 15 Claims. (Cl. 22—147.)



1. A mold having a slot, a transfer spout set in said slot and a refractory lining collar within that portion of the mold adjacent to said slot.

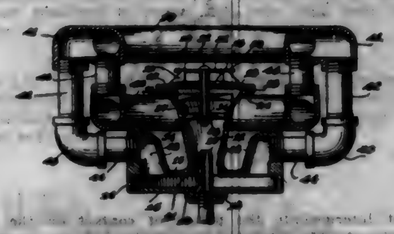
1,544,167. CORE-BARREL CONNECTION. ANDREW J. NIGHTINGALE, Huntington Beach, Calif. Filed June 26, 1922. Serial No. 570,812. 1 Claim. (Cl. 255—72.)

A core barrel connection comprising a plug having a solid center portion, a bore at either end, peripheral recesses in the outside of the plug substantially midway between the bottom ends of the bores, downwardly slanting communications between the upper bore and the outside of the plug and upwardly slanting communications between the lower bore and the outside of the plug, all the communications being disposed to discharge into the recesses at the same elevation.

1,544,168. GEARED DRILL BRACE. WILLIAM EDWARD NOLAN, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 751,978. 8 Claims. (Cl. 145—66.)

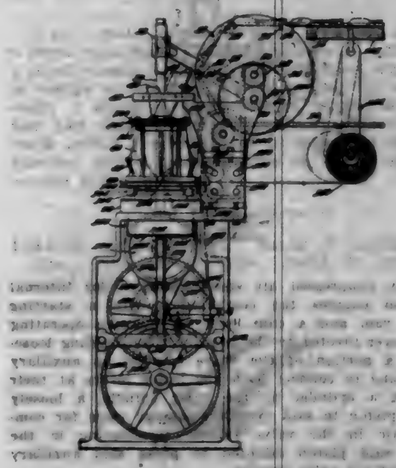
2. In a geared drill brace of the character described, a body, a chuck spindle revolvably supported therein and axially slidable from a direct drive to a geared position, means for sliding said spindle comprising a sleeve surrounding the spindle and body having double thrust engagement with the spindle, an angularly disposed slot in said sleeve and a device extending from the body into the slot whereby upon manual turning of the sleeve the same will be moved axially and thereby carry the spindle from one position to the other.

1,544,169. CLIP BAR. JAMES R. OWEN, Okmulgee, Okla. Filed Mar. 26, 1923. Serial No. 627,858. 1 Claim. (Cl. 267—52.)



In combination with a front end member of a vehicle frame having a central flattened portion and provided with a channel in its under surface affording a seat for the central portion of a curved leaf spring of a plate curved to conform to the curvature of the under surface of the spring and provided at its side with ears extending outwardly therefrom having their upper surfaces in a plane paralleling the flattened portion of the front end member when the plate proper is engaged with the central portion of the spring, certain of said ears being disposed at the ends of the side edges of the plate and above the plane of the curved portion of the plate lying therebetween the curved portion of the plate being of the same width as the spring and U-bolts straddling the flattened portion of the frame and engaging in said ears for forcing the upper surface of said ears toward the under surface of the arms of the cross member.

1,544,170. BURNER. ALBERT WARD PATTISON, Lockport, N. Y. Filed Aug. 6, 1921. Serial No. 490,842. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)



7. A hydrocarbon burner, comprising upper and lower hollow rings connected by conduits extending therebetween, a vertically disposed mixing chamber encircled by said lower ring, a perforated plate partially closing the upper end of said chamber, a spreader supported by and above said plate, rotatable mixing vanes mounted in the chamber below said spreader, means for supplying water to the lower ring, means for conducting steam from the upper ring into the lower portion of said chamber and means for supplying oil to the chamber to mix with the steam therein.

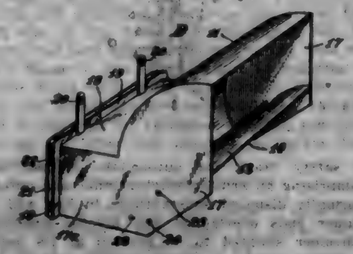
1,544,171. CONFECTIONERY-WRAPPING MACHINE. FRED FOREST PEASE, East Braintree, Mass., assignor to F. F. Pease Inc., Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 21, 1921. Serial No. 479,411. 20 Claims. (Cl. 93—5.)

1. A machine for wrapping candy supported upon a stick comprising a vertically movable plunger, means for successively delivering candy to a position beneath the plunger and in timed relation to the movements of the plunger, a wrapping member having an opening through which the candy is forced by the downward movement of the plunger, means for delivering a sheet of wrapping material above the wrapping member, means for operating the plunger to force the candy downwardly through the opening in the wrapping member and cause the sheet of wrapping material to be laid thereabout, and means for discharging the candy at the completion of the wrapping operation.



1,544,172. SORTING AND CLASSIFYING OF FLAT SHEETS, TALLIES, CARDS, OR THE LIKE. ALFRED PERKINS, Birmingham, England. Filed Feb. 8, 1923. Serial No. 617,798. 1 Claim. (Cl. 129—16.1.)

A stack of cards each of which is provided adjacent an edge with a plurality of perforations every perforation so disposed that it may be directly and separately slotted out to the edge of the card, and only those perforations being so cut away as relate to a particular classification desired whereby with the stack positioned that the said cut away edges of the cards are at the top of the stack and on a separating device being passed through corresponding perforations of a number of said cards only those so cut away and pertaining to said classification will remain whilst the others may be removed by said separating device.

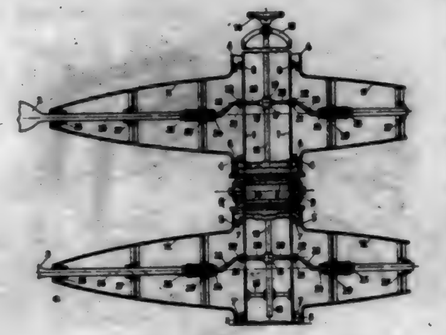
1,544,173. WINDSHIELD PROTECTOR. AXEL VILHELM PERSSON, Essington, and PROSE ROSLUND MINSON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed May 20, 1924. Serial No. 714,548. 5 Claims. (Cl. 20—40.5.)



1. A windshield protector comprising a casing, a means for securing said casing to a windshield, a curved top for said casing having a channel formed therewith, a deflector plate in said casing spaced from said top and acting in conjunction therewith as a funnel providing for aerial suction, said deflector plate formed with a plurality of channels, all of said channels acting as rain and snow catchers, and means of draining said casing.

1,544,174. PARACHUTE PROPELLER FOR HELICOPTERS. RAUL PATERAS PESCARA, Barcelona, Spain. Filed July 15, 1920. Serial No. 396,596. 9 Claims. (Cl. 244—19.)

1. In a helicopter parachute, propellers, and mechanism connected therewith for shifting the propellers without power expenditure, from a plus to a minus pitch, to maintain a rotation in the same direction, and at the moment of landing to effect a change from the negative angle to a flat position or a positive value for braking, by increasing the angle of incidence or shifting the same from a negative to a positive angle.

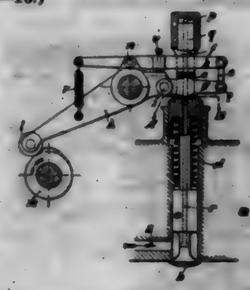
1,544,175. SAFETY CRANK HANDLE FOR AUTOS. JOHANNES PETERSEN, Aalborg, Denmark. Filed June 16, 1924. Serial No. 720,388. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—185.)

2. A safety crank for automobile engines and the like, comprising an arm embodying inner and outer members normally disposed substantially in line and having their inner ends overlapped and pivoted together, the inner member adapted to be secured at its outer end to the engine shaft; a sleeve slidably related to said members and normally fitting around their overlapping ends to hold them rigidly connected; an eccentric on the engine shaft; and a ring encircling the eccentric and to which said sleeve is attached, said ring and eccentric coacting automatically, when a back-fire occurs, to shift the sleeve in a direction to uncover said overlapping ends and thereby enable swinging movement of the outer member out of line with and relatively to the inner member.



1,544,176. ROLLER OR BALL BEARING. KARL WILHELM PETERSON, Gottenburg, Sweden, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Nya Nordiska Kullager Aktiebolaget, Gottenburg, Sweden. Filed Jan. 22, 1921. Serial No. 439,168. 2 Claims. (Cl. 308—217.)

1. A cage for anti-friction roller members having recesses for the rolling members and partition members for spacing the roller members, each partition member being so shaped that the rolling member on one side has contact therewith at a plurality of points, whereas the rolling member at the opposite side has contact at a point intermediate the points of contact on the first mentioned side whereby the portion of the partition member lying between the points of contact is flexed upon application of pressure to the rolling members.

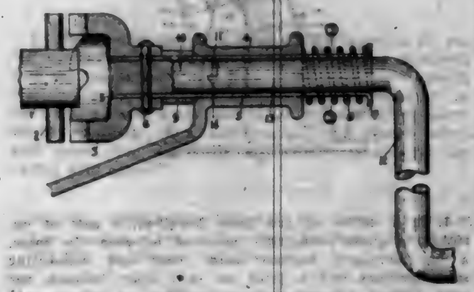
1,544,177. COMPRESSED-AIR STARTING DEVICE FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. GUSTAV PIELSTICK, Augsburg, Germany, assignor to the Firm: Maschinenfabrik Augsburg-Nuernberg, Aktiengesellschaft, Augsburg, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Mar. 10, 1923. Serial No. 624,218. 6 Claims. (Cl. 60—16.)

1. In a compressed air starting device for internal combustion engines the combination with a starting valve, a cam and a cam lever, of a valve operating rocking lever pivoted to the cam lever and resting loosely upon a portion of the valve spindle, an auxiliary lever, means to connect both the latter levers at their free ends, a cylinder on the valve spindle, a loosely mounted piston in said cylinder, passage ways for compressed air in the valve spindle terminating in the cylinder, said piston adapted to press said auxiliary lever against the valve spindle.



1,544,178. MANUALLY-PROPELLED VEHICLE. JOHN MILTON POWELL and GEORGE EMMINS, Fort Smith, Ark. Filed Jan. 30, 1924. Serial No. 689,527. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—30.)

In gearing, a drive wheel, a driving device having a driving connection with said wheel including a forward link, a middle link, and a rear link, means for upholding said middle link and providing slide bearings therefor, including a horizontal sleeve, and a spring pressed pin carried by said sleeve and bearing against said rear link adjacent and in rear of its pivot to said middle link in dead center position and with the spring thereof tensioned to throw said rear link past dead center.

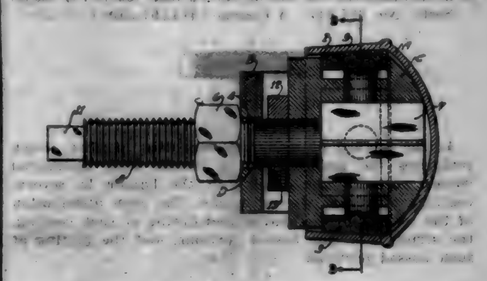
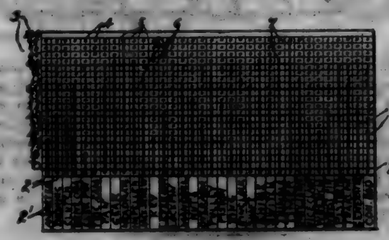
1,544,179. DETACHABLE CRANK FOR AUTOMOBILE ENGINES AND THE LIKE. CHARLES W. RAWLINGS, Fairfield, Ohio. Filed Nov. 3, 1924. Serial No. 747,502. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—33.)

1. In a device of the character described, a bearing, a sleeve rotatably and slidably mounted in said bearing, a clutch member connected with said sleeve and adapted to engage a cooperating clutch member on an engine shaft, a clutch member mounted within said sleeve and held against rotation relatively thereto, and a crank having a part adapted to enter said sleeve and provided with a clutch member to engage the clutch member within said sleeve.



1,544,180. PISTON RING. RALPH H. REITER, Akron, Ohio. Filed Dec. 2, 1920. Serial No. 427,794. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—109.)

In a piston ring, a ring body provided on its peripheral face adjacent each edge thereof with a set of parallel outwardly projecting, longitudinally directed circumferentially extending ridges of triangular cross section, disposed thereon base to base, said sets of ridges spaced apart to provide a centrally disposed circumferentially extending smooth, substantially cylindrical area of the same diameter as the base of said ridges, the outer face of each outermost ridge meeting the axial face of the ring and disposed at an angle thereto.



1,544,181. TOOL FOR INSTALLING HANDHOLE CLOSURES IN BOILERS. WILLIAM RICHARDSON and JOHN S. FOLAND, St. Louis, Mo., assignors to Heine Safety Boiler Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Apr. 2, 1921. Serial No. 457,862. 1 Claim. (Cl. 29—88.2.)

A tool for the purpose described, comprising a substantially yoke-shaped member, a jaw-carrying member, radially-disposed jaws in said jaw carrying member, a shaft projecting rearwardly through the cross piece of said yoke-shaped member and provided with a tapered or inclined part that forces said jaws outwardly when said shaft is moved longitudinally, means for preventing said shaft from rotating with relation to said jaw carrying member, and means for preventing the jaws from dropping out of said jaw carrying member when the tool is not in use.

1,544,182. GRAPHIC CHART. HARRY W. RICKS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Sept. 19, 1923. Serial No. 663,666. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—135.)

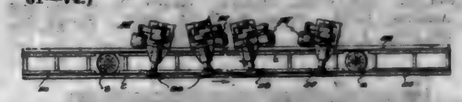
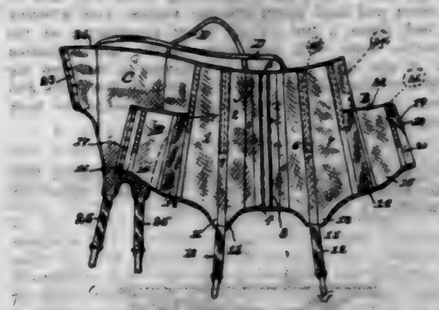
1,544,183. SAW CLAMP. BENJAMIN T. ROBISON, East Bakersfield, Calif. Filed Sept. 10, 1924. Serial No. 736,958. 5 Claims. (Cl. 76—78.)



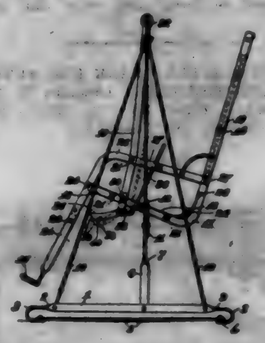
1. A device of the class described including in combination a pair of base bars, standards fixed to the base bars, second standards pivoted to the base bars, jaws provided on the standards, posts fixed to the bars, and means associated with the posts for forcing the pivoted standards toward the fixed standards so as to bring the jaws toward each other to clamp a saw blade therebetween.

1,544,184. METHOD OF COATING AUTOMOBILE DOOR HANDLES. WILLIAM SCHNELL, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Shepard Art Metal Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Mar. 26, 1923. Serial No. 627,617. 4 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)



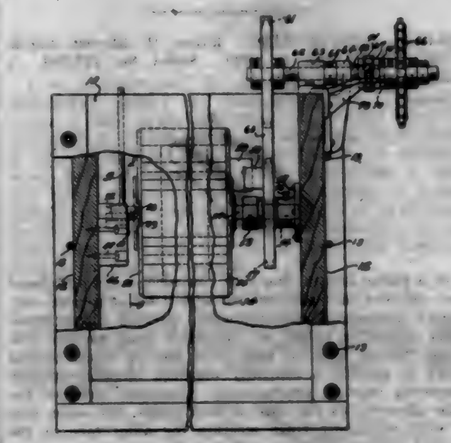
4. The method of manufacturing door handles, which comprises the fashioning of a handle with designated bossed portions, the dipping of the handle in several coatings of sticky, viscous enamel, the even distribution of the coating of the enamel and drying of such coating, the stripping of the bossed portions, and the plating of such bossed portions.

1,544,185. POLISHING MACHINE. WILLIAM SCHNELL, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Shepard Art Metal Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Apr. 4, 1923. Serial No. 629,766. 4 Claims. (Cl. 51—74.)



1. In a machine for the purpose specified, the combination of a plurality of polishing wheels arranged in a line, a guide along the line of polishing wheels, a conveyor running along part only of the said guide, and clamping carriages for clamping the work removably to the carriages and which can be pushed along one end of the guide to be coupled up with the conveyor to carry the work along the line of polishing wheels and in contact with the same.

1,544,186. COMBINED CORSET AND BRASSIÈRE. CHARLES H. SCHOFBACH, Aurora, Ill., assignor to International Corset Company, Aurora, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Feb. 8, 1923. Serial No. 617,685. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—30.)

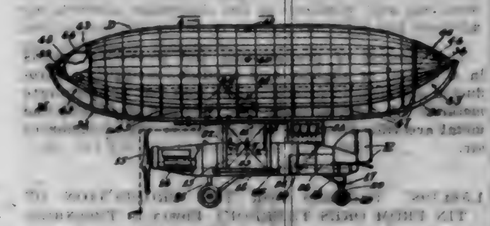


2. A combination corset and brassière comprising a vertically reinforced rear corset portion adapted to embrace the wearer's back from arm pit to arm pit at its upper extremity and provided adjacent its lower extremity with forwardly extending reinforced portions adapted to encircle the wearer's body below the diaphragm and embrace the abdomen interengaging fastening on said forwardly extending reinforced portions, and a brassière portion permanently secured to one side of said rear portion adjacent said upper extremity and adapted to extend across the wearer's bosom and detachably engage the upper extremity of the rear portion at the opposite side.

1,544,187. CHAIR. PETER SCHNORBUS, Buffalo, Minn. Filed Mar. 10, 1924. Serial No. 698,118. 8 Claims. (Cl. 155—67.)

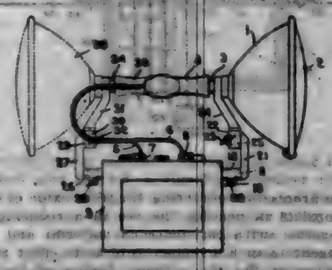
1. In a device of the class described, a pair of uprights, a chair swingingly mounted between the same, a bar arranged beneath said chair and connecting said uprights and a latch on said chair beneath the seat thereof adapted in one position to engage said bar to prevent swinging of the chair, substantially as described.

1,544,188. PLATING BARREL. JOHN W. SLATTERY, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to The Cornwall & Patterson Manufacturing Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Oct. 29, 1923. Serial No. 671,410. 10 Claims. (Cl. 204—11.)



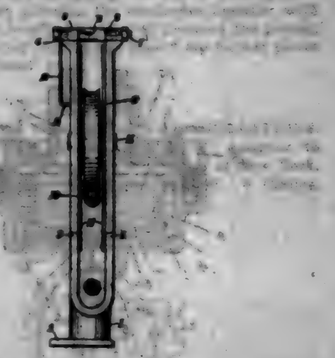
1. In a plating barrel, a rotatable container for the articles to be plated, said container comprising insulating walls having openings therein, a plurality of separate, spaced bar conductors extending longitudinally of the container adjacent the inside walls thereof, means for conducting electric current to said conductors, a support, a stationary stud carried by the support having an open topped bearing, a trunnion on one end of the container seated in said bearing, a sprocket mounted to rotate on the stud, coacting lugs carried by the sprocket and container for rotating the latter, and means for driving the sprocket.

1,544,189. OIL PAN FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION MOTORS. ANDREW SMITH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Nov. 13, 1922. Serial No. 674,542. 3 Claims. (Cl. 184—106.)



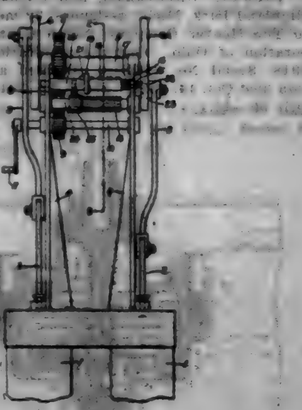
2. The combination of a downwardly tapering oil pan for an engine, a sediment chamber opening upwardly into the lowest portion of said oil pan, a cover normally closing the upper portion of said sediment chamber, an oil intake located above said cover, a head having downwardly slanting sides overhanging and spaced above said cover, and externally manipulable means for elevating said cover.

1,544,190. SEMIAERO DIRIGIBLE. JOHN C. SMITH, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Dec. 2, 1924. Serial No. 753,434. 4 Claims. (Cl. 244—5.)



1. An aircraft comprising a dirigible balloon and an aeroplane, said dirigible balloon having compartments therein, a net covering said dirigible balloon, said aeroplane having an upper and lower plane, wings pivoted to the rear end of said upper plane, a beam having upwardly turned ends secured to said upper plane, and guy ropes connecting said net to said beam.

1,544,191. PORTABLE ELECTRIC SEARCHLIGHT. ROLAND L. SMITH, Belmont, Mass. Filed Feb. 21, 1924. Serial No. 694,281. Renewed May 25, 1925. 10 Claims. (Cl. 240—6.5.)

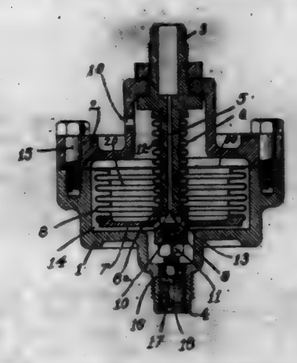


1. A portable electric search light comprising a lamp having a reflector provided with a stem having a handle extending rearwardly therefrom and a battery having a container a wall of which is provided with an embedded plate having a stud projecting from a vertical wall thereof, a standard for said light mounted on said stud engaging said stem and normally positioned to cause the vertical line of the center of gravity of the battery and light to intersect the axis of the handle whereby the device will properly balance when raised by the handle.

1,544,192. BELT TIGHTENER. SIDNEY S. SMITH, Seneca Falls, N. Y., assignor to Gould Manufacturing Company, Seneca Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 25, 1921. Serial No. 517,426. 15 Claims. (Cl. 64—5.)

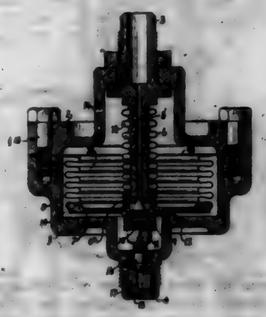
1. In a belt tightener, in combination, a tightener bracket having spaced members formed with slots therein, a belt tightening idler disposed between said members and having a shaft extending into said slots and adapted to float therein under the influence of the belt, and a cushioning means for said idler and shaft.

1,544,193. MEASURING PUMP FOR SERVICE STATIONS. ARTHUR SHOWDEN, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Nov. 6, 1924. Serial No. 748,198. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—103.)



1. In a measuring pump capable of continuous delivery and having cylinders operated through one or more crank discs upon a driven shaft, a rod divided into units of measurement fitted adjacent a disc and having endwise movement, a collar carried by said rod adjustable to any of said units, means actuated by the pump mechanism adapted to engage the collar and to move the rod into engagement with a crank disc to prevent its rotation when the indicated delivery is attained.

1,544,194. AUTOMATIC EXPANSION VALVE. BURT C. SMYKAY, Birmingham, and CLARENCE M. HOLLEY, Detroit, Mich., assignors, by mesne assignments, to The Hoover Company, North Canton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 16, 1918. Serial No. 266,848. 27 Claims. (Cl. 62—11.)



13. An expansion valve connecting a high and a low pressure line, a chamber in the valve, means controlling admission from the high pressure line to the chamber, said means pressure actuated, and a restricted port comprising the outlet from the valve to the low pressure line.

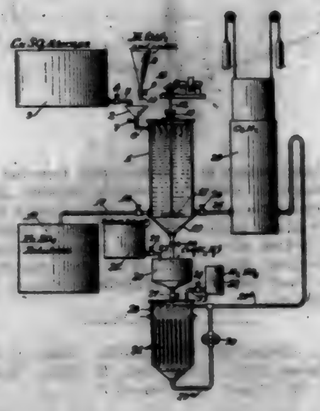
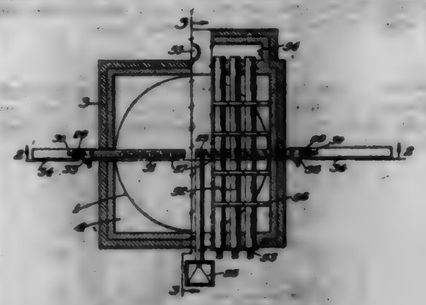
23. In an expansion valve, for a refrigeration system, having high and low pressure lines, providing means for expanding a refrigerant from the high pressure line to the low pressure line in a plurality of stages of expansion.

1,544,195. METHOD OF CONTROLLING FLOW OF FLUID FROM THE HIGH TO THE LOW PRESSURE LINES OF A FLUID-CIRCULATING SYSTEM. BURT C. STEWART, Birmingham, and CLARENCE M. HOLLEY, Highland Park, Mich., assignors, by mesne assignments, to The Hoover Company, North Canton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Original application filed Dec. 16, 1918, Serial No. 266,848. Divided and this application filed Oct. 14, 1922. Serial No. 594,497. 10 Claims. (Cl. 50—11.)



8. The method of refrigeration comprising the volatilization and expansion of a refrigerating fluid in a plurality of stages of expansion.

1,544,196. HEAT-INSULATING COMPOSITION. CLARK S. TEITSWORTH, Lompoc, Calif., assignor to The Celite Company, Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 8, 1924. Serial No. 705,125. 13 Claims. (Cl. 106—18.)

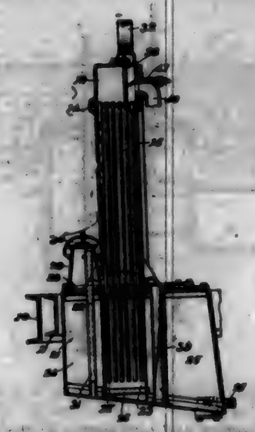


2. A heat insulating composition comprising diatomaceous earth, a binding agent, an organic gum capable of forming a gel with water, a fibrous material, and a distending agent.

1,544,197. PROCESS OF TREATING ORES. JOSEPH T. TERRY, Alhambra, Calif., assignor of one-half to James R. Lacy and one-eighth to Richard H. Lacy, both of Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 29, 1924. Serial No. 746,527. 3 Claims. (Cl. 260—11.)

1. A process of precipitating and recovering metals in a neutral or slightly acid solution, comprising introducing acetylene in presence of an iron salt to precipitate metal in the form of metal acetylide and separating the metal acetylide from the mixture under the exclusion of air.

1,544,198. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF TIN FROM ORES THEREOF. EDWIN B. THORNHILL, Hurley, N. Mex., assignor to Thornhill-Anderson Company, Muskogee, Okla., a Corporation of Oklahoma. Filed Dec. 14, 1921. Serial No. 522,292. 11 Claims. (Cl. 75—17.)



1. The process of recovering tin from oxide ore thereof which consists in heating the ore in a reducing atmosphere together with carbonaceous material and without fluxing agent to such a temperature as to effect reduction and melting of the tin without fluxing of the gangue constituent of the ore and without production of slag.

1. A condenser for use in combination with a steam driven automobile comprising an upper tube sheet, a tube nest rigidly suspended therefrom, a dome covering the upper end of the tube nest and into which steam may be delivered, a bottom tube sheet through which the tubes are yieldably supported, and an auxiliary tube nest communicating with the lower ends of the tubes and receiving the condensate therefrom.

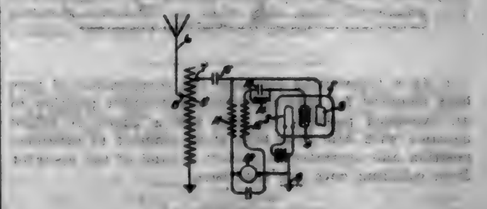
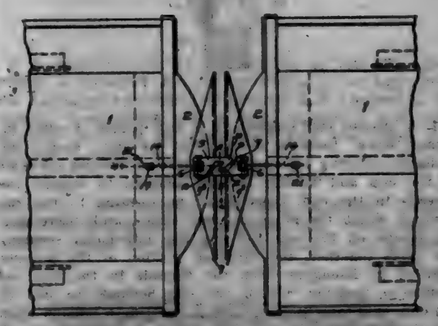
1,544,200. TRAFFIC SIGNAL. GERALD C. WATERHOUSE, Pasadena, Calif. Filed Oct. 6, 1924. Serial No. 741,828. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—68.)



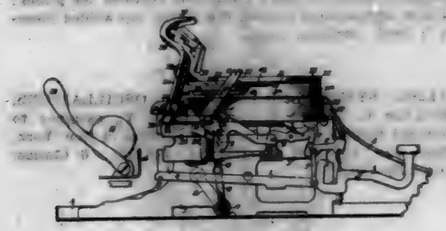
2. A traffic signal control comprising a casing having a slot at one side thereof, a signalling member rotatably mounted in said casing at said slot, said signalling member comprising opposite arms, said member being mounted so that one arm is concealed while the other arm is displayed, signal indicia on said arms, and means to progressively rotate said member in one direction so as to alternately display said indicia.

1,544,201. WELDING PROCESS. CHARLES B. WATTS, Mont Clair, N. J. Filed Aug. 16, 1924. Serial No. 732,577. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—10.)



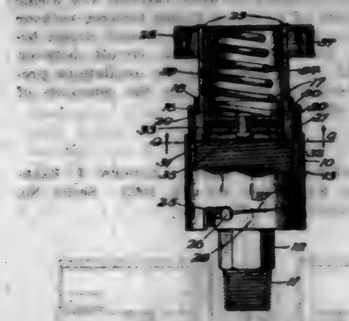
1. The process of forming a close grained flush welded joint between two metallic strips which comprises placing the strips to be welded in overlapping contact between a pair of electrodes; passing a sufficiently heavy current between said electrodes through said pieces over their entire area of contact with each other and through adjacent portions of the pieces only in contact with the electrodes to bring the overlapping parts to a forging heat and simultaneously pressing the electrodes together with sufficient pressure to effect a lap weld between the pieces; and then immediately forging the heated lap welded pieces into a flush surfaced joint.

1,544,202. SYSTEM FOR PRODUCING OSCILLATIONS. WILLIAM C. WHITE, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 20, 1921. Serial No. 438,560. 6 Claims. (Cl. 250—36.)



1. The combination in a system for producing electrical oscillations of an electron discharge device having a cathode, an anode and a grid, an oscillating circuit coupled to a shunt circuit between cathode and anode, a second circuit connected between cathode and anode containing a source of energy, a circuit between cathode and grid and a coupling between the second circuit between cathode and anode and the circuit between cathode and grid, the frequency of the oscillations produced being determined principally by the constants of said oscillating circuit.

1,544,203. MINE-CAR COUPLING. ANDREW J. BALDWIN, Pikeville, Ky. Filed Apr. 26, 1923. Serial No. 634,789. 4 Claims. (Cl. 213—18.)



1. A mine car coupling comprising a coupling member formed with a nose and with a hook element rearwardly of the nose, a pivotal mounting for the coupling member to permit swinging movement in a horizontal plane, and a bumper plate connected with said pivotal mounting for pivotal movement corresponding with the coupling member, the bumper plate being disposed adjacent the hook element of the coupling member so that the nose of a connected coupling member may overlap the plate to preclude disengagement of the hook members of connected coupling members upon relative movement in a vertical plane of the connected ends of coupled cars.

1,544,204. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. ROWIN E. BARRETT, New Rochelle, N. Y., assignor to Remington Typewriter Company, Ilion, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 1, 1924. Serial No. 753,112. 18 Claims. (Cl. 197—186.)

1. In a typewriting machine, the combination of type bars mounted for movement from a compact position to an expanded position for use, and a guard or shield movable with said type bars from compact to expanded position and operative to protect a hand of the operator from colliding with the type bars.

1,544,205. GREASE CUP. RICHARD L. BARRETT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 8, 1923. Serial No. 667,176. 8 Claims. (Cl. 184—45.)

1. A grease cup embodying a cup proper having internal screw threads, a cap for the cup, means detachably securing the cap in position, a plunger operable in the cup and having threads adapted to engage the threads in the cup, there being an opening in the cap through which the plunger freely slides, and interengaging means on the cap and cup for detachably securing the parts together, the threaded portion of the plunger adapted to disengage from the threads in the cup and assume a position within the cap beyond the end of the cup, said interengaging means exerting a tension upon the plunger when the said threaded parts are disengaged to insure a proper initial positioning of the threads with respect to each other.

1,544,206. TANK THIEF. HENRY C. BEARD, Sour Lake, Tex., assignor of one-half to Mrs. N. A. Cravens, Silsbee, Tex. Filed May 2, 1924. Serial No. 710,677. 4 Claims. (Cl. 137—18.)

1. A device of the character described comprising an elongated tube provided with suspension means, a valve pivoted at the lower end of the tube and adapted to close the same, an elongated leaf spring carried by one edge of said valve and located against one side of the tube, means engaging said spring for holding the valve open and including a pair of arm members pivoted in cross relation and terminating at one end in jaws for engaging the spring and terminating at the other end in extensions, and means for forcing said extensions apart to release the spring.

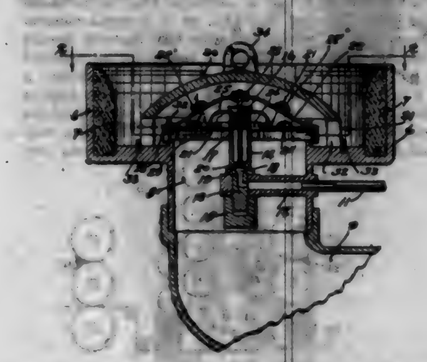
1,544,207. TUYÈRE STRUCTURE FOR SINGLE-RETORT STOKERS. ROYCE L. BEERS, Detroit, Mich., assignor to The Underfeed Stoker Company of America, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of New Jersey. Original application filed Jan. 14, 1921, Serial No. 437,288. Divided and this application filed Aug. 11, 1923. Serial No. 656,978. 2 Claims. (Cl. 110—44.)



2. The combination with a portion of a fire-box floor providing a retort wall 11 and a retort-bordering rim 12 having oblong openings 13 therethrough, of a plurality of plate tuyère elements mounted in each said opening, and jointly filling the same, each said plate tuyère element comprising a body web having a base portion shaped to fit within the front and rear edges of the opening and having an upper portion above the base portion, each such plate having along its top and rear margins shallow lateral flange projections of uniform extent, and on its side surfaces having ribs of the same depth as said flanges extending substantially parallel to the retort bordering rim and terminating at the front of said body, said flanges leaving therebetween narrow openings, substantially as and for the purposes described.

1,544,208. OIL BURNER. ASHLEY C. BENNETT, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Mar. 26, 1924. Serial No. 701,992. 13 Claims. (Cl. 158—77.)

7. An oil burner comprising a hollow sprayer head open at its perimeter for the discharge of oil and having circumferentially spaced propelling vanes, a large air delivery conduit opening against the under side of said sprayer head, an oil delivery conduit leading axially through the lower portion of said head and delivering on to the lower plate thereof, said head having a depending supporting spindle terminating in its lower portion and in a conical "step" bearing which, as well as the other bearing portions of said spindle are all located within the mantle portion of said oil delivery conduit and thereby arranged to run in the oil that is being delivered to said head, and a casing surrounding said head and provided with circumferentially spaced air outlet passages, said air outlet passages and the propelling vanes on said head being oblique in the same direction circumferentially of the burner.

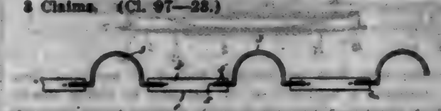
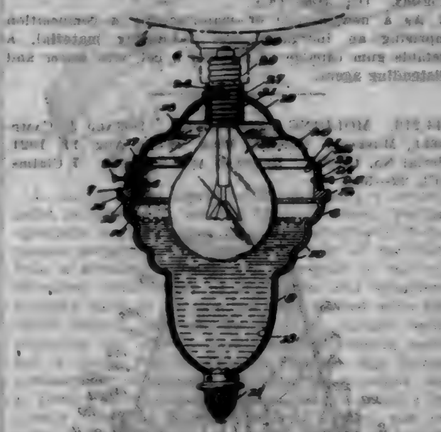
1,544,209. VENTILATOR. PAUL A. BERNHARDT, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to Loeffelholz Co., Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed May 10, 1924. Serial No. 712,246. 1 Claim. (Cl. 98—31.)



The combination with a window glass or the like having an opening therein, of a ventilator extending through said opening and comprising a cup-shaped member having an annular rim, the open end of said member being adjacent the inner surface of the glass, and the bottom of the member having a plurality of spaced openings therein, a circular shutter member rotatably and pivotally attached to the cup-shaped member and entirely confined therewithin and covering the bottom thereof, said member also having a plurality of spaced openings registrable with said first-mentioned openings when said shutter member is rotated, means for limiting the rotation of the shutter member, a ring member having a threaded engagement with the closed end portion of the cup-shaped member and positioned juxtaposed the outer surface of the glass, a washer member between said ring member and the outer surface of the glass, and a washer member between the rim of the cup-shaped member and the inner surface of the glass.

1,544,210. PROCESS OF TREATING COLLOIDAL CLAY. ERNEST C. BERTEA, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Refiners Clay Co., Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed July 31, 1924. Serial No. 729,844. 6 Claims. (Cl. 252—2.1.)



1. The process of treating colloidal clay to produce a filtering and decolorizing material comprising drying the lumps of clay as they come from the quarry without any preliminary grinding or addition of water until its free water content is reduced to approximately 12%, adding mineral acid in the proportion of approximately 4% to the clay, further drying to reduce the free water content to about 8%, comminuting the clay to pass through a coarse mesh screen, adding 1% of mineral acid, screening the clay to separate the finer particles suitable for the contact process of filtration from the coarser particles suitable for the percolation method of filtration.

1,544,211. COTTON CHOPPER. CHARLES H. BIHL, Ira, Tex. Filed Aug. 29, 1924. Serial No. 734,920. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—28.)

1. A cotton chopper comprising a series of blades arranged in a row and spaced from each other and arch members connected at their ends with the blades and bridging the space between the blades.

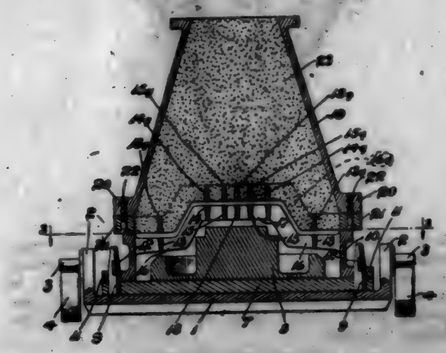
1,544,212. PERFUME VAPORIZER. JOHN GEORGE BLASCHKE, Hot Springs, Ark. Filed Oct. 30, 1923. Serial No. 671,803. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—45.)

1. A vaporizer for use in theaters or the like, comprising a container for the substance to be vaporized, said container comprising a metallic shell adapted to be suitably ornamented, and a heat insulating and non-corrosive liner for the shell, said liner also being impervious to liquid.

1,544,213. SECTIONAL FOLDING MINNOW TRAP. JOHN M. BEAUTICAM, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed July 12, 1923. Serial No. 651,016. 10 Claims. (Cl. 43—65.)

1. A sectional folding minnow-trap including a bottom and a top, two sectional ends hingedly connected to the bottom and the top and foldable inward between them, and two sectional sides hingedly connected to the bottom and the top and foldable partially into the folded ends.

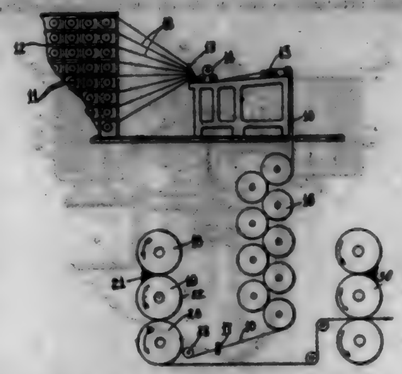
1,544,214. COMBINED BOX COVER AND PICTURE FRAME. ALFRED E. BAUNS, New York, N. Y., assignor to Metal Package Corporation of New York, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 20, 1924. Serial No. 700,498. 7 Claims. (Cl. 40—152.)



6. A combined box cover and picture frame comprising a walled enclosure adapted to interfit with and close a box body, the rear wall of said enclosure having a portion thereof sunk with respect to the body of said enclosure, and supporting means mounted in the sunk portion thereof.

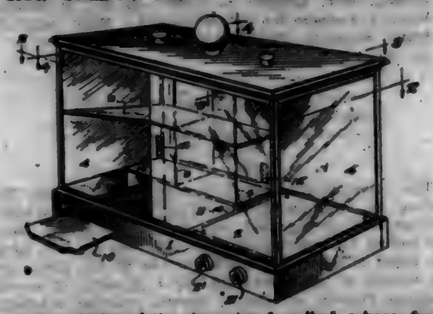
1,544,215. HEAT-INSULATING COMPOSITION. LYLE CALDWELL, Lompoc, Calif., assignor to The Celite Company, Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 2, 1924. Serial No. 703,608. 13 Claims. (Cl. 106—18.)

1. As a new article of manufacture, a composition comprising an inorganic heat insulating material, a vegetable gum capable of forming a gel with water and a distending agent.



1,544,216. MOLDING APPARATUS. DONALD J. CAMPBELL, Muskegon Heights, Mich. Filed Aug. 11, 1921, Serial No. 491,851. Renewed Apr. 25, 1925. 7 Claims. (Cl. 22—36.)

1. In combination, a sand containing hopper having a grating located across the lower end thereof, said grating including a plurality of bars spaced apart with spaces between the same for the passage of sand therethrough, but close enough together to normally hold the sand from escape, and a flask part located directly under the sand hopper having a similar grating at its upper side when in operative position under the hopper, said grating having like bars located directly under the bars of the grating in the hopper, substantially as described.



1,544,217. PREPARING CORD FABRIC. MARTIN CARTRICUM, Springfield, Mass., assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 7, 1920. Serial No. 394,566. 17 Claims. (Cl. 154—1.)

1. The method of uniting cords into a weftless cord fabric on a three-roll calender consisting in sheeting rubber between two of the rolls and carrying the sheet between the middle roll and the third roll, and directing a series of parallel unconnected cords under tension against the third roll at a point spaced from the line of contact of such roll with the middle roll, by an arc sufficient to maintain the cords in parallel relation during their passage between the middle and third rolls.

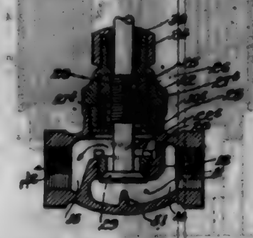
1,544,218. DISPLAY CASE. CHARLES V. CHAMPION, Danville, Ill., assignor to C. V. Champion & Company, Danville, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 7, 1924. Serial No. 718,654. 3 Claims. (Cl. 34—21.)



1. In a device of the character described, a base, front, rear and end walls arranged on said base, a partition extending partially from the rear to the front forming a toasting compartment and a storage compartment, a bottom arranged in said storage compartment, guides arranged on the front and rear walls of said toasting compartment, and a grill slidably mounted on said guides.

1,544,219. VALVE. LLOYD D. COLLAR, Oakland, Calif., assignor to Collar Valve Corporation, Oakland, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Apr. 2, 1925. Serial No. 20,058. 10 Claims. (Cl. 251—88.)

1. A valve structure comprising a valve body having inlet and outlet openings, a wall intermediate said openings, said wall being formed with a valve aperture and seat, a bonnet sleeve on the body, a valve stem extending axially through said sleeve and valve aperture, a valve on the inner end of the stem to seat against the seat, to control said aperture, a bonnet mechanism adapted to be simultaneously connected with the sleeve and the valve stem, and means for maintaining the valve in correct alignment relative to the seat during the connection of the bonnet mechanism to the sleeve and valve stem.

10. A valve structure comprising a body having inlet and discharge openings, a wall intermediate the openings, said wall being formed with an aperture, a bonnet sleeve formed on the body in axial alignment with said aperture, a valve stem extending axially through said sleeve and said aperture, a valve on the inner end of the stem, said valve being of a diameter less than the diameter of said aperture, a centrally bored valve seat member adapted to be arranged over the valve stem and passed through said sleeve and fixed in said aperture, an annular lip formed at the inner end of the bonnet sleeve, a centrally bored thrust member adapted to be arranged over the valve stem to bear on said lip, a bonnet adapted to be arranged over the valve stem and threaded into said bonnet sleeve to bear against said thrust member, an enlarged bore in the inner end of said bonnet, a guided stem block reciprocably mounted in said bore, an expansion spring in the bore between said stem block and the inner end of the bonnet, said bonnet being adapted to be slipped over the end of the valve stem and threadedly connected with the bonnet sleeve simultaneously with the threading of the stem block onto the threaded portion of the valve stem, whereby the spring will be interposed between the thrust member and the stem block, and tend to maintain the latter in its outermost position, and means to maintain the valve in correct alignment relative to the valve seat during the connecting of the bonnet to the valve body and the stem block to the valve stem.

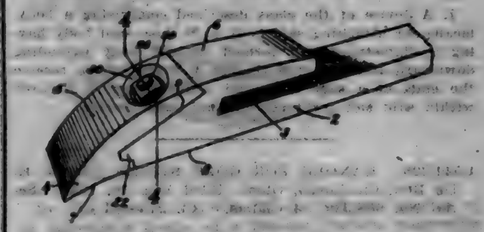
1,544,220. AMUSEMENT HOUSE. HOLLIS C. CONRAD, Jacksonville, Fla. Filed Jan. 25, 1923. Serial No. 615,429. 13 Claims. (Cl. 272—2.)

1. The combination with an amusement house, of a floor disposed in said house and having corners, said corners being disposed at different elevations thereby centering the floor at an angle whereby its sides will be disposed at different angles and upwardly convexed surfaces carried by the floor and in combination with the inclination of the floor increasing the illusion.



1,544,221. SHINGLING BRACKET. JOHN V. COUNTRYMAN, Selma, Iowa. Filed Jan. 22, 1925. Serial No. 4,049. 1 Claim. (Cl. 304—20.)

A shingling bracket comprising an arm, a laterally extending member associated with one end thereof and adapted for detachable engagement with an inclined opening provided therefor in a roof, a stirrup formed on the opposite end of the arm, a base plate, a clip formed on one end thereof, said clip adapted for detachable engagement with said stirrup, a pair of standards mounted in spaced relation on said base plate between which is adapted to be received a staging, and coacting jaws secured on said standards and adapted for engagement with the outer face of the staging.

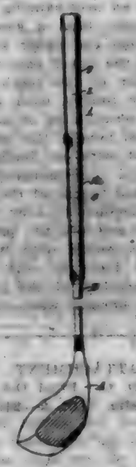
1,544,222. DIPPER-TOOTH POINT FOR EXCAVATING SHOVELS. OLIVER CROSBY, St. Paul, Minn., assignor to American Hoist & Derrick Co., St. Paul, Minn., a Partnership. Filed Oct. 22, 1921. Serial No. 509,542. 2 Claims. (Cl. 37—142.)

1. An excavator dipper-tooth comprising a detachable point provided with an over-hanging member having an upwardly inclined inner face, a substantially T-shaped tongue projecting from the under side of the inclined face, a shoulder at the lower extremity of the tongue extending transversely of the tooth, and shoulders at opposite sides of the tongue, each formed with an inclined seating face terminating in an upright wall intersecting the inclined face of the overhanging member; and a shank formed with an inclined face having a substantially T-shaped longitudinally extending socket to receive the T-shaped tongue of the point and a transversely extending shoulder to bear against the transversely extending shoulder of the point and formed at opposite sides of the socket with forwardly projecting lugs having inclined faces to seat upon the inclined faces of the side shoulders of the point and with end portions to abut the upright walls of said shoulders.

1,544,223. DRESS ATTACHMENT. SAMUEL J. DANTZIC, Washington, D. C. Filed Oct. 26, 1923. Serial No. 670,863. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—215.)

In combination with a skirt, an attachment including a stiffening strip to span the interstice between the buttocks and secured to the garment at a point where the latter spans the buttocks.

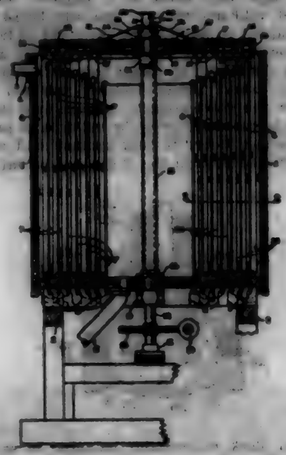
1,544,224. POLISH FOR AUTOMOBILES AND THE LIKE. George W. Darlington, San Pedro, Calif. Filed June 19, 1924. Serial No. 721,611. 6 Claims. (Cl. 134—24.)



1. A polishing composition in the form of an emulsion, containing eucalyptus oil, a waxy material, a drying oil and water.

1,544,225. SHOE-LACE FASTENER. Jose de Barros, Sacramento, Calif. Filed Aug. 28, 1924. Serial No. 734,628. 5 Claims. (Cl. 24—121.)

1. A device of the class described comprising a body, means for attaching said body to a shoe, said body having a diametrical slot formed in said body extending downward from the top thereof and adapted to receive the ends of a shoe lace, and resilient means disposed within said slot for retaining said ends therein.

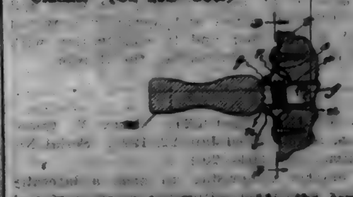


1,544,226. HANDLE FOR GOLF STICKS. Louis K. Du Bus, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Dec. 26, 1922. Serial No. 608,989. 4 Claims. (Cl. 273—81.)

1. A golf club handle, comprising a shaft having a plurality of annular hand portions mounted thereon for independent or individual rotary movement thereabout.

1,544,227. APPARATUS FOR ELECTRODEPOSITION OF PRECIOUS ORES. Wirthrop Rufus Doane, Timmins, Ontario, Canada. Filed Nov. 26, 1923. Serial No. 677,037. 4 Claims. (Cl. 204—15.)

1. In a device of the class described, a vessel having an ingress and an egress, a plurality of anodes comprising concentric cylinders affixed to the vessel bottom and gradually decreasing in height towards their common centre, a plurality of cathodes comprising concentric cylinders depending from a spider, the individual cathodes each being disposed intermediate of the successive anodes forming alternate anodes and cathodes;



means to conduct electric power to and from the electrodes, and means to rotate the spider to agitate a solution during its passage through the vessel.

1,544,228. WASTE COLLECTOR FOR COMBING MACHINES. John H. Dooley, New Bedford, Mass., assignor to Whitin Machine Works, Whitinsville, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Dec. 6, 1924. Serial No. 754,304. 3 Claims. (Cl. 19—116.)

1. In a combing machine, the combination with a combing member and a stripping brush, a casing inclosing said combing member and stripping brush, a perforated rotary screen, an air-exhausting means connected to said screen and operating to generate an air current therethrough whereby the waste from the stripper brush is collected on the screen and positively driven means cooperating with the screen for compressing the waste into a sliver.

1,544,229. HANDLE ASSEMBLY. Frank M. Edgar, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Ternstedt Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Sept. 28, 1923. Serial No. 665,315. 5 Claims. (Cl. 292—356.)

1. In a door handle assembly, the combination of an escutcheon provided with a front plate and a back plate, a handle spindle passing through the plates and provided with a collar located between the plates, and a spring bearing against the back plate and thrusting against the collar for the purpose specified.

1,544,230. PUMP. Henry M. Green, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Earl P. Hopkins, Council Bluffs, Iowa. Filed Dec. 1, 1922. Serial No. 604,837. 10 Claims. (Cl. 103—225.)

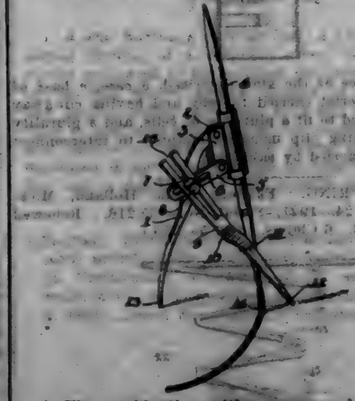
1. In a plunger pump, a plunger tube, a cylindrical packing medium surrounding the tube, a retainer for one end of the packing medium, and an expanding means operative against the opposite end of the packing medium whereby to compress the packing medium between the plunger tube and the working barrel, said packing medium consisting of a swab-like group of longitudinal packing pieces.

1,544,231. UTENSIL FOR HANDLING PIE TINS. William H. Hosea, Piedmont, Calif. Filed Mar. 18, 1925. Serial No. 16,348. 2 Claims. (Cl. 294—52.)

1. As an article of manufacture, a utensil for removing pie tins from an oven which comprises a flat blade, a segmental arcuate rim at one end of the blade, said rim coinciding in height, curvature and bevel to the rim of a pie tin, a flat lip extending outwardly from said rim and parallel to the blade whereby the rim and marginal lip of a pie tin will nest over said rim and lip, and a handle extending outwardly from the rear surface of said rim.

1,544,232. COLLAPSIBLE TUBE. William C. Hutcroon, Jr., East Greenwich, R. I. Filed Nov. 16, 1923. Serial No. 674,883. 3 Claims. (Cl. 225—66.)

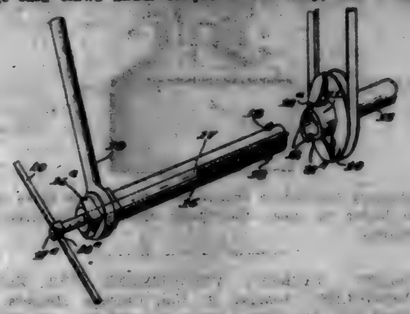
1. A collapsible tube having a neck formed with an inwardly tapering seat, and a cap on the neck having a diametrical discharge slot, said cap having an enlarged part formed with a pair of divergent openings each leading from the discharge slot through the adjacent bottom portion of the cap, the enlarged part being peripherally tapered to engage on said seat so as to cause the latter to close the lower ends of the divergent openings.



1,544,233. JACKING ATTACHMENT FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. Joseph H. Ico, Chicago Heights, Ill. Filed Feb. 12, 1923. Serial No. 618,491. 11 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)

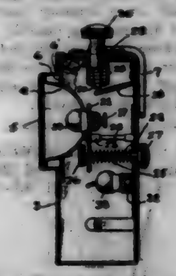
10. The combination with the channel side member of an automobile frame, of a bumper bracket, comprising a body part applied against the outside of said channel member, blocks engaging over the top and bottom webs of said channel member and clamped to said bracket, and a lug carried by said bracket and engaging the channel member under the lower web thereof.

1,544,234. BRUSH GUIDE FOR COMPASSES. George H. James, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 7, 1923. Serial No. 637,201. 4 Claims. (Cl. 33—27.)



1. The combination with a compass leg and a socket adjustably connected to the leg, of a finger adjustably connected to the leg and adapted to bear at the opposite side of a brush in the brush holder from the leg.

1,544,235. PULLER FOR FAN-DRIVE PULLEYS. Morris J. Johnson and Alf C. Schinnus, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed July 21, 1924. Serial No. 727,128. 5 Claims. ((Cl. 29—85.)



1. In a device for pulling from a shaft a wheel conventionally combined with a crank-receiving hub having ratchet-like clutch claws formed therein, a tubular body, the head thereof being adapted to receive a tool for twisting said body, lugs near the tip of the body, said body being adapted to be inserted at its tip in said hub and said lugs adapted to co-act with and interlockingly engage said claws under torque of the body, and a screw threaded within said body and adapted to be brought to bear at the tip thereof against the end of said shaft upon rotation thereof with respect to the body, the head of said screw being adapted to receive a tool for turning the same.

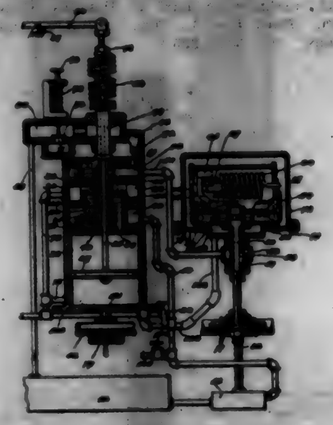
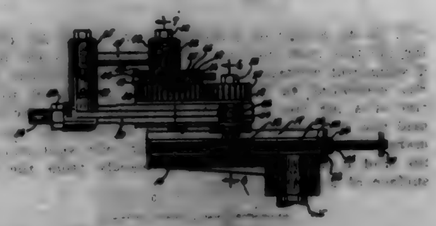
1,544,236. PORTABLE ELECTRIC LIGHT. WALTER D. KAHN, West Orange, and GEORGE A. THOMSON, Newark, N. J., assignors to Diamond Electric Specialties Corporation, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 7, 1922. Serial No. 550,322. 5 Claims. (Cl. 240—8.5.)



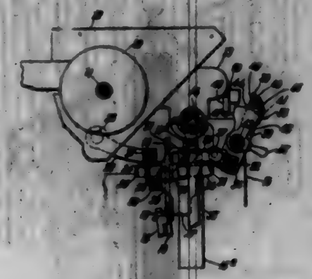
3. In a device of the kind described, a case, a base of insulating material carried thereby and having cut-away portions adapted to fit a plurality of cells, and a plurality of metallic spring clip members adapted to interconnect the cells and carried by said base.

1,544,237. SPRING. FRANCIS KARR, Holland, Mich. Filed Mar. 24, 1921, Serial No. 455,216. Renewed Dec. 12, 1923. 6 Claims. (Cl. 5—256.)



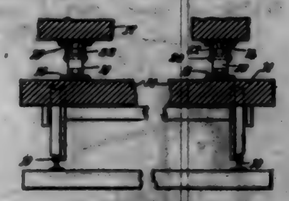
1. A coil spring unit comprising, in combination, two coil spring elements having a part only of their turns intercoiled and the remaining turns extending beyond the intercoiled turns in opposite directions.

1,544,238. GOVERNOR. ALEXANDER T. KASLEY, Essington, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 3, 1922. Serial No. 528,514. 16 Claims. (Cl. 264—14.)



14. The combination with a motor having an admission valve, of governing mechanism for the motor comprising fluid-pressure developing means driven by the motor, an operating cylinder, an operating piston within the cylinder, a piston rod for connecting the piston with the admission valve, a piston valve surrounding the piston rod and having slight clearance with respect thereto, a valve cylinder having passages communicating with said pressure-developing means and with the exhaust, means on the valve for placing the operating cylinder in communication with the pressure-developing means or with the exhaust dependent upon the valve position, a second operating piston connected to the valve, ports in the valve connecting the clearance space with respect to the piston rod with said pressure-developing means and with the space at one side of the second operating piston, a spring under compression and acting on both pistons to oppose the fluid pressures applied thereto, and speed-responsive means for relieving the pressure of fluid applied to the second operating piston.

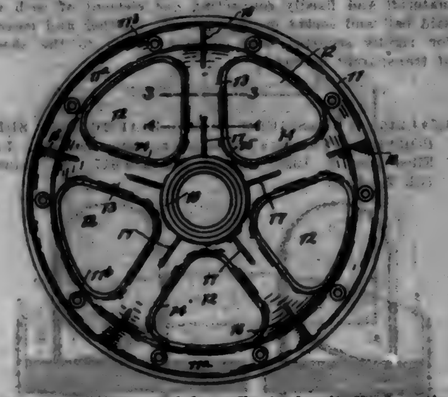
1,544,239. CRANK MECHANISM FOR CUTTING MACHINES. HERBERT F. KELLY, Springfield, Mass., assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 31, 1924. Serial No. 703,062. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—38.)



2. A variable crank mechanism adapted to produce alternately different throws, comprising a crank, a crank pin fixed thereon, a gear fixed on the crank pin, a second gear twice the size of the first and mounted so that its pivot will always remain a constant distance from the pivot of the first gear but on one side thereof, and a crank pin fixed to the second gear.

1,544,240. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. ALFRED G. F. KUNOWSKI, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 24, 1923. Serial No. 627,263. 7 Claims. (Cl. 197—176.)

1. In a typewriting machine having a platen-carriage mounted for letter-space movement, a rack for said carriage, an escapement co-operative with said rack to control said carriage movement, means for disengaging said rack from said escapement to release said carriage, stop-mechanism for said carriage, said stop-mechanism including a frame having a stop movable into the path of said carriage, means for concomitantly operating said stop-mechanism and said carriage-releasing means, and locking means operative directly between said frame and said carriage-releasing means for normally rendering said carriage-releasing means inoperative.



1,544,241. CAR MOUNTING. ELMER A. LAUGHLIN, Oregon, Ill., assignor of one-half to Elmyr A. Laughlin and one-half to Joshua R. H. Potts, both of Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 25, 1923. Serial No. 626,613. 10 Claims. (Cl. 64—25.)

1. In a car mounting, the combination with a truck and a body pivotally mounted thereon, of opposed bearing heads depending from said body and upstanding from said truck, the ends of said heads being provided with rolling bearing surfaces; a rocker member interposed between said bearing heads, said rocker being provided with bearing surfaces making rolling contact with the ends of said heads; and projecting stop members on one end of said rocker loosely embracing the sides of the corresponding bearing head to maintain operative relations between them, substantially as described.

5. A cast metal wheel for automotive vehicles comprising a hub, a rim and spokes cast integrally, the spokes being relatively thin and having thickened portions extending longitudinally thereof, said spokes being bowed or curved laterally in longitudinal section and being curved in transverse section.

1,544,243. GARBAGE RECEPTACLE. CATHARINE LEHMKUHL, Newark, N. J. Filed Jan. 31, 1924. Serial No. 689,793. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—86.)

1. A can having a pair of ears, a bail pivotally connected thereto, of a sectional cover, one section being rigidly connected to the can and the other section hinged to the first named section, flanges on the hinged section and extending outwardly over said ears, cam plates fixed to said bail and adapted for engagement with the said flanges to raise the said cover, when the bail is depressed in one direction and to raise said cover when the bail is depressed in the opposite direction.

1,544,244. COMBINED WIND DEFLECTOR, MIRROR, AND SPOTLIGHT. JULIUS C. LEHMANN and GEORGE H. TIMMERMAN, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors to Lehmann & Co., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 4, 1921. Serial No. 488,673. 3 Claims. (Cl. 45—97.)

2. A support for a mirror and a spot light or the like, a sheet of transparent material, said support comprising a pair of adjustable supporting members, each comprising a ball and socket, common means constructed to extend on opposite sides of the sheet of transparent material and fixedly connecting one element of each of said ball and socket members to one another and means for rigidly securing said common means to the sheet of transparent material.

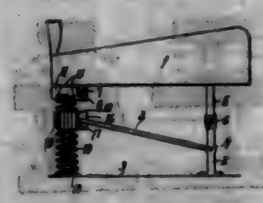
1,544,245. BRASSIÈRE AND DIAPHRAGM SUPPORTER. VICTORIA LENDERMEN, New Orleans, La. Filed Apr. 3, 1923. Serial No. 629,617. 5 Claims. (Cl. 2—42.)

4. A combined brassière and diaphragm supporter comprising a body member tapering smaller towards its ends, means for securing the ends together, an elastic band of less length than the length of the said member, said elastic band secured to the inner face of the said member adjacent the lower end thereof to aid in supporting the diaphragm, suspension straps having their suspension ends secured to the inner faces of the said member and extending across the full width thereof to provide reinforcing strips, and arcuate reinforcing strips for the bust and diaphragm portions of the member connected to the inner face of said member and joining some of said reinforcing strips in pairs.

1,544,246. TOOL FOR REMOVING BUSHINGS. HARRY J. LESLIE, St. Joseph, Mo. Filed Jan. 21, 1924. Serial No. 687,471. 6 Claims. (Cl. 29—88.2.)

1. In a tool of the character described, a bar having one of its ends formed with a transverse enlargement projecting laterally to one side of the bar, and a bar segment having a permanent sliding connection with said bar and movable longitudinally alongside the opposite side of the bar.

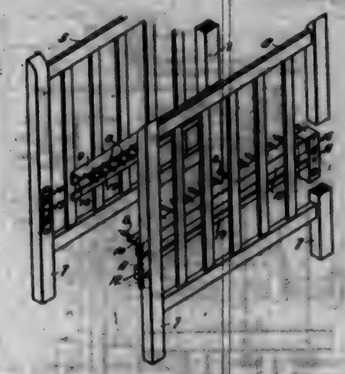


1,544,247. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR BLASTING. GEORGE CHARLES LEWIS, New Dorp, N. Y., assignor to Columbian Carbon Company, Williamsport, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 9, 1923. Serial No. 650,215. 11 Claims. (Cl. 102—6.)

1. In blasting, the process steps comprising dipping a body of finely subdivided combustible material in liquid oxygen to saturate said body, placing the saturated body in a loose fitting outer container substantially impermeable to liquid oxygen to thereby retain about said body a jacket of cold gaseous oxygen, and placing the saturated body and container in the body to be blasted.

10. A cartridge including a container, a body of finely subdivided combustible material therein, and means for conducting liquid oxygen to the interior of the cartridge when the entire container is dipped into the liquid oxygen, said means comprising a piece of combustible lamp wicking embedded within said body.

1,544,248. SPRING SEAT SUPPORT. JOSEPH LESAL, West Hatfield, Mass., assignor of one-half to Hugh McLeod, Hatfield, Mass. Filed June 21, 1924. Serial No. 721,296. 7 Claims. (Cl. 155—55.)



1. As an improved article of manufacture, a spring seat support comprising a spring having a head adapted to be pivotally connected with a seat, and a sleeve on said spring, which sleeve is adapted to be connected with a movable brace.

1,544,249. BED CONSTRUCTION. MORRIS LIPPS, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 4, 1921. Serial No. 505,268. 2 Claims. (Cl. 5—132.)

1. A bed spring frame comprising angle iron head and foot rails for carrying a fabric bottom, upright angle brackets having cross braces for connecting the same together, said brackets having inwardly extending side flanges at right angles to the cross braces, a slot in the upper ends of said side flanges for receiving one of the flanges of the head and foot rails with the other flange of said head and foot rails resting on the top of said side flanges, the ends of the head and foot rails extending outwardly to alignment with the outer vertical edges of the upright angle brackets, the other flange of each of the brackets having openings, side bars connecting the brackets, and head and foot boards having brackets on their corner posts provided with lugs to detachably fit into the openings in the first mentioned brackets to secure the bed spring frame to the head and foot boards.

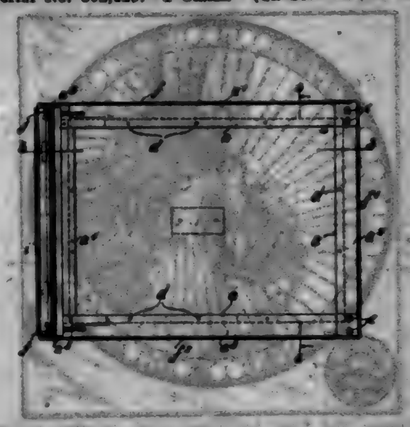
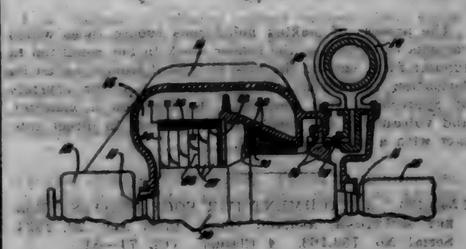
1,544,250. PRODUCTION OF CALCIUM ARSENATES. DOMINGO LOPEZ, St. Albans, W. Va. Filed Mar. 19, 1923. Serial No. 626,159. 6 Claims. (Cl. 23—53.)



1. The process of producing a light fluffy calcium arsenate in a single step comprising passing chlorine into a mixture of lukewarm water, arsenious oxide, and lime, and boiling after the chemical reaction occurs to minimize the production of soluble arsenates.

1,544,251. CRIB CORNER LOCK. EDWIN LEDING, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to S. Weisglass & Company, Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 9, 1923. Serial No. 637,740. 6 Claims. (Cl. 5—132.)

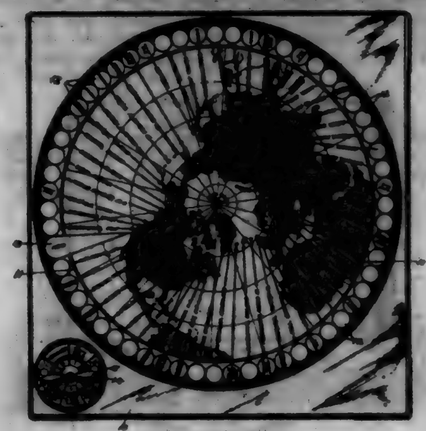


1. In combination, an upright having an attaching plate thereon; a side member having an end portion bent at an inclination to the plane of the main portion of the side member; a supporting bracket having a horizontal portion secured at its free end to the side member near the bend therein and having a vertical portion; means for securing said vertical portion to the free end of the bent portion of the side member; and means appurtenant to the vertical portion of the bracket engageable with means appurtenant to said attaching plate for removably securing the supporting bracket to the upright.

1,544,253. COVERS AND BINDING FOR BOOKS. ALBERT MANN, Stroud, England. Filed Nov. 21, 1922. Serial No. 602,429. 1 Claim. (Cl. 281—37.)

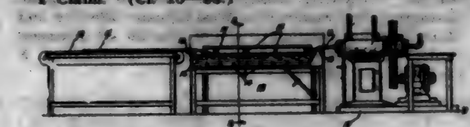
A binding or cover for books consisting of an exterior framework formed to present a smooth unbroken exterior line all round same and constituting wearing surfaces, said framework being provided on its inner edge with recesses, spaced filling plates lodged in said recesses and firmly secured in said frame, the outer one of said plates lying in a plane inwards of the exterior plane or surface of the frame.

1,544,253. TURBINE BLADING. ROLAND MARSLAND, Essington, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 31, 1923. Serial No. 644,749. 8 Claims. (Cl. 253—77.)



1. In a turbine, a row of blades having portions normally subject to centrifugal bending moments, said portions being corrugated radially in order to resist said moments.

1,544,254. GAME. HORACE W. MAY and BRADFORD A. MATHEWSON, Orosi, Calif., assignors of one-fourth to William R. Litzenberg, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 26, 1924. Serial No. 733,958. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—134.)



2. A game including a map of the northern hemisphere, a series of spaces around said map with connecting lines to different geographical locations on said map, said spaces having indicated thereon conditions and needs of the player stopping thereat, a spinning device having indicia thereon for indicating the advance and the meeting of the condition and need, said device involving the element of chance and adapted to be manipulated by each player to determine his advance in the course of travel and how his condition and need are met, substantially as described.

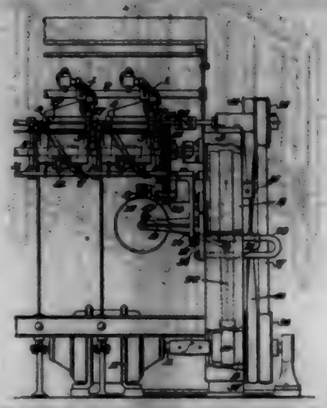
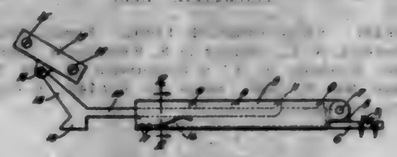
1,544,255. ART OF MAKING NONPOROUS TUBES AND OTHER ARTICLES. CHARLES EDGAR MAYNARD, Northampton, Mass., assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 1, 1924. Serial No. 741,065. 1 Claim. (Cl. 18—53.)



The process of making non-porous rubber tubes which consists in extruding the rubber stock in hot condition in tubular form, cooling the tube so formed promptly after its formation to prevent the formation of sulfur crystals of appreciable size, mounting the tube on a mandrel, and vulcanizing the tube with its surface in direct contact with a vulcanizing fluid.

1,544,256. ATTACHMENT FOR FOOT PEDALS. ROBERT MCILWROSH, Ashland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 20, 1924. Serial No. 733,163. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—91.)

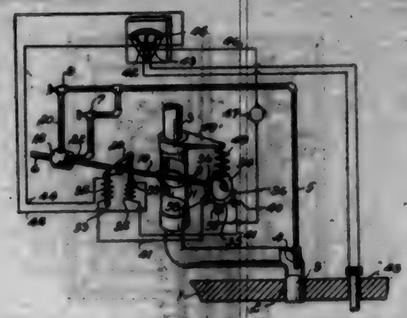


1. In a device of the character described, a pair of complementary sections, each of said sections comprising a base portion adapted to be arranged on top of a foot pedal, means carried by each of said sections adapted to engage said foot pedal, webs extending upwardly from said base portions, means for securing said webs to each other, and tread portions arranged on the upper ends of said webs.

1,544,257. WINDING MACHINE. JOHN O. MCKEAN, Westfield, Mass., assignor to Foster Machine Company, Westfield, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Nov. 20, 1924. Serial No. 751,017. 11 Claims. (Cl. 242—18.)

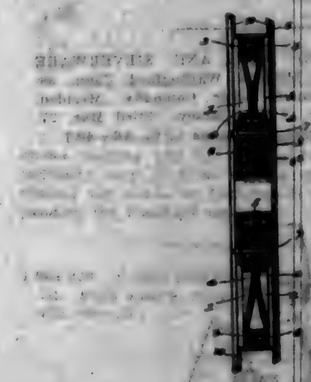
1. In a winding machine, a main frame, a thread guide reciprocating cam shaft carried thereby, an auxiliary frame, and a cop driving roll shaft section carried thereby, said auxiliary frame being movable out of the way, for gaining ready access to the cam shaft.

1,544,258. ADJUSTABLE FOOT REST FOR AUTOMOBILES. JAMES A. MCMASTER, Springfield, Mass. Filed Aug. 12, 1924. Serial No. 731,670. 4 Claims. (Cl. 296—75.)



1. An adjustable foot rest for automobiles and the like, comprising a pair of side members and a foot board or rest connecting said side members, each side member comprising a hollow casing hingedly secured to the floor of the automobile, a bar telescoping within said casing and having a foot board bracket for said foot board at the outer end thereof, said bar fitting loosely within said casing and having a certain amount of latitudinal play therein, and means comprising a tension member located wholly within said casing for locking said foot board in a plurality of different positions.

1,544,259. DEVICE FOR AND SYSTEM OF REGULATING TEMPERATURES. HARRY W. MCQUAID and ALEXANDER G. RIPPENGER, Canton, Ohio, assignors to The Timken Roller Bearing Company, Canton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 2, 1922. Serial No. 540,891. 9 Claims. (Cl. 236—68.)



1. In a device of the kind described, the combination with a thermocouple, a fuel valve, solenoids for operating said fuel valve and a temperature indicator connected to said solenoids, of a switch member for operating said solenoids comprising an oscillatable disk, an arcuate conductor thereon, and three contact members disposed in an arc to contact with said arcuate conductor, the middle contact member being in contact with the arcuate conductor at all times, and the outer contact members being each in contact with said arcuate conductor in one position of said disk, and said outer contact members being connected respectively with a solenoid, said switch member being in an electric circuit including said solenoids and said temperature indicator.

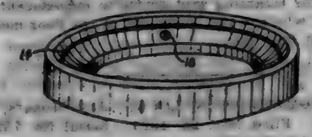
1,544,260. WHEEL. CHARLES CHRISTOPHER MENGEL, Louisville, Ky., assignor to The Mengel Company, Louisville, Ky., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 1, 1924. Serial No. 710,364. 2 Claims. (Cl. 301—63.)

2. A built up wheel comprising in combination two disk-like elements each element being formed of laminated material, and comprising a flat central section, an outwardly flaring section extending therefrom, and a flat outer section, said elements being placed together with the central sections in contact and outer sections separated; means interposed between and secured to the outer flat sections; laminated hub elements placed upon the outer faces of the flat central sections; hub plates contacting the outer faces of the hub elements; and means for securing said plates to each other and to the members embraced thereby.



1,544,261. CONTROLLING MEANS FOR STARTERS FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. WILLIAM MARANVILLE, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed Oct. 13, 1922. Serial No. 594,949. 5 Claims. (Cl. 290—44.)

1. In a controlling mechanism for electric starters for internal combustion engines, the combination of a shiftable operating member and a starting switch operable thereby, an ignition switch in said shiftable operating member, a lock comprising a part operable to hold the operating member from movement, and key operated mechanism connected to said part and to the ignition switch to operate the same.

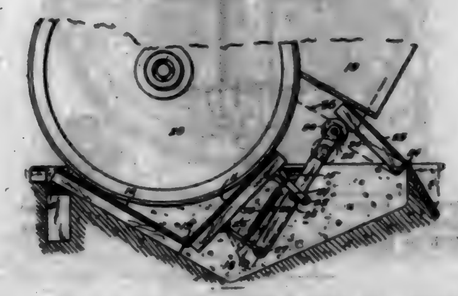
1,544,262. MARKING RUBBER. THOMAS MIDGLEY, Hampden, Mass., assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 17, 1923. Serial No. 625,767. 3 Claims. (Cl. 18—61.)

1. A process of making rubber vehicle tires which comprises forming the tire with tread sidewalls of stocks of contrasting shades, and heating the tire in contact with a band which overlaps the meeting edges of the two stocks and is composed of a metal such as copper capable of reacting upon the rubber mixture to produce a change of shade therein.



1,544,263. UNA-RAIL SYSTEM. FRANK L. MONTGOMERY, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Feb. 9, 1921, Serial No. 443,699. Renewed Nov. 28, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 104—93.)

1. In a una-rail system, a supporting structure, a traction rail carried thereby, a current rail suspended from said structure above and parallel to said traction rail, driving apparatus supported on said traction rail below said current rail, said apparatus comprising a truck carrying a plurality of driving wheels, a truck carrying a plurality of pilot wheels, a bolster bar to which said trucks are pivoted, a trolley yieldingly held against said current rail, and a motor carried upon said driving wheel truck connected to said trolley, and a car suspended from said apparatus below said traction rails.

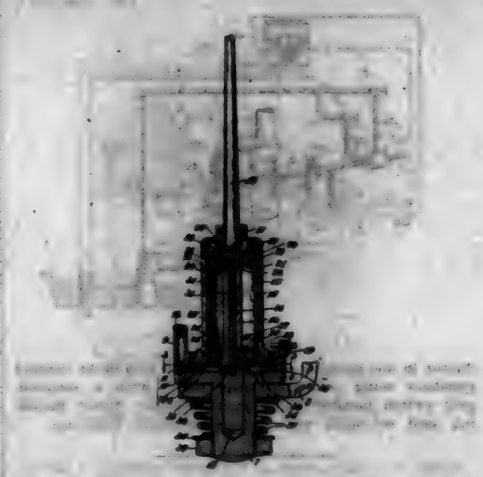
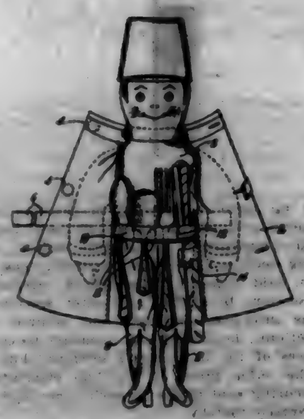
1,544,264. ELEVATOR DUMP STRUCTURE. PETER E. MORAN, Woodward, Iowa. Filed June 6, 1924. Serial No. 718,823. 4 Claims. (Cl. 214—49.)

1. In combination with a wagon dump having hinged floor members, a floor door operating device hingedly connected to one of the floor members, a hinged floor door, means for retaining said device in engagement with the floor door whereby the movement of the floor members will raise said floor door.



1,544,265. COMBINATION LOCK. JAN MORRIS, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 25, 1924. Serial No. 752,083. 3 Claims. (Cl. 70—53.)

1. A keyless lock comprising a casing, a bolt slidable therein, means for normally projecting said bolt outwardly, a lever to retract said bolt, a spring operating to move said lever to retract the bolt, an arm on said lever, a ring having an opening to receive said arm, and permutative means for actuating said ring.



1,544,266. TEXTILE SPINDLE. FREDERICK E. MUELLER and GEORGE R. BOTT, New York, N. Y., assignors to Norma-Hoffman Bearings Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 9, 1920. Serial No. 372,400. 2 Claims. (Cl. 118—66.)

1. A spindle mounting comprising a socket member having a lubricant chamber, a bolster fitted therein and having a lubricant passage, a whirl extending about said bolster and fitting into said chamber, a spindle carried by said whirl, anti-friction bearings carried by said whirl and bolster, an annular baffle plate situated in said lubricant chamber having its inner edge spaced from the bolster and outer edge spaced from the side walls of the socket, and means for supporting said baffle plate above the bottom of the socket.

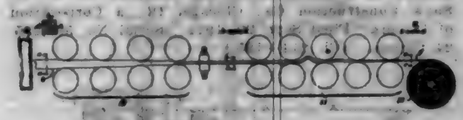
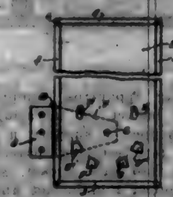
1,544,267. COMBINED DOLL AND SILVERWARE HOLDER. CRAIG D. MUNSON, Wallingford, Conn., assignor to International Silver Company, Meriden, Conn., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 27, 1925. Serial No. 18,677. 4 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)



1. A holder for flat tableware consisting of a doll having a doll body with an inner garment thereon, said garment having a loop thereon for holding flat tableware and an outer garment having a flap covering said loop and concealing the same.

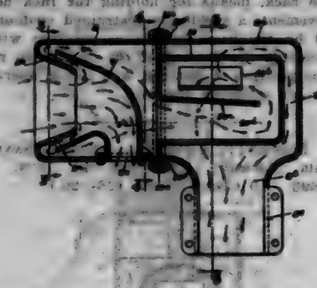
1,544,268. SAFE-DOOR ATTACHMENT. WARREN B. MURRAY, Fort Dodge, Nebr., assignor to Anakin Lock & Alarm Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 23, 1922. Serial No. 608,622. 4 Claims. (Cl. 109—11.)



1. In combination with a vault or safe door, a mechanism for securing the door in closed position including in part a shaft journaled upon the door and having an eccentric pin, a removable block for engaging the eccentric pin, and a fixture for removably holding the block adjacent the safe door.

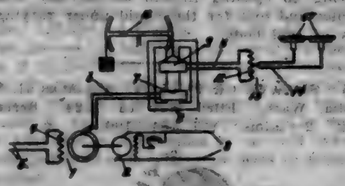
1,544,269. EXPANDED-METAL MANUFACTURE. HARRY M. NAUGLE and ARTHUR J. TOWNSEND, Canton, Ohio. Filed May 19, 1924. Serial No. 714,335. 5 Claims. (Cl. 164—6.6.)

1. The method of making expanded metal, which includes heating and hot rolling billets or bars longitudinally only to form thin bands directly, and then slitting the bands to form bonds and strands and expanding the resultant meshes.



1,544,270. CARD HOLDER. FRED S. NELSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 9, 1924. Serial No. 718,822. 6 Claims. (Cl. 40—10.)

1. A card holder having a plurality of supports thereon, each support adapted to engage a hinge, whereby said holder may be supported in a plurality of positions relative to said hinge.



1,544,271. AIR-CLEANING DEVICE. OSCAR JULIUS NELSON, Canton, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Walter D. Magruder, Canton, Ohio. Filed Nov. 19, 1923. Serial No. 675,513. 13 Claims. (Cl. 183—35.)

1. In an air cleaner, the combination with a conduit including a deflector horn having its bell spaced from and overlapping said conduit and forming conjointly therewith an annular reversely directed passage, said horn discharging foreign matter from the air at the point of diversion.

1,544,272. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING HIGH-FREQUENCY ELECTRIC WELDS AND PRODUCT RESULTING THEREFROM. DONALD F. PANCOAST, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Dec. 11, 1924. Serial No. 755,179. 32 Claims. (Cl. 219—6.)

1. A method of butt-welding by means of an alternating current which includes the step of causing a constant current of high-frequency to flow across the seam-cleft of the stock to be welded progressively of the length thereof.

1,544,273. WEIGHING SCALE. WALTER EDWARD SAWYER, Jacksonville, Fla., assignor to Sawyer Specialty Scales Company, Jacksonville, Fla., a Corporation. Filed Feb. 23, 1923. Serial No. 620,675. 4 Claims. (Cl. 265—8.)

1. In weighing scales the combination with a yieldingly supported beam, a load engaging member, and means for transmitting the weight of the supported load from said member to the beam, of a slidable rack, adjustable guiding means therefor, an indicator operated by the rack, means for holding the rack normally against movement, a yieldingly restrained cushioning lever carried by the beam, means cooperating with said lever for limiting the descent of the rack when released from normal position, a plunger, and means operated by the plunger for releasing the rack.

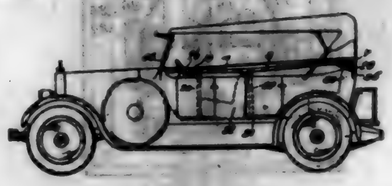
1,544,274. DOMESTIC COOKER. ANDREAS SAXEGAARD, Christiania, Norway. Filed Feb. 14, 1924. Serial No. 692,693. 10 Claims. (Cl. 126—20.)

1. In a domestic cooker, a liquid reservoir serving as a heat accumulator and as a means to transfer heat to cooking vessels, a body immersed in the liquid adapted to serve as a holder for heating elements and to transfer heat to the liquid, and a casing enveloping said body having an opening therein successively constituting an inlet and exit for the liquid under varying temperatures of said body.

1,544,275. SHEAVE OR PULLEY. CHARLES H. SEARS, Centralia, Wash. Filed May 16, 1924. Serial No. 713,802. 2 Claims. (Cl. 254—190.)

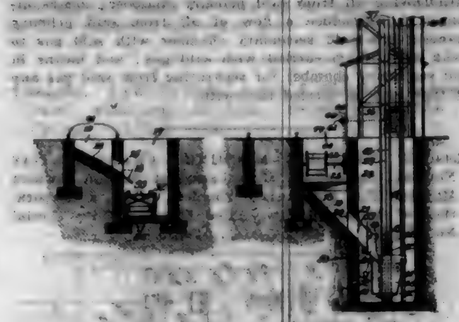


1. In a device of the character described, an attaching bracket adapted to be secured on the top of a pole or the like, a pulley assembly mounted on the attaching bracket, said pulley assembly including a shaft, and a pair of dogs pivoted to the shaft and having prongs adapted to be driven into the pole to aid in securing the device in position.

1,544,276. SHUTTLE. JOHN C. SHAMBOW, Woonsocket, R. I., assignor to Shambow Shuttle Company, Woonsocket, R. I., a Corporation of Rhode Island. Filed Mar. 29, 1923. Serial No. 628,453. 1 Claim. (Cl. 139—209.)

A shuttle having, in combination, a body, a spindle block pivoted in the body and having a bobbin engaging lug to prevent rotation of the bobbin and a longitudinal spindle hole, a spindle having a plattic received in the spindle hole and provided with an enlargement to form a shoulder adapted to bear against the spindle block, the enlargement being slabbed beneath the bobbin engaging lug of the spindle block, and additional means engaging the spindle to prevent longitudinal movement of the latter.

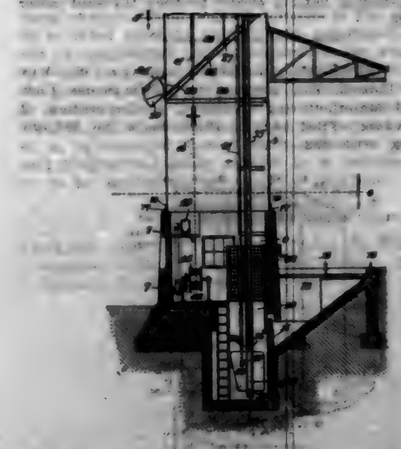
1,544,277. AUTOMOBILE BED. JOSEPH B. SMITH, Portland, Oreg. Filed Sept. 20, 1923. Serial No. 663,799. 3 Claims. (Cl. 5—119.)



3. An automobile bed, consisting in a pair of side rails, each said rail being composed of two sections hingedly connected together, end bars detachably connected at opposite ends of said rails to form a rectangular frame, supports for said frame at its ends and also at its said hinged connections, a sheet of fabric stretched between said end bars, and means detachably connecting one of said bars and said rails affording adjustment in the length of said fabric between said bars.

1,544,278. MATERIAL-ELEVATING APPARATUS. BARTON S. SNOW, Batavia, Ill., assignor to T. W. Snow Construction Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 29, 1922. Serial No. 591,285. 24 Claims. (Cl. 214—125.)

1. Material elevating apparatus, comprising in combination, a hopper, a bucket for elevating material located adjacent said hopper, a support, a receptacle engaging said support for receiving material from said hopper for discharge into said bucket, said receptacle being between said hopper and bucket and bodily movable along said support from said hopper toward said bucket and tiltable into a position for discharging its contents into said bucket.



1,544,279. MATERIAL-HANDLING APPARATUS. BARTON S. SNOW, Batavia, Ill., assignor to T. W. Snow Construction Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 24, 1922. Serial No. 603,009. 19 Claims. (Cl. 214—136.)

1. In material-moving apparatus, the combination of a member by which the material is moved and which is movable alternately in opposite directions and requires for its movement in one direction the application of power thereto, means for applying power to said member to move the latter, and means for delivering material to said member comprising a movable element and mechanism for driving said element from said first-named means alternately with the application of power to said member as stated.

1,544,280. MATERIAL ELEVATING AND STORAGE APPARATUS. BARTON S. SNOW, Chicago, Ill., assignor to T. W. Snow Construction Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 15, 1924. Serial No. 732,234. 4 Claims. (Cl. 214—16.)

1. Material-elevating apparatus comprising a housing-structure formed of a relatively attenuated sub-structure adapted for erection in a restricted space between two tracks and a superposed upwardly extending shell anchored to said substructure, said shell containing an upwardly-extending material-storage compartment and an upwardly-extending bucket-way, a hoisting element operating in said bucket-way for delivering the material to said storage compartment, and means for operating said hoisting element located below said shell and within the confines of said housing structure and within the confines of the extended geometrical figure of the shell.

1,544,281. ELECTRIC FIXTURE. PETER W. STRANCHAN, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Jan. 22, 1925. Serial No. 4,210. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—78.)

1. An electric fixture comprising a cap, a supporting strap having a transverse lower portion and a pair of upwardly extending arms adapted to contact with a wall surface, a screw extending through said transverse portion and screwed into said cap, a socket carried by said transverse portion and having an outer shell re-movably screwed on said socket, and a canopy surrounding said supporting strap and held in place by the removable shell of said socket.

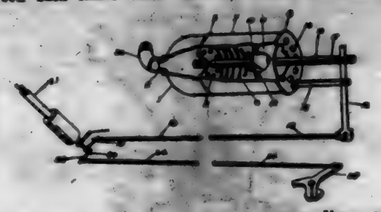
1,544,282. PROCESS OF PREPARING FRUITS. OTTO J. STEINWAND, Selma, Calif. Filed July 19, 1924. Serial No. 727,070. 6 Claims. (Cl. 99—11.)

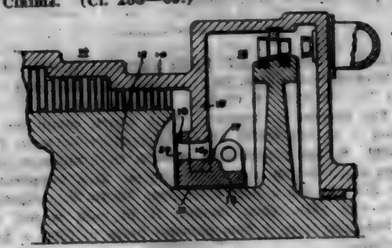
6. The process of treating fruit which comprises immersing it in hot water at a temperature between 170° and 200° F. for a period of from 5 to 7 minutes, then dipping the fruit in a hot lye solution at a temperature below 212° F. for a period of from 15 to 30 seconds to remove the skin, then rinsing it in cold water, and then reducing it to a homogeneous mass to form a jelly-like product.

1,544,283. FENCEPOST-BRACE HOLDER. JOHN STULL, Locompton, Kans. Filed Mar. 11, 1924. Serial No. 698,542. 1 Claim. (Cl. 256—35.)



A fence post brace comprising a plate adapted to be applied to the side of the post, a sleeve carried at the side of the plate and having a conical socket, the axis of which is disposed at an acute angle to the plane of the plate, the socket of the sleeve being adapted to snugly receive the tapered end portion of a brace.

1,544,284. AIR VALVE. ROBERT A. TART, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 9, 1922. Serial No. 559,665. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—144.)



An air intake valve for internal combustion engines comprising an outer shell, means for connecting one end of said shell to an engine intake manifold, an inner shell in the other end of said outer shell in which other end are air inlets communicating with one end of said inner shell, the other end of said inner shell forming a valve seat, a valve rod extending through said inlet end of said outer shell and through said inner shell, a valve on said rod, a perforated transverse wall in said outer shell between said inner shell and the outlet connecting end of said outer shell, and a spring surrounding said rod between said perforated wall and said valve for normally holding said valve on its seat.

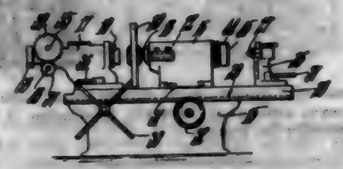
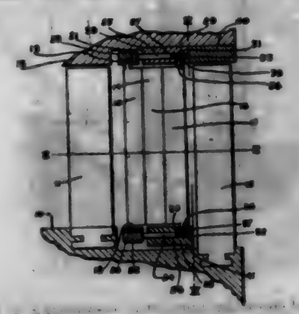
1,544,285. BLEEDER TURBINE. HENRY R. TROTTER, Swarthmore, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 13, 1923. Serial No. 657,130. 7 Claims. (Cl. 253—69.)



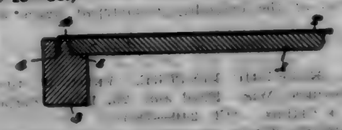
1. In a bleeder turbine, the combination of a casing, a rotor, high-pressure blading, low-pressure blading, and means carried by the casing for separating the high-pressure blading from the low-pressure blading, including a movable gland member fitting the rotor and having a valve means to control communication between the high- and the low-pressure blading.

1,544,286. GAS TRAP. MILON J. TRUMBLE, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Trumble Gas Trap Co., Los Angeles, Calif., a Copartnership consisting of Milon J. Trumble, Francis M. Townsend and Alfred J. Gutzler. Filed Oct. 24, 1923. Serial No. 670,445. 7 Claims. (Cl. 183—207.)



1. A gas trap comprising: walls forming a primary chamber; walls forming a secondary chamber independent of said primary chamber; means for introducing a mixture of oil and gas into said primary chamber; means for withdrawing gas from said primary chamber and introducing it into said secondary chamber; means for withdrawing oil from said primary chamber; means arranged to introduce a flow of oil from said primary chamber into said secondary chamber with said gas to break down foam carried with said gas; and means in said secondary chamber for separating from said gas any oil that may be carried therewith.

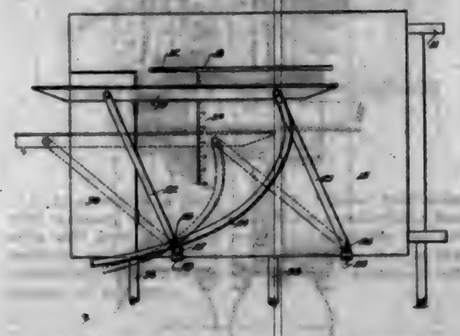
1,544,287. GRINDING MACHINE. CHARLES R. VAN NORMAN, Springfield, Mass., assignor to Van Norman Machine Tool Company, Springfield, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 6, 1921. Serial No. 505,393. 4 Claims. (Cl. 51—95.)



2. In a grinding machine, a base, a work head and a wheel head mounted thereon for movement one relatively to the other, rotary spindles mounted one in each of said heads, a motor mounted to move with one of said heads, driving connections from said motor to each of said spindles, the driving connection to one of said spindles including flexible means between the said motor and spindle.

1,544,288. TURBINE BLADING. BANKS W. VAN ORMER, Folsom, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 13, 1923. Serial No. 657,129. 7 Claims. (Cl. 253—77.)

1. In a turbine, the combination of a row of moving blades followed by a row of transversely flexible stationary blades.



1,544,289. TABLE-TOP STRUCTURE. ANDREW WAGNER, West Hoboken, N. J., assignor to Ferguson Bros. Mfg. Co., Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 17, 1924. Serial No. 686,785. 4 Claims. (Cl. 45—31.)

1. In a table top structure, a table top, a flexible covering therefor, a top frame having a recess for receiving and engaging both the edge and adjacent underside of the top, said top frame also having a kerf spaced from said recess for receiving the tucked-in edge of the top covering, and means for securing the top and covering in their respective recess and kerf.

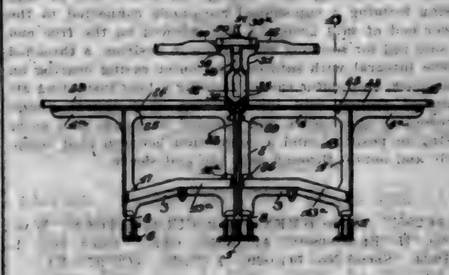
1,544,290. SAW TABLE. LOUIS J. WALSTAD, Oakland, Calif. Filed Aug. 20, 1924. Serial No. 733,124. 6 Claims. (Cl. 143—133.)

1. A device of the character described, including a saw, a support for material to be cut, said support being reciprocable in a plane parallel to the saw, whereby to bring material thereon into engagement with the saw, a longitudinal guide mounted on the support, connections between said guide and said support, whereby the guide may be removed from the table and swung into a position where it will act as an extension for the support, and a member carried by the support and adapted to be arranged thereon as a transverse guide when said longitudinal guide member is in extended position or to be shifted out of operative position.



1,544,291. BOTTLE HOLDER. LULU T. WRIGHT, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 28, 1924. Serial No. 709,412. 1 Claim. (Cl. 248—68.)

A bottle holding device for nursing bottles, comprising a rectangular base frame, cross bars fixed to the side bars of said base frame, standards of different lengths fixed in the middle of said cross bars, and one of the end bars of said base frame, upstanding curved forks terminating said standards, a helical spring attached to the ends of one of said forks, an upturned hook attached to one of said standards, said helical spring, forks, and upturned hook, cooperating to hold a bottle in an inclined position with respect to said base, and an eye attached to said base frame, by which the whole may be suspended when not in use.

1,544,292. WORKBENCH. WALTER A. ADAMS, Rochester, N. Y. Filed May 17, 1922. Serial No. 561,758. 18 Claims. (Cl. 45—31.)

1. A work bench comprising two side frames, a lower horizontal and longitudinally extending support having a wide surface on which articles or other material may be supported connecting said side frames, and two elongated horizontal and transversely arranged article supports on the side frames above the lower horizontal and longitudinally extending supports, said upper two horizontal and transversely extending supports being spaced apart and projecting forwardly beyond the front edge of the lower support.

1,544,293. QUARTZ WORKING. EDWARD R. BERRY, Malden, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 18, 1923. Serial No. 633,018. 4 Claims. (Cl. 49—78.1.)

4. The method of preventing the formation of strias in articles made from clear quartz which has been fused in the presence of carbon which consists in removing from said quartz a surface layer of about five thousandths of an inch in thickness before said quartz is fashioned into the desired articles.

1,544,294. ELECTRIC LIQUID HEATER. JOSEPH DIERMANS, Brussels, Belgium, assignor to Société Anonyme Imexinol, Brussels, Belgium. Filed Jan. 16, 1924. Serial No. 686,549. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—38.)

1. In an electric liquid heater, the combination of a cylindrical insulating body having a helical groove along its lateral surface, an insulating block on the top of said body, a pair of terminals on said block, a resistance in said groove extending along the whole length thereof, a threaded metal rod extending through said body and screwed into said block, one of said terminals being directly connected to the upper end of said resistance, the other terminal being connected to the lower end of said resistance through the intermediary of said rod, a sleeve closely surrounding the edges of said groove, an inner casing surrounding said sleeve, the lower end of said casing forming a cup-shaped receptacle connected to the lower end of said groove, a cap screwed on the free end of said rod for securing said casing in position, a threaded sleeve integral with said cap, an outer casing bearing on said block, said outer casing forming a heat-insulating air chamber around said inner casing, a discharge nozzle screwed on said sleeve and adapted to secure said outer casing in position, and a connection between said receptacle and nozzle through said cap and sleeve.

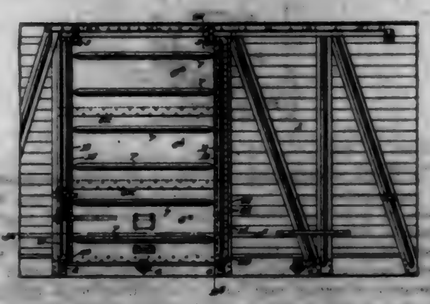
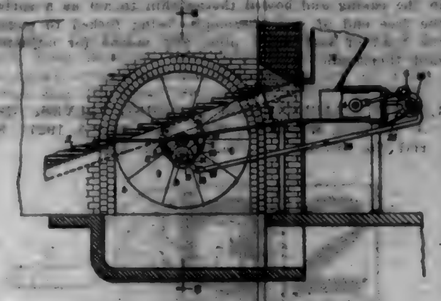
The combination of a harrow bar presenting rearwardly diverging side members and a curved bend connecting the front ends of said members, teeth carried by the side members of the harrow bar, a bracket having forwardly projecting lugs on its front side near its lower end to engage above and below the bend of the harrow bar and having its surface between said lugs conforming to the surface of the harrow bar at the bend, a washer fitted to the front side of the bend, a securing bolt inserted through the washer, the harrow bar and said bracket to clamp the parts together, and means engageable through the upper end of the bracket to secure the same to the cultivator stock.

1,544,296. CASING FOR ELECTRICAL APPARATUS. DONALD V. EDWARDS, Troy, N. Y., assignor to Pittsburgh Transformer Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 29, 1922. Serial No. 609,568. 19 Claims. (Cl. 220—65.)



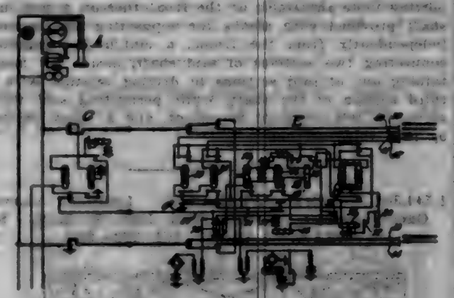
1. The combination with a main tank containing oil, of an expansion tank communicating therewith, and a plurality of separate filters interposed between the main tank and the expansion tank, and valve means directing the oil through either of said filters.

1,544,297. WHEEL STRUCTURE. HENRY E. HIPPELOW, Davenport, Iowa, assignor to G. Watson French, Joseph L. Hecht, and W. H. Stackhouse, all of Davenport, Iowa, composing the Firm of French & Hecht. Filed Oct. 25, 1923. Serial No. 670,681. 6 Claims. (Cl. 301—36.)



1. In a wheel structure, the combination with a hub member, of a drive plate having lateral engagement with the hub member, axially extending driving members engaging the hub member and drive plate, said drive plate being adapted to be engaged by a driving device, and a drive wheel mounted on the drive plate.

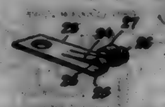
1,544,298. RAILWAY-CAR DOOR. PERCY M. ELLIOTT, Chicago, Ill.; Nellie S. Elliott, executrix of the Estate of said Percy M. Elliott, deceased, assignor to Camel Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 6, 1923. Serial No. 610,962. 10 Claims. (Cl. 189—46.)



1. A sheet metal car door having a series of widely spaced sheet corrugations with intervening flat sheet areas, said corrugations terminating short of opposite edges of the door a distance sufficient to leave broad flat marginal areas, and corrugation bars secured to a face of the door over said marginal areas extending transversely past the ends of the sheet corrugations; a corrugation bar comprising a single longitudinal corrugation with attaching flanges on either side thereof, and an inner attaching flange lying close to the adjacent ends of the sheet corrugations.

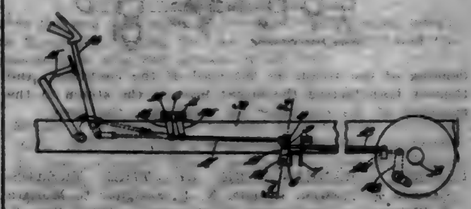
1,544,299. FURNACE. JOHN J. ENGLISH, New York, N. Y. Filed May 18, 1922. Serial No. 560,980. 12 Claims. (Cl. 110—26.)

1. In a furnace, a grate, vertically disposed fixed walls, wall members having their fire faces substantially flush with said fixed walls, and means for actuating the wall members to bring different parts of the fire face of each successively into and out of operative relations with respect to the grate.



1,544,300. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SYSTEM. CHARLES J. ERICKSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Automatic Electric Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 7, 1920. Serial No. 408,541. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)

1. In a telephone system, an automatic switch, trunk lines accessible thereto, a rotary magnet, a test relay for said switch, means for making certain trunk lines busy, means for operating said switch to test a pair of trunk lines simultaneously, a circuit for energizing said relay including grounded test contacts of busy trunk lines when said switch attempts to make connection therewith to operate said rotary magnet to cause said switch to test another pair of trunk lines simultaneously, means for releasing said switch, and means for opening said first mentioned circuit during restoration to normal to prevent any further operation of said rotary magnet in case any busy trunk line is encountered.



1,544,301. SPRING TERMINAL CLIP. ARCHIE P. FAHNESTOCK, Long Island City, N. Y., assignor to Fahnestock Electric Company, Long Island City, N. Y., a Corporation of West Virginia. Original application filed June 6, 1920, Serial No. 388,715. Divided and this application filed Mar. 27, 1922. Serial No. 548,496. 2 Claims. (Cl. 173—359.)

A fastening device for electrical conductors comprising a substantially flat and bifurcated member, and a resilient tongue, said bifurcated portion having a pair of hook elements, and the resilient tongue having a hook element located between and in off-set relation to said pair of hook elements, said resilient tongue adapted to be engaged by the conductor for applying said conductor to the device, and said hooked elements constructed to secure the conductor.

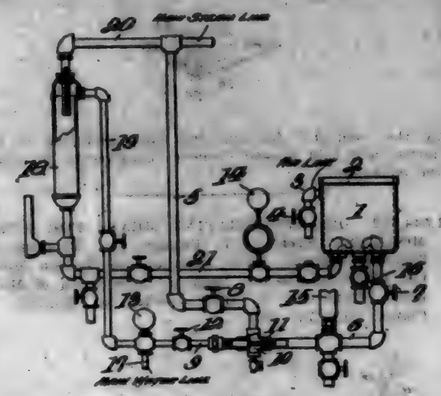
1,544,302. BRAKE-OPERATING MEANS FOR AUTOMOBILES. STEPHEN J. FISHER and MILLARD H. TONCRAY, Detroit, Mich., assignors to Hudson Motor Car Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Aug. 2, 1923. Serial No. 655,268. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—89.)

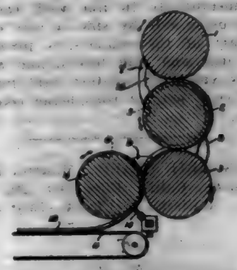
The brake operating means for motor vehicles comprising two pair of brake rods, the two rods of each pair being substantially in line with each other, and the two pairs being side by side, a pair of levers, lugs on a fixed part of the vehicles, a pivot pin passing through said lugs and said levers, and a spring holding the levers yieldingly against said lugs, the proximate ends of each pair of rods being connected to one of said levers.

1,544,303. LINGERIE CLASP. MARTHA DEE FELLOWS, South Pasadena, Calif. Filed Oct. 20, 1924. Serial No. 744,719. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—73.)



1. A clasp of the character disclosed struck from flat metal stock and formed U shaped to provide two approximately parallel arms, the lower of said arms terminating in an upwardly projecting loop, the upper arm being slit longitudinally to provide two lips at the distal end thereof; one of said lips being bent to engage the outer curvature of said loop, the other lip bent to engage the rearward or inner curvature of said loop, said lips being adapted to coact with said loop in clasping action.

1,544,304. PROCESS OF STERILIZING HERMETICALLY-SEALED PACKAGES. JAMES A. FREE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Phoenix-Hermetic Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 27, 1923. Serial No. 665,105. 1 Claim. (Cl. 99—11.)



The process of sterilizing hermetically sealed packages comprising placing a sealed package in a closed retort, surrounding the sealed package in said retort with superheated steam, and intermixing water with the super-heated steam as it enters the retort so that the container will be surrounded with super-heated steam thoroughly intermixed with water which will aid in the condensing of the steam on the wall of the container, and thereby transferring the latent heat of the steam to the contents of the container for sterilizing the same.

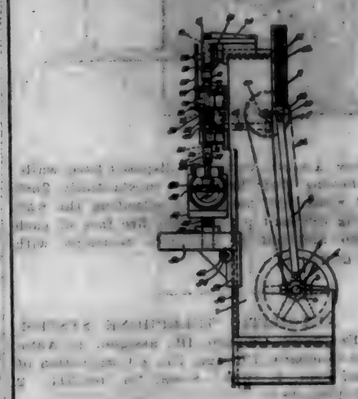
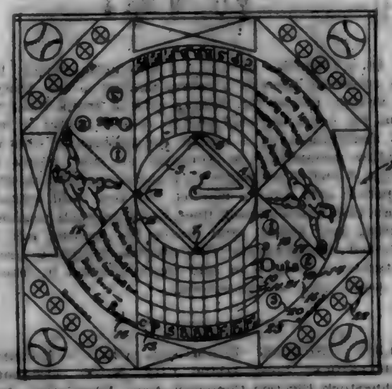
1,544,305. MANUFACTURE OF TIRE TREADS. Gideon F. Fisher, Rocelle, N. J., assignor to Morgan & Wright, a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Feb. 3, 1922. Serial No. 533,764. 4 Claims. (Cl. 18—40.)



1. That method of continuously forming vulcanizable rubber composition into tread stock which consists in, first forming the composition into a strip having a greater total area in cross-section and also a greater thickness at the center than the product sought, and subsequently compressing the strip, and shaping it to the desired form.

1,544,306. PRIMER. Eric T. Franzen, Maplewood, N. J. Filed Mar. 5, 1923. Serial No. 622,767. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—180.)



The combination with an internal combustion engine including an intake manifold, an exhaust manifold and a fuel supply tank, of a hollow casing juxtaposed on the wall of said exhaust manifold, said casing having extensions provided with passages, one of the passages communicating with said tank and the other passage with the intake manifold, a valve plug controlling the passages, said plug having a recessed head extending into said casing, a thermopile fixed at one end rigidly in the casing and bowed therewithin to act as a spring, the free end of said thermopile being forked to engage the head of said valve plug, and means for adjusting said thermopile.

1,544,307. MACHINE FOR GRINDING VALVES. Geo. A. Fullips, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed May 5, 1921. Serial No. 467,066. 3 Claims. (Cl. 51—29.)

1. The combination with a frame, of a work supporting table adjustable at the front thereof, a sectional shaft provided with means for supporting each section independently from the frame, a clutch disengageably connecting two sections of said shaft, means for maintaining one of said sections in driving relation with a third section of the shaft, while permitting said third section a relative axial movement, and a chuck carried by said third section.

1,544,308. GAME APPARATUS. Leopoldo Castro Gelpi, Vieques, P. R. Filed Nov. 9, 1922. Serial No. 599,890. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—93.)

Game apparatus comprising a game board having a base ball diamond depicted thereon at its center, series of score-recording stations depicted at opposite sides of the diamond, stations representing "outs" at one side of each series of scoring stations, and "runners" stations located radially beyond the "outs" stations, game pieces to be initially placed adjacent the score-receiving spaces and subsequently moved about the diamond to "outs" or "runners" stations, a die for determining by chance the movements of the game pieces, and a second die for interpreting a certain indication of the first die.

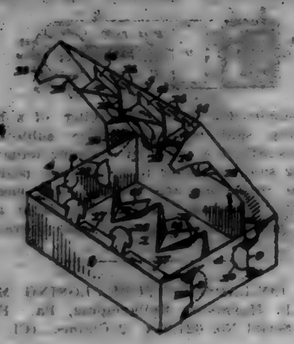
1,544,309. DISPLAY DEVICE. Francis Winans Gibson, West Roxbury, Mass., assignor to H. D. Beach Company, Coshocton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 713,607. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—140.)

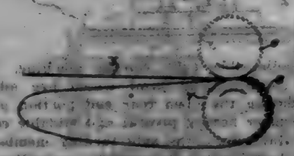
1. A price sign comprising a bracket having a mounting clamp and having a longitudinally disposed slot beyond said clamp, and reversely disranged sets of juxtaposed legend bearing plates having each a suspension flange bent downwardly from its upper edge and inserted in said slots of the bracket and constituting both faces of the bracket included by said plates, the plates of one set being spaced apart from the plates of the other set by the thickness of the intervening walls of the slot and all plates in each set being disposed in longitudinal alignment with each other longitudinally of the bracket so as to present the effect of a continuous one-piece plate when viewed from either side of the bracket.

1,544,310. COMBUSTION REGULATION. George H. Gibson, Montclair, N. J. Filed Sept. 9, 1921. Serial No. 499,403. 15 Claims. (Cl. 236—14.)



1. The method of operating a boiler furnace which consists in varying the rate of combustion therein in automatic response both to the rate at which feed water is supplied to the boiler and to the rate at which steam is withdrawn from the furnace.

1,544,311. COLLAPSIBLE BOX. Friedrich Graffenmann, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed June 15, 1923. Serial No. 645,554. 10 Claims. (Cl. 229—23.)



1. A collapsible box comprising integrally formed bottom, side, end and cover members, the end members each formed with two transverse slits, the side members formed with hooked tabs adapted to fold over the end members and to interlock with the slits therein, and the cover member formed with end flaps adapted to fold over the end members and provided with tongues adapted to pass in closing between the end members and the tabs and to stay the corners of the box.

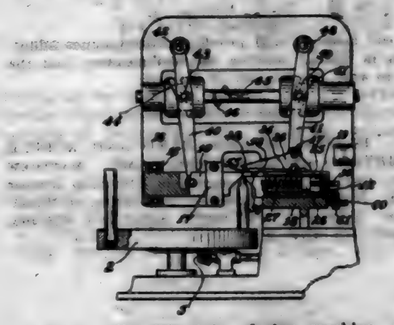
1,544,312. ELASTIC BORDER BAND AND RUFFLE AND METHOD OF PRODUCING SAME. Matthew L. Gray, Canton, Mass., assignor to Plymouth Rubber Company, Inc., Canton, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Feb. 21, 1923. Serial No. 620,494. 4 Claims. (Cl. 154—2.)

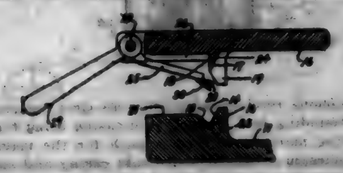
1. The method of forming a sheet rubber article with an elastic band consisting of applying a strip partially cured rubber under tension to the rubber body of the article while the said body is in an uncured state and not under tension, applying pressure to the uncured body of the article and the superimposed strip while the strip is under tension to cause the strip and body to adhere together, then relieving the pressure and tension then fully curing the combined body portion and strip.

1,544,313. TELEPHONE RECEIVER. Jackson B. Gunaan, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Sept. 18, 1922. Serial No. 588,944. 2 Claims. (Cl. 179—115.)



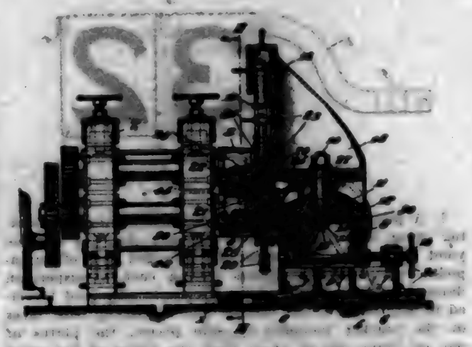
1. A telephone receiver comprising an electromagnet, a casing surrounding said magnet, said casing being formed of conducting material to form a path for the magnetic flux, a diaphragm arranged above said casing and spaced from the upper edge thereof, said diaphragm having a fixed center and movable edges and a cover arranged on said casing over said diaphragm.

1,544,314. CONTROLLER-ACTUATING DEVICE. MARSHALL W. HANKS, Madison, Wis. Filed Oct. 10, 1922. Serial No. 595,539. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—140.)



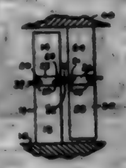
1. The combination with a controller, of a thermostat for actuating said controller when subjected to a critical temperature, a cam and a spring-actuated means for resetting said controller to its original position when normal heat conditions are restored, and means co-operating with said cam and spring-actuated means for ensuring a pre-selected number of said operations.

1,544,315. COLLAPSIBLE-TUBE-CLOSING MACHINE. THOMAS L. HARRISON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Mar. 1, 1923. Serial No. 621,984. 2 Claims. (Cl. 113—54.)



1. In a collapsible tube closing machine, the combination of reciprocating jaws which are adapted to clamp and flatten the open rear end portion of a tube, a turning member having pivotal and slidable connection with one of said jaws, the said turning member having adjacent its inner end a downwardly extending angular projection which is adapted, when said member is moved inwardly relatively to the jaw to which it is connected, to contact with the flattened portion of a tube to bend the same laterally and downwardly, the outer end of the said turning member being inclined in a direction away from the clamping face of the jaw opposed to that to which the said turning member is connected and the said turning member having a projection extending downwardly from its underneath side, the outer edge of which is inclined downwardly and inwardly, and the said clamping member to which the said turning member is connected having a correspondingly-shaped recess into which the said projection seats upon inward movement of the said turning member.

1,544,316. APPARATUS FOR FORMING TIRE BEADS. REGINALD HARRETINE, Chicopee Falls, Mass., assignor to The Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed May 9, 1924. Serial No. 712,080. 4 Claims. (Cl. 18—42.)



1. In an apparatus of the character described a pair of mold members shaped so as to provide a molding cavity when closed together, the two mold members having interfitting portions formed on the surfaces of cones intersecting on a circumference progressively increasing as the mold sections are brought together until, when the mold sections are closed, said circumference merging with the molding cavity.

1,544,317. APPARATUS FOR AND METHOD OF DISK ROLLING. HENRY Y. HILLEBRAND, Johnstown, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Bethlehem Steel Products Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 30, 1919. Serial No. 327,509. 6 Claims. (Cl. 80—16.)

6. In a disk rolling apparatus, the combination of a pair of rolls, a movable frame, means for adjusting the same transversely of the roll axes, a pair of hollow fluid cooled, rotatable clamping members mounted on said frame and adapted to grip the central portion of a blank and means for advancing and retracting the frame whereby the blank is presented to the bite of the rolls in a predetermined location and direction.

1,544,318. TURBINE-BLADE LASHING. FRANCIS HODGKINSON, Swarthmore, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 12, 1923. Serial No. 662,828. 5 Claims. (Cl. 253—77.)

1,544,319. DOOR LOCK. CARL HOFFMAN, Allentown, Pa. Filed Oct. 9, 1922. Serial No. 593,283. 14 Claims. (Cl. 70—39.)

1. A latch and lock mechanism for doors including a case, a movable latch, actuating means for said latch, a single movable key actuated member for locking said latch against retraction, being directly engageable with said latch, and said key actuated member being co-operable with said latch for actuating the same.

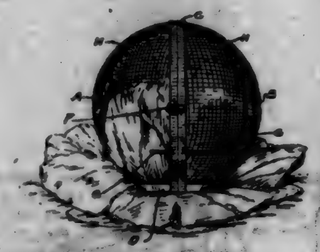
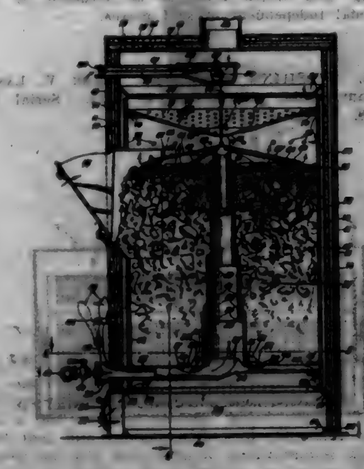
1,544,320. TENSION DEVICE. ABEL C. HOUGH, Janesville, Wis., assignor to Hough Shade Corporation, Janesville, Wis., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Nov. 28, 1924. Serial No. 752,564. 20 Claims. (Cl. 139—100.)



1. The combination, with a fixed support of a loom, said support being undercut and provided with a bar, and tightening means for said bar, of a tension device consisting in part of a base which is mounted on said support and adapted to be held stationary thereon by said bar and tightening means, and to be released for adjustment on said support, said device being provided with retarding means for warp, and with friction tension means for said warp after it leaves said retarding means.

1,544,321. NEGATIVE-RESISTANCE DEVICE. ALBERT W. HULL, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed July 8, 1919. Serial No. 306,852. 20 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

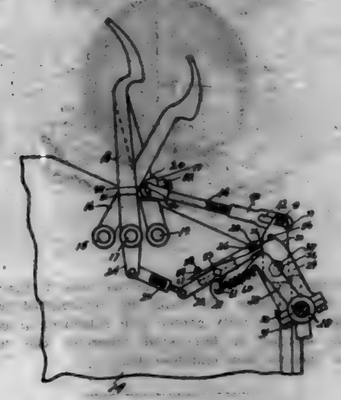


1. An electron discharge device comprising an evacuated receptacle containing an electron emitting electrode and two cooperating electrodes to one of which one end of the electron emitting electrode is directly connected electrically within the receptacle.

1,544,322. METHOD OF HEADING LETTUCE. BENNIE KELLERMANN, Denver, Colo. Filed Sept. 29, 1924. Serial No. 740,606. 2 Claims. (Cl. 47—31.)

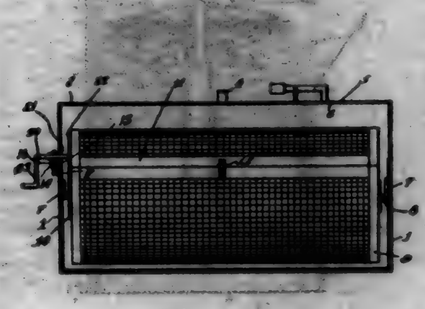
1. The method of treating growing head lettuce which consists in enclosing the same by reticulated material before the head is fully grown and retaining it enclosed until the lettuce is harvested whereby the head is caused to become firm and bleached.

1,544,323. INCINERATOR. EDWARD KENNE, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Aug. 27, 1921. Serial No. 496,043. 31 Claims. (Cl. 110—18.)



1. An incinerator comprising an incinerating chamber adapted to receive refuse, a vertically movable burner plate arranged in said chamber and adapted to rest upon the upper surface of said refuse, and means for providing a flow of gas to the underside of said burner plate.

1,544,324. SAFETY CLUTCH CONTROLLER FOR AUTOMOBILES. OTTO KUGLER, Sr., Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 7, 1922. Serial No. 573,007. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—38.)



1. In a device of the character stated, the combination with a brake pedal and a transmission including a clutch lever fixed thereon, a clutch pedal, means for connecting said clutch pedal with the clutch lever, a controller shaft and its speed lever, of means mounted upon the controller shaft and connected with the brake pedal and coacting with the clutch lever to actuate said clutch lever upon operation of the brake pedal while permitting said clutch lever to be actuated by the clutch pedal independent of said means.

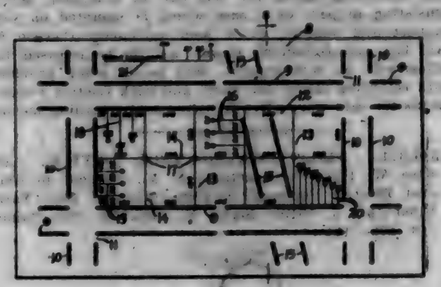
1,544,325. WASHING MACHINE. FRANK V. LANTZ, McArthur, Ohio. Filed Dec. 1, 1921. Serial No. 519,208. 1 Claim. (Cl. 68—18.)



In a washing machine, the combination with a container for holding a cleansing fluid and a cover movably mounted on the container, of a foraminous cylinder mounted for rotation within the container, a stationary strip fixedly connected to one end of the container, a stop extending upwardly from the bottom thereof, a movable strip pivotally connected to the stationary strip and normally lapped by and bearing against the stop, a shaft journaled in the movable strip, an angular extension depending from one end of said movable strip, a dog pivotally mounted on the container and adapted to gravitate to position over the extension to hold the movable strip in position upon the stop, a gear on the cylinder, and a gear on the shaft normally meshing with the cylinder gear and adapted to be held in mesh by the dog when in engagement with the extension.

1,544,326. ENGINE-HOOD SHUTTER. GEORGE F. LALANSKY, Canton, Ohio, by operation of law to E. A. McCuskey, trustee in bankruptcy, of The Holmes Automobile Company, Canton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Feb. 24, 1920. Serial No. 360,610. 5 Claims. (Cl. 189—62.)

1. A shutter including a support, vanes having V-shaped pivotal bearings in the support, and a separate spring associated with each vane acting to hold it in its pivotal bearing.

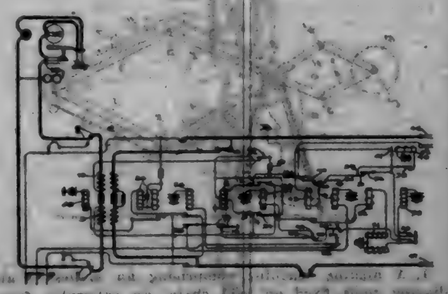
1. A device of the class described, comprising a transparent elongated rectangular layout formed to provide a plurality of longitudinally, transversely and diagonally disposed slots arranged in aligning and non-intersecting pairs respectively, said layout having a series of lines etched on its upper surface and intersecting to divide a portion of the surface into equal spaces, said layout being also formed to provide a series of circular openings associated with said slots and lines, whereby a diagram may be plotted on a sheet of paper positioned beneath the layout by the insertion of a marking implement through said slots and openings.

1,544,328. PROCESS OF MAKING ALUMINUM CHLORIDE. ALMER McDUFFIE MCADAMS, Port Arthur, Tex., assignor to Gulf Refining Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Texas. Filed Jan. 25, 1922. Serial No. 531,012. 7 Claims. (Cl. 23—95.)

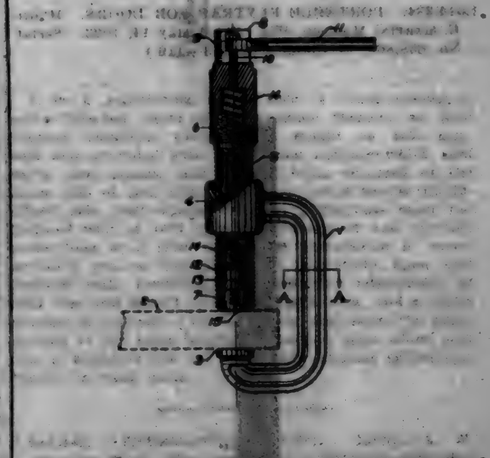


5. The herein described process of making aluminum chloride which comprises treating aluminum containing materials with chlorin in the presence of an activated carbon.

1,544,329. METHOD OF MAKING HINGES. JAMES P. MCKINNEY, Jr., Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Nov. 1, 1922. Serial No. 596,361. 1 Claim. (Cl. 29—11.)

The method of forming butt-hinges, which consists in providing a leaf member having three vertically spaced knuckles, drilling bores in the upper knuckle and middle knuckle of said leaf at one drilling operation, making the opening in said middle knuckle sufficiently large to receive a bushing having a bore corresponding to the bore subsequently drilled in the lower knuckle, drilling said bore in said lower knuckle, inserting the bushing in said middle knuckle, providing a second leaf having two knuckles with bores, and connecting the knuckles of the hinge by a pintle having an enlarged upper portion, and a reduced shank, by fitting the enlarged upper portion in the bore of the upper knuckle and the reduced shank portion in said bushing and the bores of the remaining knuckles of the hinge.

1,544,330. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SYSTEM. FRED T. MADSEN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Automatic Electric Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 30, 1919. Serial No. 307,560. 29 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)



23. In a telephone system, a line, an automatic switch, a double wound line relay in said switch, a battery, a bridge across the line including both windings of said relay and the said battery, and a relay for altering the bridge circuit so as to change the location of said battery with respect to the relay windings.

1,544,331. WEDGE. NILS L. MELANDER, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 2, 1924. Serial No. 710,694. 4 Claims. (Cl. 254—104.)

1. Wedges, each comprising a plane wedging surface which is inclined both lengthwise and transversely relative to the plane of the back of the wedge, designed to be used in pair disposed at an angle to each other with their wedging surfaces in contact.

1,544,332. MEANS FOR DETERMINING THE RELATIVE HARDNESS OF ABRASIVE OR SIMILAR SUBSTANCES. FRANK A. MANCE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Studebaker Corporation, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 18, 1922. Serial No. 530,110. 13 Claims. (Cl. 265—12.)

1. A device for testing the degree of resistance offered by a substance to the operation of a cutting tool, which consists in the combination of a seat for the substance and a tool having a cutting surface; means for driving said tool into contact with said substance when supported on said seat with a predetermined degree and quality of driving force; means for gaging the extent of the penetration of the tool into the substance; means to maintain on said tool, after said initial operation, a constant and uniform pressure; means to cause said tool under such pressure to operate on said substance with a cutting action; and means for gaging the extent of the penetration of the tool under predetermined conditions and time of operation.

1,544,333. ELECTRIC TIME SWITCH. WILLIAM B. MARKS, Waterbury, Conn. Filed Mar. 1, 1924. Serial No. 696,136. 10 Claims. (Cl. 200—38.)

1. In an electric time-switch, a clockwork mechanism, a stationary contact disc forming one terminal of said switch, a coiled strip of metal having overlapping layers, said strip being insulated from said stationary contact disc and forming the other terminal of said switch, a rotary metallic member connecting said disc and said strip and capable of rotating in contact with said strip for more than 360 degrees, said connecting member being driven by said clockwork, and the circuit being broken when said connecting member passes beyond the end of said strip.

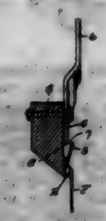
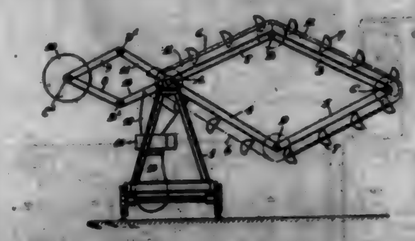
1,544,334. PORTABLE FLYTRAP FOR DOORS. HUGH E. MARTIN, Madison, Wis. Filed May 14, 1923. Serial No. 638,864. 1 Claim. (Cl. 43—119.)



In a fly trap, a base plate slightly raised through its longitudinal center with a plurality of upwardly extending tapered ears along the edges thereof, arched apertures through the ears extending a distance into the base plate, wire entrance galleries secured over said apertures and extending inward and upward, perforated metal partition walls extending across the base plate a distance from both ends, a wire screen roof connecting the two partitions, tapering wire entrance galleries secured to and leading outward from the partitions, screen wire entrance domes covering holes in the back of the base plate, a perforated metal top end wall across the base adjacent the upper end, a top band secured to the base adjacent the lower end, a screen wire casing metal bound on the edges extending from the top end wall to the band, over the top, down the sides, and under the bottom of the base or frame and soldered thereto, a closure plate secured to the bottom of the band by a latch, and means at both ends of the device for securing it to a door.

1,544,335. SAFETY CATCH. EUGENE MORNHOUSE, Providence, R. I., assignor to B. A. Ballou & Co., Inc., Providence, R. I., a Corporation of Rhode Island. Filed Mar. 27, 1925. Serial No. 18,364. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—157.)

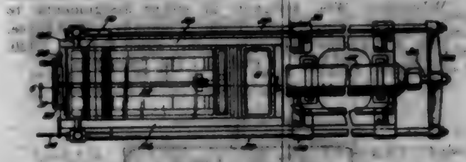


1. A safety catch having a body portion formed of a pair of ears folded up from a common base and having a radially-disposed peripheral pin-tongue receiving slot, the inner face of each ear being provided with an annular groove, a ring-shaped guard rotor having a marginal pin-tongue receiving opening and slidably mounted on said groove, and an operating handle on said guard extending laterally over and about one side of one ear member to prevent the guard from becoming disengaged from its groove even though the ear members should become separated.

1,544,336. FABRIC CLAMP. ELMARAN MYERS, Leonia, N. J., assignor to The Columbia Mills, Incorporated, a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 15, 1924. Serial No. 706,659. 9 Claims. (Cl. 24—248.)

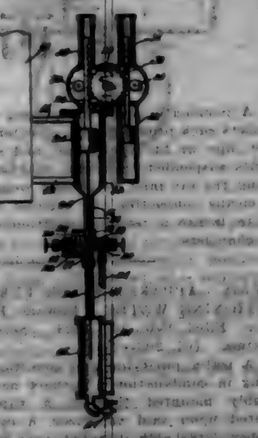
6. In a device of the character described, the combination of a base, a channeled member mounted thereon, an elongated and reversible clamping strip for clamping fabric in the channeled member, and a grooved concentric for straddling an edge of the clamping strip and forcing it to clamping position.

1,544,337. DIGGING MACHINE. SVEN GUNNAR NORDENGREN, Landskrona, Sweden. Filed Jan. 19, 1924. Serial No. 687,393. 5 Claims. (Cl. 37—191.)



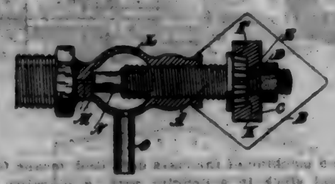
1. A digging machine comprising an endless chain, digging tools fixed on said chain, an extensible frame supporting said chain, said frame being of polygonal form and comprising rigid frame members pivotally connected with each other, a stand pivotally supporting the frame, and means carried by the frame for automatically maintaining it in stable equilibrium on the stand in all positions of adjustment.

1,544,338. HIGH-PRESSURE-STEAM SYSTEM. ALFRED M. NYGREN, Freeport, N. Y. Filed Mar. 17, 1925. Serial No. 16,211. 11 Claims. (Cl. 126—38.)



1. The combination of a heating fixture having a trap with a relatively large orifice, means for supplying high pressure steam to said fixture, and means for counterbalancing said steam at said trap with air at a slightly lower pressure, substantially as described.

1,544,339. BACON SKINNER. THEODORE E. ODERMAN, Oklahoma City, Okla. Filed Nov. 12, 1923. Serial No. 674,209. 20 Claims. (Cl. 146—100.)



5. In a bacon skinning machine, a support, means for gripping one end of the skin of a slab of bacon bearing against the support, a cutter movable parallel to the bacon-supporting surface of the support, means movable conjointly with the cutter for compressing the slab of bacon in advance of the cutter, and means for adjusting the distance from the slab-supporting surface to the cutter and therewith the compressing means.

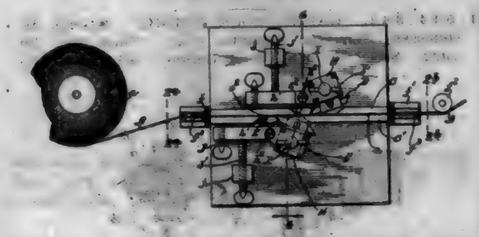
1,544,340. COMBINED WATER COLUMN AND LIQUID-LEVEL GAUGE. OLAF E. OLSSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 16, 1920. Serial No. 403,775. 2 Claims. (Cl. 73—82.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a float chamber for connection with a boiler, a float in said chamber to respond to water level therein corresponding with the water level of the boiler, said chamber having a lateral compartment extending therefrom in open communication with said chamber and extending vertically above and below said float in parallel relation with said float chamber, said chamber and compartment comprising a single receptacle having continuous and imperforate walls completely enclosing the same and having exterior communication only through said boiler connections, a counterweight in said vertical extension, toothed rods or racks projecting upwardly from said float and counterweight, a gear contained in said compartment engaging said toothed rods or racks, a tube extending downwardly from said chamber and having a transparent wall at its lower portion, and an indicating rod extending downwardly from said float through said tube to indicate the level of said float through said transparent wall.

1,544,341. GAUGE-COCK WEIGHT. GEORGE W. OSBORNE, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed July 29, 1922. Serial No. 578,508. 3 Claims. (Cl. 251—146.)

1. In a self-closing gauge cock, a valve casing, a screw-threaded valve stem rotatable therein, an arm thereon, rotatable therewith, a weight on said arm, said arm provided with an opening through which said valve stem passes, said opening being enlarged at the inner side of said arm to form a recess having an inclined side wall, spaced bevelled projections upon the inclined wall of said opening, and spaced and bevelled projections upon said valve stem, engageable in corresponding grooves formed by the projections upon said inclined wall, permitting quick angular adjustment of said arm and weight upon said valve stem, and a slight amount of movement thereof along said stem, the outer portion of the stem forming a bearing upon which said arm is withdrawable and rests while angular adjustment thereof is being made.

1,544,342. THERMOSTATIC COIL. LOUIS A. M. PERLAN, Beloit, Wis., assignor to Absolute Con-Tac-Tor Corporation, Beloit, Wis., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 22, 1924. Serial No. 739,005. 6 Claims. (Cl. 297—12.)



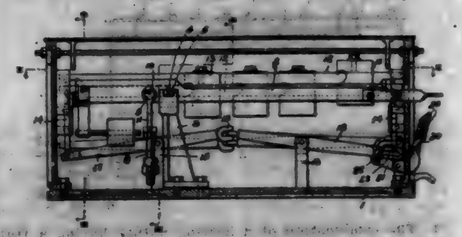
1. A bi-metallic element having at least one of its metals divided into a plurality of strips

1,544,343. ABRASIVE COMPOSITION. HENRY R. POWER, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignor to The Carborundum Company, Niagara Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 5, 1921. Serial No. 458,204. 5 Claims. (Cl. 51—280.)

1. An abrasive composition comprising abrasive particles and an algæ jelly-product, said composition being substantially free from either alum or oil substantially as described.

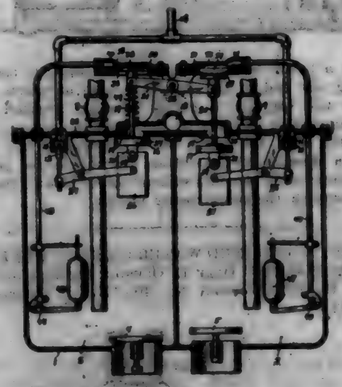
1,544,344. ART OF MAKING CORRUGATED FASTENERS. VINCENT RAGONA, New York, N. Y., assignor to Cary Manufacturing Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 29, 1921. Serial No. 504,049. 7 Claims. (Cl. 10—31.)

2. In a machine of the class described, means for directing metal stock in a definite path, a plurality of knife carriers positioned at the respective sides of the path of stock feed, a plurality of knife-blocks mounted in said knife carriers for slidable movement with respect thereto, one knife block to each knife carrier, a plurality of stationary knives, one for each knife block, said stationary knives being positioned at the respective sides of the path of stock feed and inclined thereto, and means for raising and lowering the knife blocks and the stationary knives in paths parallel to the plane of the stock guide.



1,544,345. BIB MOUNTING. HENRY D. RAHLING, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Nov. 22, 1924. Serial No. 751,489. 5 Claims. (Cl. 221—24.)

5. The combination with a cap for the filling opening of a drum from which a liquid may be dispensed, said cap having a countersunk recess provided in its annular wall with a circumferential groove, of a split annular resilient key of frusto-conical form having its outer circumferential edge engaged in said groove and its inner circumferential edge conformably and resiliently engageable with the threads on the attachment shank of the bib.



1,544,346. BEAM BOX FOR SCALES. MELVIN S. REYNOLDS, Woodlawn, Pa., Filed Mar. 20, 1924. Serial No. 700,544. 3 Claims. (Cl. 265—49.)

1. In a scale box a pivoted frame adapted to receive an auxiliary scale beam applied to it, a movable scale-beam support adapted in one position to support a scale beam and in moving to alternate position to deposit upon said frame a previously supported scale beam, a scale beam adapted to be borne alternately by said frame and by said scale-beam support, a manually-controlled pivoted lever, and a communication lever interposed between said beam support and said manually-controlled lever, said transmission lever and said manually-controlled lever being mounted to swing in a common medial plane and being connected one to the other by slot-and-pin connection, the bearing surfaces of said slot-and-pin connection extending transversely across and being centered in such common medial plane.

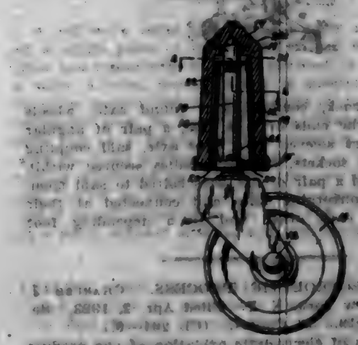
1,544,347. PNEUMATIC PUMP. HOMER S. ROGERS, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Milwaukee Air Power Pump Company, Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Feb. 11, 1920. Serial No. 357,769. 2 Claims. (Cl. 103—246.)

1. A pneumatic pump comprising a plurality of pump chambers each provided with a water inlet valve, a water outlet pipe, an air inlet valve, and an air exhaust valve, weights suspended from said exhaust valves, a link connecting the air inlet valve and weight of each chamber, and means connecting the exhaust valves of said chambers to insure a reverse condition of the air valves in said chambers.



1,544,348. APPARATUS FOR PURIFYING AND CONDITIONING WATER. EDWARD P. ROHRS, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Feb. 14, 1924. Serial No. 692,780. 4 Claims. (Cl. 203—8.)

1. A water purifying and conditioning apparatus comprising in combination a furnace having a vaporizer detachably mounted thereon, a vapor ring detachably mounted upon said vaporizer, a cylindrical condensing chamber detachably mounted upon said vapor ring, said condensing chamber having its lower end partially closed by double walls, spaced apart, and turned upwardly so as to form a hollow vapor flue extending upwardly through the longitudinal center of the said condensing chamber so that the double walls of the said vapor flue are positioned concentrically with the enclosing walls of the said condensing chamber, a conduit connecting the space enclosed between said double walls with the external atmosphere, an outwardly opening check valve normally closing said conduit and at atmospheric pressure and adapted to automatically open when the pressure within the space between the said double walls becomes greater than atmospheric pressure by reason of the increased temperature of the air in said space, thereby causing the air in said space to be automatically exhausted.

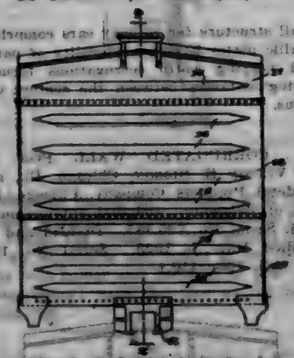
1,544,349. SWIVEL CASTER AND BRACKET. EDWARD SCHULTS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to James B. Ladd, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed Oct. 15, 1923. Serial No. 668,610. 3 Claims. (Cl. 16—39.)

1. The combination with a caster having a stem and a resilient retaining device pivotally mounted on said stem and having a substantially horizontal portion lying wholly below the upper end thereof, of a bracket including a substantially cylindrical socket, said socket opening downwardly to receive said stem and centering device, said bracket being formed with a bore of smaller diameter communicating with the upper end of said socket, fitted to and having a bearing on the upper end of said stem.



1,544,350. MIXTURE CONTROL FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. GLEN R. SIMON, Pendleton, Ind. Filed Oct. 29, 1923. Serial No. 671,512. 16 Claims. (Cl. 290—38.)

1. A mixture-enriching device for carburetors, comprising electro-magnetic means for varying the fuel-discharge in the carburetor, a starter motor and its control switch, connections to said electro-magnetic means to energize and de-energize it jointly with said starter motor upon the closing and opening of the starter-motor switch, and a thermostat also controlling said rate of fuel-discharge in the carburetor.

1. A wall structure for railway cars comprising one or more metallic plates having a plurality of equal depth parallel corrugations formed therein with varying distances between the centers of adjacent corrugations.

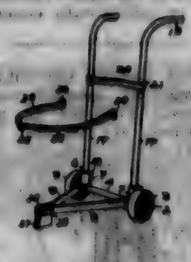
1. A wall structure for railway cars comprising one or more metallic plates having a plurality of equal depth parallel corrugations formed therein the distances between the centers of adjacent corrugations increasing from the middle to the side portions of the wall.

1,544,353. CORRUGATED WALL FOR RAILWAY CARS. VINTON E. SIMSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Union Metal Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Nov. 26, 1923, Serial No. 677,018. Divided and this application filed Feb. 13, 1925. Serial No. 8,908. 17 Claims. (Cl. 105—410.)

1. A wall structure for railway cars comprising one or more metallic plates having a plurality of parallel equal depth and varying width corrugations formed therein with varying distances between the centers of adjacent corrugations.

1,544,354. CORRUGATED WALL FOR RAILWAY CARS. VINTON E. SIMSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Union Metal Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed July 14, 1924, Serial No. 725,827. Divided and this application filed Mar. 7, 1925. Serial No. 13,782. 15 Claims. (Cl. 105—410.)

1. A wall structure for railway cars comprising one or more metallic plates having a plurality of parallel equal depth and varying width corrugations formed therein, the distances between the centers of adjacent corrugations increasing from the middle to the side portions of the wall.



1,544,355. AUTOMATIC COUPLER FOR INDUSTRIAL TRUCKS. WILLIAM H. SOMMER, Peoria, Ill. Filed Oct. 16, 1922. Serial No. 594,573. 15 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.15.)

1. An automatic coupler, including coacting coupling mechanisms, one of which includes a frame, a draw bar slidably connected with said frame and provided with a coupling head, resilient means for permitting limited longitudinal movement of said draw bar; the other of such mechanisms comprising a frame, a draw bar slidable on said frame and having a coupling head arranged for coupling engagement with said first mentioned head, resilient means for permitting limited longitudinal movement of said draw bar on said frame, means for supporting the coupling head of said draw bar in coupling position, and means for removing said supporting means from supporting position to permit the coupling end of said draw bar to drop out of coupling position.

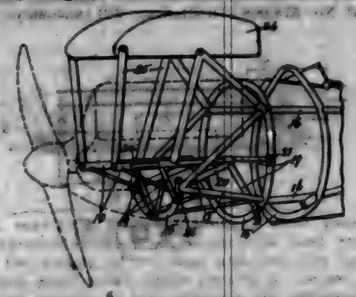
1,544,356. HAND TRUCK. CHARLES SPANTH, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Marvel Equipment Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,690. 9 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.)

1. A hand truck, comprising a round axle, wheels mounted upon the ends of said axle, a pair of angular coupling members sleeved upon said axle, said coupling members having sockets, tubular handles secured within said sockets, and a pair of flat bars bolted to said members bent on converging lines and connected at their outer ends to each other and to a depending foot member.



1,544,357. ELECTROLYTIC PROCESS. CHARLES J. THATCHER, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 3, 1922. Serial No. 549,419. 17 Claims. (Cl. 204—9.)

1. The process of electrolytic oxidation of one product and electrolytic reduction of another product, which consists in electrolyzing an electrolyte separated into an anolyte and catholyte and containing ions capable of acting as anodic and cathodic catalyzers, introducing into the anolyte and catholyte liquors acceptors capable of being respectively oxidized and reduced thereby and of forming products separable therefrom, and separating the resulting products.

1,544,358. ENGINE MOUNTING FOR AIRPLANES. BENJAMIN DOUGLAS THOMAS, Ithaca, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Thomas-Morse Aircraft Corporation, Ithaca, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Mar. 8, 1923, Serial No. 623,613. Divided and this application filed Sept. 10, 1924. Serial No. 737,610. 4 Claims. (Cl. 244—61.)

8. In airplane construction, the combination with the tubular rim of the fuselage, of a demountable engine mounting, comprising two parallel horizontal tubular members, diagonal braces extending therefrom, split clamps on the ends of said braces adapted to detachably engage said ribs, and struts connecting said members with the wing structure.

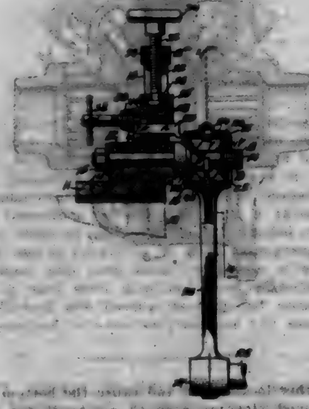
1,544,359. SIDEWALK EDGER. JAMES TOLBERT, Richmond, Ind., assignor of one-half to Joseph E. Daugherty, Richmond, Ind. Filed Feb. 18, 1922. Serial No. 537,426. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—227.)



A side-walk edger comprising a body member formed of a single piece of sheet metal which is trapezium in plan and comprising a flat fin adapted to slide flat upon a walk, a scoop portion which is substantially U-shape in cross section and which expands or increases in size uniformly from its rear end to its froward end with its rear end at a higher elevation than its front end and with its front portion terminating in a cutting edge, a curved moldboard forming the outer portion of said body and located on the side of the body opposite to said fin, and a handle attached to the rear end of said body and at a point between said fin and said moldboard.

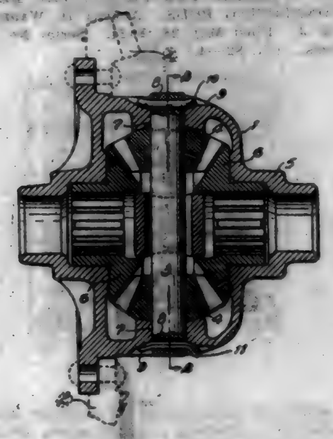
1,544,360. DIE STRAIGHTENER. STANLEY M. UDALE and WALTER S. ANDERSON, Detroit, Mich., assignors to Earl Holley, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 19, 1923. Serial No. 613,682. 2 Claims. (Cl. 22—153.)

1. A hollow mold adapted to receive molten metal, having a molding surface, a rear wall and four side walls, a slot extending through the rear wall and two side walls, a mold support, bolts clamping the mold to said support, set screws for counteracting the distortion of the molding surface.

1,544,361. MACHINE FOR FACING THE BEARINGS OF CONNECTING RODS. ALBERT H. WADELL, Newark, N. J. Filed May 28, 1924. Serial No. 716,890. 4 Claims. (Cl. 82—4.)

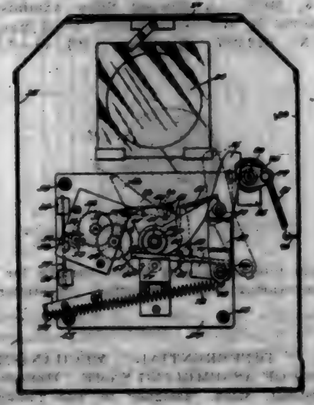
1. A machine for facing the bearings of a connecting rod comprising a fixture, a freely rotatable expansible mandrel to clamp the inside of the bearing of a connecting rod, an adjustable tool holder in the fixture, and a tool in the tool holder and disposed so that it can be placed in engagement with the face of the bearing of the connecting rod.

1,544,362. ROTARY TAPPET. MERRILL M. WILCOX, Saginaw, Mich.; A. Elwood Snow administrator of said Merrill M. Wilcox, deceased. Filed Mar. 5, 1923. Serial No. 622,987. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—1.)



2. A cam follower having a flat surface for engaging with a cooperating cam, said surface containing a spiral groove.

1,544,363. DIFFERENTIAL MECHANISM AND METHOD OF ASSEMBLING SAME. HERBERT W. ALDEN, Detroit, Mich., assignor to The Timken-Detroit Axle Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Dec. 4, 1922. Serial No. 604,695. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—99.)



1. In mechanism, a case having diametrically opposite radially extending holes therethrough and slots in its outer surface disposed diametrically with respect to said holes, and a pinion supporting element mounted in said holes and itself having transverse holes and locking pins extending through said last mentioned holes, the distance between the bottoms of said slots being such that one of said locking pins is bent flush with the bottom of one slot when the other hole is exposed opposite the other slot the proper distance to receive the other locking pin and cause the bottom of said last mentioned slot to serve as an anvil for bending such pin.

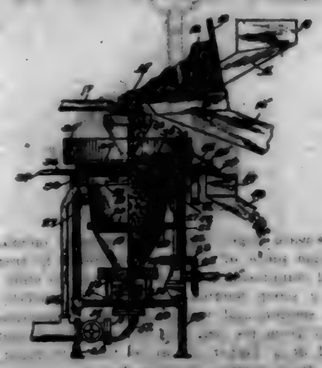
1,544,364. PICTURE-EXHIBITING APPARATUS. ALFRED D. ANTOINE and MYRON H. RICHARDSON, Chicago, and ALBERT E. GREEBT, Wilmette, Ill., assignors to Advance Machine Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 21, 1923. Serial No. 664,010. 36 Claims. (Cl. 88—31.)



1. An apparatus of the character described embodying a rotatable support, a plurality of view supporting members pivotally mounted upon the support, means for rotating the support, and means disposed adjacent the pivots of the said members for turning them about their pivots with respect to the support and at a predetermined point in the rotation of the support.

1,544,365. PLANT FOR SEPARATING COKE. JOHN B. ARPIN, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis. Filed July 28, 1923. Serial No. 578,068. 8 Claims. (Cl. 23—59.)

1. In a hydraulic apparatus for separating coke from ashes, a raft, a well beneath said raft permanently open at the bottom for free fall of the ashes therethrough, a passage leading from said well, and suction means for creating a current through said passage.

1,544,366. CENTRIFUGAL SEPARATOR. JOHN B. ARPIN, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis. Filed July 28, 1922. Serial No. 578,069. 10 Claims. (Cl. 233—17.)

1. In a device for recovering coke from ashes, a vessel, means for rotating said vessel about a vertical axis, a flange projecting into said vessel, means for supplying water and ashes to said vessel at a point above said flange, means below said flange for conducting away from the vessel the water and heavier portions of the ashes, and means surrounding said vessel for conducting away the portion of the ashes received above the said flange.

1,544,367. METHOD OF MAKING FINGER RINGS. ERNEST C. BLAICHER, Belmar, N. J., assignor to Interstate Smelting and Refining Co., Inc., Newark, N. J. Filed May 9, 1923. Serial No. 637,773. 3 Claims. (Cl. 29—160.6.)

3. The method of making finger rings which consists in providing a washer-shaped ring, indenting one face thereof to form separated recesses, which recesses terminate short of the inner and outer edges of the ring, then upsetting the ring to form a cylindrical band with the recesses on the inner face, and then piercing the band at the recesses to form settings.

1,544,368. SAND-FINISH FLOAT. FRANK C. BRENNAN, St. Louis, Mo. Filed May 16, 1924. Serial No. 713,652. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—186.)

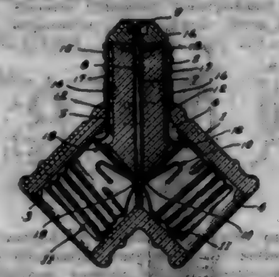
1,544,369. CAR STOP. RUPERT BRETLEY, Painesville, Ohio. Filed Apr. 1, 1925. Serial No. 19,794. 11 Claims. (Cl. 104—260.)



2. A shoe for a friction car stop adapted to be slidably mounted on a rail and comprising two wheel carrying parts that are spaced apart so as to expose between them a section of the wheel engaging surface of the rail, the first of said parts including a wheel obstructing portion and the second constituting a pull-back, means disposed laterally of the rail for tying said parts together, lugs depending from opposite sides of the pull-back and extending beneath the ball of the rail, and means for maintaining the first of said parts against lateral displacement with respect to the rail.

1,544,370. SNOW PUSHER. CLAYTON E. BURKE, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to B. E. Specialty Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Mar. 24, 1924. Serial No. 701,343. 3 Claims. (Cl. 37—53.)

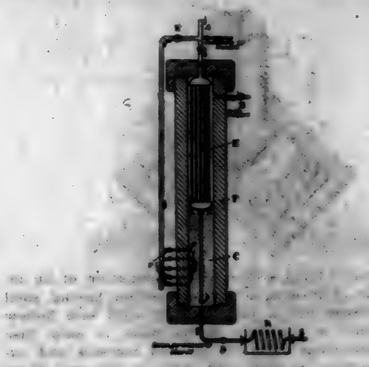
1. A pushing implement comprising a substantially rectangular plate curved for the greater portion of its width about an axis parallel to the longitudinal axis thereof and having a flat portion adjacent its forward edge tangent to said curved portion, the forward surface of said plate being smooth and unobstructed, a handle extending rearwardly and centrally from and substantially normal to and in alignment with the rear edge of said plate, and central and side brace members secured to and extending from said handle and lying flat against and secured to the rear surface of said plate.

1,544,371. PLURAL LAMP SOCKET. ABRAHAM L. BUSCHMAN, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 10, 1925. Serial No. 1,545. 2 Claims. (Cl. 173—335.)

1. In a plural lamp socket, the combination of an insulating base comprising a hollow portion having shell receiving recesses and a plug integral with said hollow portion, connector receiving passageways in said base each communicating with one of said recesses and extending therefrom toward said plug, a threaded lamp receiving shell in each recess, a threaded contact on the plug and a connector in each passageway between said contact and each shell consisting of an integral portion of said shell displaced from material forming a wall thereof and having its free end secured in operative position between said contact and said plug.

1,544,372. METAL WHEEL BLOCK. LESTER E. CAMPBELL, Mobile, Ala. Filed Jan. 6, 1925. Serial No. 1,181. 2 Claims. (Cl. 188—32.)

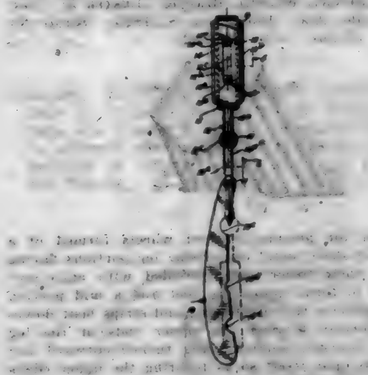
1. A block for pneumatic tired wheels formed of a single strip of sheet metal comprising leg portions flaring outward at their lower ends provided with ends outwardly bent to form supporting feet and a mid portion concaved to receive the tire having end strips bent downward, the portion between the upper ends of the leg portion and the mid portion being turned outward and folded inward upon itself so as to bring the upper edges of the leg portions beneath it.



1,544,373. METHOD FOR THE DIRECT SYNTHESIS OF AMMONIA. GEORGES CLAUDE, Paris, France, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Lazote, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 8, 1920. Serial No. 408,940. 23 Claims. (Cl. 23—199.)

1. A process of producing ammonia by synthesis from a gaseous mixture of nitrogen and hydrogen under high pressure in the presence of a catalyst, which comprises cooling and thereby maintaining the pressure-sustaining wall of the reaction chamber below the temperature of the reaction by contact of the gaseous mixture therewith before the gaseous mixture reaches the catalyst.

7. A process of producing ammonia by synthesis from a gaseous mixture of nitrogen and hydrogen under pressure in the presence of a catalyst, which comprises mixing separate portions of the gaseous mixture at different temperatures in contact with the catalyst and during the reaction, the colder portion being added at successive stages of the reaction.



22. A process of producing ammonia by synthesis of its elements under pressure in the presence of a catalytic body, which comprises passing the incoming gases in heat exchange contiguity to the hot gases of the reaction, then passing the preheated gases through a conduit positioned within the catalytic body and thence into contact with the catalytic body, passing another portion of the incoming gases in contact with the interior wall of the pressure-sustaining tube and then passing said portion into the catalytic body.

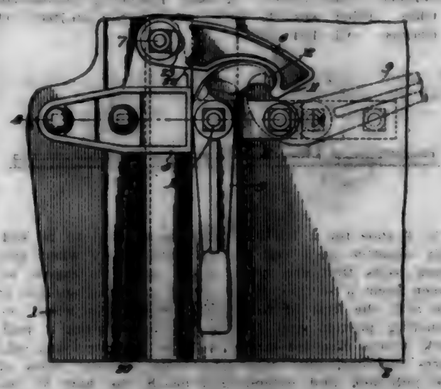
1,544,374. RAZOR CONSTRUCTION. FERNMAN O. CONNILL, Marseille, France. Filed Jan. 10, 1923. Serial No. 611,694. 13 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)

1. In razor construction, in combination, a cutting blade, a handle member therefor adapted to form substantially a sheath for said blade, means mounting said blade with respect to said handle members adapted to permit said blade to be swung toward said handle to be substantially sheathed thereby or away from said handle thereby to permit said blade to be given manually a movement of translation substantially transversely to the direction of the cutting edge of said blade, said blade mounting means including guiding means for said blade adapted to permit slidable movement of the blade with respect to said mounting means and in a direction substantially lengthwise of the cutting edge of said blade, and means associated with said blade-mounting means for giving said blade a substantially sustained reciprocating movement with respect to said mounting means and substantially in the direction of the cutting edge of said blade.



1,544,375. EXPANSIBLE RIM. WILLIAM HENRY COOK, Lee, Mass. Filed Sept. 30, 1921. Serial No. 504,302. 4 Claims. (Cl. 301—31.)

1. In a truck tire rim, the combination of a rim having a removable section, the abutting edges of said rim and said removable section being correspondingly beveled, grooves on the rim, tapered projecting tongues on the removable section, lugs on the rim positioned in proximity to the removable section and distant from the valve stem and engageable by the tapered tongues of the removable section, whereby to secure the removable section in place.

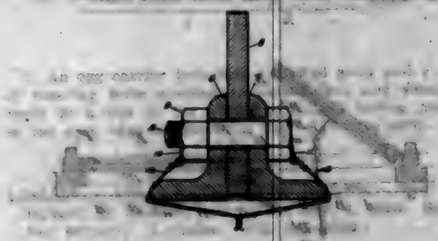
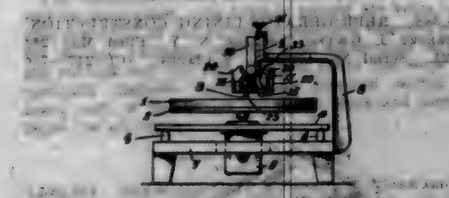
1,544,376. DOOR-OPERATING MECHANISM. HUGH EDGAR CREER, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Camel Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 27, 1921. Serial No. 473,080. 15 Claims. (Cl. 268—6.)



1. Door operating mechanism comprising abutment means, a pivoted catch member and a pivoted cam lever member, said cam lever member including a projection, said projection being provided with a cam portion to engage said abutment means and with means for engaging said catch member.

1,544,377. CLUTCH MECHANISM FOR MOTOR-DRIVEN POWER-SUPPLY UNITS. HUBERT DALTON, Stamford, Conn. Filed Jan. 16, 1922. Serial No. 529,406. 5 Claims. (Cl. 192—21.)



1. In power supply mechanism, a counter-shaft, spaced driving gears loosely mounted on said counter-shaft and driven in reverse directions from a common source of power, a clutch device associated with each of said gears, a double clutch cone mounted upon the counter-shaft between said gears, said counter-shaft having a longitudinal bore, a manually reciprocable rod mounted in said bore, and means operatively connecting said rod to the clutch cone whereby the latter may be shifted in either direction to actuate the respective clutch devices and thereby connect one of the driving gears to said countershaft to drive the latter in either direction.

1,544,378. NUT LOCK. CON DRISCOLL, Oilfields, Calif. Filed Nov. 26, 1924. Serial No. 751,121. 1 Claim. (Cl. 151—2.)

In a device of the character described the combination with a bolt and a nut adapted to be threaded theron, of eyes secured to the outer front face of the nut and the outer front face of the bolt respectively and projecting outwardly beyond said faces in the general direction of the length of the bolt, said eyes being adapted to have wire strands passed therethrough which extend longitudinally of the bolt and about the part traversed by said bolt, said eyes being heavier and stronger than the wire strands to insure that the latter will break, before said eyes.

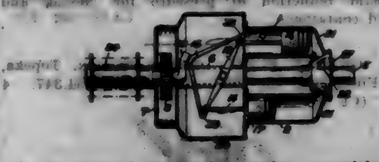
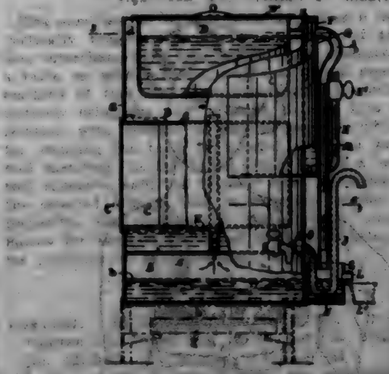
1. In a magnetic recorder, the combination with polarized magnets, an aperiodic armature operated thereby and freely movable in a plane parallel to the polar faces, and a cutting tool carried by the armature, substantially as set forth.

1,544,380. GOLF-PRACTICING DEVICE. DAVID B. EDMONSTON, Washington, D. C. Filed Nov. 6, 1924. Serial No. 748,139. 11 Claims. (Cl. 273—35.)



1. In a device of the kind described, a base board having a hole therein, and a fixed retainer projecting over the hole at a proper height to frictionally engage the top of a ball entering the hole.

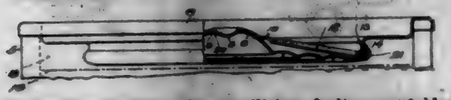
1,544,381. METHOD AND SYSTEM FOR AMPLIFYING VARIABLE CURRENTS. GUSTAV W. EDELL, Bogota, N. J., and Carl F. Ort, New York, N. Y., assignors to Western Electric Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 9, 1918. Serial No. 227,564. 14 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)



1. The method of transmission which comprises subjecting an alternating current to the action of a magnetic impedance, varying said magnetic impedance in accordance with modulated oscillations of frequency higher than said current whereby said alternating current is varied in magnitude in accordance with the modulations of said oscillations, and transmitting the energy of said varied alternating current to a remote signalling station.

1,544,382. COMBUSTION MOTOR. VIKTOR ENTLER, Bremen, Germany. Filed Nov. 28, 1922. Serial No. 603,846. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—43.)

1. An internal combustion engine comprising a number of cylinders having their axes extending substantially parallel with a common center about which the cylinders are annularly disposed, pistons in said cylinders, connecting rods coupled to said pistons, levers having their outer ends connected to pairs of the pistons operating in alternate relation, a shaft, pins on the shaft for supporting the intermediate portions of the levers for pivotal movement, V-shaped parts having the free ends thereof pivoted upon the end portions of the levers, cranks coupled to the intermediate portions of the V parts, pinions turned by said cranks and a fixed gear wheel over which said pinions are adapted to roll.



1,544,383. APPARATUS FOR PURIFYING LIQUIDS. GOTTLIEB EFFENBERT, Ridgewood, N. J. Filed Apr. 16, 1924. Serial No. 707,363. 14 Claims. (Cl. 23—262.)

5. An apparatus of the class described including a condensing chamber, a liquid receptacle arranged to absorb heat from said chamber, and liquid conducting means including a cooling vessel formed around said chamber, said means maintaining a constant liquid level in said receptacle.

1,544,384. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR STERILIZING AND SEALING CANNED FRUITS, VEGETABLES, OR THE LIKE. WILLIAM B. FENN, Port Washington, N. Y., assignor to Margaret F. Fenn, Port Washington, N. Y. Filed Sept. 24, 1921. Serial No. 503,003. 11 Claims. (Cl. 99—8.)

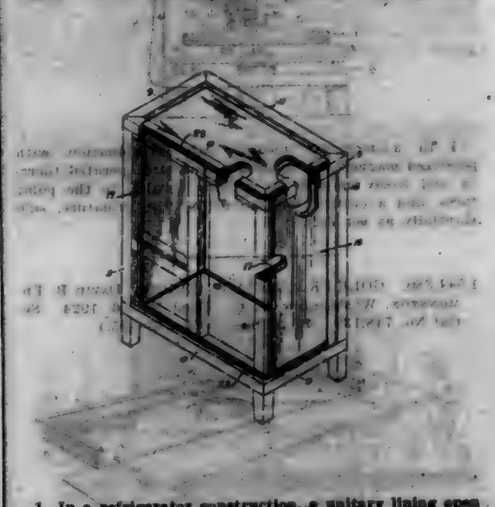
1. In an apparatus for sterilizing fruits, vegetables and other products, a container, a top therefor, said top having an opening therethrough for admission of the sterilizing medium to the interior of the container, and means rendered effective by the sterilizing medium for closing and sealing said opening without removal of the container from its sterilizing position.

11. The method of canning, sterilizing and sealing fruits, vegetables and other products in sealed containers which comprises subjecting a filled container having an open valve to the action of steam under pressure, permitting said steam to penetrate the interior of the can, and permitting reduction of pressure, and utilizing said reduction of pressure for closing and sealing said containers.

1,544,385. GREASE PLUG. GEORGE FRASER, Topeka, Kans. Filed July 28, 1923. Serial No. 654,347. 4 Claims. (Cl. 184—45.)

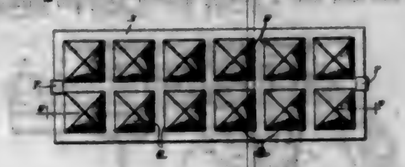
3. A grease plug comprising an externally threaded body, said body being provided with a recess for engagement by a tool or the like, and being cut away adjacent to said recess, a complemental member pivotally mounted on said body, and located in said cut away portion, and means to normally displace said complemental member with respect to the adjacent portion of said body member.

1,544,386. SHOULDER STRAP. ARNETTE FRIDOLPH, Kansas City, Mo. Filed July 21, 1924. Serial No. 727,235. 1 Claim. (Cl. 241—12.)



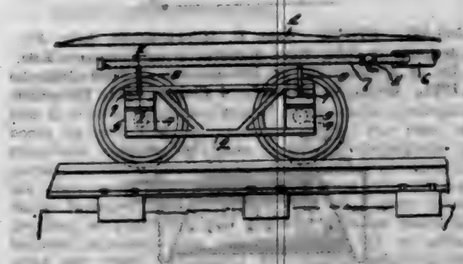
In combination, an under-garment having a plurality of round holes therein, detachable shoulder straps for the under-garment, each shoulder strap comprising a flexible elongated member having stiffened ends including folded back portions secured together, said ends insertable in the openings and lying across the openings when the shoulder straps are in place, the length of each stiffened portion being appreciably in excess of the diameter of the opening.

1,544,387. CASEMENT-WINDOW FITTING. THOMAS MCCREA FULTON, Hawthorn, Victoria, Australia. Filed Dec. 13, 1922. Serial No. 606,712. 2 Claims. (Cl. 292—266.)



1. Improvements in casement window fittings comprising, in combination, a vertically mounted screen support having a recess and an opening therein and secured to the sash framing, a slotted cover plate secured to said screen support and positioned over the recess in said support, a locking tongue formed with said plate, a vertically mounted slidable plate formed with a hole therethrough housed in the recess of said screen support, a window lever pivotally connected to a stock and carried by said slidable plate, and means for locking said lever to and disengaging the same from said locking tongue.

1,544,388. REFRIGERATOR-LINING CONSTRUCTION. HERBERT J. GWYNN, Yonkers, N. Y. Filed May 25, 1921. Serial No. 473,537. 8 Claims. (Cl. 217—7.)



1. In a refrigerator construction, a unitary lining open at the front, outwardly projecting flanges adjacent the top and bottom of said lining, angular flanges at two sides of the open front, said projecting flanges being adapted to fit between the top and bottom respectively and the sides of a cabinet, and said angular flanges at the open front being adapted to fit between the front and two of the sides of the cabinet.

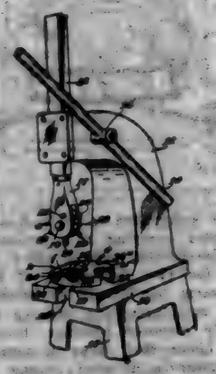
1,544,389. EGG CARRIER. WALTER H. HALL, Denver, Colo. Filed Jan. 5, 1924. Serial No. 684,687. 2 Claims. (Cl. 217—26.5.)

1. An egg carrier including a slotted strip and a cell of tapering form adapted to extend into and substantially fit a slot in the slotted strip and having means at the open edge for fastening the cell to the strip.

1,544,390. AIR-BRAKE ATTACHMENT. ROY E. HARRIS, St. Edward, Nebr. Filed Sept. 1, 1922. Serial No. 600,527. 1 Claim. (Cl. 246—169.)

The combination with an air brake pipe wherein pressure is maintained, axle bearings having air vents, of a pipe connected to the air brake pipe and disposed above the boxings, vertically disposed pipe connections between the boxings and the pipe disposed above the same and vertically disposed fusible plugs disposed within the lower ends of the boxing connected pipes and disposed below the air vents.

1,544,391. ROOFING CLIP. VERNON J. HARWARD and WALTER P. BUDD, Durham, N. C. Filed July 12, 1923. Serial No. 651,183. 3 Claims. (Cl. 108—38.)

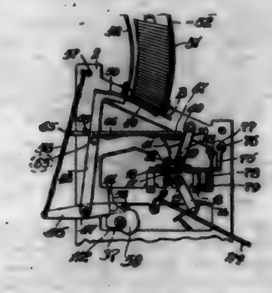


3. As an article of manufacture, a roofing tab formed of sheet metal comprising a substantially T-shaped attaching portion which includes a shank and laterally extending apertured wings at the top thereof, said attaching portion at the top marginal edge thereof having a spacing flange bent downwardly substantially at right angles to the normal plane of the attaching portion, said spacing flange being of less width than the width between the marginal outer edges of said attaching wings, the shank portion of said attaching portion having at the lower end thereof an upturned and overly bent retaining tab.

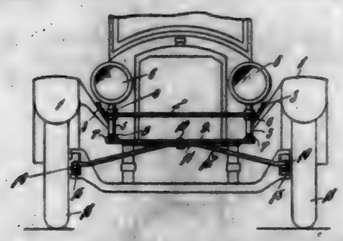
1,544,392. ROOFING CLIP. VERNON J. HARWARD and WALTER P. BUDD, Durham, N. C. Filed July 12, 1923. Serial No. 651,184. 7 Claims. (Cl. 108—38.)

1. A roofing clip comprising an attaching portion, and a retaining tab bent over said attaching portion, said retaining tab having the free end thereof provided with a blunt edge turned toward the attaching portion.

1,544,393. ARBOR PRESS. OSCAR MILTON HATCHER and JAMES CHAPMAN CAMPBELL, Manito, Miss. Filed Nov. 26, 1923. Serial No. 677,611. 1 Claim. (Cl. 29—86.1.)



The combination with a press including a bed and a vertically reciprocable pressure member, of tool members interchangeably applicable to said pressure member, a table on said bed, tool members spaced apart at the margins of the table, said table being revoluble to selectively bring the tool members thereon into operative relation with respect to the pressure member, means for securing the table in selected positions, one of the tool members on the table consisting of a number of tool elements, said tool member being revoluble to bring the selected element into co-operative relation with its respective tool member on the pressure member and means for securing said tool member in selected angular positions on said revoluble table.



1,544,394. BOOKMAKING MACHINE. THOMAS B. HERRON, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Nov. 20, 1920. Serial No. 425,348. 9 Claims. (Cl. 154—41.)

1. In a book facing machine, the combination of a book feeding element, means arranged parallel to said element for feeding a strip of glued material to a position lengthwise of said element so that the material will be engaged by the hinging portion of a book at its approximate longitudinal center, and a combined feeding and pressing means arranged parallel to said feeding means for bearing against the side walls of the book and the glued material engaged thereover.

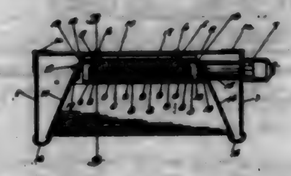
1,544,395. DIRIGIBLE-HEADLIGHT CONSTRUCTION. HERBERT HEGNA, Sisseton, S. Dak., assignor of one-half to William D. Worner, Aberdeen, S. Dak. Filed Mar. 14, 1924. Serial No. 699,298. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—62.)

An automobile comprising front fenders, front wheels, swingable spindles carrying said wheels and having forwardly and rearwardly directed arms, the rearwardly directed arms for the application of steering mechanism, a transverse bar fixedly connected at its ends to the fenders and interposed between the same and having vertically disposed bearings, headlights having stems movable about their axes in said bearings and also having forwardly directed cranks at the lower ends of the stem, an upwardly deflected transverse bar interposed between and pivotally connected to the forwardly directed arms of the spindles and having an upper central horizontal portion, and a transverse bar superimposed upon and pivotally connected to the central horizontal portion of the bar on the spindle arms and pivotally connected to the said forwardly directed cranks on the headlight stems.



1,544,396. REMOTE THERMALLY-CONTROLLED DOOR CLOSER. WILLIAM K. HENRY, New Britain, Conn., assignor to The American Hardware Corporation, New Britain, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Nov. 11, 1922. Serial No. 600,261. 3 Claims. (Cl. 189—49.)

1. A door check having, in combination, a casing for attachment to the door, a spring actuated arm movable horizontally about the vertical axis of said casing, a link pivotally connected with said arm for connecting said arm to the door case, a slidable detent mounted on said arm and having its outer end arranged to engage an abutment on said casing when the door is open, a spring for urging said detent outwardly, means comprising a lever pivoted on said arm for maintaining said spring under tension when the lever is held in a predetermined angular position, a guide carried by said spring actuated arm and having its axis in alinement with the axis of the pivotal connection between said arm and said link, a guiding member arranged adjacent the axis of the pivotal connection of said link and door case, and a thermally controlled flexible connection passing over said guide and guiding member and having one end secured to said lever and its other end adapted to be secure to the ceiling for holding said lever in said predetermined position.

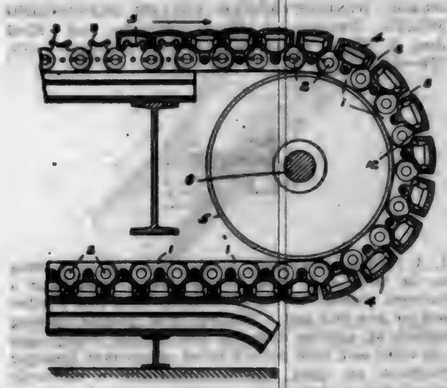
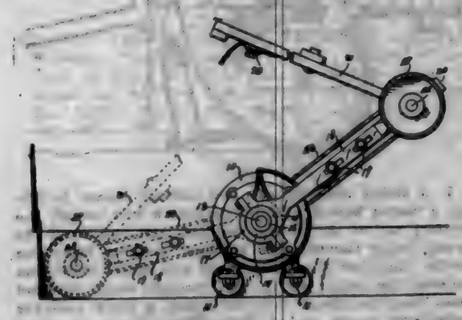
1,544,397. STOVE. CARL H. HOFFSTETTER, Erie, Pa., assignor to Odin Stove Manufacturing Company, Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 1, 1921. Serial No. 481,797. 4 Claims. (Cl. 126—92.)



1. In a stove, the combination of a burner; radiants extending upwardly from the burner; and a backing at the rear of the radiants comprising a metal back having a facing of asbestos board, the back extending forwardly at the sides of the end radiants and the board extending forwardly along the forwardly extending portion of the back.

1,544,398. MINING MACHINE. MORRIS P. HOLMES, Claremont, N. H., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Jeffrey Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 10, 1916, Serial No. 130,579. Renewed Apr. 21, 1922. Serial No. 555,916. 205 Claims. (Cl. 262—50.)

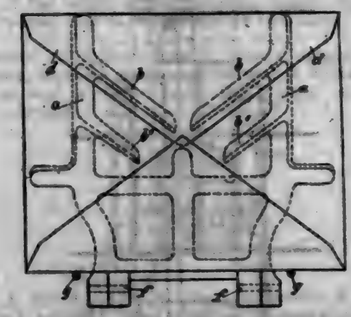


1. A mining machine comprising cutting mechanism including a cutter chain driving sprocket, machine feeding mechanism including a pressure fluid motor having a plurality of intermeshing rotors mounted in the same horizontal planes, and motor driven driving connections between said motor and said sprocket reversely connectible to said motor to drive said sprocket in opposite directions.

1,544,399. TRAVELING GRATE. HARRIS B. HOLT, Dermont, Pa., assignor to Rosedale Foundry and Machine Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 19, 1924. Serial No. 687,248. 4 Claims. (Cl. 110—40.)

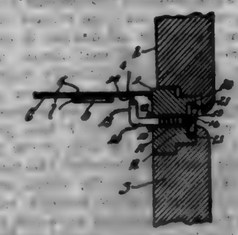
2. In a chain-grate structure an endless chain-grate advancing in round-ended course, the said grate consisting of a plurality of rows of links pivoted row to row in echelon formation and of square-ended grate-bars borne by said links in successive rows; the rows of grate-bars standing in close succession throughout a portion of the course of grate travel and separating as the grate rounds the ends of its course with substantially V-shaped spaces between, the said links being provided with anterior and posterior surfaces which as between adjacent rows stand normally out of alignment but which throughout the rounded ends of the course of grate travel stand in alignment and afford transversely of the structure a bottom to the space which opens between the rows of grate-bars.

1,544,400. FLOOR-SANDING MACHINE. THOMAS G. HOLT, Kansas City, Mo. Filed June 24, 1924. Serial No. 722,112. 1 Claim. (Cl. 51—176.)



In a floor sanding device, a wheel supported motor embodying the usual housing and shaft, connecting rods pivotally engaged with the motor housing at opposite sides thereof and rotatable upon the housing with the shaft as a center, a shaft rotatably mounted in the free ends of said connecting rods, a sprocket and chain connection between the motor shaft and the last named shaft, said connecting rods being adjustable as to length, an operating handle rotatably engaged with the last named shaft, and a sanding wheel carried by one end of the last named shaft.

1,544,401. COPYHOLDER. WALTER A. HOMAN, Denver, Colo., assignor to The Homan Copy Holder Company, a Corporation of Colorado. Filed Aug. 18, 1922. Serial No. 582,677. 9 Claims. (Cl. 120—31.)

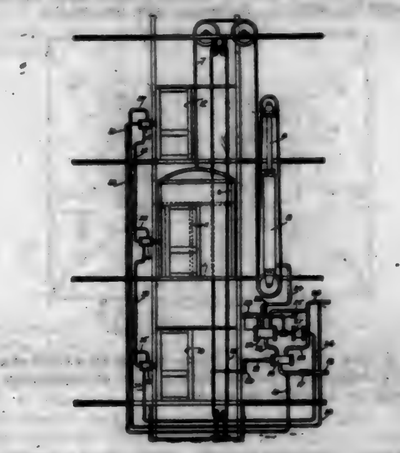


1. A copyholder comprising a cylindrical member having a pair of clamping members secured thereto, a horizontal supporting member, means for slidably and rotatably securing the cylindrical member thereto, and means for permitting the supporting member to be rotated about a vertical axis.

1,544,402. ENDLESS DRYING CHAIN FOR ENVELOPE-MAKING MACHINES. THEODORE HUGO, Wilmersdorf, near Berlin, Germany. Filed Mar. 13, 1924. Serial No. 699,010. 5 Claims. (Cl. 93—75.)

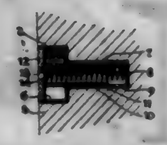
1. A link for a drying chain having an article-engaging rib deflected to accord with a zone of application of material to be dried on an article.

1,544,403. REFRIGERATOR. WILLIAM L. HUMMEL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 4, 1924. Serial No. 684,898. 1 Claim. (Cl. 62—65.)



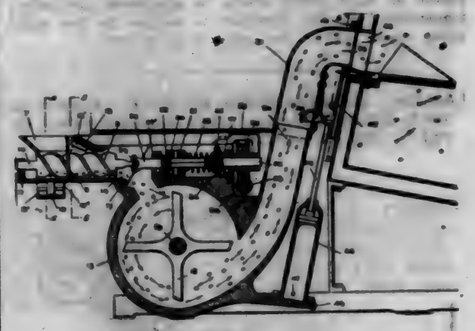
A refrigerator construction comprising two compartments separated by a perforated partition wall, a door for each compartment separated by a cross brace, a shutter slidably mounted in contact with and parallel to said partition wall, a plunger attached to the shutter, and actuating means for said plunger, housed, when the doors are closed, entirely within said cross brace, said actuating means being constructed so as to move said shutter out of registration with the perforations in said partition floor when one or both of said doors are open.

1,544,404. TOOTHBRUSH ATTACHMENT. WILLIAM L. HUMMEL, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 24, 1924. Serial No. 727,972. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—246.)



1. A tooth brush attachment comprising a cap having a portion arranged to frictionally engage the end of a tooth brush head, an auxiliary brush having spring arms, and means carried by said cap for detachably holding said spring arms.

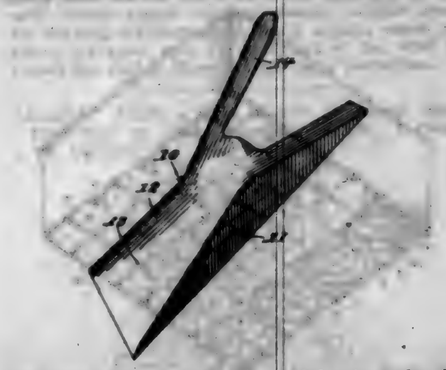
1,544,405. HYDRAULIC-ELEVATOR INSTALLATION. JOHN STANLEY HUNTER, Waverley, New South Wales, Australia. Filed Oct. 22, 1923. Serial No. 670,187. 4 Claims. (Cl. 187—30.)



3. In an hydraulic elevator installation in which the supply of fluid pressure to and the release of said pressure from the car operating mechanism is controlled by movement of one of the lift-well doors, a series of hydraulic switch associated individually with each lift-well door, each of said switches comprising a cylindrically bored body having an outlet port, an exhaust port and an inlet port to which is connected a fluid pressure supply pipe, annular leathers in the bore of the body one of said leathers being positioned between the inlet and outlet ports and another between the outlet and exhaust ports, a hollow plunger slidable through said leathers and moved to one extreme position by water pressure admitted through the inlet port, means actuated by the closure of the lift-well door to move said plunger to the other extreme position, said plunger having in its wall two separated sets of perforations so arranged that when the plunger is in the last mentioned extreme position one set establishes communication between the inlet and outlet ports and when said plunger is in the first mentioned extreme position communication is established between the outlet and exhaust ports, said switches being connected in series by means of a pipe connection from the outlet port of each (except the last in series) to the inlet port of the next in series, and a pipe connection from the last switch in series to hydraulically actuated means controlling the operation of a regulator valve interposed in the pressure supply pipe line to the car-operating mechanism.

1,544,406. WINDOW-SHADE-ROLLER-SUPPORTING MEANS. THORNTON P. HUNT, Valparaiso, Ind. Filed Aug. 2, 1924. Serial No. 729,831. 2 Claims. (Cl. 156—24.)

1. A curtain shade roller support adapted to be sunk into the inner face of a window frame, comprising a cylindrical member having a relatively long rear portion closed at one end and a shallow front portion opening therefrom of greater diameter and further being open at its front end, each portion being of constant diameter throughout, an inner member comprising a relatively long cylindrical portion of a diameter to snugly telescope into said long rear portion, a flat annular head having a central aperture therein for the reception of a shade roller pin secured to the end of said cylindrical portion and adapted to snugly reciprocate in said shallow portion, and an expansible spring housed within said cylindrical portion and having one end bearing against the closed end of the said rear portion.



1,544,407. LOCOMOTIVE STOKER. CARL H. JEFFERS, Canton, Ohio. Filed May 5, 1923. Serial No. 636,792. 2 Claims. (Cl. 302—37.)

1. A stoker comprising a fuel delivery blower including a casing having an inlet portion, a fuel trough, the delivery end of the trough and said inlet portion of the casing being formed with spherical surfaces fitted one within the other to provide a ball and socket connection between the casing and trough through which the fuel flows from the trough into the casing, a screw conveyor within the trough, and actuating means for the conveyor assembled with said casing, said actuating means and conveyor having a flexible connection centrally of said ball and socket joint.

1,544,408. PLOWPOINT. JOHN J. JENSEN, Melbam, S. Dak., assignor of one-half to William B. Striehers, Melbam, S. Dak. Filed Apr. 4, 1923. Serial No. 629,892. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—125.)

1. An attachable plow point consisting of an elongated body formed as a single piece of material, including a relatively thick landside having its rear edge tapered, further including a share portion curved longitudinally and transversely and having an inclined forward end, said body being adapted to be welded onto a plow lay and being formed with a hollowed out portion to receive the frog.

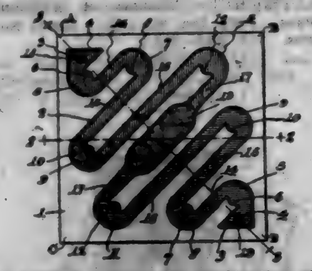
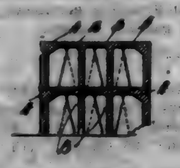
1,544,409. DITCH FORMER. WILLIAM JOHNSON, Ontario, Oreg. Filed June 14, 1922. Serial No. 568,239. 1 Claim. (Cl. 37—30.)



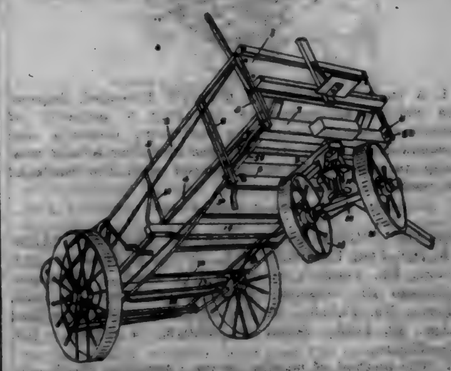
A ditch former comprising a plurality of rings, radial teeth secured to said rings, longitudinal bars spanning the rings and secured thereto and maintaining them in axial alignment, annular draft bars connected with diametrically opposite longitudinal bars and crossing each other at the axes of the rings, and a draft ring secured to the draft bars at the point of crossing.

1,544,410. PRESSER-FOOT ATTACHMENT. FRANCIS S. JONES, West New Brighton, N. Y., assignor of one-third to Mary E. Jones and one-third to Leon W. Jones, both of West New Brighton, N. Y. Filed July 30, 1923. Serial No. 654,696. 1 Claim. (Cl. 112—151.



An attachment for a presser foot of a sewing machine including a longitudinally curved resilient strip, a laterally extending base carried thereby at one end and adapted to be received in a slot provided in the shank of the presser foot, rounded forwardly projecting guides carried by the opposite ends of the strip and adapted to slide along the longitudinal edge of the work being stitched, and a vertically extending wall carried by said end of the resilient strip and disposed in opposed relation to the guide, the guide being disposed upon one side of the presser foot and the wall being disposed upon the other side and both serving to hold the strip against lateral movement.

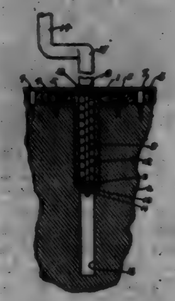
1,544,411. GAME OF PASS. HARRY H. KEAN, Cornell, Wis. Filed May 6, 1924. Serial No. 711,476. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—112.)



1. In a balancing game, the combination of a game-board having a sinuous groove, a plurality of terminals in which said groove terminates, the sinuous groove having an enlarged central portion, a plurality of courses intervening between the enlarged central portion and each of the terminals, and bends or corners connecting said courses, and including bays in the bends.

1,544,412. BUILDING STONE. ADOLF KRAMP, Baden-Baden, Germany, assignor of one-half to William Nees. Filed Nov. 6, 1923. Serial No. 673,184. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—30.)

1. A building stone or block comprising a top one vertical wall and ribs extending transversely to said top and vertical wall, the lower edges of said wall and ribs serving as base for said stone.



1,544,413. VEHICLE. HENRY L. LITCHFIELD, EDGAR C. LITCHFIELD, VICTOR SPEER, and CLARENCE C. HERMANN, Waterloo, Iowa; said Speer and said Hermann assignors to Henry L. Litchfield and Edgar C. Litchfield, Waterloo, Iowa. Filed May 2, 1922. Serial No. 558,131. 4 Claims. (Cl. 296—28.)

1. A vehicle body including side panels, a strong metal frame extending transversely of said side panels and underlying the front ends of the same, metal uprights connected to said frame and extending upwardly beside said panels, metal longitudinals extending along the upper and the lower edges of said panels and secured at their front ends to said uprights, and means at the middle of the front end of said frame for supporting the vehicle body on a front axle.

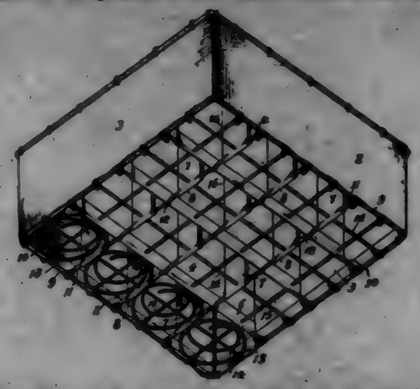
1,544,414. SOCKET. WILLIAM S. RAWSON, Springfield, Mass. Filed Jan. 30, 1922. Serial No. 532,925. 17 Claims. (Cl. 296—189.)

2. A socket capable of receiving an automobile curtain support and comprising a socket member having a passage, a plunger normally closing an open end of said passage and slidable in said passage upon insertion of said support in said passage and means between said plunger and the end of the socket remote from the open end thereof for limiting the movement of said slidable member at closing position thereof.



1,544,415. SPRING ASSEMBLY FOR UPHOLSTERY. LOUIS A. SUSKOFF, Chicago, Ill., assignor of one-half to Fred A. Nachman, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 9, 1925. Serial No. 21,816. 16 Claims. (Cl. 5—352.)

1. A cushion including a normally distended, depressible flexible superstructure including a plurality of individual pockets containing cushioning elements, and a substantially rigid skeleton base including sets of relatively intersecting wires interlaced with the walls of the pockets.

1,544,416. METHOD OF MAKING SPRING ASSEMBLIES FOR UPHOLSTERY. LOUIS A. SUSKOFF, Chicago, Ill., assignor of one-half to Fred A. Nachman, Chicago Ill. Original application filed Apr. 9, 1925, Serial No. 21,816. Divided and this application filed Apr. 30, 1925. Serial No. 27,019. 4 Claims. (Cl. 5—352.)

1. The method of making spring assemblies which consists in constructing a fabric structure presenting a series of pockets or cells adapted to contain coiled springs, and fabricating a foraminous wire base for one end of said structure by successively interlacing certain of the several component elements of the base with walls of the pockets of said fabric structure and then securing all of the component elements of said base against displacement relatively to each other, and inserting springs.

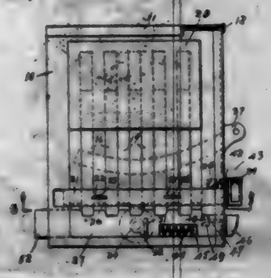
1,544,417. CAR STEP AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. WILLIAM P. WITHROW, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Witherow Steel Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 26, 1922. Serial No. 608,946. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—442.)



1. As an article of manufacture, a die-rolled safety car step of different cross sectional shapes at different portions throughout the length but free from abrupt changes of section, said step having attaching terminal portions and an intermediate roughened tread forming portion, substantially as described.

1,544,418. AUTOMATIC CONTROL FOR HUMIDIFIERS. FREDRIC F. BAHNSON, Winston-Salem, N. C. Original application filed Aug. 12, 1918, Serial No. 249,697. Divided and this application filed Sept. 11, 1922. Serial No. 587,682. 9 Claims. (Cl. 236—44.)

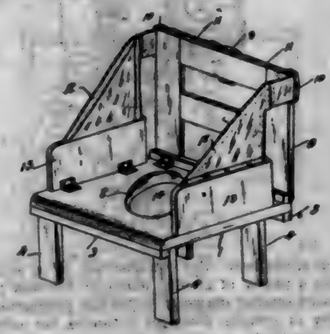
1. In a humidifier, the combination with a conduit and valve mechanism for controlling the same, of a hygrometrically responsive element mounted to expand in one direction, a lever bodily movable in the plane of movement of the said element and disposed to be acted upon intermediate its ends by the element, means disposed near one end of the lever for limiting the movement thereof toward the said element, resilient means for drawing the lever against said limiting means and means connected with the other end of the lever for translating motion thereof to the valve mechanism.

1,544,419. LOCK. MARK BARUN, Ironwood, Mich. Filed Sept. 29, 1922. Serial No. 591,299. 7 Claims. (Cl. 70—76.)

1. A lock of the class described comprising a plurality of vertically displaceable tumblers, adapted to be raised by a key, a means for locking said tumblers in their lowered position in engagement with the bolt of the lock, said means also supporting said tumblers in their elevated position when the lock is unlocked, and a member to permit manual operation of said means.

1,544,420. SIGNAL LAMP. PIERRE PAUL BASTERREIX, Butte, Mont. Filed July 21, 1924. Serial No. 727,878. 4 Claims. (Cl. 177—329.)

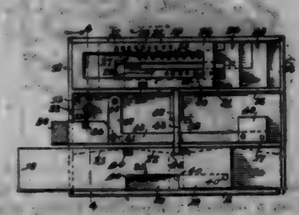
1. In a signal lamp, a casing, opposite solid plates bearing open indicating designations mounted upon said casing with such designations out of alignment with each other, the inner faces of said plates having a reflecting surface opposite the designation of the associated plate and illuminating means disposed opposite the solid reflecting surface of one plate.



1,544,421. PLASTER. HARRY D. BAYLES, Sellersburg, Ind., assignor to Louisville Cement Company, Louisville, Ky., a Corporation of Kentucky. Filed Oct. 31, 1921. Serial No. 511,872. 6 Claims. (Cl. 106—24.)

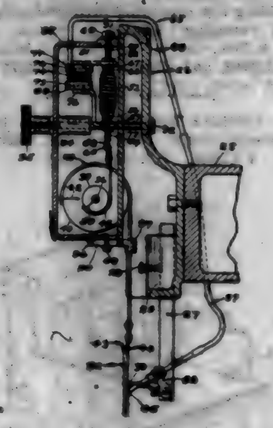
1. A composition of matter for the production of plaster comprising in admixture Portland cement, sand, finely divided argillaceous material, a fibrous material, and a cement comprising hydrated natural cement and lime intimately mixed with an organic, plastic, water-repellent substance.

1,544,422. WELDING ROD. FREDERICK M. BECKET, New York, N. Y., assignor to Electro Metallurgical Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Nov. 8, 1922. Serial No. 600,986. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—8.)



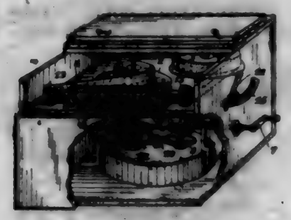
1. A welding rod consisting predominantly of iron and containing chromium 0.25% to 1.50%, molybdenum 0.10% to 0.75%, carbon 0.10% to 0.50%, manganese 0.25% to 1.25%, and silicon 0.10% to 0.75%.

1,544,423. CHILD'S FOLDING CHAIR. IDA H. BEHYMER, Redlands, Calif. Filed July 28, 1923. Serial No. 654,883. 1 Claim. (Cl. 155—130.)



A folding chair having a seat, a back carried thereby and foldable to a collapsed position above and over the same, sides of less height than the back carried by the seat and foldable between the seat and the back, said sides at their rear ends terminating short of the normal position of the back, flexible portions rising from said sides, and a flexible strap bridging said portions adjacent their tops and disposed in engagement with the back adjacent the top of the latter.

1,544,424. PERMUTATION LOCK. PERRIN L. BERRY, Water Valley, Miss. Filed June 30, 1924. Serial No. 723,335. 2 Claims. (Cl. 70—60.)

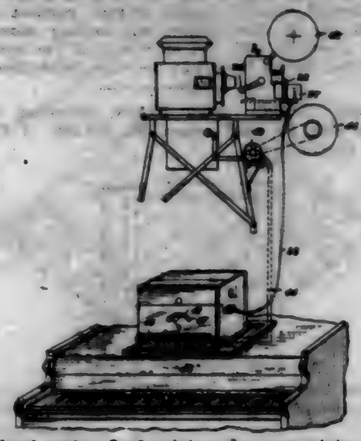


1. A lock of the class described, comprising an enclosing casing having a plurality of graduations, a plurality of superposed tumbler members within said casing and each provided with a seat in one edge, operating pins extending respectively from said tumblers and co-acting with said graduations, a lock bolt movable in said casing and having spaced recesses in one part and an elongated cavity in another part, a coupling member between said tumblers and lock bolt and adapted to be alternately engaged with the seats of the tumblers and the recesses of the bolt, a slide within the casing and having reversely inclined edges adapted to engage the coupling member, and an operating pin extending from the slide and through the cavity of the bolt and adapted to engage the ends thereof and move the bolt into projected or withdrawn position.

1,544,425. SCROLL SAW. Joseph Blank, Newport, Ky., assignor to J. A. Fay & Egan Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Jan. 29, 1923. Serial No. 615,569. 7 Claims. (Cl. 143—73.)

1. In a scroll saw, the combination of a step-pulley comprising a pulley of greater diameter between the pair of pulleys of smaller diameter, a flexible connection about said pulley of greater diameter arranged for connection with the saw-blade, a pair of flexible connections about said pulleys of smaller diameter, a pair of coil springs having operative connections with said pair of flexible connections, and means for independently adjusting the tensions of said springs.

1,544,426. INDICATOR FOR THE REPRODUCTION OF MUSIC. Carl Robert Blum, Berlin-Schoneberg, Germany. Filed Jan. 6, 1923. Serial No. 611,190. 7 Claims. (Cl. 84—423.)



1. A note band comprising a plurality of consecutive notes forming a musical composition having means dividing said notes into measures, the said means being spaced apart in proportion to the tempo of the composition.

7. A device for preparing a note band comprising means for moving such band at uniform speed and manually operable electromagnetic means for marking upon it transverse marks differently spaced apart in proportion to a predetermined tempo.

1,544,427. REPRODUCTION OF MUSIC IN SYNCHRONISM WITH MOVING PICTURES. Carl Robert Blum, Berlin-Schoneberg, Germany. Original application filed Jan. 6, 1923, Serial No. 611,190. Divided and this application filed Apr. 20, 1925. Serial No. 24,829. 6 Claims. (Cl. 88—16.2.)

1. The combination with a cinematographic apparatus and a photographic film, of a note band provided with a plurality of notes spaced between the consecutive bars thereof to visually indicate the variations in rhythm of sounds associated with said film, a motor for moving said band past a fixed point, and a commutator switch continuously operated by a moving part of said apparatus and controlling said motor.

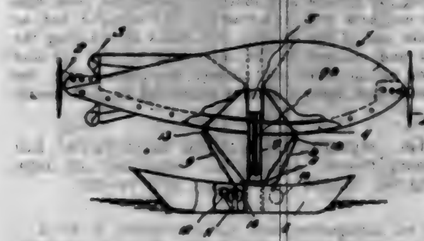
1,544,428. HAIR CURLER. Orson W. Bachman, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-half to Alexander H. Boyd, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed June 17, 1922. Serial No. 568,983. 5 Claims. (Cl. 132—41.)

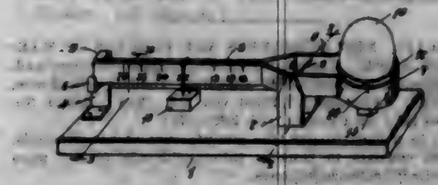
4. In a hair curler, the combination of a hair clamping device comprising a flexible arm and a relatively stiff arm connected at one end of the device and provided with means to detachably connect them at the other end of the device, and a flexible hair confining arm connected to one end of the device and having a hook formed on the free end thereof and adapted to embrace the stiff arm of the device at the other end of the device and thereby be prevented from being disengaged therefrom by the outward bowing of the hair confining arm.

1,544,429. BOX-STAMPING MACHINE. John Brown, Wenatchee, Wash. Filed May 22, 1923. Serial No. 640,750. 9 Claims. (Cl. 101—42.)



1. In a stamping machine, a main frame, guides adjustable on the main frame, and a stamping frame provided with a marking mechanism movable in a horizontal direction for marking an object and mounted independently of the main frame upon said guides and adjustable therewith.

1,544,430. DRAINER FOR SINKS. Mary B. Brown, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 9, 1924. Serial No. 691,779. 3 Claims. (Cl. 141—11.)

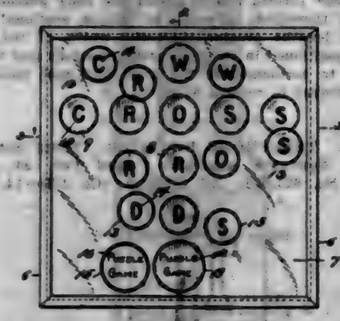


1. A drainer formed from a sheet of flexible material having two sides and an end with two slits extending through said end and a projection extending from that part of the said end between the slits.

1,544,431. AIRSHIP. John Elmer Bootles, Coco Solo, Canal Zone. Filed Sept. 29, 1924. Serial No. 741,857. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—6.)

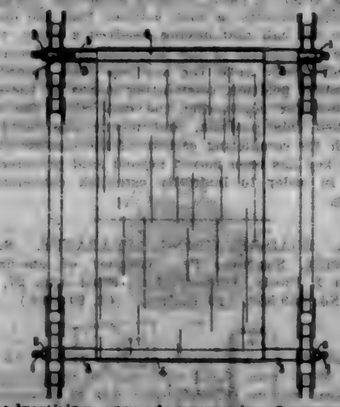
2. A dirigible provided with a passenger compartment having a vertical cylindrical guide between its ends, a boat suspended from the under side of said dirigible, a cylindrical stair casing anchored upon the boat and rising from the bottom thereof and extending through an opening in the bottom of the dirigible to telescope into said guide, a stairway arranged within said casing, and means for raising and lowering the boat.

1,544,432. EGG-GRADING SCALE. Gustav A. Carlstedt, Edmonds, Wash. Filed Feb. 2, 1924. Serial No. 690,257. 2 Claims. (Cl. 265—49.)



2. A scale having a beam consisting of a strap doubled upon itself to provide a circular enlargement at one end, an article receiving cup pivotally disposed in said enlargement, and a weight on said cup to hold it normally in a vertical position.

1,544,433. REFRACTORY HEAT-INSULATING COMPOSITION, PRODUCTS AND PROCESSES OF MAKING THE SAME. Harold T. Coss, Longpoe, Calif., assignor to The Celite Company, Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 16, 1924. Serial No. 726,349. 19 Claims. (Cl. 25—156.)



1. A refractory heating insulating material consisting principally of silica in the form of tridymite, produced by calcining fabricated bodies made of a mixture of diatomaceous earth, a catalytic inversion agent and water.

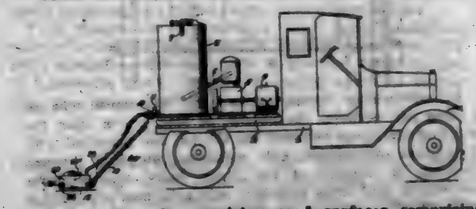
1,544,434. CROSS-WORD-PUZZLE GAME. George D. Dougherty, Post, Tex. Filed Mar. 6, 1925. Serial No. 13,601. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—115.)

1. A cross word puzzle game of the class specified comprising a bottom serving as a playing field and formed with a series of sockets differently colored and provided with characters thereon, and a plurality of playing pieces of disks form colored similarly to the sockets and bearing corresponding characters thereon.

1,544,435. APPARATUS FOR MOVABLE PUBLICITY. Henri François Etienne Sylvain Dussueris, Paris, France. Filed Apr. 22, 1924. Serial No. 708,287. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—82.)

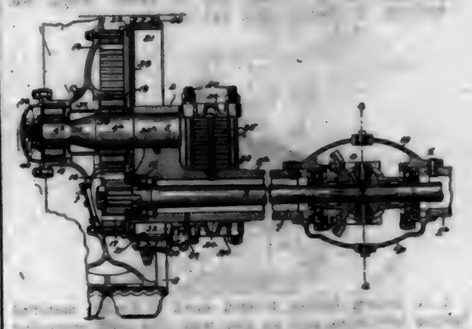
In advertising apparatus, a pair of spaced chains, a cross bar between the chains, of less length than the width of the space between the chains, and provided with cylindrical extremities, axle members extending through openings in certain of the chain links and pivotally connecting said links together, said axle members having diametrically enlarged inner portions extending toward each other from the opposing sides of the chains and provided with bores in which the said extremities of said cross bars are fitted, and nuts screwed on said axle members and bearing against the outer sides of the chains.

1,544,436. WIRE SUPPORT. HARRY E. EASTERDAY, Martinsburg, and WILLIAM H. KENNEDY, Bedington, W. Va. Filed Sept. 14, 1922. Serial No. 588,202. 1 Claim. (Cl. 178—321.)



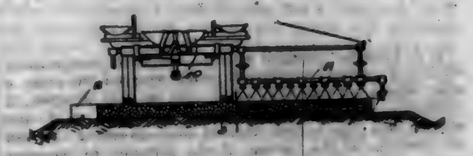
In a supporting device, a circular body portion having a groove formed in its periphery defining spaced flanges, the flanges having registering openings and having relatively straight portions extending to the edges of the flanges, lugs formed integral with the body portion and extending therefrom between the flanges, sectional insulators of lengths greater than the width of the body portion, positioned in the registering openings and having openings to accommodate the lugs, and said insulators having grooves to receive wires.

1,544,437. TELEPHONE REGISTER. DAVID SOLOMON ELLIS, Newtown, Australia. Filed Feb. 24, 1923. Serial No. 621,031. 17 Claims. (Cl. 179—14.)



1. An apparatus for registering or counting each effective call made upon telephones including a telephone, various electrical circuits connected with the telephone, an electro-mechanical switch for controlling said circuits, and a removable combined key and counter, said key being adapted to engage with the switch and to be moved therein in order to effect various sequential changes in the electrical circuits in such manner that the operator may make the call and having received a reply, the receiver and transmitter of the telephone are automatically cut out of circuit until the key has been moved to a pre-determined position, cooperating means on the switch and counter for registering the call when the switch has reached this position, and means associated with the switch for completing certain of the electric circuits when the key has been moved beyond said predetermined position, in order to instantly establish conversational conditions.

1,544,438. ROAD-REPAIRING APPARATUS. SAMUEL H. FETTER, Sunbury, Pa., assignor of one-half to Truman J. Purdy, Sunbury, Pa. Filed Aug. 27, 1923. Serial No. 659,553. 10 Claims. (Cl. 94—44.)

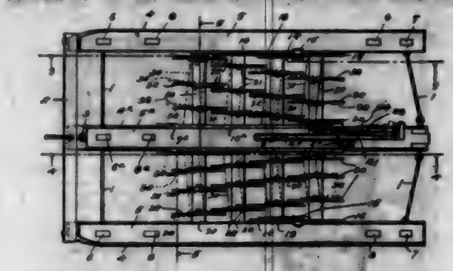


1. Apparatus for repairing road surfaces comprising a weighted smoothing device, a receptacle for repair material thereon, means for discharging the material in regulable quantities from said receptacle onto portions of the road acted upon by the smoothing device, and means for heating said device.

1,544,439. AXLE DRIVE EQUIPMENT FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. EUGENE E. FIELDER, New York, N. Y. Filed July 21, 1921. Serial No. 486,637. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—7.)

1. In a motor vehicle, the combination of a transverse load supporting member provided with an end arm, a wheel spindle projecting outwardly from said arm, a drive wheel provided with a hub surrounding the projecting portion of the spindle and provided also with an inwardly extending brake drum, a closure disc surrounding the spindle and abutting against the outer side of the end arm and seated within the drum, a nut on the outer end of the spindle, and means surrounding the spindle and engaged at its outer end by the nut and abutting at its inner end against the closure disc, the said wheel hub being rotatably supported by said means.

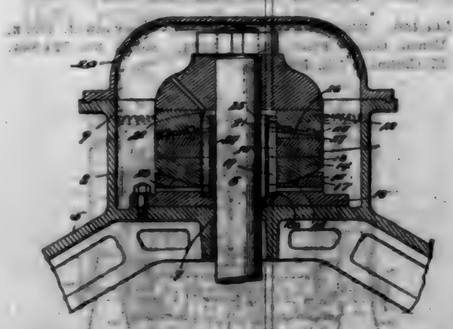
1,544,440. METHOD OF MAKING ROADWAYS. SAM EVERETT FINLEY, Atlanta, Ga. Filed Dec. 15, 1924. Serial No. 755,986. 4 Claims. (Cl. 94—23.)



1. The method of constructing roadways comprising placing edge defining forms longitudinally of the road site, spreading mineral aggregate between the forms to the desired depth, compacting the aggregate, removing the forms along the edges, and applying a coating of binding medium to the surface and to the vertical edges of the aggregate layer.

1,544,441. NEW DYESTUFFS AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. JAROSLAV FRÖHLICH, Basel, Switzerland, assignor to Society of Chemical Industry in Basle, Basel, Switzerland. Filed Oct. 28, 1924. Serial No. 746,421. 10 Claims. (Cl. 260—23.)

1. As a new process, the manufacture of vat dyestuffs, which consists in causing thionyl-chloride to act upon 2:5-diarylidobenzoquinones.



1,544,442. HARROW. ERIK GADDA, Silverton, Oreg. Filed Aug. 2, 1923. Serial No. 655,312. 8 Claims. (Cl. 55—11.)

1. In an agricultural implement of the character specified, a plurality of vertically disposed frames, each of said frames having a runner with its lower edge engaging the ground, upper and lower links connecting the frames and pivoting them together for universal movement, and earth treating members adjustably mounted upon the frames.

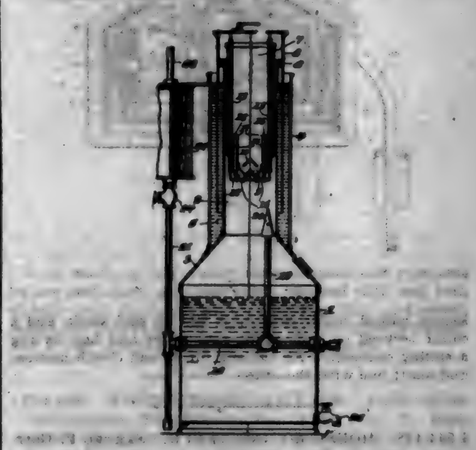
1,544,443. THRUST BEARING. EUGENE U. GIBBS, York, Pa. Filed May 6, 1924. Serial No. 711,441. 7 Claims. (Cl. 64—48.)



1. In a thrust bearing, the combination of an oil chamber, a shaft extending thereinto, a rotor ring secured to the shaft, a stator ring cooperating with the rotor ring, the rings being located in the oil chamber and having projecting and recessed interacting bearing faces of the same general contour, the projecting bearing face of the one ring being generally of conical contour and radially divided by oil grooves of variable depth throughout their lengths to provide segmental sections each comprising a laterally inclined bearing part with a flat surface and a narrower segmental flat part for circulation of oil and formation of oil films relatively to the said interacting bearing faces of the two rings.

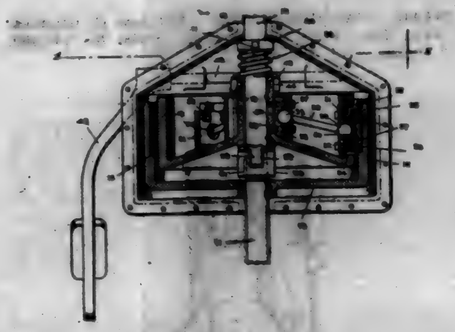
1,544,444. FENDER. MICHAEL K. GILSWICK, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 25, 1925. Serial No. 18,217. 3 Claims. (Cl. 293—41.)

1. A fender for vehicles, comprising a fender bar, a supporting bar connected to said fender bar and spaced therefrom, a pair of groups of folding guarding fingers hingedly connected with said supporting bar, a catch for each of said groups of fingers for normally holding the fingers in a folded position, manually actuated means for releasing said catches, and a spring for each of said groups for quickly unfolding the respective groups when the catches are moved to a released position.

1,544,445. GAS GENERATOR. WILLIAM C. GILMORE, Waco, Tex. Filed Nov. 7, 1924. Serial No. 748,460. 2 Claims. (Cl. 48—53.1.)

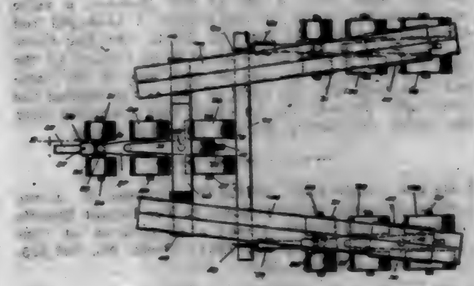
1. A gas generator of the class described comprising a casing having a water chamber in its lower part, a hopper in its upper part, a water chamber surrounding the said upper part, a bell in said chamber, a valve controlling the outlet of the hopper, a U-shaped rod carrying the valve, the limbs of the U extending above the top of the hopper and adapted to be engaged by the bell, a pair of springs, one on each side of the valve and connected with the bight of the U for holding the valve upon its seat and an outlet pipe connected with the casing for leading the gas from the casing.

1,544,446. ELECTRIC SWITCH. GILBERT W. GOODRIDGE, Fairfield, Conn., assignor to The Bryant Electric Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed June 22, 1923. Serial No. 647,115. 8 Claims. (Cl. 200—16.)



1. An electric switch comprising an insulating body longitudinally divided into base and cover blocks, a slide carried by the cover block, a switch brush slidably mounted on said slide, and a group of contacts mounted on the base block and adapted to be successively engaged by said brush.

1,544,447. CLUTCH. SAMUEL P. GRIFFIN, Orlando, Fla. Filed June 27, 1924. Serial No. 723,754. 2 Claims. (Cl. 192—76.)



1. A clutch comprising a clutch member having a rim, a shaft, a second clutch member having a hub mounted loosely on said shaft, the second clutch member having a rim, shoes movable in the last named rim to contact with the first named rim, toggle links connecting said shoes and second clutch member for thrusting the shoes against the first named rim when the second named clutch member is slid on said shaft, and a collar secured on said shaft, said collar and hub having a sliding connection for turning the second clutch member and shaft one with the other.

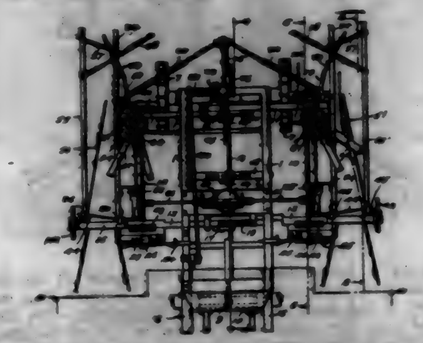
1,544,448. HOUSE-MOVING TRUCK. SAMUEL P. GRIFFIN, Orlando, Fla. Filed Aug. 6, 1924. Serial No. 730,482. 12 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.)

1. A truck of the character described comprising a plurality of pairs of wheels located one behind the other and increasing in diameter from the front wheels rearwardly, an axle for each pair of wheels, means connected to the axles between the wheels of the several pairs and having flexible joints for the angling of the axles about vertical axes relatively to one another and for the oscillation of the axles relatively to one another, and a supporting member carried by said means, said means being arranged for transmitting pressure from said member to the wheels in approximate proportion to the diameters of the wheels.



1,544,449. MEASURING FAUCET. CATO HAARSTAD, Fox Lake, Ill., and CHRISTIAN HAARSTAD, Trondhjem, Norway. Filed May 3, 1923. Serial No. 636,450. 6 Claims. (Cl. 221—117.)

1. A measuring faucet comprising a shell having an inlet opening and having two discharge openings, the bottoms of which discharge openings are at different heights, spouts on said shell at the respective openings, and a plug fitting in said shell and turnable therein, said plug having an opening adapted by the turning of the plug to be brought into register in succession with the inlet opening of the shell and then with either of the discharge openings of said shell for dispensing.

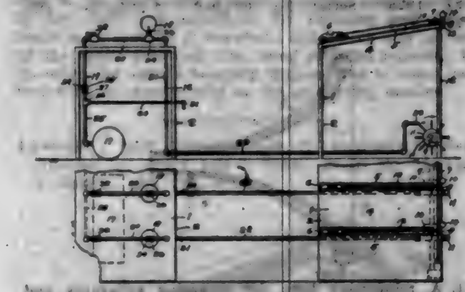
1,544,450. BROOM-CORN TABLER. EDWARD J. HALE, Minco, Okla. Filed July 8, 1924. Serial No. 724,844. 12 Claims. (Cl. 56—23.)

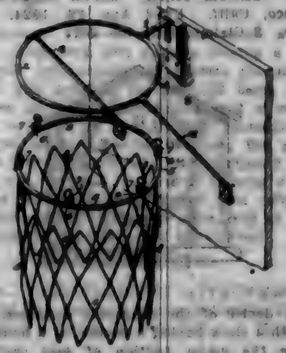
1. A broom corn tabler comprising a main frame, a broom corn brushing mechanism at each side of the main frame, and means to adjust said frame both laterally and vertically to adapt the machine to varying distances between the rows and to varying heights of the grain.



1,544,451. ELECTRODEPOSITION OF CHROMIUM. CARL HAMBUECHEN, Mount Vernon, N. Y., assignor to Electro Metallurgical Company, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed July 5, 1924. Serial No. 724,815. 8 Claims. (Cl. 204—1.)

1. A bath for electrodepositing chromium, containing chromic acid in excess and a soluble metal fluorid, and being substantially free from acids other than chromic.

1,544,452. AMUSEMENT OR GAME APPARATUS. FRANK L. HANNA, San Diego, Calif. Filed July 3, 1923. Serial No. 648,266. 6 Claims. (Cl. 272—36.)



1. An amusement or game apparatus including a frame, a reservoir containing fluid under pressure, a plurality of conduits operatively connected to the reservoir and provided with inflatable bodies, means on each conduit for controlling the fluid to the inflatable body, said conduits terminating at one end of the apparatus in a plurality of discharge nozzles, a plurality of movable devices on the tracks of said frame, and means actuated by the fluid discharged from the nozzle and in turn operatively connected to the movable devices for moving them along the tracks as the bodies are inflated, said inflatable bodies discharging their contents through said nozzles after the closing of said controlling means for continuing the operation of said actuating means.

1,544,453. BASKET-BALL GOAL. HOWARD C. HARRISON, Wayne, Pa. Filed Mar. 10, 1925. Serial No. 16,699. 10 Claims. (Cl. 273—127.)

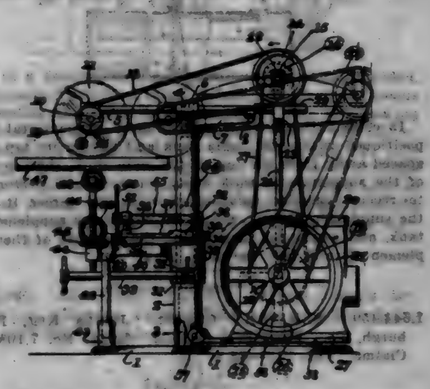
1,544,454. COMBINATION LOCK. HUBERT J. HARGRAVE, San Angelo, Tex. Filed Nov. 20, 1923. Serial No. 677,872. 10 Claims. (Cl. 70—54.)

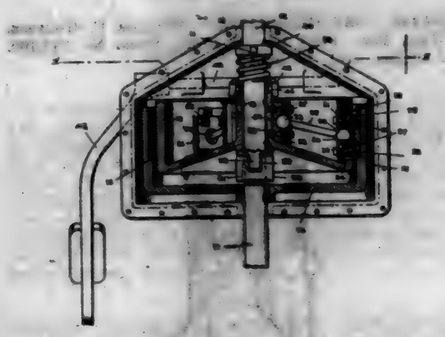


1. A combination lock characterized by the provision of a sliding bolt and a series of tumblers mounted on independent and parallel axes said tumblers having recesses therein adapted to be brought into registry with each other by movement transversely of the line of movement of the bolt.

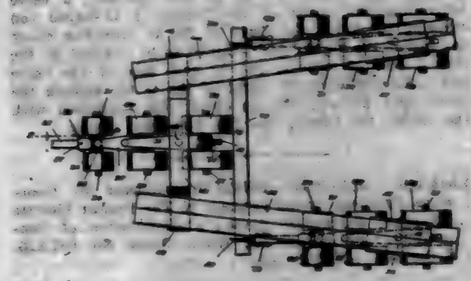
1,544,455. POWER-TRANSMITTING DEVICE. HOWARD W. HUNT, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed July 7, 1923. Serial No. 650,035. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—21.)

1. A shaft, a first pulley slidable upon and rotatable by the said shaft, a second pulley co-axial with and both slidable and rotatable with relation to the said shaft, means for simultaneously shifting the said pulleys axially, and a belt drivable by either of said pulleys.

1,544,456. WOODWORKING MACHINE. MACKINTOSH HUTCHINSON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed June 15, 1923. Serial No. 645,663. 5 Claims. (Cl. 144—8.)



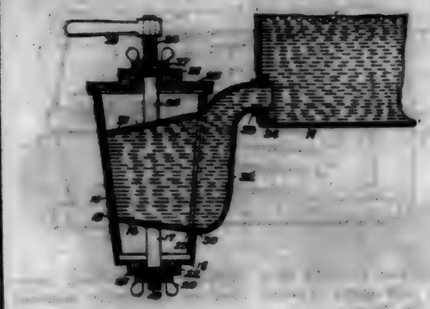
1. A wood working machine comprising a traveling carriage carrying at one end a saw, and a work-table, one adapted to swing relatively to the other in a horizontal plane, a swinging arm connected at its upper end with the traveling carriage and adapted to swing in an arc in reciprocation of the carriage, power receiving and transmission means carried by the upper end of the swinging arm, means connecting the power receiving means with a drive member, a guide in which the power receiving and transmission members have a vertical movement in the reciprocation of the carriage, and means connecting the power transmission means with the cross-cut saw.



1,544,457. WELL-CASING WRENCH. ALBERT S. JONES, Chattanooga, Tenn., assignor to Lucey Manufacturing Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Tennessee. Filed Apr. 28, 1923. Serial No. 637,064. 8 Claims. (Cl. 81—36.)

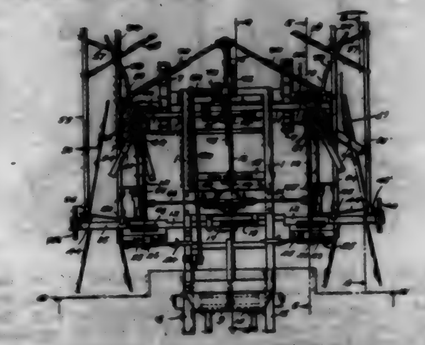
1. In a well-casing tongs, the combination of an operating handle, inner opposed gripping jaws operatively connected to said handle, means for yieldingly urging said jaws toward each other, outer opposed gripping jaws

to contact with the first named rim, toggle links connecting said shoes and second clutch member for thrusting the shoes against the first named rim when the second named clutch member is slid on said shaft, and a collar secured on said shaft, said collar and hub having a sliding connection for turning the second clutch member and shaft one with the other.



1,544,448. HOUSE-MOVING TRUCK. SAMUEL P. GRIFFIN, Orlando, Fla. Filed Aug. 6, 1924. Serial No. 730,482. 12 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.)

1. A truck of the character described comprising a plurality of pairs of wheels located one behind the other and increasing in diameter from the front wheels rearwardly, an axle for each pair of wheels, means connected to the axles between the wheels of the several pairs and having flexible joints for the angling of the axles about vertical axes relatively to one another and for the oscillation of the axles relatively to one another, and a supporting member carried by said means, said means being arranged for transmitting pressure from said member to the wheels in approximate proportion to the diameters of the wheels.



1,544,449. MEASURING FAUCET. CATO HAARSTAD, Fox Lake, Ill., and CHRISTIAN HAARSTAD, Trondhjem, Norway. Filed May 3, 1923. Serial No. 636,450. 6 Claims. (Cl. 221—117.)

1. A measuring faucet comprising a shell having an inlet opening and having two discharge openings, the bottoms of which discharge openings are at different heights, spouts on said shell at the respective openings, and a plug fitting in said shell and turnable therein, said plug having an opening adapted by the turning of the plug to be brought into register in succession with the inlet opening of the shell and then with either of the discharge openings of said shell for dispensing.

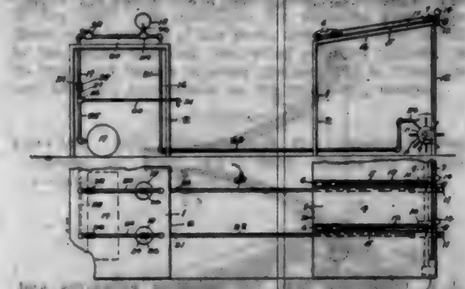
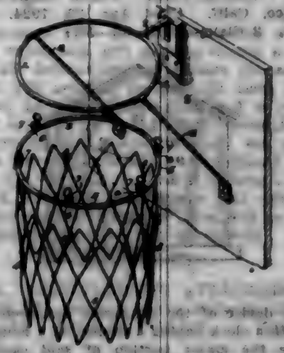
1,544,450. BROOM-CORN TABLER. EDWARD J. HALE, Minco, Okla. Filed July 8, 1924. Serial No. 724,844. 12 Claims. (Cl. 56—62.)



1. A broom corn tabler comprising a main frame, a broom corn brushing mechanism at each side of the main frame, and means to adjust said frame both laterally and vertically to adapt the machine to varying distances between the rows and to varying heights of the grain.

1,544,451. ELECTRODEPOSITION OF CHROMIUM. CARL HAMBUECHEN, Mount Vernon, N. Y., assignor to Electro Metallurgical Company, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed July 5, 1924. Serial No. 724,515. 8 Claims. (Cl. 204—1.)

1. A bath for electrodepositing chromium, containing chromic acid in excess and a soluble metal fluorid, and being substantially free from acids other than chromic.



1,544,452. AMUSEMENT OR GAME APPARATUS. FRANK L. HAWES, San Diego, Calif. Filed July 3, 1923. Serial No. 648,206. 8 Claims. (Cl. 273—36.)

1. An amusement or game apparatus including a frame, a reservoir containing fluid under pressure, a plurality of conduits operatively connected to the reservoir and provided with inflatable bodies, means on each conduit for controlling the fluid to the inflatable body, said conduits terminating at one end of the apparatus in a plurality of discharge nozzles, a plurality of movable devices on the tracks of said frame, and means actuated by the fluid discharged from the nozzle and in turn operatively connected to the movable devices for moving them along the tracks as the bodies are inflated, said inflatable bodies discharging their contents through said nozzles after the closing of said controlling means for continuing the operation of said actuating means.

1,544,453. BASKET-BALL GOAL. HOWARD C. HARBISON, Wayne, Pa. Filed Mar. 19, 1925. Serial No. 16,690. 10 Claims. (Cl. 273—127.)

7. A basket ball goal comprising an annular frame, a tubular net, and resilient means for suspending the net from the frame.

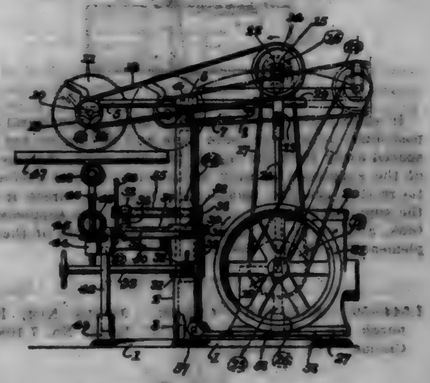
1,544,454. COMBINATION LOCK. EVERETT J. HARGRAVE, San Angelo, Tex. Filed Nov. 30, 1923. Serial No. 677,372. 10 Claims. (Cl. 70—54.)

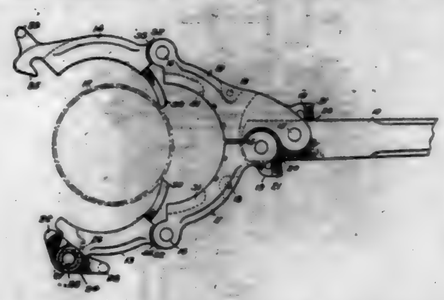


1. A combination lock characterized by the provision of a sliding bolt and a series of tumblers mounted on independent and parallel axes said tumblers having recesses therein adapted to be brought into registry with each other by movement transversely of the line of movement of the bolt.

1,544,455. POWER-TRANSMITTING DEVICE. HOWARD W. HUNT, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed July 7, 1923. Serial No. 650,035. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—31.)

1. A shaft, a first pulley slidable upon and rotatable by the said shaft, a second pulley co-axial with and both slidable and rotatable with relation to the said shaft, means for simultaneously shifting the said pulleys axially, and a belt drivable by either of said pulleys.

1,544,456. WOODWORKING MACHINE. MACKINTOSH HUTCHINSON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed June 15, 1923. Serial No. 645,668. 6 Claims. (Cl. 144—3.)



1. A wood working machine comprising a traveling carriage carrying at one end a saw, and a work-table, one adapted to swing relatively to the other in a horizontal plane, a swinging arm connected at its upper end with the traveling carriage and adapted to swing in an arc in reciprocation of the carriage, power receiving and transmission means carried by the upper end of the swinging arm, means connecting the power receiving means with a drive member, a guide in which the power receiving and transmission members have a vertical movement in the reciprocation of the carriage, and means connecting the power transmission means with the cross-cut saw.

1,544,457. WELL-CASING WRENCH. ALBERT S. JONES, Chattanooga, Tenn., assignor to Lucey Manufacturing Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Tennessee. Filed Apr. 23, 1923. Serial No. 637,664. 8 Claims. (Cl. 81—66.)

1. In a well-casing tongs, the combination of an operating handle, inner opposed gripping jaws operatively connected to said handle, means for yieldingly urging said jaws toward each other, outer opposed gripping jaws pivotally mounted at their inner ends on the inner jaws, whereby said outer jaws may be opened and closed to permit the work to be inserted in and removed from the tongs, projections carried by the outer jaws, said projections extending inwardly beyond the pivotal centers of said outer jaws, whereby they will be moved into the bore of the tongs by opening the outer jaws, and means for releasably locking the outer jaws in their closed position.

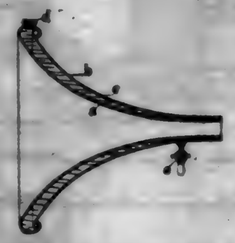
1,544,458. GASOLINE RESERVE TANK. ARTHUR ALBERT KIM, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Sept. 10, 1923. Serial No. 662,024. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—46.5.)

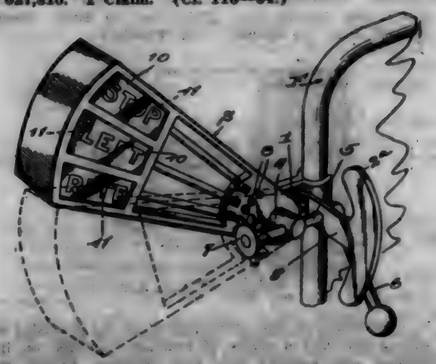


In combination with a main tank, a supplemental tank positioned within the main tank and having its top wall spaced away from the top of the main tank, the top wall of the supplemental tank being concaved and perforated to receive gasoline splashed thereon and direct it into the supplemental tank, means for filling the supplemental tank, and means for discharging the contents of the supplemental tank into the main tank.

1,544,459. SANITARY COVER. JULIUS KIM, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Feb. 8, 1925. Serial No. 7,108. 4 Claims. (Cl. 217—63.)

1. A sanitary cover for containers comprising a metallic frame member having an opening, an annular flange surrounding said opening, a convex plate of glass resting on said flange, and a strap resting on the periphery of said plate said strap having an outer flange fitting between the margin of the plate and a flange on said frame, substantially as set forth.

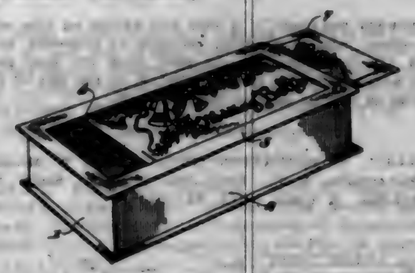
1,544,460. HORN AND AMPLIFIER FOR SOUND-RECORDING AND SOUND-REPRODUCING APPARATUS. GEORGES LAKHOVSKY, Paris, France. Filed Feb. 24, 1923. Serial No. 621,086. 5 Claims. (Cl. 181—27.)



1. A reinforcing horn for recording apparatus and sound reproducing apparatus, comprising a double casing and, in the space comprised between the horn and this double casing, a pasty material having for effect to damp the vibrations which might be transmitted to the horn by the sonorous waves.

1,544,461. CLOCK CASE. RALPH G. LAWRENCE, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Apr. 26, 1924. Serial No. 709,239. 2 Claims. (Cl. 58—56.)

1. In a device of the character described, the combination with a clock having a casing, of a housing adapted to enclose the major portion of said casing, parallel securing bolts mounted within said housing, parallel vertical members disposed on said bolts, a resilient curved piece secured to said parallel members, for the purpose set forth.



1,544,462. TRAFFIC SIGNAL. CALVIN LAWYER, Newburyport, Mass. Filed Mar. 26, 1923. Serial No. 627,216. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—54.)

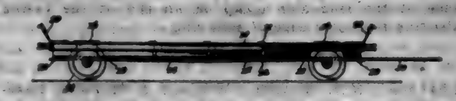
otally engaged with the trunnion, a head engageable with the trunnion for holding the semaphore in applied position, a shaft carried by the head and the outstanding arm of the supporting member, coacting means carried by the shaft and semaphore for swinging said semaphore upon rotation of the shaft, and a rock arm carried by the shaft, said rock arm being provided adjacent to its outer end with a laterally disposed lug in close contact with the arm carried by the supporting member.

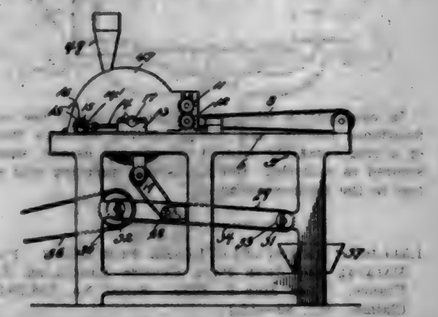
1,544,463. BOX TOP. BYRON H. LENGSFIELD, New Orleans, La. Filed July 7, 1924. Serial No. 724,713. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—8.)

2. As an element of a mercantile package, a box designed to be filled with gift articles having a lid containing suitable information to indicate the nature of the aforesaid gift articles, the said lid being provided with a pocket having an open face, and a removable card adapted to be placed in the pocket containing information relative to some special occasion, the said card when in place concealing the said first mentioned information whereby the box may be used in forming a package adapted to be sold as a gift package with reference to special occasions with the card in place, and as a standard staple package when the card is removed.



1,544,464. ANTIRATTLING ATTACHMENT FOR WINDSHIELDS. SCOTT B. LONG, Belleville, Ill. Filed Oct. 23, 1923. Serial No. 670,308. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—218.)

A device for the purpose set forth comprising a base plate adapted to be secured to a windshield support, a threaded stud projecting from the rear face of the base plate, a presser yoke having a central outwardly flared smooth bore opening through which the stud extends and having its ends constructed to engage against a windshield and the windshield support, and a sleeve nut mounted upon the threaded stud and having its forward end tapered and smooth to engage within the rearwardly flared opening in the presser yoke whereby to clamp the same against the windshield and the windshield support when turned home and constitute a pivot therefor when loosened.



1,544,465. TRUCK. WILLIAM HERBERT LOVELL and MARTIN WM. BROWN, Galveston, Tex., assignors to The Atlas Engineering Works, Galveston, Tex., a Corporation of Texas. Filed July 28, 1924. Serial No. 728,742. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—102.)

1. A trailer comprising a body having a central longitudinal beam, plates extending across said frame near the ends thereof, supports secured to said plates at opposite sides of said central beam, an upper fifth wheel secured to said supports, a lower fifth wheel pivoting about said upper fifth wheel, a wheeled truck secured to said lower fifth wheel, means for connecting the lower fifth wheels of both trucks of the trailer, and a draw bar for detachable mounting in connection with either lower fifth wheel of the trailer.

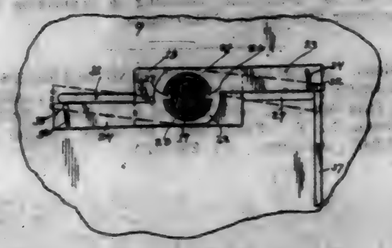
1,544,466. MACHINE FOR TREATING BLANKETS OR FABRICS. EDWARD MCCREARY, Cohoes, N. Y., assignor to John McCreary and Edward J. McCreary, both of Cohoes, N. Y. Filed Sept. 10, 1924. Serial No. 736,942. 9 Claims. (Cl. 26—37.)

1. In a fabric treating machine of the class specified, the combination with a brush cylinder, of conveying means for feeding the fabric to be treated to and withdrawing the treated fabric from the cylinder, and a cast-off organization interposed between the cylinder and the conveying means and including upper and lower rotatable means in inclined relation and having movable endless feeding devices engaging the same and also guard means for preventing the treated fabric from being drawn rearwardly and upwardly within the machine.



1,544,467. ELECTRIC CUT-OUT. JAMES JOSEPH MCDONALD, Roseville, Calif. Filed Apr. 8, 1924. Serial No. 704,053. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—44.)

1. A switch of the class set forth comprising a casing, switch means in said casing, a plunger for operating said switch means, a ring in one end of said casing through which said plunger passes, the inner periphery of said ring being provided with a shoulder, spring-projected locking means carried by the plunger for enpagement with said shoulder to hold the switch in open position, and means for holding said ring in the casing, said means comprising an internal rib abutting the inner edge of the ring and a cap on an end of the casing abutting the outer edge of said ring.

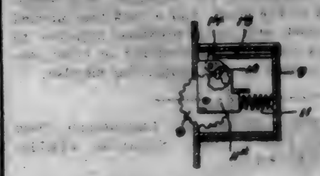
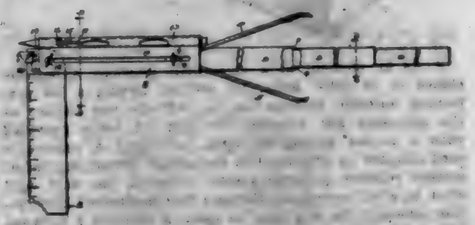
1,544,468. BEE BOARD. WILLIAM J. MCPHEE, Lakeside, Oreg. Filed July 11, 1924. Serial No. 725,470. 1 Claim. (Cl. 6—4.)

In combination with a bee board having a bee escape positioned therein, and further having openings therein, of a ring rotatably secured to said bee escape, shutters secured to said ring, and means for operating said shutters in the manner specified.



1,544,469. REMOVABLE LINER FOR GUNS. PIERRE MALAVAL and RENÉ PAUL EUGÈNE PAQUELIER, Paris, France. Filed May 6, 1922. Serial No. 558,904. 7 Claims. (Cl. 89—16.)

1. A gun comprising, in combination, a barrel and an elastic metal lining tube within the bore of the barrel, the diameter of the bore of said barrel and the external diameter of the tube being so proportioned that the barrel confines said tube within its elastic limits under the stress of fire while leaving play between the tube and barrel when relieved of such stress, whereby said tube is easily removable.



1,544,470. SASH STOP. EDWARD A. MALM, Wadena, Minn. Filed May 14, 1923. Serial No. 638,960. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—280.)

Stop mechanism for use in the side stile of a sash frame and in cooperation with a sliding sash and a rack at one vertical edge thereof; said stop mechanism constituted essentially of a slotted casing, a spur gear projecting throughout the front wall of the casing, a yoke straddling the spur gear and receiving in its sides the ends of the journal thereof, a spring interposed between the back wall of the casing and the said yoke, a gravitational pawl normally engaging the spur gear to prevent downward movement of a sash and having an arm, and a control member manually movable to cooperate with said arm and disengage the pawl from the spur gear and having a lateral portion movable in the slot of the casing to operate against the pawl arm.

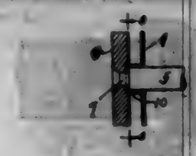
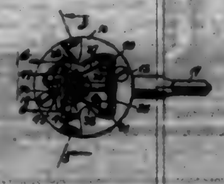
1,544,471. COMBINATION TOOL. GEORGE W. MILLER, Waynesville, N. C. Filed June 2, 1922. Serial No. 562,989. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—75.)



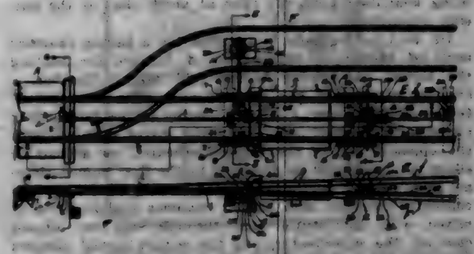
A device for the purpose indicated comprising a stock provided with a longitudinal slot in one edge portion, a blade pivotally connected with the stock at one end thereof and capable of any position between that of perpendicularity to the stock and folded position within the slot, a slide mounted on the blade, and a pencil holder carried by the stock on the edge opposite the slot, means being provided for holding the pencil with the point advanced beyond the edge of the blade when the latter is perpendicular to the slot.

1,544,472. CONDIMENT HOLDER. DANIEL H. MOORE, Portland, Oreg. Filed Mar. 7, 1924. Serial No. 697,584. 1 Claim. (Cl. 65—57.)



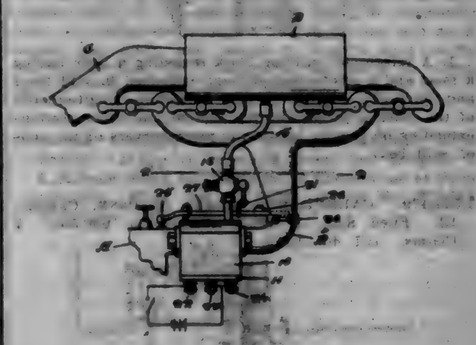
In combination with a condiment holder having an apertured cover, a concave lid for normally engaging the upper surface of said cover, the apertures of said cover being arcuate in shape, a plurality of wires secured to said lid and penetrating the apertures of the cover, the ends of said wires being connected to each other at their free ends so as to form a head, a ring suspended from the under surface of the cover and adapted to be contacted by the head formed by said depending wires when said condiment holder is in an inverted position.

1,544,473. COLLAR BUTTON. WILLIAM NAIRN, Paterson, N. J. Filed Jan. 25, 1924. Serial No. 688,582. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—100.5.)



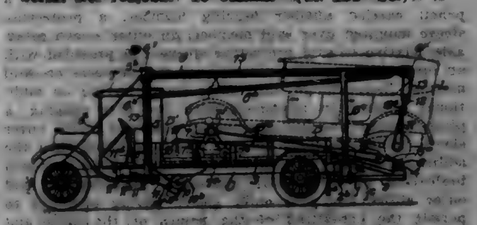
A collar button comprising a shank having a head and back at each end thereof, said shank being reduced at one end thereof, a blank formed with a central depression and outwardly extending wings spaced from the back, said reduced portion of the shank extending through an aperture in the central depression.

1,544,474. ELECTRIC SWITCH. ARVID H. NEMO, New Britain, Conn., assignor to The Arrow Electric Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Aug. 2, 1921. Serial No. 489,292. 6 Claims. (Cl. 178—346.)



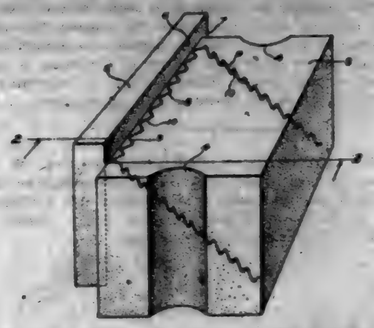
1. An electric switch having a pair of spaced contacts, a spring-yoke switch bar, a pair of pivoted slide plates embraced by said spring yoke, and rotary cam means for simultaneously rocking said slide plates in opposite directions to tension and bias said spring yoke and thereby impart rectilinear movement to the switch bar to make or break connection with the switch contacts.

1,544,475. FEEDER AND SCALE FOR KICKBACK DUMPS. JAMES A. NOLAN, Bowerston, Ohio. Filed Sept. 30, 1924. Serial No. 740,828. 10 Claims. (Cl. 214—2.)



1. In car handling means, in combination with a dump and an approach track leading to the dump and a receiving track leading from said dump, inner stops on the approach track adjacent the dump, outer trip holding stops on the approach track remote from said inner stops, means for closing the inner stops and opening the outer stops as the dump moves into dumping position, means for closing the outer stops after a car has passed between the same independently of the inner stops, the means for opening the outer stops being moved into operative position and the means for closing the inner stops being moved into vertical position to permit opening of said inner stops upon return of the dump to loading position, and means actuated by a car traveling on the receiving track for opening said inner stops.

1,544,476. ELECTRIC VAPORIZER. LEONARD W. OSBORNE, Baltimore, Md., assignor to The Osborne Electro-Gas Vaporizer Company, Baltimore, Md., a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Aug. 22, 1921. Serial No. 494,370. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—38.)



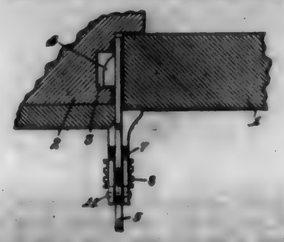
1. A vaporizer for internal combustion engines comprising a casing interposed between the carburetor and intake manifold and communicating with said parts, a tubular member arranged within the casing, a series of screen-like elements positioned within the tubular member, a plurality of rings supporting said screen-like elements within said tubular member, each ring including an inwardly extending flange which together with said screen-like elements retard the flow of fuel through the vaporizer, and a valve controlled air inlet pipe communicating with said tubular member, and heating means arranged within the casing beneath said tubular member.

1,544,477. MOTOR WRECKING TRUCK. JOHN J. PALOTICH, Youngstown, Ohio. Filed Aug. 19, 1924. Serial No. 732,952. 10 Claims. (Cl. 214—38.)

1. A wrecking truck, comprising the combination of a motor vehicle chassis; a standard mounted thereon; a boom horizontally pivoted on said standard; extensible means for supporting the outer end of said boom in any position; a block suspended from the outer end of said boom; means for raising and lowering said block; a track on said chassis extending beyond the rear end thereof; and a carriage movable on said track for the purpose specified.

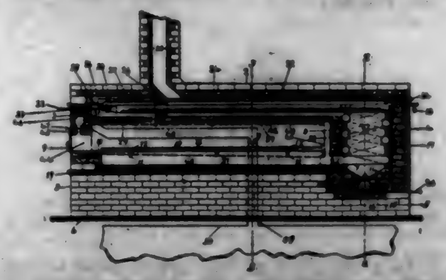
1,544,478. BUILDING BLOCK. MANFRED D. PAYNE, Newark, N. J. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 700,054. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—40.)

1. A reinforced building block including a body having a face, and a reinforcing element embedded in said block and having a section thereof extending longitudinally of the block adjacent the top thereof and other sections extending diagonally between opposed corners of the ends of said body.



1,544,479. CALENDAR. THOMAS G. PENN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 1, 1923. Serial No. 660,560. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—108.)

1. A calendar attachment for pencils comprising, a pencil carried number bearing member, a protecting sleeve mounted over said member, an outer sleeve rotatable relative to said protecting sleeve and provided with an opening to permit exhibition of the numbers on said member therethrough, said outer sleeve having an additional opening in alignment with the first opening, a plate mounted for sliding movement relative to the outer sleeve having numbers thereon to be exhibited thru the additional opening at predetermined times, day and month indicating plates slidably supported inwardly of said outer sleeve and said outer sleeve having openings to permit the exhibiting of the names of the days and months therethrough.



1,544,480. DOOR-SECURING MEANS. HECTOR Q. RACER, Atlantic, Mass., assignor to Raymond K. Hoyt, Atlantic, Mass. Filed Sept. 10, 1924. Serial No. 736,988. 2 Claims. (Cl. 292—298.)

1. A door securing device comprising a toothed bar having a lateral projection, a member slidable on said bar and adapted to be positioned against the inner face of a door, a rotary spirally ribbed member mounted in and connected to the slidable member to enable its ribs to work in the interdental spaces of the bar, and adjustable means on the slidable member at the opposite side of the bar to the rotary member and adapted in one position to maintain the rotary member in engagement with the teeth of the bar and in another position to permit of movement of the slidable member at right angles to the length of the bar and movement of the rotary member out of engagement with the teeth of the bar.

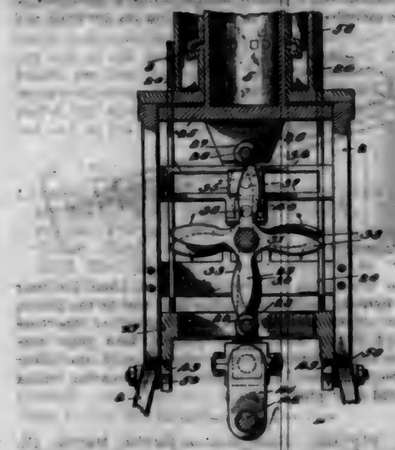
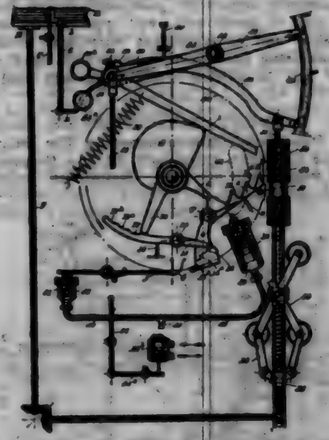
1,544,481. BAKING BREAD AND OTHER ARTICLES. LOUIS CHARLES ENNES, Saginaw, Mich. Filed Mar. 4, 1922. Serial No. 541,035. 10 Claims. (Cl. 107—55.)



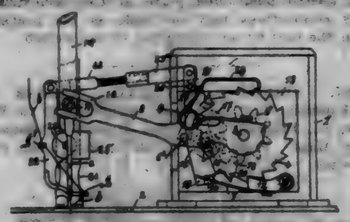
1. The method of baking which consists in withdrawing gaseous fluid from the baking chamber by the injector action of a jet of gaseous fluid under pressure, superheating the mixture of the gaseous fluid from the jet and of the gaseous fluid from the baking chamber, and returning the superheated mixture to the baking chamber.

4. The method of baking which consists in withdrawing gaseous fluid from the baking chamber by the injector action of a jet of a gaseous fluid under pressure, superheating the mixture of the gaseous fluid from the jet and the gaseous fluid from the baking chamber, and returning the superheated mixture to the baking chamber, the pressure of the gases within the said baking chamber being kept during all the time at about that of the outside atmosphere.



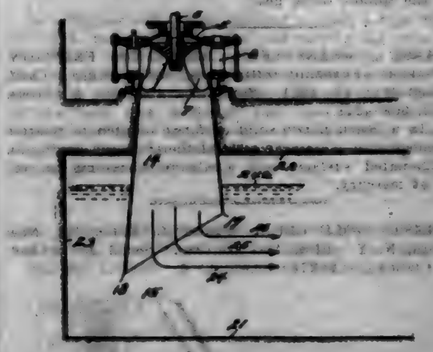
10. In a baking oven, in combination a baking chamber enclosed therein, a superheater, a furnace for heating the latter, an opening in the said baking chamber, a channel connecting the said opening with one end of the said superheater, a second opening in the said baking chamber, a channel connecting the latter opening with the opposite end of the said superheater, an adjustable steam jet ventilator so arranged in the first named channel as to draw a portion regulated thereby of the gaseous contents from the said baking chamber and to drive it mixed with the steam used through the first named channel, the superheater, and the second named channel back into the said baking chamber, a third opening in the latter, a channel connected to this opening and ending in the open air below the bottom of the said baking chamber, means for regulating the amount of surplus gases escaping from the latter through the last named opening, and an apparatus enclosed in the last named channel for using the heat contained in the gases passing therethrough.

1,544,482. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION MULTISTROKE ENGINE. CHARLES REINEKE, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Reineke Motor Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 17, 1920, Serial No. 396,902. Renewed Apr. 9, 1925. 15 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)



8. In an internal combustion engine, the combination with a cylinder of opposed pistons arranged therein, a power shaft, a crank for said shaft, and means interconnected with each of the aforesaid pistons and the crank for imparting a multiplicity of strokes of the pistons to the crank for effecting a single revolution of the power shaft, said means including a movable cross-head, oppositely sliding blocks arranged therein, and oppositely revoluble cams connected to said blocks and operably associated with the aforesaid pistons.

1,544,483. SPEED-CONTROLLING DEVICE FOR RAILWAY, TRAMWAY, AND SIMILAR TRAINS. ELOI RODOLAUSSE, St.-Antonin, France. Filed May 22, 1922. Serial No. 563,149. 5 Claims. (Cl. 246—182.)



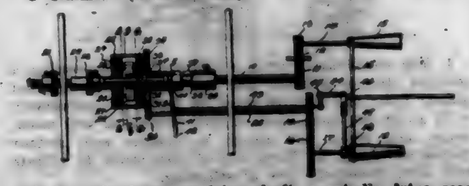
4. In a speed controlling device of the character described, two rocking lugs on the track, comprising each a horizontal shaft, a sleeve loosely mounted on said shaft, a metal blade carried on said sleeve, a coiled spring for maintaining said blade in a vertical position, a crank arm on said sleeve, a dashpot, and a piston reciprocating in the dashpot to check the velocity of the return motion of the blade into its vertical position, said crank arm being pivotally connected to the piston rod.

1,544,484. EMBROIDERY-COUCHING MACHINE. GABRIEL CASIMIR ROSSE, Bordeaux, France. Filed June 21, 1923. Serial No. 646,882. 2 Claims. (Cl. 112—100.)

1. The combination with a sewing machine sewing a straight line of stitches and having a needle-bar and presser foot; of a pivoted lever for laying an embroidery cord, an anchor mechanism, a link connecting said mechanism and lever, and means to operate said anchor mechanism upon the formation of each stitch to vibrate said lever across the line of stitching.

1,544,485. DRAFT TUBE FOR HYDRAULIC TURBINES. JAMES D. SCOVILLE, York, Pa., assignor to S. Morgan Smith Co., York, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 7, 1922. Serial No. 606,144. 16 Claims. (Cl. 253—17.)

1. An elbow draft tube comprising a primal tube member to receive the water from a turbine, and an angular member, the primal member being diverged and decreasing in length towards its discharge extremity in the downstream direction of the angular member.



1,544,486. SWITCHING DEVICE FOR RADIO SETS. JACOB SMELAK, New York, N. Y. Filed May 31, 1924. Serial No. 717,054. 1 Claim. (Cl. 250—14.)

In a radio set comprising a cabinet, a removable unit, an insulating plate mounted on the cabinet, a multiblade switch element mounted on the insulating plate, to which switch element a plurality of wires is adapted to be connected, an insulating plate mounted on the movable element and adapted to be alined with the plate on the cabinet, and a plurality of co-operating switch elements on the second mentioned plate of the removable unit whereby connections may be made to the plurality of wires on the unit by one operation of the switch.

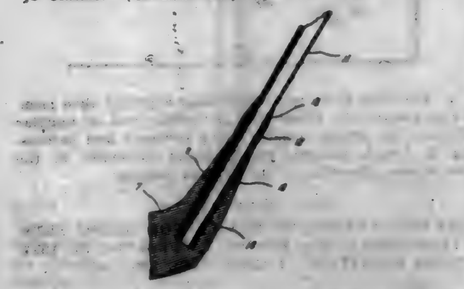
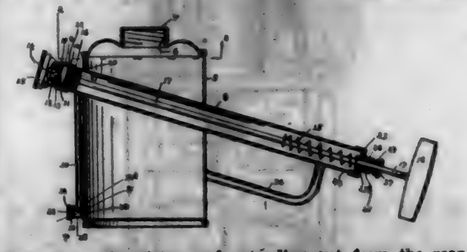
1,544,487. SPINNING MACHINE. WILLIAM SHAW, Sr., Esmond, R. I., assignor of one-third to William Shaw, jr., Esmond, R. I., and Manuel B. Sousa, Fall River, Mass. Filed Jan. 6, 1923. Serial No. 611,045. 3 Claims. (Cl. 118—33.)



1. In a fly frame, a drive shaft, a spindle drive gear keyed to the shaft, a bobbin drive gear rotatably mounted upon the shaft, a top and bottom cone, means for driving the drive shaft and spindle drive gear and the bobbin drive gear at the same rate of speed from the cones and means for driving the bobbin drive gear at an increased rate of speed in relation to the drive shaft and the spindle drive gear.

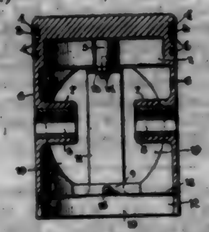
1,544,488. MEANS FOR REDUCING FRICTION. CHARLES FREDERIC SHERWOOD, Mill Valley, Calif. Filed Mar. 17, 1921. Serial No. 453,189. 8 Claims. (Cl. 308—241.)

1. In a bearing, two solid surfaces adapted to relative movement and a layer of a metal therebetween having an amalgamated surface, said amalgam containing an excess of mercury.



1,544,489. GOLF CLUB. FRANK L. SLAZENGER, New York, N. Y. Filed May 5, 1925. Serial No. 28,196. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—80.)

1. A golf club comprising a head having a shank provided with a tapered socket, a tubular metal shaft, and and a metal sleeve cast on the lower terminal of said shaft, said sleeve being tapered downwardly to wedge tightly into said socket and having screw-threads engaging the head.



1,544,490. SPRAYER. DE WANE B. SMITH, Utica, N. Y.; Golden R. Smith, Myron H. Smith, Alfred P. Smith, and Jessie A. Richards, executors of said De Wane B. Smith, deceased, assignors to D. B. Smith & Company, Inc., Utica, N. Y., a Corporation. Filed Dec. 9, 1921. Serial No. 521,120. 4 Claims. (Cl. 299—97.)

1. In a sprayer the combination of a liquid receptacle having a filler opening with a removable cap, a pump cylinder extending through and secured to the upper part of the receptacle and having a relatively small outlet at its forward end forming a valve seat, the rear end of said pump cylinder extending a substantial distance rearwardly of said receptacle and forming the handle of the device, a check valve seating rearwardly on said seat of the forward outlet, a piston reciprocatingly mounted in said pump cylinder, a piston rod having its forward end fastened to the piston and extending out from the rear end of the cylinder, a handle on the rear end of the piston rod, a rear closure for the cylinder having an aperture guiding and fitting the piston rod, a feed pipe connecting the forward part of the cylinder with the lower part of the receptacle and a rearwardly seating check valve in said feed pipe.

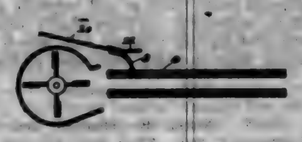
1,544,491. PISTON. EARL HILLIS SMITH, Marion, Ill. Filed May 28, 1924. Serial No. 716,595. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)

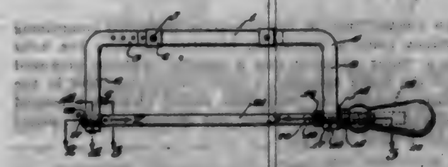
1. In a piston of the character set forth, a head having diametrically oppositely positioned spaced depending wings, a pair of semicircular end opposed members positioned below and in alignment with said wings, and means connecting each member with said head whereby the same may be shifted laterally beneath said wings.

1,544,492. GARMENT-PRESSING DEVICE. ARTHUR E. SNOW, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Daly Manufacturing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 24, 1922. Serial No. 563,239. 2 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



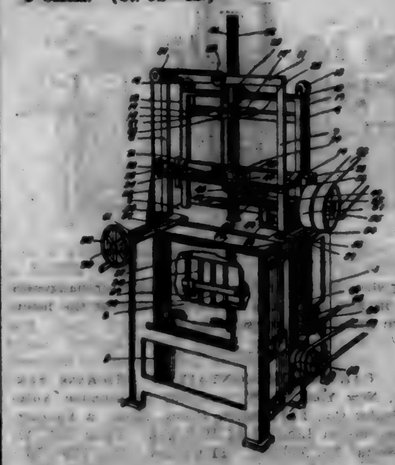
1. In a garment press the combination of a base, an elongated yoke having its one end pivotally mounted upon the base at the rear thereof, said pivoted end of the yoke being provided with a forwardly extending arm, the ends of the yoke being provided with alined bores, a rod reciprocally received in the bores in the yoke, a washer mounted on the rod intermediate the ends of the yoke, a spring extending about the rod and having its opposite ends in engagement upon the washer and the pivotally mounted end of the yoke, a presser arm pivotally supported by the base, a link pivotally connecting one end of the presser arm and the end of the rod adjacent the free end of the yoke, a foot lever pivotally mounted intermediate its ends at the front of the base, and a link pivotally connecting the arm on the yoke and one end of the foot lever.

1,544,493. PROCESS FOR THE RECUPERATION OF METALS FROM WASTE PRODUCTS. HENRI PAUL SOULIÉ-COTTINEAU, Villefranche, France, assignor to Le Cuivre Natif, Paris, France, a French Company. Filed Mar. 28, 1925. Serial No. 19,143. 7 Claims. (Cl. 75—18.)



1. A process for the recuperation of metals contained in waste-products in the form of silicates, consisting in subjecting said waste-product in a pulverized form, together with a small proportion of fluor-spar, to the action of an acid for the purpose of disaggregating the silicates, oxidizing the metals liberated and dissolving them in the excess acid.

1,544,494. ATTACHMENT TO THE GRAIN-CLEANING DEVICE OF A GRAIN-HARVESTING MACHINE. ARTHUR GUSTAV HENRY SPOEHR and AUGUST CARL EDARDT SPOEHR, Mintaro, South Australia, Australia. Filed Mar. 7, 1925. Serial No. 13,822. 3 Claims. (Cl. 130—18.)



1. An attachment for a sieve of a grain separator, comprising a curved sheet of perforated material provided at its lower edge with means whereby it may be held in engagement with the receiving end of the sieve with its convex side facing in the direction of travel of the grain.

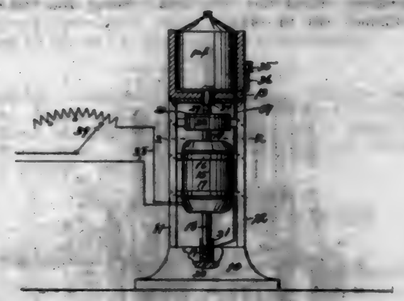
1,544,495. HACK-SAW FRAME. CLIFFORD SPRAGUE, Nederland, Colo. Filed June 28, 1923. Serial No. 648,835. 4 Claims. (Cl. 145—34.)

1. A hack saw frame including a back having parallel legs, a bolt provided with a diametrically extending opening adapted to receive one of said legs therethrough, means on said bolt for clamping against the edges of the leg, a substantially cylindrical member provided with a diametrically extending opening adapted to receive the other leg of the frame, and saw connecting means carried by said bolt and member.

1,544,496. DIPPING AND DRYING MACHINE. JOHN J. STARKS, Kansas City, Mo., assignor to The Starks Manufacturing Co., Kansas City, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Nov. 27, 1922. Serial No. 603,476. 1 Claim. (Cl. 91—42.)

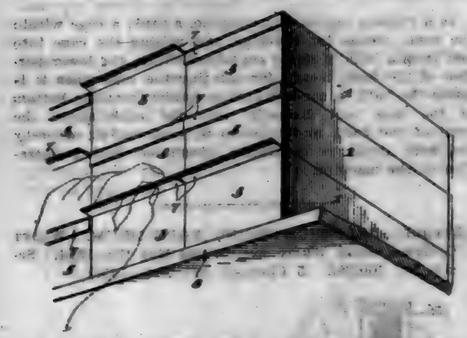
In a dipping and drying machine, a tank, a cage within the tank, means for lowering and raising the cage into and from a bath of liquid contained within the lower portion of the tank, means for rotating the cage when it is above the bath, a conduit having intake from the bottom of the tank and discharge into the tank above the level of the bath, and a pump in said conduit whereby the bath liquid is constantly circulated during operation of the machine.

1,544,497. SELF-TIGHTENING ROPE DRUM. WYATT C. STARR, Lake Wales, Fla. Filed Mar. 19, 1924. Serial No. 700,293. 5 Claims. (Cl. 254—147.)



1. In a device of the class described, a drum supported for rotation and including a reduced extension provided with a ratchet spaced from one end of the drum, a rotatable member journaled on the extension and held by the ratchet in close relation to said end of the drum, the rotatable member having an outstanding arm, a pawl pivoted to the arm and cooperating with the ratchet, a removable prop engaging the arm, and a looped flexible element having its ends connected respectively to the drum and to the rotatable member.

1,544,498. CREAM SEPARATOR. GARROT E. STRUTHERS and RAY M. STEMAN, Walnut, Iowa. Filed Aug. 28, 1922. Serial No. 584,626. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—7.)



In a driving mechanism, a frame and a shaft substantially centrally thereof, a motor mounted in said frame and having a shaft substantially in alinement with the first shaft, a gear case on said frame in which said shafts are journaled, an internal gear rotatably mounted in said case, pinions fixed on the shafts concentrically of said internal gear and removable and replaceable rel-sitive to the respective shafts, said case being formed with an assortment of arbor seats concentrically of said shafts and at different distances therefrom, and pinions of varying sizes having arbors adapted for interchangeable mounting in said seats and adapted to connect the internal gear to the pinions on said shafts.

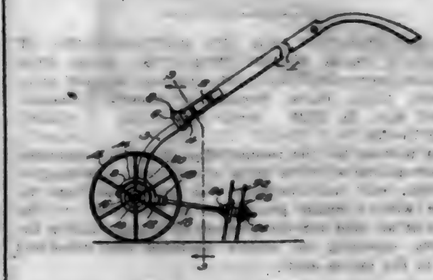
1,544,499. CARTON OR CONTAINER. RICHARD SUNDERMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Johnson Automatic Sealer Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., a Partnership Association Limited of Michigan. Filed Oct. 11, 1921. Serial No. 506,957. 11 Claims. (Cl. 229—16.)



6. A carton provided with a closure flap having a part inserted within the carton and a part substantially forming one end of the same, and a flap smaller than the end forming part of the closure flap, sealed thereon over the inserted part and serving as a pulling tab when unsealed.

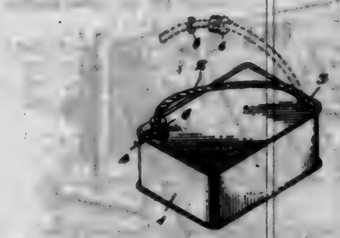
1,544,500. GAME APPARATUS. EMMA LAURENS SWENT, Wallace, Idaho. Filed Nov. 20, 1921. Serial No. 518,780. 5 Claims. (Cl. 217—7.)

1. A game apparatus of the class described including a receptacle having a main compartment provided with a removable cover, the bottom of said compartment being adapted to constitute a spinning board, said receptacle having a smaller covered compartment for marbles at a side of the main compartment and extending a portion of the length of said main compartment, there being a vertical partition between said compartments and a separate removable box in said receptacle and fitting therein at an end of the second compartment alongside the main compartment.

1,544,501. ROTARY CULTIVATOR. AUGUST JOSEPH TEDERS, Kendallville, Ind., assignor of one-half to Clarence Joseph Teders. Filed July 17, 1924. Serial No. 726,558. 5 Claims. (Cl. 97—38.)

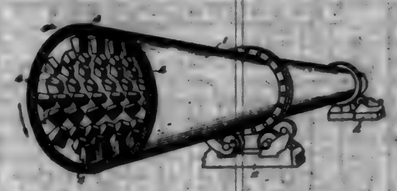
1. A rotary cultivator comprising a pair of handles and a straight transverse bar connecting the front ends thereof, a pair of horizontally spaced arms projecting forwardly from said bar and means connecting said arms with said bar for adjustment along the length of the latter, a pair of vertically disposed shaft carriers to which the front ends of said arms are adjustably pivoted for vertical movement, said carriers having longitudinally disposed shaft bearings and laterally projecting wheel spindles, implement carrying shafts rotatable in said bearings and having pinions, and wheels on said spindles having gears meshing with said pinions.

1,544,502. IRON. NOBLE B. THOMAS and OTHO M. SMITH, Logansport, Ind. Filed Nov. 22, 1921. Serial No. 517,008. 1 Claim. (Cl. 219—25.)



An electric iron of the character described comprising a hollow body, a horizontal partition dividing the body into a water chamber and a heating chamber arranged above the water chamber, a fixed contact arranged in the heating chamber, an expandible switch element arranged to engage said fixed contact and manual control means for the switch element.

1,544,503. CAN. VOLNEY WAYNE THOMSON, El Paso, Tex. Filed Apr. 19, 1924. Serial No. 707,754. 2 Claims. (Cl. 221—25.)



2. In combination, a container, a flexible elongated discharge member secured at one end to a normally upper part of the container, a nipple extending from the normally upper part of the container in spaced relation to the junction of the container and the discharge member, said discharge member being of sufficient length to permit of the insertion of the normally free end thereof in the nipple, a cap slidable on the discharge member and threadedly engageable with the nipple, and a packing washer carried by said discharge member in position to be clamped by said cap against said nipple when the cap is engaged with the nipple.

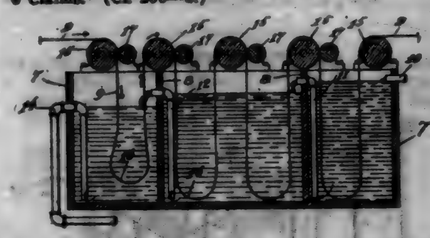
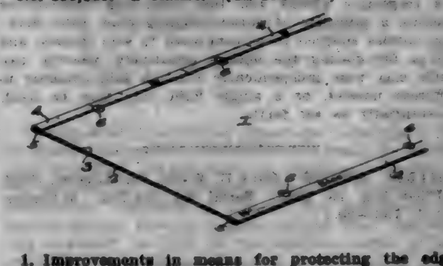
1,544,504. ROTARY KILN. CLIFFORD J. TOMLINSON, West Allis, Wis. Filed Oct. 30, 1923. Serial No. 671,774. 11 Claims. (Cl. 222—7.)



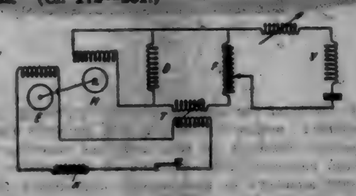
2. In a rotary kiln, a refractory kiln lining of inwardly presented projections, each of said projections including a plurality of heat absorbing faces, and each of said projections including a cutting edge presented in the direction of rotation of the kiln, and a flaring plowing surface adjacent the cutting edge, said projections being capable of passing through the matter being heated without propelling the same.

1,544,505. AUTOMOBILE CAMP BED. WILLIAM H. TOPP, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 17, 1923. Serial No. 625,874. 7 Claims. (Cl. 5—118.)



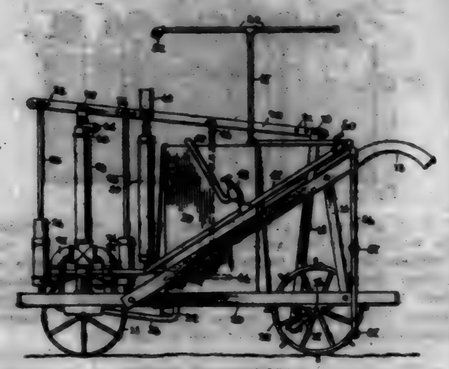
7. A camp bed comprising a pair of laterally spaced side rails composed of longitudinally adjustable sections, upstanding front and rear end pieces carried by said rails and having detachable connections therewith, suspension means carried by the rear end piece, a cross-rail connecting the front end pieces and removably attached thereto, a forwardly and longitudinally extending arm pivotally connected to the cross-rail intermediate the ends thereof, said arm having an outer section which is adjustable lengthwise, means for locking the arm in rigid position, a bed bottom consisting of a fabric sheet, cross-bars fitted to the ends of said sheet, means for detachably connecting one of said cross-bars to the aforesaid rear end piece, and means for detachably connecting the other cross-bar to the outer section of the aforesaid arm.

1,544,506. METAL-PICKLING PROCESS. JOHN B. TYTUS, Middletown, Ohio, assignor to The American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 4, 1923. Serial No. 629,764. 6 Claims. (Cl. 266—8.)



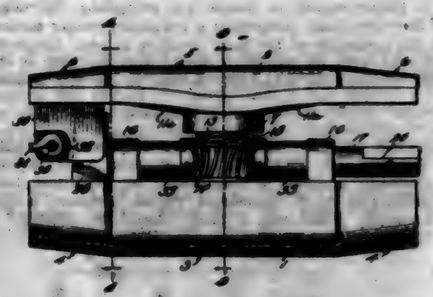
6. A process of pickling sheet metal, which consists in joining sheets together end for end to form a continuous strip, and feeding said strip over a series of driven drums between which the strip hangs in loops, said loops depending into separated baths of pickle liquor, through which pickle liquor flows in a counter-direction to the direction of feed of the strips.

1,544,507. BINDER FOR FLOOR COVERINGS. ARTHUR E. VAN BIBBER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Congoleum Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 5, 1921. Serial No. 458,843. 2 Claims. (Cl. 154—49.)



1. Improvements in means for protecting the edges of floor coverings, comprising a temporary binder secured to the underside of the floor covering at each longitudinal edge with its free edge turned over the edge of the floor covering and detachably secured to the face thereof.

1,544,508. ARRANGEMENT FOR GENERATING HIGH-FREQUENCY ENERGY. GEORG VON ARCO, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Gesellschaft für Drahtlose Telegraphie m. b. H. Hallescher, Berlin, Germany, a Corporation. Filed Aug. 3, 1922. Serial No. 579,501. 5 Claims. (Cl. 172—281.)



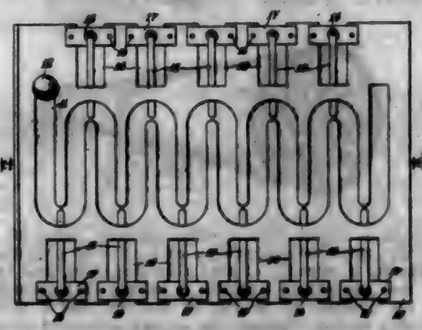
1. An arrangement for generating high frequency energy, comprising a first generator, an output circuit coupled to said first generator, a transformer requiring a high magnetising current in said output circuit, a second generator, adjustable means connecting said generators together so that the phase relation of their generated voltages may be varied from 90°, and means for coupling said second generator to said output circuit to improve the power factor in said first generator.

1,544,509. SPRAYING MACHINE. GROVER C. VOWELL, Ellenton, Fla., assignor of one-half to W. H. Brown, Manatee County, Fla. Filed July 19, 1923. Serial No. 652,569. 10 Claims. (Cl. 299—46.)

1. A convertible spraying device comprising containers for a variety of liquid supplies, a plurality of pumps, a chamber having compartments in communication with the respective pumps and the containers appurtenant thereto, a plurality of outlets leading from said chamber, nozzles adapted to be connected to said outlets, and means for closing the outlets selectively whereby two fluids may pass independently through said chamber to different nozzles, or a single fluid only may be used, substantially as set forth.

1,544,510. SWAGE. JOHN H. WARE, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 16, 1922. Serial No. 657,753. 4 Claims. (Cl. 153—80.)

1. A device of the class described comprising cooperating members; means for moving said members apart; interengaging elements on said members coacting to prevent said members from swinging on said means, and to hold said members in parallelism; and means for moving the device bodily, said means being connected to one of the aforesaid interengaging elements.



1,544,511. GAME. CARL H. WHITNEY, Craig, Nebr. Filed Nov. 17, 1920. Serial No. 678,811. Renewed May 22, 1925. 5 Claims. (Cl. 273—126.)

3. In games, a board having game-piece receiving pockets, separated by hazards in the form of partitions loosely connected with the board at one end, and adapted to rest at the other on a table or other support for the board, and movable to increase or diminish the hazard at any selected pocket.

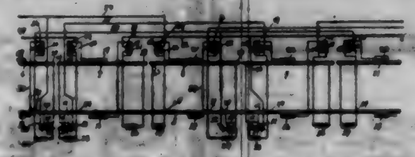
1,544,512. TOY DEVICE. MAX WEISS, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 20, 1923. Serial No. 24,224. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—46.)

1. A toy comprising an inclined member provided with a tortuous open guide-way to receive a ball designed to roll from top to bottom of said member and to project thru the guide-way, said member being provided with inwardly directed recesses along each of the side edges, levers oscillating within the said recesses, pivotally secured to said member and having an end disposed in the path of said ball for contact therewith, and means actuated by the opposite ends of the respective levers when the latter are oscillated by the ball.



1,544,513. TUMBLING AND SAND-BLAST CLEANING MACHINE. JOSEPH P. WILD, Waukesha, Wis. Filed July 6, 1923. Serial No. 649,819. 25 Claims. (Cl. 51—13.)

1. In a cleaning machine, the combination of a rotatable tumbling drum one end of which is open, supported so as to be tilted about an axis located between the ends of the drum, a support for arresting and supporting the drum in a determined position for rotation and a hinged closure for the open end of the drum supported independently of the drum.

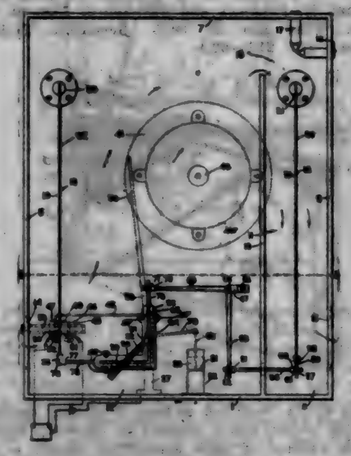
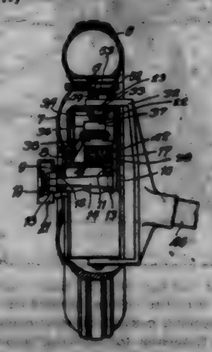
1,544,514. AUTOMATIC TRAIN STOP. JOHN H. WRIGHT and BRUCE H. GROVE, Byron, Calif. Filed Feb. 21, 1924. Serial No. 694,219. 8 Claims. (Cl. 246—49.)



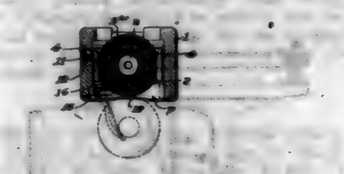
2. In an automatic train control system the combination with a continuous rail, a sectional rail parallel to the continuous rail, the sections of said second mentioned rail forming block sections insulated one from the other, a track relay comprising a coil, an armature and a contact, one end of said coil being connected to the continuous rail, the opposite end of this coil being connected to one end of one of said rail sections, a control battery having one side connected to the armature of said track relay, the contact of said track relay being electrically connected to the coil of a control relay in distant blocks in opposite direction from the said track relay, a control relay comprising a coil, an armature and a contact, said armature and said coil being electrically connected to said continuous rail and the opposite side of said control battery, the opposite side of said last mentioned coil being electrically connected to the contact of the track relay in the third block of the system and to the coil of a second contact relay located adjacent the rear end of the fifth rail section, a ramp positioned parallel to said continuous rail, the contact of said control relay being electrically connected to said ramp, the contact of said track relay being electrically connected to the coils of the control relays located adjacent the second rail sections of either side of the rail section having the above mentioned track relays connected thereto.

1,544,515. GAME. GEORGE BRANNING, Ross Township, Allegheny County, Pa., assignor to Nellie Branning, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed May 28, 1924. Serial No. 716,504. 8 Claims. (Cl. 273—134.)



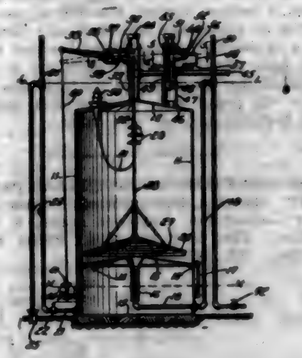
2. A game including a board having a playing surface provided with starting stations and inscribed to represent intersecting city streets, defining blocks, the blocks being numbered and arranged in contrasting groups with corresponding numbers in each group, in combination with playing pieces adapted to be shifted over the playing surface and brought to rest upon the blocks, and a pack of numbered cards for fortuitously determining the blocks constituting destinations for the pieces.

1,544,516. HYGROMETRIC INDICATOR, RECORDER, AND REGULATOR. EDWARD W. COMFORT, Winchester, Mass., assignor to Parks-Cramer Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 9, 1921. Serial No. 483,466. 17 Claims. (Cl. 236—44.)



1. Hygrometric regulating apparatus comprising a pair of movable controllers, thermosensitive means for moving said controllers independently to positions indicative of the wet and dry bulb temperatures of the atmosphere, a transformer connected to one of said controllers and having an arm variably engaged by the other controller and angularly movable by the conjoint action of said controllers to positions indicative of a condition of the atmosphere and means operable by the conjoint action of said controllers to regulate the condition of the atmosphere.

1,544,517. ELECTRIC FOUR-WHEEL AUTOMOBILE TRANSMISSION. JOHN M. CONKLIN, Bell, Calif. Filed Dec. 12, 1922. Serial No. 580,282. 1 Claim. (Cl. 172—287.)



A motor adapted to be mounted in a vehicle wheel and comprising a housing, a stub axle rigidly secured to said housing, a casting rotatably mounted on said stub axle, an armature formed on said casting, a ring-shaped

1,544,527. LOOM SHUTTLE. HARRY A. DAVIS, Hopedale, Mass., assignor to Draper Corporation, Hopedale, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Dec. 29, 1924. Serial No. 756,898. 13 Claims. (Cl. 139—213.)

1. A loom shuttle provided with a tension member, extending diagonally across the bobbin chamber to bear upon the yarn therein and a yieldable supporting arm for the tension member extending across the bobbin chamber to be displaced by a bobbin as it is ejected from the shuttle.

1,544,528. ELECTRICAL DEHYDRATOR FOR PETROLEUM EMULSIONS. HAROLD C. EDDY, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company of California, Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Oct. 19, 1923. Serial No. 669,593. 10 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)

1. A dehydrator for electrically separating water and oil from an emulsified mixture of said water and oil comprising: a cylindrical tank; an upper electrode in said tank; a lower electrode in said tank, said lower electrode being conical in shape, sloping downwardly from the center thereof; an emulsion inlet pipe so placed as to deliver emulsion to the space between said electrodes near the center thereof; a water outlet pipe so placed as to draw water from the bottom of said tank; an oil outlet pipe so placed as to draw oil from the top of said tank; and means for impressing a sufficient electromotive force between said electrodes to cause a coalescence of water particles in the space between said electrodes.

1,544,529. PROCESS OF MAKING CHLORINATED RUBBER. CARLETON ELLIS, Montclair, N. J., assignor to Chadeloid Chemical Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed June 27, 1921. Serial No. 480,585. Renewed Mar. 24, 1925. 18 Claims. (Cl. 106—23.)

1. The process of treating rubber which comprises masticating it with a volatile solvent softening agent in such proportions as to form a plastic mass and agitating this mass in an atmosphere of chlorine.

1,544,530. PROCESS OF MAKING CHLORINATED RUBBER AND PRODUCTS DERIVED THEREFROM. CARLETON ELLIS, Montclair, N. J., assignor to Chadeloid Chemical Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed July 26, 1921. Serial No. 487,784. 12 Claims. (Cl. 106—23.)

8. The process of making chlorinated rubber which comprises reacting on fragments of unvulcanized rubber with chlorine, and dissolving away the clorinated rubber from said fragments as fast as formed, said fragments being of appreciable size.

9. As a new article of manufacture chlorinated rubber in the form of a sponge-like structure.

1,544,531. METHOD OF CHLORINATING RUBBER. CARLETON ELLIS and NORRIS BOEHMER, Montclair, N. J., assignors to Chadeloid Chemical Company, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Mar. 22, 1924. Serial No. 701,022. 2 Claims. (Cl. 106—23.)

1. The process which comprises exposing rubber to the action of chlorine under pressure, the latter being in an amount substantially in excess of the combining requirements, and at an elevated temperature below the charring point of the material.

1,544,532. PROCESS OF MAKING CHLORINATED RUBBER. CARLETON ELLIS, Montclair, N. J., assignor to Chadeloid Chemical Company, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Mar. 22, 1924. Serial No. 701,030. 4 Claims. (Cl. 106—23.)

3. A process which comprises incorporating substantially more unvulcanized rubber in a bulk of solvent material than could be dissolved therein, and agitating such mixture of materials at substantially above room temperature but below the boiling point of the solvent, while contacting chlorine therewith.

1,544,533. PROCESS OF TREATING RUBBER. CARLETON ELLIS, Montclair, N. J., assignor to Chadeloid Chemical Company, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Mar. 22, 1924. Serial No. 701,026. 2 Claims. (Cl. 106—23.)

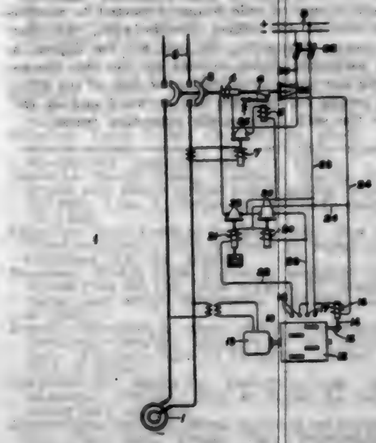
2. In the process of making chlorinated rubber, the step which comprises exposing unchlorinated rubber, under pressure to spent chlorine gas containing hydrogen chloride.

1,544,534. CHLORINATED RUBBER PRODUCT AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. CARLETON ELLIS and NORRIS BOEHMER, Montclair, N. J.; said Boehmer assignor to Chadeloid Chemical Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed July 14, 1922. Serial No. 575,045. 11 Claims. (Cl. 106—22.)

1. The process of making chlorinated rubber which comprises reacting with chlorine gas at superatmospheric pressure on a loosely-packed mass composed of pieces of rubber, the mass being freely permeable to chlorine so that this gas may circulate about said pieces and in thus exposing the rubber to the continued action of chlorine to bring about an exothermic reaction and consolidate the pieces into a coherent mass of highly chlorinated rubber.

6. In the process of chlorinating rubber under the pressure the step which comprises venting the chlorination chamber from time to time to remove hydrochloric acid.

9. A rigid coalesced, vesiculated chlorinated rubber containing substantially above 67% of combined chlorin.

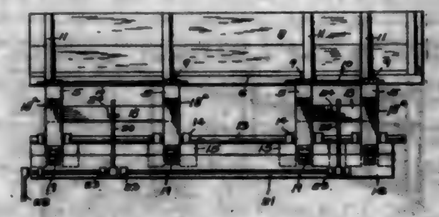


1,544,535. CHLORINATED RUBBER COMPOUND AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. CARLETON ELLIS and NORRIS BOEHMER, Montclair, N. J., assignors to Chadeloid Chemical Company, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed May 18, 1923. Serial No. 639,083. 14 Claims. (Cl. 106—23.)

1. A chlorine-fluxed chlorinated rubber.

6. As a new product, a plastic mass containing chlorinated rubber and substantial amount of liquid free chlorin, such free chlorin serving as a plasticizing agent for the normally solid chlorinated rubber.

7. The process which comprises softening unvulcanized rubber by exposing to more than double its weight of chlorine, under a liquefying temperature and pressure, whereby the rubber is softened, and permitting the chlorine to act upon the softened material to bring about substantial chlorination thereof.

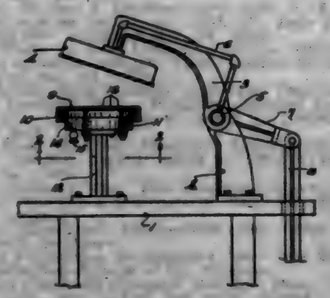


1,544,536. CONTROL SYSTEM FOR ELECTRIC SWITCHES. GLENN E. STEWART, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,243. 8 Claims. (Cl. 175—294.)

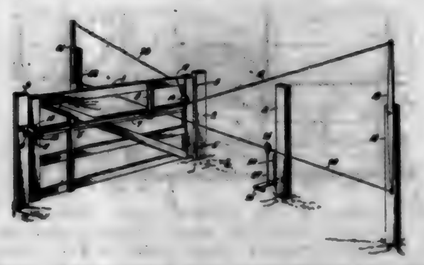
1. In combination, an electric circuit, a circuit breaker in said circuit, means responsive to a predetermined condition of said circuit for effecting the opening of said circuit breaker, electromagnetic means for effecting the closing of said circuit breaker, a circuit for said electromagnetic means, a control relay, a circuit for said control relay, contacts in the circuit of said electromagnetic means controlled by said control relay, other contacts in the circuit of said electromagnetic means, and automatic switching means operative in response to the opening of said circuit breaker for controlling said control relay circuit to cause said relay to close the contacts in the circuit of said electromagnetic means which are controlled thereby and for subsequently effecting the closing of said other contacts in the circuit of said electromagnetic means.

1,544,537. DUMPING BODY FOR TRUCKS AND WAGONS. LOUIS P. WOOD, Niland, S. Dak. Filed Feb. 3, 1925. Serial No. 6,642. 1 Claim. (Cl. 298—18.)

In a device of the character described the combination with a running gear consisting of longitudinally extending side rails and transverse end rails, of supports hingedly connected to the longitudinally extending side rails, a horizontal operating rod, rods carried by the horizontal operating rod and projecting substantially at right angles thereto, eyes carried by the supports through which the last named rods project and in which said last named rods may move when the supports are swung outwardly and downwardly by rocking the horizontal operating rod, a body pivoted centrally and longitudinally upon cross bars of the running gear, and hinged sides for said body.

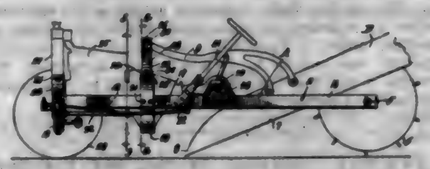


1,544,538. WATCH HOOK. LOUIS J. ANSHER, Providence, R. I. Filed Mar. 28, 1925. Serial No. 19,045. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—235.)



1. In an article of the character described, a front plate, a beak upon one end of the plate, a flange upon the other end of the plate, side walls upon the plate, stop ears upon the walls adjacent the beak, a pintle in the walls adjacent the flange, a tongue mounted upon the pintle adapted to engage the beak, and a spring supported by the pintle pressing the tongue against the beak.

1,544,539. LAUNDRY AND GARMENT PRESS. EDWARD H. EICHELMAN, Birmingham, Ala. Filed May 23, 1924. Serial No. 715,450. 4 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



1. A press having as co-acting elements a head and a buck, in combination with automatic means in at least one of said elements to induce a flow of air through the garment on the separation of the co-acting elements.

1,544,540. GATE. TILLSTON O. THAYER, Albany, Oreg., assignor of two-fifths to George R. Riggs, Albany, Oreg. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 492,085. 1 Claim. (Cl. 89—37.)

In combination with a gate, a post, a detent comprising a vertically movable ring normally arranged in its lowermost position, said ring being restricted in its movement outwardly of said post, a latch bar fulcrumed on the gate and having one end normally urged upwardly for cooperation with the ring and adapted to engage the bottom of the ring to raise the same whereby the said end of the latch bar can be retained between the ring and the post when the gate is closed, and said detent engaging end of said bar being movable downwardly to engage the bottom of the ring to raise the same when the bar is operated to open the gate, said ring being immovable when its side adjacent the post is engaged by said latch bar.

1,544,541. FRAME ATTACHMENT FOR POTATO DIGGERS. LESTER R. LEE, Presque Isle, Me. Filed Sept. 22, 1924. Serial No. 739,442. 4 Claims. (Cl. 180—54.)

1. The combination with a conventional potato digger including a forwardly extending lift beam, of a wheeled frame for supporting a drive engine for the digger including a pair of spaced side beams arranged to receive the forward end of the digger therebetween, the rear ends of the beams supporting an axle for the digger, a transversely extending frame carried by the side beams for supporting the rear end of the crank case of the drive engine, and means for securing the forward end of the lift beam to the said transversely extending frame.
